Cures Others

Will cure You, is a true statement of the action of AYER'S Sarsaparilla, when taken for diseases originating in impure blood; but, while this assertion is true of AYER'S Sarsaparilla, as thousands can attest, it cannot be truthfully applied to other preparations, which unprincipled dealers will recommend, and try to impose upon you, as "just as good as Ayer's." Take Ayer's Sarsaparilla and Ayer's only, if you need a blood-purifier and would be benefited permanently. This medicine, for nearly fifty years, has enjoyed a reputation, and made a record for cures, that has never been equaled by other preparations. AYER'S Sarsaparilla eradicates the taint of hereditary scrofula and other blood diseases from the system, and it has, deservedly, the confidence of the people.

AYER'S Sarsaparilla

"I cannot forbear to express my joy at the relief I have obtained from the use of AYER'S Sarsaparilla. I was afflicted with kidney troubles for about six months, suffering greatly with pains in the small of my back. In addition to this, my body was covered with pimply eruptions. The remedies prescribed failed to help me. I then began to take AYER'S Sarsaparilla, and, in a short time, the pains ceased and the pimples disappeared. I advise every young man or woman, in case of sickness resulting from impure blood, no matter how long standing the case may be, to take AYER'S Sarsaparilla."—H. L. Jarmann, 33 William st., New York City.

QUEER QUAKER FOLK

NO SERMON, SINGING OR COLLECTION AT THEIR SUNDAY MEETING.

How Amishmen Resented the Introduction of "Store Clothes"—Old Joe, the Quaker Hermit, and His Prophet's Cave. Peculiarities of the Friends.

[Special Correspondence.]

PITTSBURG, Nov. 20.—This is a simple lide of old school Quakers, as they are found among the mountains of Pennsylvania. Having renounced the world, the flesh and the devil, they live on, still practicing the narrow minded customs of a former century.

George Keith, who after an altercation with the orthodox Quakers broke away from the sect and founded an independent order many years ago, remarked shortly before his death, "I wish I had died when I was a good Quaker, for then I know it would have been well with my soul."

Those who like to act a thinking part in life should find much to please them in the religion of the Quakers. There is an old saying that the best way to tell a genuine Quaker is to watch and see which way he twirls his thumbs. If he always twirls them in the same direction, he is an orthodox Quaker. If in both directions, it shows that his thinking part has been interrupted and that he is a Hicksite, a Keithite or some other pretender.

Time was when the Quakers were a power in what was then a newly settled country. Coming as they did to these shores from England, where they had been obliged to doff their hats to every petty magistrate of the realm, they determined that over here they would not uncover their heads even in the presence of him whom they reverence above king or potentate. Quakers of the old school still sit with their hats on throughout their Sunday meeting.

The modern days of active and brusque competition have rubbed away many Quaker lineaments. But in some localities the Quaker influence is still potent. Pennsylvania is now erecting a bust of William Penn upon the dome of the state capitol in the Quaker City.

There are more Quakers in the United States today than ever before. Many of the western states, especially Indiana, show a marked increase in this sect. There are at least 80,000 orthodox Quakers within the pale of Uncle Sam's religious tolerance, besides 40,000 Hicksites, Keithites and members of other allied communities. In a plain brick building the Quakers gather on the Sabbath day. The men of the old school wear well worn beaver hats, with ye ancient brims and bell crowns; swallowtail coats, colonial collars and cravats, and knee boots concealed beneath broadcloth breeches. The women wear the hideous poke bonnets of a primitive age, plain jean gowns and shawls of somber hue. The elders or appointed leaders sit upon four straight backed wooden benches, which stand upon a raised platform in the front of the room. The men occupy seats on one side of a broad aisle, the women on the other.

A Quaker family approaches the meeting house and divides into two groups. The mother and girls enter one door and take seats together on one side of the room, while the father marches the boys in through the other door to seats on the opposite side of the room. The younger generation is not so easily distinguishable from those of other denominations. Some of the young men take their hats off in meeting like other people. Others even wear high collars and part their hair in the middle, while the girls are not averse to bright gowns and bonnets a la mode.

The thinking part, however, begins as soon as the congregation has arrived. It continues for an hour or more while all sit and ponder over sins they imagine themselves to have committed. One old Quaker betrays a languid, sleepy expression, betokening that he is scarcely conscious whether he is in the body or out. His broad brimmed hat shades his eyes, however, and he is safe from the observation of the elders. Some one coughs, and a ripple of coughing goes through the congregation, as when a stone thrown into the water causes ever widening eddies over the entire surface. Two little boys sitting together grow mischievous, and in an unguarded moment one of them snickers. A staid old Quaker, aroused from his reverie, goes and sits down behind the boys to keep them straight. Then all is silence again.

One of the elders finally arises, "when the spirit moves," as they say, repeats a verse of Scripture and gives a brief exposition of its innate truth. In many communities women are the speakers, and strange as it may seem they usually make short speeches. There is a striking preference for women as leaders among the Quakers, growing out of the fact that the first martyr to the Quaker faith was a woman, who suffered execution at the hands of the blue blooded Puritans of New England. A Quaker meeting is finally broken up by one of the elders on the front bench, who reaches over and shakes hands with another elder. The congregation follows his example, and there is a general handshaking as the Quakers leave the meeting house.

There is only one service on Sunday, and the devout Quakers then go home to eat a hearty dinner and to sit and ponder by their own firesides the rest of the day. It should be said that orthodox Quakers maintain that their proper title is Friends. They generally speak of their religious service as Friends' meeting. The term Quaker, as the historian Hume tells us, is really one of ridicule, which has clung to the sect since its origin in England.

To a man of the bustling nineteenth century world, a Quaker meeting is novel and refreshing. He leaves the place inclined to envy the stolid Quaker his unostentatious service. He counts his change to find that he has not been asked to give to a dozen needy charities, or to increase the minister's salary, for no "collection" is ever taken at a Quaker meeting. The entire material cost of religion to a Quaker does not exceed $3 or $4 a year. The expenses consist only of fuel and repairs. There is little to repair save four brick walls and the wooden benches.

Near New Wilmington, Pa., is a peculiar community, whose members are known as Amishmen. One of the younger and more radical of the number recently astonished the entire community by appearing at meeting dressed in "store clothes." He took off his hat, too, in meeting, which was against the rules. But what scandalized the good old Amishmen worst of all was to see that he had had his hair cut by a "worldly barber." Amishmen wear their hair very long and shaggy and dress in long tailed coats with no buttons, fastened only by hooks and eyes from top to bottom.

Not one of his former friends would speak to the young Amishman after his renovation. The peddlers who visit the community to buy farm products have been advised not to purchase from him, and the storekeepers have been requested not to sell him goods—in fact, he is subject to a severe boycott, but still asserts his independence. He took a cartload of apples to a cider mill one day, but the millhands refused to grind or press his apples and compelled him to take the load back home.

The ostracised young Amishman now declares that he will renounce the faith and move to another part of the state. His own father, who is a strict Amishman, refuses to condone his son's offense and will have nothing to do with him.

On a high bluff, midway between Conshohocken and Manayunk, overlooking the picturesque Schuylkill valley, is a Quaker hermit's cave. A large balancing rock forms the roof, while the chinks along the side have been stopped with small stones, mud and dried grass. This cave is the home of "Joseph Dewess, the prophet," more familiarly known as "Old Joe."

Thirteen years ago Joe took up his abode there, in the beauty spot of southern Pennsylvania. He had been a successful business man, had achieved a snug fortune and deposited his money in a Philadelphia bank. He had chosen a handsome Quaker City belle to become his bride. Then came the crash. The bank failed, and Joe's thousands were swept away. His mind gave way under the terrible strain. A well defined financial idiosyncrasy soon became apparent, and visions of fabulous wealth flitted through poor old Joe's diseased brain. He styled himself the "prophet," to consult whom meant a man's fortune.

A strip of rocky land had been saved from his financial wreck, and it was there that old Joe went to live in his hermit cave near Conshohocken. A Quaker settlement is near by, and upon this kind hearted folk the hermit is largely dependent. When the storms of winter rage, a sturdy old Quaker elder may often be seen trudging along the rocky path that leads to the prophet's cave, with a bowl of hot soup or joint of well roasted meat.

Visitors to Joe's cave on taking their departure often drop nickels or dimes into his hand, but he never asks for alms. He has been taught by his Quaker neighbors not to accept money on Sunday and politely refuses, reminding the would be giver that it is "the Lord's day."

"Becky Vanderbilt was down to see me the other day," said old Joe recently to the writer.

"They come from the four corners of the earth to learn my system of finance. I am in a charmed circle, charmed by gold! I cast seven devils out of a young lady the other day—all by the power of gold. And what do you think, her father gave me only $1.50 and seven Spanish cigars.

"Young man," he continued in his rambling way, "you want to stop writing for newspapers and make your fortune. I am going to call a conference soon of Vanderbilt, Gould, Drexel, Baring and Sage, to divide the world's money. Some people say Gould and Drexel are dead, but they are not, for the rich never die. I like you, and you must have money. You just be on hand, and I'll see that you get a good share."

I left old Joe in good humor as I hurried to catch my train, promising to be on hand at the division of the spoils.

These are a few peculiarities noted among the old school Quakers. With quaint hospitality they make a stranger feel at ease among them, while not neglecting their own secular duties. They are born, "raised" and die in the same town, often in the same house. Recognizing above all the universal God, they live thriftily and devoutly, simply and contentedly. They pass down to the ebb tide of life in happiness and ease. When they die, let us believe with Keith that it is well with their souls.

JACKSON TINKER.

Mysteries of the Sea.

In the profound abysms of the sea there are strange forms of life that never see the upper light, save when brought up by the trawl. The work recently accomplished by the United States Fish commission vessel, the Albatross, has established the fact that forms of sea life inhabiting the upper waters may descend to about 1,200 feet from the surface, but below this, to a depth of 300 or 360 fathoms, a barren water zone intervenes where marine life seems absent. But still deeper, strange to say, have been discovered abundant and varied fauna new to science, living under conditions of tremendous pressure and remarkable paucity of the life sustaining element, of oxygen. Thus science is forever bringing some new fact to light and putting the darkness of ignorance to flight.

Men's Smoking Coats.

The newest English smoking coats for men are usually made of either black or dark blue cloth, lined with flannel, faced with silk, or throughout with quilted satin, to match the color of the cloth. Some are edged round with black and white or blue and red silk cord. Others are embroidered on the roll collar and cuffs. Ladies sometimes do this work after their own designs, especially when the coat is intended for a gift.

Boiling Well Water.

Many people in the country who are compelled to drink well water are boiling all that is used in the family. The question is frequently asked how long it should be boiled. The best chemists say that half an hour's boiling is considered sufficient to destroy disease germs, if any exist in the water.

THOMAS MINCHIN.

Before Treatment. After Treatment.

Nervous Debility and Catarrh Cured.

Thomas Minchin says: "I was reduced to a nervous wreck—only weighed 118 pounds. The result of early abuse was the cause. I had the following symptoms: Miserable mentally and physically, melancholy, nervousness, weakness, specks before the eyes, dizzy, poor memory, palpitation of the heart, flushing, cold hands and feet, weak back, dreams and losses at night, tired in the morning, pimples on the face, loss of ambition, burning sensation, kidneys weak etc. Doctors could not cure me; but Drs. Kennedy & Kergan by their New Method Treatment, cured me in a few weeks. I weigh now 170 pounds. It is three years since I have taken their treatment."

MAJOR W. A. SIMFIELD.

Before Treatment. After Treatment.

Blood Disease and Dyspepsia Cured.

Major Simfield says: "I had Dyspepsia and Catarrh of the Stomach for many years. To make matters worse I contracted a Constitutional Blood Disease. My bones ached. Blotches on the skin looked horrible. I tried sixteen doctors in all. A friend recommended Drs. Kennedy & Kergan. I began their New Method Treatment and in a few weeks was a new man with renewed life and ambition. I cannot say too much for those scientific doctors who have been in Detroit for fourteen years. I conversed with hundreds of patients in their offices who were being cured for different diseases. I recommend them as honest and reliable Physicians."

A Steel Windmill and Steel Tower every 3 minutes. These figures tell the story of the ever-growing, ever-going, everlasting Steel Aermotor. Where one goes others follow, and we "Take the Country." Though sold, we were unable to manufacture all of the 20,049 Aermotors in '91. Orders often waited 3 weeks. But this summer we have greatly increased our plant and are prepared promptly to plant our windmills in every habitable section of the globe.

GALVANIZED it is not enough to make portions of a wheel of galvanized metal that will not corrode as painting does, but the whole wheel must be galvanized before being completed, to be absolutely protected from rust and decay.

The Aermotor Pneumatic Water Supply System enables you to supply every part of your house with water without an Elevated Tank.

Are you curious to know how the Aermotor Co., in the 4th year of its existence, came to make many times as many windmills as all other makers combined? How we came to originate the Steel Wheel, the Steel Fixed Tower, the Steel Tilting Tower?

1st. We commenced in a field in which there had been no improvement for 25 years, and in which there seemed a fatal certainty of stagnation, and now that has been shown except in feeble imitation of our inventions.

2d. Before commencing the manufacture, exhaustive scientific investigation and experiments were made by a skilled mechanical engineer, in which over 5,000 dynamometric tests were made on 60 different forms of wheels, propelled by artificial and therefore uniform wind, which settled definitely many questions relating to the proper speed of wheel, the best form, angle, curvature and amount of sail surface, the resistance of air to rotation, obstruction in the wheel, such as heavy wooden arms, obstructions before the wheel, as in the vaneless mill, and many other more abstruse, though not less important questions. These investigations proved that the power of the best wind wheels could be doubled, and the AERMOTOR daily demonstrates it has been done.

3d. To the liberal policy of the Aermotor Co., that guarantees its goods satisfactory or pays freight both ways, and to the enormous output of its factory which enables it to furnish the best article at less than the poorest is sold for. For '92 we furnish the most perfect bearings ever put in a windmill, and have made an exhaustive revision of the Aermotor and Towers.

If you want a strong, stiff, Steel Fixed Tower—or if you want the tower you don't have to climb, the Steel Tilting Tower) and the Wheel that runs when all others stand still, that costs you less than wood and lasts ten times as long (The Steel Aermotor) or if you want a Geared Aermotor to churn, grind, cut feed pump water, turn grindstone and saw wood, that does the work of 4 horses at the cost of one $100, write for copiously illustrated, printed matter, showing every essential phase of windmill construction and work to the AERMOTOR CO., 12th and Rockwell Sts., Chicago, or 7-29 Beale St., San Francisco.

DR. TRASK'S MAGNETIC OINTMENT.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

All Sores, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Burns, Sore Throat, Lameness, Rheumatism, Piles, Inflammation of Lungs and Bowels, Bronchitis, Croup, Salt Rheum, Chilblains, Affection of the Spine, Erysipelas, Nervous Irritation, and all disorders attendant with Inflammation.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, nerve and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years.

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should be perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Prices 25 and 40 cents per bottle. Sold [illegible] dealers in medicine.

KING OF THE BLOOD

The Most Thorough Purifier of the Blood Yet Discovered.

It purifies the Blood.
It invigorates the Liver.
It regulates the Bowels.
It strengthens the stomach.
It gives vivacity in place of lassitude; cheerfulness in place of gloom, and robust vigor in place of debility.

Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Disordered Liver, Constipation, Nervous Affections, General Debility, in short all the numerous diseases and discomforts caused by impure blood are speedily conquered by this powerful corrector, the chief and sovereign of all ancient or modern medical discoveries—KING OF THE BLOOD.

Its name is its best description as it is a royal dispenser of the blessings of health and vanquishes the foes that lurk in the blood.

It banishes PIMPLES, SALT RHEUM, SCALY ERUPTIONS, ULCERS, SCALD HEAD, FEVER SORES and all SCROFULOUS DISORDERS.

It checks CONSUMPTION in its early stages. It has frequently cured it when advanced.

It disperses TUMORS and CANCERS without the Surgeon's knife.

It cures DROPSY, general or partial.

It cures FEMALE WEAKNESS and DISEASE.

It reduces in a safe and effectual manner all swellings, external or internal.

It eradicates the effects of Venerial Disease and Mineral Poisons and establishes a sound constitution.

THE ELECTRIC ROAD.

A Lengthy Interview With One of Our Townsmen on the Project.

We clip the following interview with James Lowry, of this place, from the Adrian Telegram of Friday last. Mr. Lowry is doutless as well posted upon the propositions which have been made on all sides as any one of our citizens:

It seems natural to look upon great enterprises or inventions with doubt and suspicion. The proposition to build an electric railroad from Adrian to Tecumseh and on north to Ypsilanti, opens up a project of such magnitude that it is quite natural for the general public to laugh at the idea, and turn all manner of ridicule upon it. So far the proposed electric railroad has not yet been able to pass the point where it is the subject of all manner of gibes. All who discuss the matter admit the desirability of the enterprise, but because of its magnitude, ridicule the possibility of its acheivement. It would be well, however, for people to bear in mind that there is plenty of capital ready for investment when paying opportunities offer, and that the proposed railroad would prove a paying investment there doesn't seem any doubt.

It would be a great benefit to the people all along the line, it would mean the expenditure of thousands of dollars in our midst, and the widening out of our channels of trade. The proposed road would be of incalculable advantage to Adrian, and should be given a hearty welcome and every possible assistance by our people. Capital is scary, and it is much easier to drive enterprises away from this section than to bring capital into our midst.

Acting upon this view of the matter, The Telegram had a talk this morning with Mr. James Lowry, a Tecumseh business man, and enquired what he knew of the project:

"I fully believe the road will be a go" said Mr. Lowry. "Mr. Nesmith, the projector, is frequently in my store and I have read letters and saw the data in reference to the matter which fully convinces me that the road will be built. I am in no way interested, except as a citizen who desires to see this section progressing, but the enterprise is being backed by Philadelphia parties with ample capital to carry out the plan proposed."

"How soon do you think the matter will be brought to a focus and the work started, Mr. Lowry?"

"That is a matter that I could only conjecture. Mr. Nesmith thinks the work can be started very soon and rushed speedily to a completion. But from the letters I have read and the information I have received, I should feel safe in believing that inside of two weeks the details can be so arranged that the necessary deal with the Adrian line could be made and the work begun. But you know, in any enterprise of this magnitude there are a great many things to look after and into, and it takes time. Such a scheme cannot be wrought out in a day."

"From your knowledge of the situation do you feel safe in believing that there is sufficient capital back of the proposed company to buy out the Adrian line and carry out the plans of extension as proposed."

"I have no doubt of it. The capital is undoubtedly ready and ample. In my judgement, it is simply waiting for the details to be perfected, which as I said before takes time, but which I believe will be completed within a week or two at most. I feel certain the road will be built."

How about the right of way?"

"This has all been secured between Adrian and Tecumseh, via the Raisin Valley Seminary. It is proposed, as I understand it, that the work will be begun at Adrian and pushed as rapidly as possible."

"How do the people of Tecumseh take to the project?"

"They are earnestly in favor of it. It will be a great help and convenience to Tecumseh and to the people all along the line as well as Adrian. Yes, we are heartily in favor of the road and hope and believe it will soon be an accomplished fact."

The officers of the local line here are reticent, but enough has been given out by them to know that they are ready for business when anything tangible presents itself.

Newport Items.

Recent investigations have developed the presence of a fine deposit of lime rock at Newport, Monroe Co., Mich., located between the Michigan Central and the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern railroad, both roads passing over the property, thus giving unexcelled transportation facilities—as only from 300 to 1,000 feet of side track will be necessary. The celebrated Beal Drill Co. of Elyria, Ohio, shows stratums from eight inches to over two feet in thickness, of fine grain, and assays from Dr. S. P. Duffield's Dearborn Laboratory and other tests, demonstrates to be desirable commercial stone. We understood that Geo. M. Cartwright, of Wyandotte, Mich., its owner, designs to develope it.

The latest talk is of an extension of the Wyandotte & Detroit River Electric Road from Trenton via Rockwood and Newport to Monroe, if satisfactory bonuses and right-of way are forthcoming.

Our Newport flouring mill is being remodeled with the latest improved machinery, and with a new sidetrack from the Lake Shore road will make it first-class.

Another Pioneer Gone Home.

Among the early settlers who came to Tecumseh prior to the admission of the state into the Union, nearly all of them have gone to their final reward. In the death of Mrs. Alzina Blood another name is added to the long list of those pioneers who have gone home.

Alzina Blackmar was born at Wales, N. Y., on the 25th. day of May, 1810. She passed her infancy and childhood in that town and vicinity. In the summer of 1829 her father's family was caught in the tide of immigration then drifting westward and they halted at Tecumseh determined to make this village their permanent home. Her domestic accomplishments and personal attractions soon gained many admirers among the young men of the new settlement and before many months were gone, Ezra F. Blood had won her heart and hand. They were married on the 12th. of January, 1830, and it was the most imposing wedding that had ever taken place in Tecumseh up to that date. Mr. Blood belonged to the original Gen. Brown party that settled in Tecumseh in 1824. During his six years' residence here he had located two lots of land on section thirty-four, made a clearing and erected a log house. Here he took his bride, and here the youthful couple began the mysteries of housekeeping in their own home.

The deceased took a leading part at once in the social and religious life of the new town. She taught the first public school organized in this county. When the first Presbyterian church was instituted here in the summer of 1830, her name was enrolled among the charter members, and she has been a consistent and zealous communicant of that church until the day of her death. Sixty-three years, continuous service in the cause of the Master, within the fold of the same church, constitutes a record of religious faithfulness rarely seen, and a legacy to her children, which they will hold in fond remembrance while time shall last.

The life of the deceased was an uneventful one. The trials and hardships incident to pioneer life away back in the thirties, she shared in the fullest measure during the early years of her married life. In transforming their forest lots into a beautiful farm home, and in rearing a family of children, she was a veritable help-meet to her husband. She possessed a quiet, domestic disposition, and her whole life was bound up in ministering to the comfort of husband and children. She had always enjoyed good health for a person of her years, until recently. Her last illness was of several days duration and attended with much suffering, which was borne with true Christian fortitude. On the morning of the 6th her spirit passed peacefully away upon the same farm where she began life as a blooming bride sixty-three years ago last January. Her husband preceded her to the better land a few years ago. Four children survive her: Mary A. Tallman, of Mt. Morris, N. Y.; Leroy C., of Lansing; Chas. H. and Orville C., of Tecumseh, all of whom were present at the last obsequies.

The funeral services were held on Thursday afternoon, Nov. 9th, at the Presbyterian Church, and were conducted by the pastor, Rev. Chas M. Brown. A large concourse of old settlers assembled to pay their last tribute of respect to an honored mother in Israel. The remains were then deposited in our beautiful cemetery near those of her husband, where the two will sleep side by side until awakened on the resurrection morn.

Foot Ball Claims a Victim.

During the football game Saturday between the Adrian College and Toledo High School, at Adrian, an accident occurred which will be very likely to put a damper on the game for some time at least. During the last half of the game Toledo's half back, Ray Carew, secured the ball for a run. In the rush he turned a complete somersault, and the other twenty-one men fell on top of him. When he was picked up he was not thought to be seriously hurt and the crowd began to yell and jeer, saying it was a bluff to give Toledo a chance to recover breath. The young man was carried to the home of Chas. English, by eight of his comrades, where he recovered consciousness. His first words were, "Go back and finish the game, boys, go beat them if you can." Flushed with excitement his heart was still in the game, and he evinced more interest in that than in his injuries. A surgeon was summoned and Dr. Williams soon arrived, and he at once summoned Dr. Stephenson. The physicians found the fourth or fifth cervical vertibrae had been broken and preparations were at once made to reduce the fracture. The whole lower portion of the body was paralyzed the spinal cord having been injured by the broken bones. The boy seemed easier after the physicians had replaced as far as possible the injured vertibrae, but in spite of all that could be done he steadily grew worse, dying at 6:45 Sunday morning. During the whole time he showed heroic courage, making no complaints. He was an all around athletic and was universally admired and looked up to by his associates. Adrian's bluffing spectators ought to be afflicted with an uncomfortable feeling for some time to come.

WHAT OUR EXCHANGES FIND OUT.

Saline Observer:—Parties bringing us wood on subscription must report when they deliver a load or we cannot give you credit when you bring a load if we do not know who brings it, or when.

Ditto, we've had some experience in that line too.

Milan Leader:—One of Daniel Earley's sons, about eight years old, toyed with a boarder's loaded revolver Tuesday. The ball went between two of the fingers of his left hand, not hurting him much and scaring him a great deal. He was not to blame because he did not kill himself—it was only an accident.

Petersburg Sun:—Frauds are frequent and many simple people are easily gulled by shrewd swindlers who use the mails for their purpose. Here is a sample: In answer to a circular advertisement, a Reading young man sent a dollar for a recipe to cure stammering. The recipe came back, and read this way: "Keep your mouth shut."

An exchange says that the slaughter of the English sparrows at three cents a head serves three distinct purposes. It modifies the nuisance; it puts money in purses that need replenishing and as the entire bird has to be cremated instead of the head, it supplies the Recorders office with fuel of reasonable heating quality and overpowering fragrance.

Milan Leader.—Last Friday little Stanley Zimmerman had a narrow escape from injuries or death. He was playing in the street when Mr. Sill came driving along at a smart trot; the little fellow was knocked down and run over by both horses and carriage, but received neither scratch or bruise. He was frightened, however, out of a week's growth, and while he is trying to make up for it he will confine his playing to the sidewalk or dooryard.

The Messenger wants to keep posted on atmospheric changes after this recipe:

A piece of string makes a simple barometer. Take a piece of string about fifteen inches long, saturate it in a strong solution of salt and water, let it dry, and then tie a light weight to one end and hang it up against a wall and mark where the weight reaches to. The weight rises for wet weather and falls for fine. The string should be placed where the outside air can freely get at it.

Palmyra correspondent, Times—This is the season for starting debating societies. The following question aches for a solution: "Which is most likely to cause nervous prostration, a dog howling in the moonlight, or a voice that has the stringhalt singing in the daylight, "Papa won't buy me a bow-wow?"

Great Scott! We have solved a mystery. Those two things are the combination which are responsible for that "strange animal" story from Palmyra. No wonder its description is so grotesque.

Dundee Reporter:—The little village of Maybee at present is greatly excited over a scandal. For the past several weeks stories have been in circulation that Geo. Hochradle, Sr., had charged Rev. Born with too much intimacy with his young wife. Rev. Born did nothing to suppress these stories but kept along doing his pastoral work. Last Saturday Born began suit against Hochradle for $10,000 damages, claiming the stories had wrecked his reputation. Since the beginning of the suit excitement has ran high about Maybe, and it is reported that the whitecaps are organized to do violence to Rev. Born.

Hudson Post:—W. S. Brown, of this city, passenger agent for the Lake Shore, whose division extends from Adrian and Bryan, inclusive Laporte, Ind, with the branches, has prepared an elaborate, comprehensive and complete report of World's Fair business. It covers twelve sheets, 18 x 30 inches in diameter, of tabulated figures, and the arrangement is such that at a glance one can see the business of each station, with each form of ticket, and also totals. He designed the blanks and had them ruled to order. The total number of tickets sold was 66,362, amounting to $257,924.60. The largest business of any one station was South Bend, which sold over 1,200 tickets. The report has been sent to the general agent in Cleveland, who no doubt will appreciate the work.

Hudson Gazette—A curious competition is said to prevail among the East Side housewives. The happiest woman is the one who gets her washing out the earliest on Monday morning. There is a rivalry, too, over the size of the washings. So fierce has become the competition that some of the matrons have been known to put clean clothes in the wash to make a bigger display of linen on the line. They forget about the extra labor in the satisfaction of seeing more whiteness waving in the breeze in their yard than in the yard adjoining.

Well, see here, if Hudson ladies are taking in washings purely for honor there is a splendid opening here. We'll patronize 'em.

Land of the Pharaohs.

Minneapolis Tribune, October 22d, 1890—Rev. Donald D. MacLaurin gave an illustrated lecture in the First Baptist Church, last evening, on "Egypt, the Land of the Pharaohs." He began with a brief history of Egypt, its ancient religion, customs, and habits, giving particular attention to the grandeur and magnificence of its architecture and sculpture. Every year discoveries are being made which gives authenticity to the Biblical history of Egypt.

Stereoptican views of the principal points of interest were then shown with explanations of each. The rock of Gibraltar with its invisible fortress, Malta, St. Paul's Bay and the Nile River were interestingly described, as well as the Suez Canal with the history of its early construction and recent completion.

Other views were given to explain the present customs, habits and modes of travel used in Egypt. A large hieroglyphical stone has lately been discovered by which scholars have been able to read the ancient history of the Land of the Pharaohs. Numerous objects of historical interest were shown, including the Sphynx, among the Nile ruins of Memphis, the tombs and the great Pyramid, which is a marvel of construction, mummies of ancient Pharaohs and the various gods worshipped by those people. The lecture was a thorough deliniative of the marvels of antiquity and the present condition of Egypt. It was given in an interesting and instructive manner and was greatly appreciated by the audience. Rev. Mr. MacLaurin will lecture on this subject, at the Baptist church, Tecumseh, Thursday evening, Dec. 7th.

A Just Criticism.

The following clipping from the Adrian Times, voices the sentiment of a great many of our people in regard to the game of foot ball, as played under the Rugby rules. Many attempts have been made to suppress the game, but so far have been very unsuccessful.

After the tragic termination of the game on Saturday, we hope that foot ball will be tabooed in this community, at least. It is a brutal recreation at best, more dangerous to the participants than prize fighting or wrestling, and, judging from the influence it seems to exert upon the spectators, as shown by the wild cries of the heedless on-lookers in this instance, while a young man lay on the sward hurt to the point of death, fully as demoralizing as the ring or the arena.

Wrestling or prize fighting presupposes two men equally matched, trained and hardened to their work, pitted against each other purely for money, in a conflict, too, where the rules, to some extent, guard against foul play that may lead to fatal consequences. There are at rare intervals fatal prize fights, but as a rule the community has very little cause to regret the loss of either party concerned.

With foot ball it is a contest of animal strength wherin the flower of our rising manhood is menaced. The beefiest, brawniest, most brutal slugger is the man who sets the pace, and individual skill and courage can count for nothing in the mad rush of a score of excited young athletes, swooping down on each other, as was the case on Saturday, in a wild and heedless stampede.

There are other and more wholesome out-door sports to engage the attention of American youth, and it seems strangely inconsistent that in this age the institutions whose aim it is to humanize should give their countenance to a game that is gross and cruel in its very essence.

OUR

THANKSGIVING

GIFT.

TO EVERY ONE OF OUR READERS

An American Beauty.

By special arrangement with the publishers, we are enabled to make every one of our readers a present of an exquisite oil panel-picture, 20 inches high, entitled, 'An American Beauty," which has been admired by all who have seen it. This superb picture is from the brush of the same artist who painted the "Yard of Pansies" and Yard of Roses." The reproduction is equal in every respect to the original, from which it cannot be distinguished, and accompanying it are full directions for framing at home at a cost of a few cents, thus forming a beautiful ornament for the high wall-spaces for which it is so difficult to obtain pictures of the proper shape. It is a superb Thanksgiving gift. Send your name and address to the publisher, on the coupon which will appear in next week's issue of the HERALD, together with three cents (either in stamps or pennies) to pay for packing, mailing, etc., and you will receive by return mail one of these valuable works of art. The only condition attending this valuable present is that the order coupon shall be cut from a copy of next week's HERALD. The picture is published by W. Jennings Demorest, 15 East 14th Street, New York. Those who do not take the HERALD may obtain a copy of it at this office for 5 cents.

Marshal Stevens and Deputy Sheriff Aten were in Adrian Tuesday.

E. J. Hollister's Florida party started last week for the sunny South.

Mrs. W. A. Wood, of Uhrichville, O., is the guest of Miss Loana Stacy.

Don't fail to cut out the coupon in this issue and get a beautiful picture.

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Moreland and Mrs. Jos. Emery were over from Adrian Monday.

The officers of Co. C, would like to see about forty members at the armory next Tuesday night.

Mrs. John Orr, Sr. returned Monday from Kunkle, O., where she has been visiting her son, Albert.

Mrs. A. J. Kimball, of Adrian, who has been visiting Mrs. M. M. Stacy, returned home yesterday.

Scove Walker, of Brooklyn, will again make this city his home, having accepted a position in the post office.

Rev. and Mrs. W. J. Thistle, of Lambertville, were the guests of H. H. Westcott and family last week.

Etta Coddington and Hattie Bates who have been visiting Adrian friends, returned home Saturday evening.

Dr. and Mrs. C. S. Lombard, of Negaunee, were guests of Rev. C. M. Brown and family a few days last week.

Mr. Fred Cook, of Chicago, and Miss Leo Sutton, of Ridgeway, visited Miss Luella Sutherland, Thursday evening.

Arthur Bangs and Rose Packard, both of this place, were married last Thursday evening, in Adrian, by Justice Robinson.

Rev. D. D. MacLaurin will be the next speaker in the Baptist lecture course. His subject will be "The Land of the Pharoahs.

This issue contains the coupon which entitles you to a fine picture which is presented to every reader of the HERALD with our best wishes.

Any one having found a gold watch-chain with masonic charm attached, will receive a reward by leaving the same at J. R. Hialey's office.

The Irish Neighbors Company were thrown out of a date at Hudson, last Wednesday, and their orchestra furnished music for a dance that evening.

Union Thanksgiving Services will be held at the Presbyterian church at 10:30 a. m., next Thursday. Rev. Fistler, of the Friends' church, will occupy the pulpit.

S. C. Stacy is still unable to be at the office. He came home in possession of more World's Fair grip than the average visitor and is correspondingly long in disposing of it.

David A. Hammond, our former school superintendent, has purchased the Ann Arbor Argus and will hereafter be identified with the Michigan editors. May success attend his venture.

T. R. Kyle took possession of the post office Tuesday, with Scove Walker as assistant. Scove is an old hand at mail slinging, having been a clerk in the office during Cleveland's first administration.

The HERALD makes it a rule to observe Thanksgiving Day. In order to do so properly we must go to press on Wednesday evening, and hence all correspondence should be sent in one day early next week.

The W. C. T. U. benefit at the opera house, Friday evening, was literally an all around success, which was probably in a large measure due to the excellent management of Mrs. N. M. Sutton. The best talent obtainable was procured and those attending enjoyed a rare musical and literary treat. Mr. Harold Jarvis was already known by many of our people, having sung at the commencement exercises here. His voice is clear and flexible and many new friends will be glad to greet him again. Mr. Will Barnum pleased all with his melodious whistling, while Miss Calkins' elocution is highly mentioned. Our local talent should also be given their just share of praise as all those participating in the entertainment did exceptionally well.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Boyce, of Detroit, arrived in town last night.

John Campbell, of Ypsilanti, is home this week, on account of illness.

Miss Grace McNeil was the guest of Mrs. Frank Woodard, of Clinton, last week.

Fred King, of Jackson, came down yesterday afternoon and took in the hop at the armory.

Misses Genevieve and Eva VanTuyle, of Clinton, were the guests of Grace McNeil, Thursday last.

Fred Kennedy, of Lansing, was in town the first of the week. He is in the jewelry business.

J. D. Kinney is putting in a long line of shelving on the west side of his furniture store for a display of crockery.

E. L. Teeple can furnish beautiful frames for our Thanksgiving gift picture at prices within the reach of all.

Mrs. P. V. Woodard, who has been a sufferer from consumption for several months, died at 1 o'clock this morning.

Remember Rev. D. D. McLaurin is the next lecture at the Baptist church, date Dec. 7. Subject "The Land of the Pharaohs."

Miss Sarah Platt left last Tuesday, for Millford, to spend the winter. She has many warm friends in our village, who will miss her.

Members of Beers' W. R. C. will remember that the first meeting in Dec. will be election of officers, and a full attendance is requested.

R. P. Brown, of Hillsboro, Ill., who has been visiting his son, Rev. C. M. Brown, returned Tuesday. Rev. Brown accompanied his father as far as Toledo.

Twenty-two of the members of the B. Y. P. U. were in attendance at part or all of the sessions of the Associational Semi-annual meeting at Adrian last week.

The Walter A. Robinson Dramatic Co., that appeared here two weeks ago, played to poor business in Clinton last week. The company indulged in a glorious drunk, Sunday.

The Dennison brothers, from Cone, have been in the habit for a few days past of coming to this city and getting on a toot. Yesterday officers Stevens and Aten put them in the quay to sober up.

Mrs. Anna S. Hanley, accompanied by Mrs. Annie Bryant Smith, went to Manchester on Tuesday, Nov. 21st., by order of Department Inspector, for the purpose of inspecting Comstock Corps of W. R. C., No. 230.

Ole Olson is booked to appear here on Dec. 8. This amusing comedy will be well remembered by those who saw the play here last November. The company includes Richard Baker and Lottie Williams, and should be greeted with a a large audience.

A very pleasantly arranged wedding party was that which witnessed the marriage, on Thursday afternoon, of Mr. Ford D. Fox of Franklin, and Miss Maud DeFoe, at the home of the bride's parents, in Adrian townhsip. Rev. H. A. Smith of Tecumseh officiating.

Among those attending the Baptist Convention at Adrian, last week, were: Frank Bauer, Will Westcott, Mr. and Mrs. Den Cozier, A. O. Howard, Mabel Wiley, Harry Pattison, Arthur Smith, Leo Bresie, Jessie Millis, Mabel Smith, Mamie Osborn, Carrie Millspaugh, Miss Blanche Taylor and Mr. and Mrs. F. Bryan.

Everybody leave your order with me for coal, at the corner of Evans and Logan streets, next door to Marsh's meet market, for all sizes of hard coal, Jackson Hill and Cannel for domestic use. The celebrated Cumberland, Blossenburg and Smithing always on hand. I also deal in wood, salt, etc., at way down prices. Call on me.

JNO. A. HECK.

The meetings at the M. E. church are devoid of excitement, and are progressing steadily on earnest Christian faith. The results are more than flattering, particularly among the young people who seem to vie with their parents in bringing their friends to the altar. Tecumseh is sadly in need of these manifestations, and it will do anybody good to spend an evening with this happy family of Christian workers.

Co. C is pushing the new armory. Our citizens should lend a helping hand to the boys. Everybody wants the company here. It must be somewhere, and there are lots of larger towns standing ready to snap it up. There will be just so many companies of militia in Michigan anyway, so people who are always howling about the military are simply trying to drive the company from this to some other town. It will not lessen the taxes a particle. Again we say, everybody wants to see Co. C right here and see them flourish.

Reno and Ford's Joshua Simpkins Combination played to a fair sized audience at Sutton's Opera House, Saturday night. The company carry a fine band and orchestra, and give an all around amusing entertainment. J. H. Thorne made typical, kind old man and C. L. Jackson as Hezekiah Skinner the tavern-keeper, eclipsed all in his make up and acting. D. E. Porter as Samantha Twitter, a female unclaimed and of uncertain age, would have brought down the house had he said nothing, as the facial expressions were sufficient. The scenic effects were good, the sawmill act being very realastic. The Serpentine dance was introduced for the first time in our village, and highly appreciated by those who love high art modestly executed.

Mrs. N. M. Sutton went to Detroit Tuesday.

The new postmaster took possession Wednesday, and a snow storm came the same day.

John J. Orr received an order from Detroit for two St. Bernard pups, he also sent one to Owosso and one to Battle Creek.

Free Methodist meeting will be held at the home of J. H. Mills, south room of Tindall house, Sunday at 3 p. m., by Rev. Page, of Adrian.

Miss Clarinda Walker who has been visiting for the past four months in Wisconsin, has returned to her home in Brooklyn. She visited Mrs. M. M. Stacy on her way home.

A masquerade hop will be given at Armory Hall on Thanksgiving eve., Nov. 29th., by Hubbard's Orchestra. All are cordially invited. The orchestra are now in excellent condition to furnish good music.

Prof. Bristol has visited every section of the United States and Canada, and everywhere his entertainment has been pronounced by the public to be unique, novel, interesting, instructive and amusing. At Sutton's, Opera House, Nov. 30 and Dec. 1.

"All things come to him who waits," but do not wait to see a more interesting, instructive, amusing, and in a word a better entertainment than Prof. D. M. Bristol's Eques-Curriculum affords. Disappointment will surely be the result. At Sutton's Opera House Nov. 30 and Dec. 1.

Marshal Stevens had the city ordinance read to the festive school boy, this week, in regard to catching on moving trains. This has always been a nuisance here. Next in hand will be the throwing snow balls as illustrated by ths events of Tuesday. Plate glasses and pedestrians' heads suffer.

At a reception recently given at the Baptist parsonage by Pastor and Mrs. H. A. Smith, to the elderly widows of their church and congregation, 17 were able to be present. Several of those invited were detained by feebleness and sickness. Mrs. Clarissa Hall, aged 92 was the oldest guest. The combined ages of the seventeen equaled 1157 years, or an average a little more than 68 for each.

Through some misunderstanding the opera house for thanksgiving night is contested. The indoor ball game has been extensively advertised to take place on that night. It now appears that manager Sutton claims this morning that the boys have not made arrangements for the house and so he rented it to some kind of a traveling horse show. The boys are HOT!! and with just cause.

All will remember the indoor ball game last spring and how those who failed to see the game regretted it. Now there will be another chance as the T. H. S. and the Co. C female team will indulge in base ball at the Opera House, on Thanksgiving night, Nov. 30. After the game an informal dance will be given. Music by Hubbard's Orchestra.

The lecture by Rev. D. D. MacLaurin at the Baptiat Church last night closed a most interesting series of five lectures as has ever been listened to by our citizens. The splendid stereopticon views will long be remembered as the best ever exhibited in the city, while the splendid descriptive powers of the lecturer added to the enjoyment received from the many scenes depicted so truly to nature. Last evening the hearers were taken about the peninsula of Italy and shown the most historic, picturesque and famous portions of that storied land.—Mankato Free Press.

Political economy has been called the dismal science, and as currently taught is hopeless and despairing. But this is solely because she has been degraded and shackled; her truths dislocated; her harmonies ignored; the word she would utter gagged in her mouth, and her protest against wrong turned into an endorsement of injustice. Freed, as I have tried to free her—in her own proper symmetry, Political Economy is radiant with hope. Henry George at Croswell Opera House, Wednesday Eve. Dec. 6. Hear the great single tax advocate.

This, and this alone, I contend for—he who makes should have; that he who saves should enjoy. I ask in behalf of the poor nothing whatever that properly belongs to the rich. Instead of weakening and confusing the idea of property, I would surround it with stronger sanctions. For my part, I would put no limit on acquisition. No matter how many millions any man can get by methods which do not involve the robbery of others—they are his; let him have them. I would not even ask him for charity, or have it dinned into his ears that it is his duty to help the poor. That is his own affair. Let him do with his own as he pleases, without restriction and without suggestion. Henry George at Croswell Opera House, Adrian Wednesday evening, Dec. 6.

Last evening a gay party of dancers assembled at armory hall in response to invitations from Capt. W. H. Hayden to attend a basket picnic and impromptu, informal go-lucky dance. To say that everybody enjoyed themselves would be drawing it mild. The ladies furnished lunch for two, and to those gentlemen who were without ladies, a large basket was presented and they were seated in the center of the armory and told to "wade in." Everybody went away with the idea firmly in mind that Capt. Hayden could give a dance in the most approved style.

High School Notes.

Examinations to-morrow.

Miss Grace McNeil called on the A room Thursday afternoon.

Along with the snow Tuesday there came a general uneasiness of the scholars.

Edna VanVleet was absent from school a few days last week, but returned Monday.

Roy Conklin has dropped Chemistry. There seems to be a good many boys willing to drop Latin.

Willis Finch, who is attending the State Agricultural College, visited the A room Friday afternoon. His vacation lasts till February.

The Lyceum last Friday passed off agreably. The subject, "Resolved that the High school studies should be elective," was led on the affirmative side by Anna Doke, and on the negative side by Clarence Hurry. The Judges, Willis Finch, Edith Ingersoll and Miss Hialey decided in favor of the negative.

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

FAIL TO DO THEIR DUTY.

Everybody has at times failed to do their duty toward themselves. Hundreds of lady readers suffer from sick headache, nervousness, sleeplessness and female troubles. Let them follow the example of Mrs. H. Herbechter, Stevens Point, Wis., who for five years suffered greatly from Nervous Prostration and sleeplessness, tried physicians and different medicines without success. But one bottle of Dr. Miles' Nervine caused sound sleep every night and she is feeling like a new person. Mrs. Elizabeth Wheeler, Laramie City, Wyoming, who tried all other remedies, declares that after three week's use of Nervine for headache, nervous prostration, etc., she was entirely relieved. Sold by Baker & Hall, Druggists. Trial bottle free.

CAN KEEP A SECRET.

BUT THE WIFE OF A CABINET MEMBER SAYS IT IS HARD.

Mrs. Cleveland Cares Little About Politics. Mrs. Carlisle's Interest In Public Affairs. Mrs. Gresham's Opinions — A Trying Position and a Severe Penalty.

[Special Correspondence.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—If one wants to gain great confidence for the ability of woman to keep a secret let him come to Washington and form the acquaintance of some of the ladies of the cabinet or senatorial circle. Women not only can keep secrets, but do keep them, and there are in Washington a number of women who can keep their husband's political secrets better and tighter than the husbands themselves. It is encouraging to know that a large majority of the prominent men of Washington, not only those who are here now, but those who have been here in the past, place implicit confidence in the discretion of their wives as to the possession of governmental or political secrets.

President Cleveland is the first president we have had since Grant who was not in the habit of confiding his secrets to his wife. Mrs. Cleveland cares very little about politics, and the president does not encourage her to think of such matters. He takes the old fashioned view that a woman should not bother her pretty head about parties and public questions, and that she should be content to rule in the domain of the home.

President Arthur's Adviser.

While Mrs. Harrison was living General Harrison often talked state matters over with her. He did not always do so, but as a rule, when time and opportunity permitted, would discuss with her the principal plans of his administration. General Harrison, like all men with keen perceptions and good executive tact, saw that a woman's wit and intuition were often more valuable in matters of statecraft than a man's logic. He did not hesitate to talk over with Mrs. Harrison a great many affairs of state, and her advice was frequently found of value. President Arthur did not confide state matters to his wife, because he had no wife while he was in the White House. But this did not prevent him seeking the counsel of a woman now and then.

It is a bit of inside gossip never before published that during the three years he was in the White House General Arthur occasionally drove out to the suburban residence of a famous woman and with her talked over public questions and discussed the politics of the day. This woman was none other than Kate Chase Sprague, for whose understanding of men and measures, especially her almost infallible though intuitive methods of measuring public opinion, President Arthur entertained the highest respect. On these visits to Mrs. Chase, President Arthur was generally accompanied by Senator John P. Jones of Nevada. The two men found Mrs. Chase an even match for them, and both have paid high tribute to her sagacity.

MRS. CARLISLE.

Kate Chase's Intuition.

It was Mrs. Chase who pointed out to General Arthur that he would be opposed for the Republican nomination by Mr. Blaine. General Arthur did not believe Mr. Blaine would enter the field against him, and claimed to have some assurances to that effect. But Mrs. Chase told him to have no confidence in these encouragements, for she was sure Mr. Blaine was ready to make the race. Moreover, she advised General Arthur to withdraw, because Blaine was sure to beat him out of the nomination. "Blaine will be nominated," she said, "but he will not be elected." As a prophet Mrs. Chase proved to be a great success, as General Arthur afterward discovered.

It was the great regret of his life that he suffered his name to go before the national convention for the nomination, as he could not disabuse his mind of the idea that the party had rejected him and voted him a lack of confidence. This regret never left him, and it is known to his intimate friends that his last years were much embittered by the thought that the Republican party had declined to nominate him for a second term. He always wished he had placed more confidence in the intuition of Mrs. Chase and accepted her advice in this matter, as he had done in many other emergencies.

President Hayes always made a confidant of his wife. Mrs. Hayes was one of the strongest of women as well as one of the sweetest. She had most decided opinions about public affairs, and could express them in vigorous fashion. Mr. Hayes thought her even wiser than she was, and with his great love for her was ever eager to gain her sanction before adopting a new plan or policy. General Garfield also leaned much on his wife. She gave him much assistance while he was in congress, and even after his election to the presidency she maintained her position as helpmeet.

Mrs. Carlisle's Rare Talent.

As I have already said a great majority of the successful public men of our times have made confidants of their wives in political matters. Mrs. Carlisle, as every one knows, is a woman of strong character and good brain. She has unusually clear perceptions and extraordinary powers of logic in a woman. Though her husband is a wonderful man, possessing one of the most remarkable intellects the world ever saw, he has always leaned much upon the judgment of his wife. As secretary of the treasury Mr. Carlisle continues the policy which he pursued as speaker of the house and as senator and acquaints his wife with all the little details of his public work. I have been amazed to hear Mrs. Carlisle discuss the tariff and currency questions with familiarity and understanding which few men could boast of.

It has been said of her that if necessary she could go into the great financial department of the government, take her husband's place and run the machine as well he could. This is doubtless an exaggeration, but I have no doubt she could take the secretary's desk and make a creditable showing at management. Many other bright and adaptable women could do the same thing, for as a matter of fact management of one of the great departments of the government is not so difficult a task as you might imagine it to be. If one is willing to place himself, at least temporarily, in the hands of his lieutenants, they will do the work. In all these departments are men who know just as well how to manage them as the ablest of the gentlemen who are appointed to look after them by the president. If a secretary of the treasury cares to do it in that way, he may sit at his desk and simply sign the letters and orders placed before him, and he need have no fear that the business of the department is not going along in proper manner.

An Injured Wife's Ally.

Mrs. Carlisle has no ambition to manage the treasury department, I am sure. But a few weeks ago she did help run the department for a few hours, and when she started in to show what she could do as an executive she succeeded exceedingly well. She knew what she wanted to accomplish, and it did not take her long to do it. There was in the department a woman who had not confined her attention solely to the work of her desk. She had managed to strike up a desperate flirtation with a fellow clerk, a married man, whose wife soon discovered what was going on and did everything she could think of to put a stop to it. But her husband had been completely infatuated by the scheming clerk and continued his relations with her despite his wife's threats and entreaties. Then it was that the injured wife thought of Mrs. Carlisle. She had heard that the wife of the secretary was a woman of great courage and positiveness of character and felt sure she would also find her full of sympathy.

She called on Mrs. Carlisle, stated her case, was asked a few questions and told to call again. For two or three days, so far as appearances went, nothing was being done. But all this time Mrs. Carlisle was satisfying herself as to the truth of the charges, which she was able to do only too certainly. Then she walked into her husband's office and asked for an interview. At the close of that conversation the secretary issued an order dismissing the woman who had broken up a once happy home, and if the civil service rules and some other red tapish obstructions can be got over the injured wife will get the place vacated by her late rival. The infatuated husband, relieved of the constant presence of his charmer, is gradually recovering his senses.

"I Told You So!"

There is still some curiosity in the public mind to know whether or not Mrs. Carlisle will have a chance to say "I told you so" before this administration comes to an end. It will be remembered that she was opposed to her husband's leaving the senate for the purpose of becoming secretary of the treasury. In the senate, she said, his place was fixed. He was one of the leaders on the Democratic side. There he could push himself forward as one of the masters of the tariff and other economic questions. He could have leisure for study, could do his duty without wearing himself out mentally and physically. If there was anything better in store for him at the hands of his party, he would be just as likely to win this from the senate floor as from the office of a cabinet minister.

Mrs. Carlisle spoke of the risks of serving as secretary of the treasury. If the administration made mistakes, the secretary could not hope to escape his share of the responsibility. If he were to be unfortunate enough to quarrel with the president, doubtless his political career would come to an end. If he remained in the senate, she argued, Kentucky would send him back, term after term, as long as he lived. But if he voluntarily stepped aside and another were elected to his seat it would be almost impossible to displace the newcomer should the desire to do so arise. While Secretary Carlisle and the president are still on good terms, and Mr. Carlisle seems to be doing very well in the treasury department, there are observers of men and things who say Mrs. Carlisle will still get a chance to call attention to her prophecy, pointing to its fulfillment with a certain pride if not with satisfaction.

Mrs. Gresham is another woman who is honored by her husband's fullest confidence in matters of state. Mrs. Gresham knows all the ins and outs of the diplomatic relations of this government. The secretary tells her what is going on, and when he is troubled by any matters he never fails to ask her advice. She has her own opinions, and these are sometimes quite different from those entertained by the secretary. In the Hawaiian matter, for instance, it is gossiped about the Arlington hotel that Mrs. Gresham did not agree with her husband, and that they had several good natured but earnest arguments about the matter, in which the woman showed that she was quite able to take care of herself.

Hard Work to Keep a Secret.

Luckily Secretary Gresham is not a man to insist that every one about him shall coincide with his views. He likes opposition, and if Mrs. Gresham did not like the plan to place Queen Lil back on the throne of Hawaii she gave such arguments in support of her view that even the secretary of state must have been compelled to ransack his brain for good answers. The wife of a member of the cabinet said to me a few days ago:

"Yes, I think that nearly all the important public men of this day talk over their politics and business with their wives, just as professional and business men talk of their affairs at home. I see no reason why women should not give advice, sympathy and assistance in political or governmental matters as well as in private concerns. The old idea that a woman cannot keep a secret has been exploded a thousand times right here in Washington. You would be surprised if you knew what I know as to the importance of the secrets which the wives of cabinet officers are at this very time keeping with locked lips.

"There is a tremendous disadvantage in being the wife of a great man. One is forced to suppress individuality. Now, I have my opinions about public questions. I know how to think and am in the habit of thinking. I like to talk politics. But, do you know, I dare not open my mouth. If I say anything at all people at once jump to the conclusion that I am simply echoing the opinions of my husband. The facts may be that I am giving my opinions, with which he would not agree at all, but they would be put upon him, and that would be worse than having his real views known.

"So there is nothing for the wife of the high official to do but to keep her opinions to herself. But it is trying, especially to a woman who has individuality and who likes to show it and be free and natural. It is hard work to hold in all the time. It is particularly hard to be set down by one's acquaintances as a thoughtless and ignorant woman, without views or brains or character, because of this necessity of holding in. These are the penalties we have to pay for being the wives of men who happen to occupy important public stations."

Everybody is asking everybody just now, "Will you attend the World's Fair?" They ought also to ask if you know the quality of Chicago water and are aware that it is "bad medecine" for strangers. Doctors' services are expensive in Chicago. In traveling, especially if visiting Chicago, it will be wise to have a supply of Brant's Extract of Blackberry with you. It may ward off cholera. It excels all other remedies for quick relief and cure of Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Cholera, Flux, Colic, Summer Complaint and all Bowel Troubles of either children or adults. Only 25 cents of J. J. FELL DEAD.

These words are very familiar to our readers, as not a day passes without the report of the sudden death of some prominent citizen. The explanation is "Heart Disease." Therefore beware if you have any of the following symptoms: short breath, pain in side, smothering Spells, swollen ankles, asthmatic breathing, weak and hungry spells Tenderness in shoulder or arm, fluttering of heart or irregular pulse. These symptoms mean heart disease. The most reliable remedy is Dr. Miles' New Heart cure, which has saved thousands of lives. Book of testimonials free at Baker and Halls. 1

Are You Ambitious?

Especially, are you an ambitious woman anxious to make a career for yourself? Then you will be more than interested in "The Road to Fame or Fortune," published in Demorest's Family Magazine for December, which is a faithful chronicle of how ambitious girls desirous of becoming successful business women live and labor in New York, giving suggestions and valuable information that cannot fail to be of inestimable benefit to all talented and ambitious girls. And this is an ideal Christmas number, also. The lovely water color "Did Santa Claus Bring You?" will appeal to everyone, young or old. "Christmas Eve at Bethlehem," with its numerous illustrations, takes one back to the first Christmas Eve and tells how the traditions are preserved and what ceremonies are observed at the present day. There are two splendid Christmas stories splendidly illustrated; "An Excursion to the Land of Dolls," also illustrated, will interest all little maidens who love their dolls; there is a charming Christmas play, "The Prodigal," which will afford most timely entertainment; a very beautiful Christmas carol with original words and music, arranged so that it is appropriate for church, school, or the home circle; there are numberless suggestions for Christmas gifts; the many departments are full to overflowing with good things and everyone who loves babies will be charmed with the portraits of nearly a hundred who are competitors for the "Baby Prize," offered by this Magazine. Indeed, the December number is a generous twenty cents' worth; but it is only a fair sample of what is furnished twelve times a year for $2.00. Published by W. Jennings Demorest, 15 East 14th St., N. Y.

THE TOLEDO WEEKLY BLADE.
And a book containing all the Nasby Letters for One Dollar.

In answer to a general demand from all parts of the United States, the Toledo Blade has published in one volume, cloth bound, all of the "Nasby Letters" ever written by the late D. R. Locke, omitting perhaps a few unimportant letters on local or forgotten topics. Only a few of these letters were ever published in book form. Everybody has read some of them, but who has read all of them? The book contains over 500 large pages, and all the Nasby Letters written during a period of twenty-five years; also a portrait of D. R. Locke from his last photograph. It would sell at one dollar or more, but will never be placed on sale. One hundred thousand copies are now being printed and bound, and one copy will be sent postpaid by mail free to every person who remits one dollar for the Weekly Blade one year. Everybody invited to send for a specimen copy of the Weekly Blade, which will give a full description of the book "The Nasby Letters."

The Toledo Weekly Blade is the best and most popular weekly newspaper published in this country. It has the largest circulation of any weekly newspaper, and goes to every State, Territory and nearly every county in the Union. Only one dollar a year, including the above mentioned book free. Send postal to The Blade, Toledo, Ohio, for a free specimen copy of the paper. Send the address of your friends also.

THE FARM HOME READING CIRCLE.
Of the Michigan Agricultural College, for Promoting Agriculture and Kindred Pursuits.

In December, 1892, the factulty of the Michigan Agricultural College appointed a committee to prepare a course of reading especially adapted to the requirements of farmers, gardeners, fruit growers, stock breeders, etc. The course was outlined and circulars issued. So many expressions of appreciation have been received that the managers have been encouraged to carefully revise the course and take steps to widen its scope and increase its influence. The State Board of Agriculture have made provision for the printing, correspondence, postage, etc., connected with the course so that the only expense to members is books.

The [illegible] of the F. H. R. C. is to promote agriculture and kindred pursuits. The circle offers a systematic course of reading. It furnishes books through the secretary at greatly reduced prices. It acts in a limited manner, as a bureau of information on agricultural subjects. All cannot enjoy a course at the Agricultural College, but no one is so situatbd that he cannot cultivate habits of observation and study. The aim has been to supply a course which shall furnish practical information and assist those who desire to secure some knowledge of science as applied to agriculture. It is believed there are many to embrace the opportunities offered by such a course.

The course is not limited as to age or occupation. All persons interested are invited to join. Old and young, fathers and mothers, boys and girls, send in your applications. Farmers' boys and girls are especially urged to undertake systematic reading. You are surrounded by a great laboratory. The fields, gardens, orchards and meadows are your class rooms. Interest your fathers and mothers. Ask questions. If you are unable to find an answer by consulting the index of your book, write to the secretary and he will refer it to the proper authority. No one is too old to join the circle. Let us all undertake the regular thoughtful reading of good books, in place of the aimless, careless reading of newspapers.

While it is recommended that grange-patron's lodges, alliances and other farmers' organizations form circles for reading and discussion, yet the great value of the course will manifest itself to those so situated that reading in circles would be impossible. As the name implies, it is a "Farm Home Reading Circle." Do not let the coming winter season pass without taking up the work in one or more of the classes.

Five classes are offered: Soils and Crops, Live Stock, Garden and Orchard, Home Making, and Political Science. These classes were outlined by men prominent in their special lines, and, so far as it is possible, are arranged progressively. It is urged that the course be taken up, as recommended, and finished. However, if for any reason books further along in the course are desired, they may be ordered and credit will be given for their completion. No requirement is made as to the order in which classes shall be taken up.

Harper's Weekly.
ILLUSTRATED.

Harper's Weekly is beyond all question the leading journal in America, in its splendid illustrations, in its corps of distinguished contributors, and in its vast army of readers. In special lines, it draws on the highest order of talent, the men best fitted by position and training to treat the leading topics of the day. In fiction, the most popular story-writers contribute to its columns. Superb drawings by the foremost artists illustrate its special articles, its stories, and every notable event of public interest; it contains portraits of the distinguished men and women who are making the history of the time, while special attention is given to the Army and Navy, Amateur Sport and Music and the Drama by distinguished experts. In a word, HARPER'S WEEKLY combines the news features of the daily paper and the artistic and literary qualities of the magazine with the solid critical character of the review.

Tuesday and Wednesday, Dec. 5 and 6.
TWO DAYS ONLY.
NSULTATION AND EXAMINATIONS FREE.

If you are interested in the conditionon your eyes, call on the noted Dr. Galleher. He is an expert in his profession. Eyesight is precious—more valuable than any other of the special senses. The Docter has treated in the last 18 months more than 3,000 cases of all forms of eye trouble and errors of refractions, such as Glaucoma, Ulceration of the Cornea, Granulation of the lids, Presbyopia, Paralysis of Accomodation, Spasm of Accomodation, Hypermetropia, Aphakia, Myopia, Astigmatism, Anisometropia, Strabismus, Diplopia, Asthenopia, etc. Have you ever stopped to think how many people in this world are blind from their own negligence and carelessness in not giving their eyes attention at the proper time? You now have the opportunity of consulting one who gives all his time in treating cronic eye trouble. Thousands of persons in this world that do not use glasses that should, then again there are thousands of persons using gasses they think suited to their eyes, but the truth of the matter is, the glasses do not correct the trouble, but aggravate it and produce headache, spots before the eyes, inflamation, granulation, winking, trembling spells, various nerve and brain affections, catracts, burning and smarting of the eyes, etc.; entailing not only positive injury to the sight, but untold misery and blindness. Dr. Galleher makes examinations that few in this country can make. He has instruments with which he can examine every and fibre in the inside of the eye. He can tell you in an instant after examining your ether he can benefit you or not, and will truthfully say so. It should be understood that ther is well known throughout the Eastern States as a practical and successful electrion- -ldvented some of the finest electrical appliances ever imported to this country. Remem- Dr Galleher does not give one drop of medicine. He is the only man in America who has lusive sale of Dr. Edgar Scott's Positive Catarrh Cure. An instrument put up of compress- medicated gasses, which is Dr. S's. own invention. Dr. Galleher also has appliances which bore a tape worm in from two to four hours or no charges made Testimonals of the best n this country at his room at the hotel. Mrs. Eldredge Lowe and daughter, Nina, left Tuesday evening for the home of her parents, at Stoton, Wis, where they will spend several weeks.

Deputy Sheriff Wm. Britton, of Britton, was in the village Tuesday evening of last week, looking up the evidence of the burglary of A. J. Sutton's store.

The first quarterly meeting services for the present conference year will be held next sunday morning at the usual hour for the regular service. Presiding Elder Davis will preach.

The members of the Library Association will bear in mind that the annual election of officers will be held at the Library, Tuesday, Dec. 5. All members are requested so be present as business of importance will come before the association. Those behind with their dues will please hand in the amount as the deficiency is needed very much at present.

LAKE RIDGE LACONICS.

Mary Royce, of Ypsilanti, visited at A Easlick's last week.

School commenced Tuesday the 21st. with S. C. Easlick at the bell rope.

Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Easlick visited A. C. Marvin's family near Cone, Sunday.

Gertie Auten, of Cone, afflicted with malarial fever for some time, died the 17th inst.

Misses Pearl and Minta Easlick, of Saline, visited at their uncle's, A. Easlick, two days the first of the week.

Mrs. M. Pocklington, who had three ovaring tumors removed by Dr. Wyman of Detroit, the 2d. inst., is doing extremely well.

Ebenezer Harmon, who has been quite indisposed the past year, died at 8 p. m. the 26th, aged 85 years. "Uncle Eb" as he was familiarly known, was one of the first settlers in this township, having lived on the farm where he died, over sixty years. He held many positions of trust and was highly esteemed as a neighbor and fellow citizen.

There has been much annoyance and delay in the transmission of messages over the south half of the C. T. line the past three or four weeks, from open keyes, grounds, lose and broken office wire, requiring as much time of the line man as all other expenses. The line is open in two places between Britton and Tecumseh at this writing. In order to keep expenses at "normal" and give good time service, it is absolutely necessary that each operator give special care to their own instruments and its surroundings. It is a part of every day house work, to see that your telegraph instrument is in working order and properly adjusted, because all are dependent on each other.

FRANKLIN FACTS.

Be sure to be at the Lyceum Saturday night, at J. S. Allen's.

Mrs. Ed Wisner, who has been seriously sick is somewhat better.

Letters from Burt Billington's party at Lake Kerr, Fla., do not indicate any permanent improvement in Mrs. Billingtons health. Jessie they write is much better.

Alanson Updyke buzzed up a big pile of wood for the Deming boys last week. While Alie Hunt and O. Muhl were moving part of the wood pile it caved in on them, burrying them out of sight. On excavaing them Alie was found with two poles closely embracing his neck; fortunately Muhl happened to be close behind him and thus held much of the weight of the pile. Neither of them were seriously hurt.

Special Offer to Farmers.

The Michigan Farmer offers its readers one of the best Agricultural, Live Stock and Family Journals in America, at the low price of only one dollar per year. It has recently changed hands and is now printed in 16-page form, on fine quality of paper, in convenient shape for reading, being pasted and trimmed like a book. Some of the best correspondents have been engaged for 1894, and the paper will be improved in every way as fast as possible. It is the the determination of the new proprietor to place their paper in the front rank and no expense or trouble will be spared to accomplish it.

Agents wanted in every neighborhood, to whom liberal commission will be given. Sample copies will be sent free to any address. Write for one at once and see for yourselves what a change has already been made. We will send the remainder of this year, '93, free to all who subscribe now. Address Michigan Farmer, Detroit, Mich.

BRITTON BUDGET.

Wedding bells will ring right merrily to-morrow night.

Read Lenardson Bros. ad. on this page. It will do you good.

W. E. Doroming, of Toledo, stopped at the hotel DeLink last Friday.

Rev. Jas. Wright has purchased 60 acres of Samuel Kniffin's farm.

Mr. Wm. Clement and wife visited L. C. Hoagland and family, Monday and Tuesday.

Joe. Willis was the lucky man to draw the stove at Jas. Haight's last Monday.

Invitations are out for a social dinner at 10 a. m., Thanksgiving, at Link's restaurant.

Benjamin F. Wilcox has removed to Dundee, having purchased the Jake Cheever saloon.

Postmaster Babcock, after a few days tussel with a lame leg, is again able to attend to the office.

The boys are still waiting for a smoke on that suit of clothes drawn at W. C. Babcock's, last Friday evening.

Next month treasurer C. B. Exelby will take in the taxes—so friend and fellow citizen, get your cash ready.

The Chicken Pie Supper at the church last Wednesday evening for Rector Mudge was well attended, the receipts being $35.00.

M. D. Britton returned home from Ashley, Monday, for a short stay until the first of December, when he goes to Crocker, Ind. as agent for the Wabash.

We understand that the township board has decided not to carry up its suit with Miss Turner. We also learn that the tax resulting from the suit will not be spread upon the tax roll this year.

By mutual agreement the following places of business will close at 8 o'clock, sun time, commencing Monday, Dec. 4, and continuing until the first Monday in April: Lee Bros., Lenardson Bros., W. C. Babcock, L. C. Spitler, and W. J. Helm.

FARMERS UNION CLUB.

According to adjournment the union met at the residence of John Cadmus, with a large attendance. At the conclusin of the program the officers for the ensuing year were chosen, which resulted as follows:

Pres.—John Boyce.
Vice Pres.—John McIntyre.
Sec. and Treas.—Mabel F. Wood.

The next meeting will be held at the home of R. M. Boyd, on the evening of Dec. 8, '93. Program.

Foot Ball from the Other Side.

The following is an interview by an Adrian Times man with the President of the Adrian College.

Prest. D. C. Thomas, of the college, takes a decisive stand in favor of foot ball, and energetically resents the popularly expressed sentiment against the game, which he characterizes as ill-advised and unfriendly.

"While I sincerely regret the unfortunate mishap which marked Saturday's game," he said to a Times reporter, "the accusations made as to the brutality of the game are entirely erroneous. Played according to Rugby rules, foul tackle is not allowed, and all rules guard against possible injury to the players.

"The death of Carew was one of those unavoidable accidents that cannot be foreseen, and it was brought about by the young man resorting to his favorite tactics of turning a somersault before a tackle in order to gain a yard or two.

"The game is not one of my choice, but it is a national sport, that is played by all colleges in the fall, and Adrian college would fall behind the procession of college athletics if they did not play.

"It is necessary to keep up the spirit of athletic rivalry in the college to acquire physical development, and foot ball furnishes a good means toward this end.

"The people of Adrian have long wanted more life in the college, and now that it has begun they ought not to be unkind in their criticisms or rash in their action.

"I do not regard it wise or my duty to suppress the game, and will not. The game is vigorous, but not brutal, if rightly played."

Secretary Flindt, of the Y. M. C. A., is credited in the Detroit News with saying:

"Fortunately, or unfortunately, I introduced the game of foot ball here, that has developed into a sort of craze. The game, as properly played, is not brutal. I saw Saturday's game. If there's any brutality to be charged up against players in that game, it would most certainly not be against the Adrian players.

"As a matter of fact I saw no brutality on either side. Two of the Toledo players, who remained over, said in the hotel Sunday morning that the accident to Carew was due to the pressure of his own men from behind in attempting to force the opposition center. I've followed the game for six years and this is the first serious accident I remember hearing about."

OBITUARY.

Ebenezer Harmon departed this life at his family home in the town of Macon, on Sunday, November 26, 1893, aged 84 years, 2 months and 20 days.

He was born in Phelps, Ontario county, N. Y., September 6, 1809.

He lived with his parents until he was twenty one years old, and worked on his father's farm. In the fall of 1830 he commenced working by the month in the village of Phelps, and remained there until the spring of 1834. He married Sally Burgess, of Phelps, N. Y. Oct. 17, 1832. She died Feb. 22, 1885. In the spring of 1833 he came to Michigan with David Berdan, on a prospecting tour, and after looking around for some time finally located 80 acres on section 1, in Macon. In the spring of 1834 he moved his family to Michigan and settled on his land. At that time an Indian trail ran along the ridge, which he followed from Mooreville, in Washtenaw county. He added to his first purchase until he owned 320 acres of land. He cleared 150 acres, and built good buildings and felt that he had shirked no responsibility falling to a pioneer. While he was struggling for a home and comforts in the early days he always found time and a way of lending assistance to all new settlers. He thanked God for a cheerful, hopeful disposition, a good constitution and rugged health, until within the past year. He was troubled with heart disease which continued during the entire season.

Mr. Harmon leaves one daughter and two sons who have grown up to manhood and womanhood, and have children of their own. He leaves nine grandchildren and four great grand-children to mourn his loss. The deceased was a firm Universalist in his religous belief.

Life was a blessing to him while he had his health, and yet he had no fears of death, and no anxiety in regard to the future, but died as the righteous die. Trusting and hopeful he commended himself unto the care of an all wise Father who doeth all things well and is infinife in justice, infinite in mercy and infinite in love.

WHAT OUR EXCHANGES FIND OUT.

Hudson Post—A theatrical troupe, in Reading have a lottery to-morrow evening at which a cow is to be drawn. Every lady having a ticket is requested to bring two calves along.

Hudson has three millinery stores in a row. (The "o" in row has the long sound.) The woman who can pass all three without yeilding to the allurements of the dainty headgear, is a brave one indeed.

Milan Cor. Saline Observer—The cry of a mad dog was heard on our streets Monday morning and it created quite an excitement for a few minutes. The dog was killed about a mile out but not until a number of dogs were bitten.

Manchester Enterprise—Those people who think that this is a poor show town ought to know what patronage other towns give shows. The trouble is to know what show to patronize Often the poor show gets the crowd, while the good one plays to a corporal's guard.

Hudson Post—A party of young ladies on the East Side were overheard discussing young men in general. "Is not Mr. — a little too familiar?" was asked of a demure Miss whom the one referred to had escorted home. "Oh, no," was the reply. "He held me at arm's length; waist measure."

Adrian Telegram: At a meeting of the college foot ball team, held this morning, it was decided unanimously to continue the game. The team will be crippled by the loss of Claflin and Shattuck, whose parents object to their playing. It is probable that no more match games will beplayed this year.

Hudson Gazette—A son of Erin on the East Side has a boy who attends Prof. Tripp's school and has had the great privilege of looking through the new telescope. "I saw Orion as plain as could be," he said to his father. "O'Rion!" exclaimed the paternal ancestor, "thank the Lord there's one Irishman in Heaven, at laist."

Morenci Observer, Nov. 25—At an early hour Monday morning the store of John McNair, at Prattville, was entered by burglars and about $200 worth of goods carried away, besides a small amount of change that was in the till. The sheriff of Hillsdale county has offered a reward of $25 for the arrest and conviction of the burglars.

Henry Schumacher whipped and choked his wife until she fainted. Why will men misuse and strike their wives, their best friends in all the world—Ann Arbor Democrat. A better question is, Why don't wives when thus whipped, get a revolver and bore holes through the worthless carcasses of the dogs that worry them? A woman who would defend herself after this fashion would be exonerated in any court of justice in this or any other state.—Grass Lake News.

Petersburg Sun—A young man should, before trying the experiment, ascertain whether the young lady upon whom he calls Sunday evenings, is willing to be embraced when the time for going home arrives; however, if he fails to thus inform himself, the young lady should resist his advances in such a manner as not to attract the attention of passers by.

Passers-by should kindly look the other way upon such impressive occasions.

Milan Leader: Many parents of this village would probably be surprised and indignant should we tell them that their young sons—from 8 to 12 or 14 years of age—are becoming embryo toughs by being allowed the freedom of the streets nights. It is not uncommon to see a little fellow sucking a cigarette and using big and profane words. If your boy is not home nights you had better find out just where he is before you lose all control of him. It would be a splendid thing if the marshal was instructed and empowered to arrest, or at least send home under penalty of arrest all such boys who could not show that they had business or errands on the streets after 7 o'clock, or accompanied by their parents,

FOOTBALL PLAYERS.

The thing that impresses you most about the men who play football to-day is that they are so much younger than those who played on the 'varsity elevens when you were in college, and you are also puzzled by the fact that they all look alike. When you were in college, the eleven good men and true of each of the three great universities towered above you, you could pick them out when the crowd swept over the field between the halves on Thanksgiving day by the way their canvas-covered shoulders rose above the head of every one else. They were giants in those days, and either for that reason, or on account of their sensational performances when on the field, each one had an individuality of his own, and was as distinct from the others as are the characters in one of Shakespeare's plays. Now they are short and stocky, and only reach to your shoulder, and you look in vain for a familiar face or figure among them, and wonder how they can hope to do any thing without at least one of the sensational "star" players of your day to help them out. It is not until you recoguize the stout, well groomed gentleman, with his trousers tucked up, who is acting as umpire, as one of these "giants" and "star" players of your college days, that you understand that the change lies in some one else, and that the men of your time were to many people, to your father, for instance, only eleven well set up boys, and that to him they all looked alike, and neither their names or their faces bore any special significance.—Harper's Weekly.

Henry George in Adrian.

The reading and thinking public, and particularly those who have any interest in the single-tax propaganda, will receive with pleasure the announcement that Henry George will stop at Adrian on his western tour and deliver a single-tax lecture—a topic which has made his name familiar throughout the civilized world and given him rank as the most eminent political economist of the century.

Mr. George's coming at this time is to redeem a promise made two years ago, which was interfered with by his protracted illness.

Intelligent people admire genius and great talents, and the citizens of Adrian are sure to show their appreciation of these qualities in Henry George by extending him a warm welcome, no matter how much they may feel they are oppesed to his teachings. His listeners should include every person in the community who is interested in the welfare of human kind, for to this has the life work of this great American been consecrated.

We venture the prediction, with a pardonable feeling of self-satisfaction, that after this event there will be many good people in Adrian who will be ready to excuse themselves for having so readily prejudged a cause which, on investigation, proves to be the solid rock upon which a reconstructed social system must be founded. There will be a better opinion of the great reformer, a better understanding of the doctrine he preaches, and more single taxers.

Dec. 6 is the date of the lecture. Admission, 50 and 25 cents.—Advance.

NEAR DEATH'S DOOR.

OUR GALLANT LIFE SAVING CREWS IN ANGRY WATERS.

Night and Day They Patrol the Dangerous Coasts—Some Thrilling Adventures and Daring Rescues—A Useful Service Nobly Manned.

[Special Correspondence.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—This is the time of the year when the gallant life saving crews of our ocean coasts and lake shores have their hands full. Night and day they must keep up their vigil. It may be a surprise to some people to hear that practically the whole of the dangerous part of the Atlantic coast is patrolled every night by the faithful men of the United States life saving service, but such is the fact. While the great majority of mankind are snugly ensconced in bed, the patrol men are walk ing up and down the beach, mile after mile, clambering over rough headlands, wading through snow and slush, facing the storms and stumbling in the darkness. For the night patrol there are four watches—from sunset to 8 o'clock, from 8 till midnight, from midnight to 4 and from 4 to sunrise.

THROUGH THE WOODS.

The Red Flame.

Where the stations are so far apart that the patrolman cannot meet his neighbor he carries a clock which has a device that can be marked only by means of a key. This key is hung to a post at the far end of his beat, and thus he must go the whole distance to secure this automatic certificate of having performed his duty. The clock also registers the time at which the patrolman reached the end of his beat.

Each patrolman carries a lantern and a number of red hand lights. If he discovers a wrecked vessel in distress or a ship running dangerously near the shore, he ignites his light, which sends forth a brilliant red flame, thus warning the people in the ship that they are too far the coast or that they have been wrecked and help is coming. The lookout at the station observes the red flame and gives the alarm to the life saving crew without any loss of time.

Dangerous Places.

In this way the Atlantic coast is patrolled every night for an aggregate distance of about 580 miles, or more than one half of all the coast line. There are on this coast 265 life saving stations, nearly one half of these being on the shores of Long Island and New Jersey. Here, within a distance of 250 miles, are 80 life saving stations, and they are as a rule busiest of all the 270 stations maintained by the service in the United States. These two coasts extend nearly at right angles from the great port of New York, where centers the commerce of the western hemisphere.

This coast line throughout nearly its whole length consists of a narrow strip of sand beach, varying in width from a quarter of a mile to five miles, and separated from the mainland by narrow water openings that sometimes extend into broad bays. At a distance of from 400 to 500 yards from the shore it is bordered by outlying sand bars, over which in violent storms immense walls of surf continually break.

These shores, exposed to all easterly storms, are constantly skirted by vessels bound to or from the ports of New York, Philadelphia and Wilmington, and by the craft of the coasting trade. Their sands have always levied a fearful tribute upon passing commerce, and are literally strewn with the half buried and decaying skeletons of wrecked vessels, while the graveyards of the coast villages and settlements abound with unmarked mounds which tell a sad tale of destruction of human life.

Medals of Honor.

Along this coast the recent storms of which you have read in the telegraphic dispatches found many victims, but not a tenth part as many as they would have found but for the presence and gallant efforts of the life saving crews.

Month after month the life saving service performs rescues whose accounts deserve to be celebrated in song and story. Few of these narratives find their way into the newspapers in anything like adequate form. One of the latest medals of honor granted by the secretary of the treasury for heroic life saving was awarded to Keeper Chase of the Coskato station, Nantucket. The story of that rescue, told even in the simplest language, reads like a page from romance.

In the middle of winter, during a frightful storm, the three masted schooner Kirkham stranded on Rose and Crown shoal. The sea was running almost mountain high. It was night when the vessel struck, and within an hour her bow was torn to pieces. The crew took to the rigging. Next morning the wreck was discovered, but she was 15 miles from land. But what could be done? Could any boat live in such a sea? Was it not madness to attempt a rescue 15 miles from the shore, amid such a turbulent torrent of breakers?

Fifteen Hours In the Rigging.

Keeper Chase did not stop to consider these questions. He promptly launched his surfboat—an open boat, only 25 feet long and 7½ feet deep—and put to sea. At last he neared the wreck and saw that the men were still hanging to the rigging. On account of the roughness of the ocean it was impossible to aid the schooner. If this had been attempted, the surfboat would have been dashed to pieces. So Keeper Chase dropped down near to the schooner between seas, anchored his craft and threw a small line attached to a heaving stick on board the wreck.

The sailors, though nearly dead from exposure, managed to attach a larger line to this one, and it was pulled aboard the surfboat. Thus the keeper and his crew were able to draw nearer the wreck in her lee. A sailor tied a line around his body and jumped overboard. No sooner had he been hauled aboard than another followed his example. Taking advantage of lulls in the storm and pulling up between seas, man after man was taken off in this manner till all seven of the sailors were rescued, after being 15 hours in the rigging. In an hour the wreck went to pieces. The life savers were in the nick of time.

Now came the struggle for the shore. With 14 men on board the little boat was so badly crowded it became necessary to throw mast and sail overboard. Darkness came on. Six hours had elapsed since the boat left the wreck, and only one mile of the 15 that lay between them and the shore had been traversed. Though the mercury stood at 20 degrees below zero, the men were forced to anchor and toss upon the waves till morning. Next morning, with all hands on board nearly dead from cold and exposure, the gallant craft effected a landing. For 24 hours her crew had been at work. In awarding a medal to Keeper Chase, the secretary of the treasury commended him for "superb seamanship, unerring judgment and dauntless courage." Was ever medal of honor more worthily bestowed?

A Thrilling Story.

One of the most extraordinary incidents known to the history of the life saving service—one which illustrates the resources and peculiar adventures incident to this work for humanity—occurred some years ago near the harbor of Frankfort, Lake Michigan. The schooner Hartzell had gone ashore at a dreadful spot, where the surf beat with wild fury against a crumbling cliff. The nearest life saving station was 10 miles away, by a rough and sandy road. Messengers were dispatched to the station, and while waiting for the coming of the lifeboat the men and boys who had assembled at the scene of the wreck, acting under the inspiration of some genius, built of driftwood a gigantic sign, "L-i-f-e-b-o-a-t coming," and placed it against the white background of the cliff, thus encouraging the six sailors in the rigging of the wrecked vessel to hang on as long as strength remained to them.

The lifeboat was coming, but through frightful obstacles. For two hours the men and a pair of horses struggled through the sands and over the hills with the heavy craft and finally reached the base of a hill within half a mile of the wreck. Just as the keeper was ordering his men to start on a long detour a citizen dashed up and said he would show them a short cut over the hill. The path led up the overhanging hillside, through the brush, and the tug with the loaded cart was tremendous. So steep was the ascent that man and beast had barely to climb and almost to hoist the cart after them. Nothing could have been done but for the aid of a crowd of sturdy town folk who had assembled there, and anticipating the arrival of the life saving party rushed half way with axes and handspikes a great deal of the undergrowth and fallen trees. Even with these impediments removed, so proof was the ascent that it took the united efforts of 25 brawny men and a span of horses to gain the summit, only about 50 feet being made at a time. By these efforts the top of the hill was reached. The crowd was now all brought up standing by a belt of woods, which bristled on the crest of the eminence, and in which the fallen trees, half buried in sand, made dense undergrowth. The obstacle seemed to inspire all present with renewed energy and gave occasion for a striking scene.

In an instant, and as by a simultaneous impulse, all hands—citizens and crew—rushed to the woods with axes and such tools as could be pressed into service. The forest resounded with their blows, the heavy thuds of fallen timber mingled with the flashing of the axes and the shouts of the brigade of pioneers mingled with the howling wind and the hissing of the descending rain and hail. The woods seemed tumbling asunder and were alive with rude figures in every variety of action. In some places men were showering blows upon standing timber. In others they were prying and lifting aside great fallen trees, and marching each other to renewed efforts. Others here and there with frantic activity were uprooting and rending away masses of brush and undergrowth. Sometimes 10 men would fling themselves upon a young tree or sapling, pull it down and throw it out of the path. In an incredibly short space of time the wood was cleared, and the mortar cart was dragged forward to the brow of the hill.

A Leap For Life.

The way having been cleared, the life savers found themselves upon the summit of a bluff nearly 500 feet above the sea. Below was the nearly sunken wreck, its two masts still standing, but the hull rapidly breaking up. Standing in the lower rigging was the captain, and 40 feet above him, on the swaying crosstrees, were huddled the crew. A line was fired from the mortar, and by this means the entire crew was rescued after herculean labors on the part of the surfmen and citizens.

Another remarkable incident in the history of the service occurred at Cleveland, where the schooner Sophia Minch was wrecked in attempting to enter the harbor. The life saving crew went to the rescue, and the keeper advised that the vessel be scuttled as the only means of preventing her pounding to pieces on the rocks. The schooner in a short time sank in shoal water, all on board except two men taking to the foremast for safety, these latter be ing completely isolated from the others. The crew in the rigging were rescued without much difficulty, but the two who had been separated from their companions were in an extremely perilous position.

Surfman Hatch volunteered to attempt their rescue by endeavoring to reach the mizzen rigging. It was a hazardous undertaking, as the mainmast and gaff were swaying in a fearful manner and it was literally taking his life in his hands to go to their succor. Hatch slowly made his way along the swaying gaff, and in order to reach the imperiled sailors had to leap from the gaff to the rigging. To this was a line was carried to them and they were drawn ashore with great difficulty. Before taking his departure the life of others Hatch bade goodby to his comrades, fearing he would never come back alive. He was rescued in safety, being the last man to leave the ship.

These are samples of the sort of stories of danger and heroism with which the work of this service teems month after month and year after year.

HELP IS NEEDED.

Gov. Rich Asks Aid for Destitute Miners in Michigan.

Thousands in the Gogebic Range Are Without Food or Clothing—Citizens Respond to the Appeal and Necessaries of Life Are Sent.

THE GOVERNOR'S PROCLAMATION.

LANSING, Nov. 25.—Gov. Rich has issued a proclamation to the people of Michigan, calling attention to the closing down of the mines in the upper peninsula whereby many miners have been thrown out of employment and great suffering and privation occasioned thereby, and calling upon the liberal minded people of the state to help by contributions of food and clothing to alleviate the suffering of the distressed. All contributions will be promptly acknowledged and forwarded to the needy miners and their families. The desirability of cash subscriptions is urged on account of the distance of the sufferers from most points in lower Michigan. In closing the governor says:

"The suffering and needy have never appealed to the people of Michigan in vain. Enough can be spared from our abundance to relieve the wants of our suffering neighbors in the upper peninsula. Let your contributions be prompt and liberal."

The result of the proclamation is that a committee is being organized in all parts of the state and contributions are being received. Lansing was the first to respond to the call and a Michigan Central train has taken a substantial contribution to the needy miners and their suffering families. The donation was quickly gotten and consists of 125 barrels of flour, twenty-five barrels of beans, pork, crackers, etc., one third of which is consigned to the mayor of Bessemer and two-thirds to the mayor of Ironwood.

A committee has been organized here, with Marcus Peterson, clerk of the state board of auditors, as chairman, and Deputy State Treasurer Charles P. Dexter as treasurer, which will receive and forward contributions to the upper country. Mayor Liddle Cook, of Ironwood, telegraphed that there was great need of clothing and footwear for men, women and children, who are suffering greatly from the intense cold which prevails. The suffering miners are principally Poles, Swedes and Cornishmen, and they are nearly all men of large families.

At Grand Rapids the work of securing contributions has been well commenced, and although that city has no little suffering at home on account of the large number of furniture workers who are out of employment, yet the people are responding generously to the call for help. The Grand Rapids Democrat has undertaken to forward all contributions received, and help from that city is on the way to the mining country.

A meeting of prominent citizens of the state will be held at the office of ex-Gov. Alger in Detroit at which Gov. Rich will preside. Measures of relief will be discussed, and in all probability the governor will then appoint a general relief commission to receive and forward provisions.

TRY TO BURN COMPANIONS.

Cruelty of Two Boys Who Torture Their Comrades at the Stake.

KALAMAZOO, Nov. 25.—A shocking piece of cruelty was reported Thursday from Otsego, down the river a few miles from this city. Willie Harvey and Thomas Wilson, each about 13 years old, took two lads much smaller than themselves to the Kalamazoo river bank and proceeded to offer one as a burnt offering. The lad was gagged, securely tied to a stake and a fire kindled about his feet. The boy's feet and legs were burned severely when the other lad, who had been taken along, cut the rope and liberated his companion. This displeased the two who had planned the offering, and they seized the young hero and served him in a like manner. His cuteries brought help and he was rescued from what might have been a horrible death, but not before being badly burned.

CONDUCTOR SCOTT HELD.

Grand Trunk Manslaughter Case Goes to the Circuit Court.

BATTLE CREEK, Nov. 27.—Judge Henry rendered his decision in the case of Conductor Bertram N. Scott, charged with manslaughter in connection with the Grand Trunk collision. He holds Scott to the circuit court for trial. Scott, he finds, was careless and negligent in allowing his train to pass the place of meeting. The degree of this carelessness he leaves for the higher court to determine. Scott's attorneys have given the prosecuting attorney notice that he desired to have the case tried at the next term of court, which convenes December 4.

Killed by Electricity.

GRAND RAPIDS, Nov. 25.—Zeph Tibbits, a young business man on Canal street, attempted to adjust an electric light carbon Thursday night. He stood on a stepladder and grasped a gas chandelier to steady himself. This action completed a circuit and he was instantly killed by the electric current.

Death of Col. Larned.

DETROIT, Nov. 25.—A cablegram has been received from London announcing the death in that city of Colonel Sylvester P. Larned, a well-known, active and prominent citizen of Detroit. Mr. Larned was 73 years old and was one of the founders of the republican party.

It Was Accidental.

ADRIAN, Nov. 24.—The coroner's jury at the inquest upon the body of Young Carew, of the Toledo football team, returned a verdict that Carew's death was purely accidental, but that the rules of the game ought to be modified.

Fire in Lansing.

LANSING, Nov. 26.—Saturday evening fire wiped out the Lansing branch of the United States Baking company. The loss on stock and buildings is $10,000; insurance: $10,500.

Now Stop Croaking.

The election is over. The tariff scare has been worked for all it was worth, and perhaps for a little more. The calamity-howlers have won and are entitled to their jubilation. Now let us all stop croaking and get together.

The country is safe. The government at Washington still lives, and is attending to business as usual. The tariff is going to be reformed, without regard to the croakers. Times are going to be better. Why not unite to help the improvement on?

Suppose the Democrats are responsible for the hard times? They have been chastised sharply and nothing more can be done to them at present. But the hard times are not cured by election figures. And they will not be cured by croaking.

In the natural order of things business is going to improve. It will improve all the more rapidly if we can only have an end of wrangling and complaining and of fruitless political agitation. If the result of the election shall only help the calamity-howlers to view the situation in a more hopeful light it will make everybody happier.

The croakers have been the greatest obstacle in the way of business revival. They have had their day. They have accomplished all they can. It is time now to send them to the rear. The world will move on in spite of them. Now is the time for Philadelphia to wake up and go ahead.

A MARSHAL SAVES LIFE AND HAIR.

Monticello, FLA., Jan. 21, 1890.

For the last eight years I have been in bad health, suffering with Malaria, Rheumatism, Dyspepsia, Dropsy. My digestion was bad, and my hair all came out, in fact I was nearly a wreck. I had taken kidney and blood medicines, which did me no good. When I began taken P. P. P., about three months ago, I was as weak as a child. I have only taken four bottles, small size, and today I am a well man and my hair has "come again." I cannot recommend P. P. P. too highly. W. F. WARE.

"I think I would have been in my grave several years ago had it not been for Hood's Sarsaparilla. I was a United States soldier; served three years in the Union Army and was with Sherman in his

March to the Sea.

While in the service I contracted asthma, bronchitis and catarrh, which have become chronic diseases. I find that Hood's Sarsaparilla and Hood's Pills are the best medicines I can use for these complaints. They have certainly prolonged my life. I earnestly recommend the medicines as just right for what they are advertised. I am satisfied they save many lives every year." REV. S. S. THOMPSON of the M. P. Church, Alma, Mich.

A HOME MISSIONARY.

JOSEPH ADDISON HALLOCK (Octogenarian.)

HIS EXPERIENCE WITH THE OWEN ELECTRIC BELT.

AN OLD MAN WITH PROGRESSIVE IDEAS AND HIS DESIRE TO ENLIGHTEN THE PUBLIC.

The winter of 1884-85 was my first experience with rheumatism. I was traveling as a home missionary, and with great difficulty and suffering I reached my appointments. It was located in my hips and back. From that time to this year of grace, 1891, I have suffered more or less under the grip of that disease. About three years later, liver complaint, and the calomel taken to cure it, fastened upon the walls and organs of my chest, a rheumatic affection from which I was never wholly free, and at times even a breath was a cruelty. Yet, in a general way, my health has been as good, perhaps better than the average of men.

During the last days of the late year, I bought of Dr. Owen two of the Owen Electric Belts. One I have worn, the other a daughter has worn. In either case the remedial has been satisfactory. The rheumatism of my chest and hips I can no longer find. A limited case of varicocele, of more than thirty years standing, after two weeks' use of the Belt, has diminished to a mere lump, and a few days later could not be found. A nasal catarrh of years had so affected the substance of the nose that a friend in jest twitted me of brandy. My nose is itself again, and other symptoms of nasal and throat catarrh are fast disappearing, carrying my deafness of seven years with them.

I have studied electricity in its bearings upon mental and physico mental phenomena for fifty years, and have seen its wonders in these directions, and, thus prepared, my attention was easily turned to its efficiency in controlling the nerves, muscles and motions of the living, as galvanism does those of the recent dead.

I have no wish to undervalue any appliance which carries a real electric current from a genuine battery to human nerves with a gentle, a genial force; but I do wish to do my utmost to disarm public fears as to the well-ordered Electric Belts.

Wishes to speak through the Register of the beneficial results he has received from a regular use of Ayer's Pills. He says: "I was feeling sick and tired and my stomach seemed all out of order. I tried a number of remedies, but none seemed to give me relief until I was induced to try the old reliable Ayer's Pills. I have taken only one box, but I feel like a new man. "Between the ages of five and fifteen, I was troubled with a kind of saltrheum, or eruption, chiefly confined to the legs, and especially to the bend of the knee above the calf. Here, running sores formed which would scab over, but would break immediately on moving the leg. My mother tried everything she could think of, but all was without avail. Although a child, I read in the papers about the beneficial effects of Ayer's Pills, and persuaded my mother to let me try them. With no great faith in the result, she procured and I began to use them, and soon noticed an improvement. Encouraged by this, I kept on till I took two boxes, when the sores disappeared and have never troubled me since."—H. Chipman, Real Estate Agent, Roanoke, Va.

WHALEBONE AND OIL

OLD SEADOGS INTERESTED IN SOME REMARKABLE CATCHES.

A Record Unprecedented In the Annals of Whaling—The Arctic Fleet This Year Has Captured 350 Whales, and the Industry Seems Reviving—Whalers' Profits.

(Special Correspondence.)

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Nov. 27.—Old whalers on the coasts of both oceans are deeply interested in the astounding news from the Arctic, confirmed from week to week as one steam whaling vessel after another reaches San Francisco. The gist of the news is that 10 steam whalers have taken 302 whales, and that such of the sailing whalers as have been heard from have taken from 40 to 50 more, so that the season's catch in Behring sea and the Arctic is about 350 whales.

The lucky whalers are the Balæna, Beluga, Grampus, Newport, Orca, Karluk, Belvedere, Mary D. Hume, Narwhal and Navarch. All hail from San Francisco save the Belvedere and the Navarch, which hail from New Bedford. The former, however, has been 15 years on the Pacific coast, and the latter went round last year to stay probably for the rest of her days. The Navarch is the largest vessel of the United States whaling fleet. She has a tonnage of 494 tons. The other nine steamers vary from 180 to 462 tons. Reports from nearly a dozen other whalers show that they have taken from one to six whales each. From 15 to 20 whaling vessels, some in the Atlantic and several in southern waters in search of sperm whales, have not been heard from since midsummer, but no great news is expected from their adventures. Five of the fortunate steam whalers, with 193 whales to their credit, are shut in by the ice and must winter in the Arctic. The Narwhal is reported as having taken 62 whales, which is something almost unprecedented in the history of American whaling.

"THERE SHE BLOWS."

The average annual slaughter of whales the world over has been about 1,500 for the past 30 years, with a yield of 3,200,000 gallons of whale oil, or 2,200 per carcass. A catch of 44 whales by a single whaler from a Scotch port was thought remarkable 80 years ago, when whaling on the whole was more profitable than it has been for the past 40 years. That is believed to have been the greatest whaling cargo ever brought into a British port. The whole product of that catch was worth about $200,000. For many years the greatest catch of a New England whaler was that of the Pioneer of New London, Conn., which returned in September, 1865, after a year in the north Pacific, with 1,530 barrels of oil and a great load of bone, worth in all $150,000. Before that a New Bedford whaler's cargo, valued at $132,450, was the best catch of an American whaler. At even the present low price of oil and whalebone the catch of the arctic fleet ought to be worth considerably over $1,000,000. An authority here estimates the catch at rather more than 1,400 pounds of bone and at 1,500 gallons of oil per whale. This would give the Narwhal nearly 90,000 pounds of bone and about 93,000 gallons of oil.

The American whaling fleet now numbers rather less than 100 vessels, and the entire tonnage of the fleet cannot greatly exceed 20,000 tons. New Bedford is still the hailing port of more than half the vessels, but most of the steam whalers hail from San Francisco, and they alone have been the lucky vessels this time. Ever the New Bedford steam whalers rendezvous at San Francisco, because by far the larger part of the whaling is done northwest of that port, and it is expensive business steaming home through the straits of Magellan and up the Atlantic coast of South America.

The popular notion that whaling is played out received a shock two years ago when the Mary D. Hume, which this season is reported with 14 whales, took 30 whales in the Arctic. The decline of whaling is not altogether to be traced to the cheapness of mineral oils, the discovery of substitutes for whalebone and the scarcity of whales. One determining influence has been the timidity of whales and the difficulty of finding them in their old haunts. Whales have apparently become scarcer during the last 40 years, and they certainly have changed and limited their habitats.

The first whaler to enter the Arctic by way of Behring straits was a New Bedford vessel away back in 1818. She found immense schools of whales, and her example was promptly followed by other vessels. The European whaling business had already begun to decline, and in spite of the discoveries in the Arctic the luck of American whalers soon after began to fall off. Nearly 200 years before, the Dutch had taken 10,000 whales in a single decade in the arctic waters of Europe. A century and a half later the Basques were catching many small whales in the bay of Biscay, but their trade gave out long ago, although a whale of the species that once haunted the bay was killed in the Mediterranean only 15 years ago. Coast whaling is still pursued for about three months of the year at a few points along the coast of California. Here the gray whale used to be taken in great numbers. It was the habit of these creatures to breed in the shallow bays along the coast, and great schools of the females gathered at such times in these protected waters while the males disported themselves outside the reefs. The business of pursuing the gray whale was so sharply prosecuted that the species almost disappeared from the coast.

Steam whaling is a comparatively recent thing, and it is prosecuted chiefly in the Behring sea and the Arctic ocean. The steam whalers also carry sails. Few of them exceed 500 tons, and they are built in peculiarly strong fashion so as to resist the cutting power of the ice and as well to stand the strain that comes upon a vessel when nipped in the floe. Each steamer has tankage for 200 to 250 tons of oil. Such a vessel may be built in Europe for about $80,000 to $85,000, and here for perhaps a little more. The cost of running a steam whaler of 400 to 500 tons is about $3,500 per month. Payment is mainly in "lays," but sometimes part of the crew receives wages and depart both lay and wages. The "lay" of a captain in the New England whaling fleet is about one-twelfth of the catch on the average, while in the San Francisco fleet it is about one-fifteenth. The shares decrease rapidly, and a cabin boy's lay is on the average one-one hundred and sixty fifth in the San Francisco fleet and one-two hundred and twenty-fifth in the New England fleet.

A MIGHTY FORCE.

Niagara Falls Will Soon Be Tamed by Electricity.

(Special Correspondence.)

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—Governor Flower of New York state does not pretend to be anything of a rhetorician, nor has he ever studied any of the rules laid down in the books by which it is said that a person can make of himself an interesting public speaker. Yet during the last four or five weeks the governor has been making a series of speeches throughout New York state which ought to be collected and printed, since they are of interest and importance to every person in the United States who depends for his livelihood upon agriculture.

Governor Flower in these addresses has insisted that the best farming, the most businesslike cultivation of the soil, may prove of no avail to the farmer unless there are good roads, so that he may convey the product of the soil to the nearest transportation place with the least cost. The governor's idea is that there has been a very great wastage and unconscious extravagance all over the United States on account of poor roads, and he has said to the people of New York that he believes it would be economy for the townships to combine with the state to construct everywhere throughout the state public highways that will be smooth, unaffected by the elements—therefore permanent—of easy grades, so that the cost not only of transporting the product of the farms to the nearest railway or canal stations would be reduced, but also the wear and tear upon farmers' vehicles, upon horses and draft beasts would be greatly lessened, thereby reducing expense.

These speeches, while they may have no rhetorical interest nor those charms which are furnished by great orators, nevertheless may have had a permanent and immediate influence, which after all is the true test of oratory. For it is quite likely that the legislature of the state of New York will appropriate money that, in conjunction with proportionate appropriations by the townships of the state, within the next five or six years will pay the expenses of furnishing New York state from one end to the other with public highways which are as perfect in their construction and appointments as are those of the railways.

Recently Governor Flower met a number of gentlemen who represented capitalists controlling in the aggregate probably half a billion dollars in the suburbs of the city of Rochester, and it was the law partner of President Cleveland, or rather the lawyer who had such association with the president in the four years between his first and second term, who said that he had heard many thrilling and powerful orations, but after all he had never heard one that was of so mighty consequence and suggestion to the American people as that one which Governor Flower delivered upon that occasion.

The governor and the party were more than 100 miles from Niagara falls. They were standing upon a canalboat. Over the canal and about half way between either bank there had been put up wires such as those who have seen the trolley railways in cities in operation are familiar with. The governor, Mr. Francis Lynde Stetson, the recent law partner of President Cleveland, the president of the New York Produce Exchange; Mr. Thomas, that veteran telegrapher, who, with General Eckert and General Anson Stager, was the first to send messages over the wires after Morse had demonstrated the commercial availability of his invention; Mr. Balch, Dr. Coleman Sellers, one of the greatest mechanical engineers of the world; Nicola Tesla, whose discoveries in the world of electricity have almost rivaled those of Edison; George Westinghouse, who is one of the most marvelous and interesting developers in his career of these later days of the nineteenth century, and many other men, representing great achievements and great capital, stood upon this canalboat, and when the electric power was transmitted to the wires all of them, with enthusiasm of speech, said that the American business world was on the era of a new development. For it was made plain that the trolley system was as available for canalboats as it is for street cars, and the farreaching and momentous consequences of that development to the American people, and especially to the farmers of the far west, can hardly be appreciated.

Governor Flower in his speech, simple in words without adornment, but having the highest enthusiasm of eloquence, sincerity and earnestness, said that with good roads in every state and with the demonstration that electricity was available for the propulsion of canalboats, the American people stand on the threshold of a new era, and one which promises greater prosperity than any which they have experienced in the past. The extraordinary suggestion of these experiments was that by the use of the force of Niagara falls, and a quantity of water which would decrease the flow over the falls less than two inches, or an amount not appreciable to the eye, there can be furnished a power which will carry the wheat and grain of the prairies of the west to the markets and furnish the cheapest transportation for other products.

It was said at that gathering that before the beginning of the twentieth century it was probable that the power which has gone to waste for the 100 years since the United States became a nation would, now that it had been captured, furnish light, heat, and driving force for the states of New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, as well as the greater part of lower Canada.

Varying Effects of Drugs.

Opium produces more varied and opposite effects upon the human system than any known drug. Even in small doses it will act on the same individual as a stimulant and as a sedative, as an astringent or a laxative, and in large doses to those who are habituated to its use it acts as a powerful stimulant or even intoxicant, such in toxication being followed by muscular relaxation and mental torpor. The action of most drugs, or at least of very many, varies according to the dose which is administered; thus ipecacuanha will act as an emetic in large doses, but if given in small quantity will arrest sickness. Ammonia will cause or arrest sickness, according to the quantity taken, while many drugs which in small doses will operate as febrifuges will in large doses induce fever, says a writer on the effect of drugs.

Musquito Reservation.

The territory known by the name of Musquito Reservation is a strip of land on the eastern coast of Nicaragua, extending from the Warra river on the north side to the Rama river on the south, and from the sea inland to the meridian of 84 degrees 15 minutes west. It contains an area of nearly 9,000 square miles. It has a population of about 10,000 aboriginal Indians, whose chief calls himself the king of the Musquito nation.

A Steel Windmill and Steel Tower every 3 minutes. These figures tell the story of the ever-growing, ever-going, everlasting Steel Aermoter. Where one goes others follow, and we "Take the Country."

Though old, we were unable to make it of any good purpose. Experience has taught us how to improve it, but how to improve it is a problem. Are you curious to know how the Aermotor Co. in the face of existence came to make many times as many windmills as all other makers combined? How we came to originate the Steel Wheel, the Steel Fixed Tower, the Steel Tilting Tower?

In 1888 we commenced in a field in which there had been numerous unsuccessful efforts and in which there seemed no chance for success, and in which there has yet been shown except in feeble imitation of our inventions.

21 Years' experience and the manifold questions should be asked in this investigation and experiments were made by a skilled mechanical engineer in which over 5,000 dynamometric tests were made on 57 different forms of wheels, propelled by artificial and therefore uniform wind which tested definitely many questions relating to the proper speed of wheel, the best form, angle, curvature and amount of sail surface, the resistance of air to rotation, friction in the wheel, such as heavy wooden arms obstructions before the wheel, as in the vane-box mill and many other questions, though not less important questions. These investigations proved that the power of the best wind wheels could be doubled, and the AERMOTOR daily demonstrates it has been done.

We, to the liberal policy of the Aermotor Co. that guarantees its goods satisfactory or pay freight both ways and to the enormous output of the factory, which enables it to furnish the best article of steel that can be produced for the money, 1892 will furnish the most perfect bearings ever put in a windmill, and have made an exhaustive revision of the Aermotor and Towers.

If you want a first-class, stiff, Steel Fixed Tower, such as you see in the cut, or a Steel Tilting Tower, and the Wheel that runs when all others stand still, that costs you less than wood and lasts ten times as long, The Steel Aermotor is what you want. A Geared Aermotor to saw, churn, grind, cut feed, pump water, turn grindstone and run any wood work, that does the work of a horse at the cost of one. Write for catalogue, illustrated pamphlet, containing many testimonials showing every conceivable phase of windmill construction and work to the AERMOTOR CO., 12th and Rockwell Sts., Chicago, or 1705 to 1715 Seventeenth St., San Francisco.

DR. TRASK'S MAGNETIC OINTMENT.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

All Sores, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Burns, Sore Throat, Lameness, Rheumatism, Piles, Inflammation of Lungs and Bowels, Bronchitis, Croup, Salt Rheum, Chilblains, Affection of the Spine, Erysipelas, Nervous Irritation, and all disorders attendant with Inflammation.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years.

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should be perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Prices 25 and 40 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

DOUBLE TRAGEDY.

George S. Conger, of Clinton, Shoots and Instantly Kills Dow Draper and Then Suicides.

George S. Conger, a young farmer living four and a half miles northwest of this place, killed Dow Draper a Clinton livery man and ex-deputy sheriff, at midnight Friday, and then took his own life.

The two men had been in Adrian during the day transacting some business, arriving home at about 4 o'clock in the afternoon. Conger it seems, had contracted various debts, to avoid the payment of which he deeded his property to his wife. Draper was a sort of a confidential friend of both at one time and after Mrs. Conger secured possession of the property acted in the capacity of business manager for her. Conger finally demanded the property deeded back to him, but by the advise of Draper Mrs. Conger refused. From this time on Conger has had the idea that his wife and Draper were juggling his property away from him, and had at various times made threats against both.

Friday evening Draper went to Conger's house, presumably on business, although it is claimed that a pedro party was the program for the evening. As that may be, several others were present and playing cards. During the game Draper and Conger got into an altercation and withdrew to another room. Accusations were made by Conger but what they were is kept very silent. One present, heard Draper say "I'll settle with you in the morning." The reply was "No you won't, you'll settle tonight." Conger then left the house and went to a tool shop near by where he secured a shot gun. Returning he found the door locked and called to some one to open it. George Rogers, the hired man, and Draper both went toward the door. Rogers opened it and Conger and Draper stood face to face. Conger said "Have you anything to say." "No," said Draper and smiled as though he thought Conger joking. Instantly a charge of shot was driven through his heart and with an exclamation he fell dead in Rogers' arms. Conger walked back to the shop and locked himself inside and as it was known that he was heavily armed no one cared to follow. Two men went to the barn to hitch up a horse when they heard another report, and one of them said "I believe he has shot himself." The alarm was given at Clinton, a surgeon summoned and Marshal Stevens, of this place, notified. He and Deputy Amspoker, of Clinton, went to the scene and thinking that perhaps Conger was prepared for a fight, called to him to surrender. Receiving no reply they battered in the door of the shop when a ghastly sight greeted them. In the middle af the floor, with a bullet hole in his right temple, lay Conger, dead, surrounded by numerous pistols and guns. In killing himself he used a Remington & Sons, 44 calibre revolver. The bullet passed through his head, struck a beam in the ceiling, and dropped to the floor. A jury was impaneled and viewed the remains, adjourning until 9 o'clock Saturday morning.

Various reasons are given for the killing, but very unsatisfactory stories are told as to what happened during the two hours previous to and including the shooting. Mrs. Conger talked freely and said that George was intoxicated and entirely to blame, and expressed more regret at the death of Draper than of her husband. Others who were present that night are very backward about making statements and seem to be telling but a part of their story.

Dow Draper was a man of perhaps 30 years. He was deputy-sheriff under Baldwin, and has been village marshal of Clinton at different times. He was a horse fancier and had just completed a large livery barn. His parents are well to do Jackson people. He leaves a widow and one child about two years old. According to Clinton people, he had been drinking hard of late and neglecting his business.

Geo. S. Conger was 29 years of age and has always lived upon the estate where the affair took place, and which he came into possession of two years ago, upon the death of his grandfather. Other heirs contested his rights, but he won his case. He married Anna Staeger ten years ago, a girl of 15. They have no children. Strange as it may seem there was but very little excitement in Clinton over the affair, people seeming to have half expected it.

The funerals took place Monday. Conger's in the forenoon, and Draper's in the afternoon.

OFF THE TRACK.

Many Passengers Hurt in a Railway Wreck Near Zeeland.

GRAND RAPIDS, Nov. 24.—The Chicago & West Michigan eastbound passenger train struck a misplaced switch half a mile this side of Zeeland Thursday night. The baggage car, smoker and day coach went off the track and for a hundred yards plowed along the right of way, taking down a telegraph pole and stopping all communication. The smoker contained twenty passengers and the day coach was well filled. The passengers were piled up in heaps. Many were injured, but none killed. Among those most seriously injured are:

Francis Campbell, Grand Rapids, back hurt; F. H. Devendorff, Milwaukee, badly bruised; G. C. Flynn, Macon, Ga., skull fractured; W. S. Gunn, Grand Rapids, internally injured; M. Kirby, Polo, badly bruised; Joseph Kuntz, Grand Rapids, leg broken; E. G. Myers, Goshen, arm fractured; Joseph Neftel, Cleveland, badly bruised; Vevie Van Otte, baggagemaster, scalp wound; A. H. Wilson, Detroit, bruised about the body; Frank Worth, mail agent, leg fractured.

FIRE AT MUSKEGON.

Several Firemen Badly Injured by a Falling Wall.

MUSKEGON, Nov. 26.—The Williams block, occupied by Falk's barber shop and Welch's restaurant on the first floor, and numerous offices and sleeping rooms above, was totally destroyed by fire Friday, the inmates barely escaping with their lives. Capt. Dewitt, of Company No. 6, and Firemen Gus Anderson and Ben Berchon were caught under a falling wall. Berchon was completely buried under the brick and was rescued with difficulty. His left leg was broken in two places, his shoulder broken, and he is injured internally and will probably die. Dewitt and Anderson were struck by falling bricks. The loss is about $50,000, partly insured.

Liquor Sellers Defy Local Option.

KALAMAZOO, Nov. 27.—There is great excitement among the hotel liquor dealers of Van Buren county, which has been the home of local option for years. They have a legal opinion that the law is surely unconstitutional, and have bonds ready for acceptance, and intend to commence doing business at once.

TO THE OLD AND NEW READERS OF THE

DETROIT JOURNAL.

SIGHTS and SCENES Of the World.

Is the title given to a rare and magnificent collection of 320 superb views representing the famous natural scenery, palaces, castles, cathedrals, noted street scenes, and places of historical interest in all parts of the earth. This series is the result of years of extended travel and many thousands of dollars in expense. The photographs are 11x15 in size. Each one is executed in the highest style of art, and accompanied by an interesting description, replete with historical and other data.

Great Panorama of Visions.

The series consists of twenty parts of sixteen views each, and embraces scenes in England, Scotland, Ireland, Germany, Italy, France, Holland, Belgium, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Portugal, Spain, Switzerland, Russia, Greece, Egypt, Asia, Turkey, Australia, New Zealand, Ceylon, Sandwich Islands, China, Japan, Africa, Malay, India, North and South America, and by distinguished tourists both in this country and abroad, is conceded to be the most interesting collection extant.

Better than a Trip Around the World.

The possession of such a splendid series of views is even better than a trip around the world. It saves time and money and the inconveniences of travel, and may be enjoyed not merely for a brief space, as in the course of one's travel, but may be referred to at pleasure and delighted in over and over again, surrounded by all the comforts of home, and if perchance a personal visit should be made at any time to the scenes represented, they will be all the more appreciated from the knowledge already had of them through the views and descriptions which make up the series above described.

Let us Tell You All About it.

The well defined principle of THE DETROIT JOURNAL for many years has been to give its patrons the greatest value for their money that it was possible to obtain for them, and it is in accordance with this purpose that we now offer them this magnificent collection of views, embracing twenty parts of sixteen numbers each, on terms that are so easy as to enable every one of our great family of readers to obtain them.

PART I CONTAINS:

1. Osborne Palace as Queen Victoria's Home on the Isle of Wight.
2. Pope's Villa at Twickenham, on the Thames, near London.
3. Robert Burns' House in Ayr.
4. The Giant Causeway, County of Antrim, Ireland.
5. Lakes of Killarney, Ireland.
6. Palace of Sans Souci, Potsdam, Germany.
7. Castle of Rheinstein, Germany.
8. Appian Gateway, Rome.
9. The Grand Canal, Venice.
10. The Grand Opera House, Paris.
11. The Grand Staircase in the Paris Opera House.
12. The Stora Theatre, Gothenburg, Sweden.
13. The City of Lisbon, Portugal.
14. The City of Bethany.
15. Native Malay Village.
16. The Cathedral, City of Mexico.

Only 3 Coupons and 8 cents Needed to Obtain the Series.

In every issue of the JOURNAL there will appear a numbered coupon. Cut this coupon out and preserve it until three different dates have been accumulated, then forward them, together with eight cents, to the Coupon Department of the DETROIT JOURNAL, and there will be delivered to you one of the parts of the series containing 16 views similar in style and character to those described above. The coupons for each of the 20 parts of the series run one entire week, but only three coupons of those published during the week are required to secure any one part. They must, however, be cut from the paper of different dates, and if perchance six coupons are cut from different issues during the week, the holder will be entitled to two numbers of the part called for by sending the coupons, with eight cents for each part desired. This arrangement enables any family to secure two complete sets by taking one paper each day. Each view contained in the series will be consecutively numbered, so that when the entire 20 parts have been received, an index will be furnished by which ready reference can be had to any particular paragraph.

Do Not Miss this Great Opportunity.

The DETROIT JOURNAL is the newsiest, cleanest and brightest daily in the State. Every home should receive it regularly. Leave your order with our local agent in your city, or drop us a postal card, and we will see that you receive it. Thousands have received Part One. Attend to it at once. You can receive all the parts if you give this immediate attention.

A man with a load of wood started across the street Saturday, when the lines got fast in the terret rings, he was unable to stop the team and consequently the wagon tongue poked a hole in some ones carriage top on the opposite side.

In order to enjoy Thanksgiving day with the rest of mankind we go to press early this week and should any thing be missing in the columns, try and forget the omission, in eating the big dinner and enjoying the good times which the HERALD wishes you to-day.

Edward Bellamy has written the story of "How I came to write 'Looking Backward'" for the Ladies Home Journal. He will tell, in connection with the book the history of the book itself, how the idea of Nationalism first suggested itself to his mind.

Sousa's new mareh, "The Manhatten Beach March" has been purchased by The Ladies' Home Journal, and its full piano score will be printed in the Christmas issue. The composer claims for it a superiority over either his popular "Washington Post" or "High School Cadet" marches.

There are plenty of doings to-day and night for the amusement of all classes of people. Those who don't dance can go to the horse show; if that is not agreeable take in the raffle, and if not suited with any of these go to Clinton and witness the foot ball game or take in the revival.

See the corrected time card in another column.

Mrs. Eugenie Gordon, who was charged with receiving stolen goods at the time of the arrest of the Church women, had her examination before Justice Robertson in Adrian, Friday last, and was discharged. She proved to the satisfaction of the judge that she was not aware of the fact that the articles she received from her mother and sister were stolen property.

Let us beg no question, shrink from no conclusion, but follow truth wherever it may lead. Upon us is the responsibility of seeking the law; for in the very heart of our civilization to-day women faint and little children moan. If the conclusions that we reach run counter to our prejudices, let us not flinch; if, they challenge institutions that have long been deemed wise and natural, let us not turn back!

We notice that a new outside window as been put in the lockup, and also hat when a couple of drunks were incarcerated the other night, that they were released as soon as sober "as the cooler was not in proper shape for a man to spend the night in." This is right in the line of the Herald's plea for improvement in the village quay some time ago, and also shows that its attack was warranted; all it wanted was to be made public and then it got fixed.

The golden age of which mankind have always dreamed: Youth no longer stunted and starved; age no longer harried by avarice; the child at play with the tiger; the man with the muckrake drinking in the glory of the stars! Foul things fled, fierce things tame discord turned to harmony! For how could there be greed where all have enough? How could the vice, the crime, the ignorance, the brutality, that spring from poverty and the fear of poverty, exist where poverty had vanished? Who should crouch where all were freeman? Who oppress where all were peers?

Ole Olson at the opera house Dec. 8th.

Thoughtful buyers who would compare quality and style with the price, will find it to their advantage to inspect F. R. Stebbins' Sons (Adrian) new stock of desirable furniture, crockery, oil cloths, window shades and picture mouldings. Prices have taking a great tumble in the past few months, so "look before you leap."

The purchase of the Wm. Hayden warehouse property by Co. C, 1st. Inft., M. N. G. being now nearly a settled fact, extensive improvements will soon be begun. Bids, in writing, on these repairs will be received by Dr. F. O. Tefft, any time within the next 10 days. Make your bids to cover the entire job. Make bids on the wood and brick work separately. Plans and specifications can be obtained by applyina to Will Hayden.

Our primary social adjustment is a denial of justice, It is this that turns the blessings of material progress into a curse. It is this that crowds human beings in noisome cellars and squallid tenement houses; that fills prisons and brothels: that goads men with want and consumes them with greed; and robs women of the grace and beauty of perfect womanhood: that takes from little children the joy and innocence of life's morning.—Henry George at Croswell Opera House, Adrian, Dec. 6.

Prof. D. M. Bristol, who will exhibit his remarkable horses at the opera house Thursday and Friday nights, is one of the most successful horse trainers in the country. He was born in Flint, Mich., about forty years ago. He was brought up on a farm, and at an early age he showed a strong liking for horses. So strong was his like of equines that he subsequently gave up the study of law to enter upon the training business. For a number of years he traveled and gave lectures and taught a system of training of horses for practical purposes.

From the Adrian Telegram, Monday: The Veteran Soldier, statesman and citizen, Hon. Nathaniel B. Eldredge is gradually dying at his home on Hunt street. For the past few years he has been ill from a gradual decline brought on by the ravages of old age, and several severe attacks of rheumatism. This has kept him confined at home, and he has not been known to the people down town. The attack which is bringing him so near death's door, and which will undoubtedly cause his death, commenced about seven o'clock last evening. His family was hastily summoned, but he rallied somewhat from this, and was thought to be coming out of it. This morning he was attacked again with a sinking spell, and he has been gradually growing worse all day. It is believed that he cannot possibly last the night through, and watchers are regretfully looking for the end of a life of usefulness and honor. Hon. N. B. Eldredge was born the 27th day of March, 1813, and has made for himself a place in history that will survive his death for many years. Later: Mr. Eldredge died at 4 o'clock Monday.

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

HER SOCIAL STATUS.

DOMESTIC LIFE IN THE FLOWERY KINGDOM DEFENDED.

An Educated Chinaman on the Daily Life of a Chinese Lady—The Flower and Fruit of Forty Centuries—Opposed to Woman's Rights.

[Special Correspondence.]

AMOY, China, Oct. 28.—Both Europeans and Americans at home entertain very erroneous ideas respecting the condition and daily life of a Chinese lady. They believe her lot to be as miserable as that of a negro slave and declare her career to be one of unhappiness from the cradle to the grave. Nothing is farther from the truth, and if the adage that "truth is mighty and will prevail" has any meaning these views will be discarded and new and correct ones adopted by the nations of the west. The prevalence of the error is due partly to ignorance, partly to the idiosyncrasies of Chinese etiquette and partly to imbecile falsehoods.

A Valued Experience.

Any one who will visit China, learn one of its many languages and enter into friendly relations with its people will soon see, to his astonishment it may be, that the average wife is happier and healthier than her sister in Europe and America. It may sound strange to foreign ears, but the fact nevertheless remains that the Chinese lady is better qualified by education, environment and heredity to be a wife and a mother than any other woman, unless perchance it be a Jewess; that her married life is more healthful, contented and adapted to its surroundings; that she is freer from cares and troubles on the one side, and has more true pleasure on the other. Nor upon the least reflection is this to be wondered at. Civilization is not made in a day. Neither does a community become thoroughly adapted to its environment in a few centuries.

The social status of the middle kingdom represents at least 4,000 years of civilization. In this great period, practically four times as long as that in which the modern development of Europe has taken place, time, natural selection, human volition, external circumstance and all the other factors which go to make up the force which modifies and develops society have had full sway. The present status of China therefore represents the flower and fruit of 40 centuries. With all possible allowance for local and ethnic influences, the social and domestic status of that country is more advanced and more complete than that of any other nation in either the past or the present.

A Chinese lady is specially educated for the marital state. She is taught that cleanliness is a part of godliness, and that a slovenly woman is a source of misery to all about her. Before she is 10 years of age she is a mistress of woman's toilet, and of man's as well. She must be proficient in bookkeeping, accounts, housekeeping, cooking, sewing, embroidery, music, singing, silk raising, spinning and weaving, horticulture and etiquette. She is trained up in paths of virtue—not that western female virtue which consists of lamentable ignorance of the most important physiologic facts, but that higher virtue which combines knowledge, self respect and self control. She is taught the principles of dieting, hygiene and enough physiology and medicine to make her a first class nurse and a good doctor for all the trifling ailments of the body. For this reason she is invaluable to both husband and children. For the same reason she requires neither midwife nor obstetrician when she becomes a mother.

She knows from girlhood the dignity of womanhood, wifehood and motherhood. Under such circumstances it is little wonder that malpractice, the curse of Christian civilization, should be unknown in China. Precept and example make her realize the physical and intellectual superiority of the male over the female, and the greater wisdom of the old than the young. Thus it is that she accepts with joy the husband her parents select and renders herself to him body and soul completely. She carries out completely the injunction of St. Paul, "Wives, render obedience unto your husbands as they do unto God."

What Marriage Means.

Marriage in China means absolute change to the woman. Her old family ties are severed. She becomes as much a portion of her husband's family as if she were a daughter, instead of a daughter-in-law. His parents and ancestors become hers. The success of her husband or his relatives means her success. Their promotion to office or to title involves her ascent in the social scale. Above all is the fact and the prospect that if her sons ever attain distinction she receives the same honors. Thus every Chinese mother, no matter how poor and humble, is a potential marchioness, duchess or princess through her progeny or descendants.

In Europe titles descend. The mother of Marlborough is always plain Mrs. Churchill. In China they ascend as well as descend. A great genius who earns fame and fortune for himself, earns it in the same time for his mother and father and even his grandparents if living. Each family under such auspices is a little world in itself. Three and four generations live together under the same roof. While the oldest take precedence over the rest, and are entitled to and receive the respect and love of their juniors, yet all alike look to the youngest as the sources of future pleasure and honor.

Only in China is it that the grandsire can be seen dragging a wagon for his baby grandson, teaching the infant idea the mysteries of mud pigs or playing horse, bear and lion for the youngster's edification. The young wife, especially after she is a mother, finds in these surroundings the practical application and realization of the education of her entire pre-marital life. She neither knows nor cares for her neighbors and is therefore unfamiliar with the pleasures of scandal and of gossip. She bases her daily life upon the teachings of San Chung and Su Deh, the great poets of domestic ethics. These she has learned by heart in her youth and teaches her children in turn. They are simple and pretty lines which inculcate parental self sacrifice, paternal and maternal love, filial affection, purity of mind and body, mildness of speech, kindliness of manner, industry, thrift, patience and forbearance. Practicing these virtues, the day is always too short for her. Her life passes calmly and equably. She yearns to be a mother and usually has her desires gratified by three or four children. Where the union proves unfruitful, she generally adopts one or more infants, and proves as good a mother to them as she would to her own flesh and blood.

The Chinese Mother-in-law.

In the management of her home she practically relives her past. The books which are read or recited from are those of the classic masters, and never works containing indelicate, erratic, mawkish or vulgar words or sentiments. The pictures, statuary and inscriptions which decorate the rooms are, however conventional they may be, of the purest class of Chinese art. When her husband's friends call, she oversees the preparation of the foods and drinks, but never exposes herself to their gaze. She cannot comprehend how a European woman, especially when unmarried, goes to balls and theaters or sits in the same room with men who are not intimate relatives. So strict is she in the observance of this rule that she seldom knows the street in which she lives or the people inhabiting the adjacent mansions.

So long as her mother-in-law lives her jurisdiction is confined to her room or rooms. Here she is queen regent and her husband a submissive subject. The Chinese humorously style him "Chang-foo" or rod's man, he being her absolute property within a distance of a Chinese rod or 12 feet. Within these narrow limits she is an autocrat worthy of the Russias. When her mother-in-law dies, she becomes the sovereign of the entire household. According to etiquette, she is the supreme mistress and the husband an honored guest.

Such is her domestic status briefly sketched. It was not always thus. Ages ago women led lives in China the same as their sisters do today in Christendom. They played important parts in art, science, literature, politics and statecraft. Their progress was advocated by philosophers and statesmen, but the good achieved was more than counterbalanced by the evils caused. Infidelity, assassination and plots were of daily occurrence. Unscrupulous women of the nobility, and even royalty, hesitated at no cruelty nor crime to gratify passion or ambition.

A Troublesome Creature.

In nearly every riot, rebellion, war and revolution a woman was the moving cause. There was social deterioration and retrogression until the nation was split into a legion of warring tribes and factions. As a remedy to what threatened extermination and chaos, the sages suggested a change in the education of woman. This was done, and benefit accrued. Out of the earliest came other changes, until the present system was evolved. This has now stood the test of centuries, and in its main features will probably endure as long as the Chinese character remains the same. Nothing can be simpler than the ideals of a wife under these conditions. She desires to make her home happy, to aid her husband in his daily duties, to give her children the best possible education and to leave a noble memory to posterity.

THE BUILDING STONE OF TODAY.

Steel Frames Now Bear the Weight of the Skyscrapers.

[Special Correspondence.]

PITTSBURG, Nov. 27.—The modern system of construction, by which the weights of the tall buildings now so great a feature of most American cities are transferred from the walls to the steel or iron truss-framing, has brought about a curious change as to the qualities demanded in building stone. Formerly it was essential that the stone of the walls of a high building should be capable of bearing enormous weights without crushing. Now it is only necessary that the stone shall be handsome in appearance and of moderate strength, as it is used only as "facing" in the tall buildings.

It is the application of the truss principle to the framing of buildings indeed that renders the 15 and 20 story commercial and industrial towers of today practicable, for to make the walls thick enough in the lower courses to stand the weight of some of the high structures nowadays put on narrow lots in many cases would be to use up half the area devoted to the building with foundation walls.

The strongest stone known to American builders will bear a pressure of 24,020 pounds to the cubic inch. The trap rocks of New Jersey and the dolerite of Staten Island will both take this weight, which is somewhat in excess of the capabilities of the granites. Thus the granite of Rhode Island crushes when the pressure reaches more than 17,750 pounds to the cubic inch, that of Virginia will bear 21,250 pounds and that of Maryland 19,750 pounds. The strength of the granites of Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont varies somewhat but not greatly from these figures, and the strength of granite has been the quality that has most recommended it in the past.

The strongest marbles in the world are from American quarries and come from Lee, Mass. They will bear the weight of 13,340 pounds to the cubic inch. The marble of Tuckahoe, N. Y., will bear 12,950 pounds to the inch, and this is in excess of the strength of some of the Fundy red granites, which are capable of bearing only 11,812 pounds. The statuary marble of Carrara will bear only 9,723. The strongest limestone will support 13,900 pounds to the cubic inch, and it is quarried in the vicinity of Kingston, N. Y. The Empire State is especially rich in limestone quarries, the products of which are greatly valued for their variety of color. That of Glens Falls is jet black and will take on a high polish, the stone of Medina, Albion and Lockport is of various gray shades, and there are cream and dove tinted stones found in other portions of the state. Some of the handsomest light shaded limestone is found in Florida and the Bermudas.

The Ohio limestones are quite the equal of any in America and are favorites in Cincinnati, Cleveland and Columbus. A most valuable property of the Ohio limestones is their power of resisting fire, a quality shared by the limestones of northern Indiana and Illinois. These stones are quarried in slabs, and at one time in the geological history of the earth formed a part of the beach or bottom of the seas of the Niagara period.

Americans are much more lavish in the use of bright colored building stones than the English or any other northern people, a fact that was noted 40 years ago by a titled English visitor to this country, who, in a letter to a British periodical, drew a parallel between the cheerful aspect presented by American facades and the somber appearance of the English fronts, to the decided disadvantage of the latter.

GUARANTEED CURE.

We authorize our advertised druggist to sell Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, upon this condition: If you are afflicted with a Cough, Cold, or any Lung, Throat or Chest trouble, and will use this remedy as directed, giving it a fair trial, and experience no benefit, you may return the bottle and have your money refunded. We could not make this offer did we not know that Dr. King's New Discovery could be relied on. It never disappoints. Trial bottles free at J. J. Orr's Drug Store. Large size 50c and $1.00. 2

The youth—"And what shall I do to have my fellow men speak well of me?" The sage—"Die."

It is strange that some people will suffer for years from rheumatism rather than try such an approved standard remedy as Ayer's Sarsaparilla; and that, too, in spite of the assurance that it has cured so many others who were similarly afflicted. Give it a trial.

Jillson says an occasional scolding is all right in its place, but he has noticed that it never does a boiler any good to blow it up.

THE ADVERTISING

Of Hood's Sarparilla is always within the bounds of reason because it is true; it always appeals to the sober, common sense of thinking people because it is true; and it is always fully substantiated by endorsement; which, in the financial world would be accepted without a moment's hesitation.

E. R. Smith went to Adrian Tuesday

Sheriff Wilson, of Adrian, was here Saturday.

Mrs. J. E. White has been suffering from the mumps for the past week.

Mrs. Will Kies, of Elkhart, visited at Mrs. J. S. Kies the last of the week.

Millie, The Quadroon, at the Town Hall, Thursday evening. Admission 25cts.

Miss Nellie Martin went to Brooklyn Friday, and remained until Monday morning.

The Blue Lodge did not go to Tecumseh last Friday night on account of Dr. White's absence.

A special meeting of Goldenrod Chapter No. 85 will be held Tuesday evening, Dec. 5, at 7 o'clock.

E. R. Smith and wife will entertain friends from Mason, Saline and Tecumseh Thanksgiving day.

There will be a foot ball game between Clinton and Tecumseh, Thanksgiving day, at the ball grounds.

Miss Floy Avery has recovered from the mumps and resumed her place in school Monday morning.

The Senior class of the high school will give a necktie social at Miss Kittie Hogan's, Friday evening, Dec. 1.

Miss Leora Keyser is visiting relatives in Jerome, North Adams and Hillsdale. She will be away some time.

If you wish to spend Thanksgiving in a way pleasant to yourself and profitable to the Base Ball club, go and hear Millie, The Quadroon.

James Hogan has made a great improvement in his meat market by having a room partitioned off from the front end for the comfort of his bookkeeper.

The pedro party given by Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Kies, last Thursday evening, was one of the most pleasant social events of the season. The guests were so well entertained that midnight had passed before they began to disperse. About seventy were present.

A good literary and musical program has been prepared for the evening of the sale and supper given by the ladies of St. John's church, Thursday, Dec. 7. Admission to the hall, free. Supper 15 cents, from 5 to 7. Sale will commence at 2 p. m. All cordially invited.

Dr. White arrived at Farwell, Isabella Co. last Tuesday night to find his mother dead and buried. His father also had typhoid fever and a young brother has since been stricken with the same disease. The doctor will probably be detained there some time as there is no reliable physician near there.

Mr. and Mrs. Draper, who came here to attend the funeral of their son, returned to Jackson Monday night accompanied by their daughter, Mrs. Kennedy, and her husband. Mr. and Mrs. Stone, of Reed City, are still here. Mrs. Caroline Sisson of Deerfield, and Miss Franc Silvers and sister from Albion, came to attend the funeral returning home Tuesday.

The shooting of Dow Draper by Geo. Conger last Friday night, a minute account of which has been given in all the daily papers, is still uppermost in every one's mind here. Conjectures as to his motives in committing the crime are many but the prevailing opinion seems to be that there had been a hot dispute between the two men and that trouble over money matters for which Conger held Draper responsible in a measure, had so worked upon his mind that he decided to put an end to both their lives. The funeral of George Conger was held at his residence Monday at 10 a. m. That of Dow Draper occurring at his residence at 2 p. m. of the same day. Rev. W. R. Blachford officiating at both places, also the Episcopal choir.

Word was received here Saturday morning that the remains of Mr. Ben Clark, a former resident of Clinton, and well known here, would be brought here and the funeral held Sunday. Miss Kate Clark, a sister of the deceased, and her little nephew, accompanied the remains from Kansas and for some reason were delayed on their journey and did not arrive until Monday noon. The funeral was held Monday at 3:30 p. m. from the residence of James Hause, Rev. W. R. Blatchford officiating. Mr. Clark had not been feeling well for two weeks previous to his death, being subject to severe coughing spells, but had kept at work. The evening that he died he went to his room apparently as well as usual, but soon after his mother heard him coughing very hard. She went to him, and the fit of coughing was followed by a severe hemorrage of the lungs, from which he died in a few minutes. Mr. Clark had many friends here.

She—It is rank injustice to say that a woman is inferior to a man in reasoning powers.

He—Why?

She—Because.

VICTIMS OF FIRE.

Destruction of Edson, Moore & Co.'s Big Detroit Store.

Seven Employes Lose Their Lives, Two of Them Jumping to Their Death—The Others Cremated—Loss Estimated at $780,000.

SEVEN KILLED.

DETROIT, Nov. 24.—The five-story brick structure at Jefferson avenue and Bates street, occupied by Edson, Moore & Co., the most extensive wholesale dry goods merchants in Michigan, stood complete at 1 p. m. Thursday. Within its walls were sixty employes and goods valued at more than $500,000. Twenty minutes later the remains of the floors were in the basement, the stock was in ashes, five bodies were masses of charred flesh and bone, and two more of the employes were at hospitals, where they afterwards died. The dead are:

Daniel H. Baker, single, cremated; Bradley A. Dunning, single, died at Harper's hospital; Edward Genther, single, cremated; Patrick J. Markey, sleaves three children, cremated; James McKay, single, died at Emergency hospital; Henry Rider, single, cremated; Edward Vint, single, cremated.

Edward Ebert, who was working on the fifth floor, saw the fire early, screamed a warning, burst through the flames at the elevator shaft and stairway, and rolled to the floor below. No one followed. After waiting a moment he made his way to the street. A moment later the roof fell in and the flames had control of every floor.

On the sill of a window of the fifth floor fronting on Bates street stood Bradley Dunning, with roaring flames behind him and a perpendicular drop of 75 feet before him. Two windows south stood James McKay, in a like situation. Officers George Koers and John Campbell shouted to the men not to jump.

Before the ladders could be raised the flames rolled up to the window ledge and wrapped about Dunning. He grasped the window ledge with his hands and swung off into the air. He struck the sidewalk apparently lifeless.

The crowd then prepared for McKay's fall. They were just in time to prevent him from being dashed to pieces upon the stone walk. A bale of jute broke his fall, but it seemed as if every joint in his body must be dislocated. Dunning died a few minutes after reaching the hospital; McKay an hour later.

A sea of flame must have overwhelmed the other victims where they stood. Employes of Kuttnauer & Rosenfield, across the way, witnessed all the scenes. McKay's and Dunning's fall was hardly over when they saw another man creeping toward the upper window nearest the corner. But the flames enveloped him and he sank back overcome. Later they could see his body burning among the ruins. It was believed he was Edward Genther.

Edward Paycheck, a clerk on the fifth floor, secured a rope, and, tying it to a counter leg, threw the other end out of the window. Just as the flames burst through the window he slid over the sill. The rope was burned in two when he was 25 feet from the ground and he fell that distance. He picked himself up and disappeared in the crowd.

Four bodies have been taken from the ruins. It is surmised that some employe was stealing a smoke after lunch on the fourth floor and that a spark ignited the batting kept there.

The structure was doomed from the start, and every effort was directed toward saving adjoining property. The hardest fight was to save the Bagley tobacco factory on the south and Friedenberg & Speck's wholesale tailors' trimmings establishment on the east. Bagley's loss is $25,000 on stock and building, covered by insurance. Friedenberg & Speck's loss on stock from smoke and water, $35,000, partially insured. The Detroit Lithographic company, occupying part of the Bagley building on Bates street, loses $20,000 and carried $10,000 insurance. The Edson, Moore & Co. building cost $200,000 and was owned by the Francis, Palme's estate and was insured for $50,000. Edson, Moore & Co. are fully insured on their loss of $500,000, but the list is locked in the vault and a visit to local insurance offices fails to reveal more than half of the insurance. Mr. Edson cannot do more than say he is fully covered.

Killed a Deputy Sheriff.

TROUT CREEK, Nov. 23.—George Davidson, deputy sheriff, was shot and killed while attempting to arrest Alex Enos, a keeper of a house of ill fame. The latter drew his revolver and shot the sheriff once in the face, the ball entering the brain, and once in the left side through the heart. Enos is in jail at Ontonagon.

A Railway Loses by Fire.

PORT HURON, Nov. 27.—Fire Sunday evening destroyed a large part of the tunnel depot of the Grand Trunk railroad and ruined the restaurant and stock of Panwell. The railroad's loss is $18,600, covered by insurance, and Panwell's loss is $6,000 with insurance.

Trotter—"What's the matter, Cholly?"

Cholly—"I don't know—I don't feel like myself to-day."

Trotter—"Why, Cholly, let me congratulate you."

THE BIRDS OF NORTH AMERICA.

In connection with the foregoing report of our Ornithological Chapter, it is only right to call the attention of all lovers of birds to the magnificent work now being issued by the Natural Science Association of America, and entitled "The Birds of North America." Edition limited to 1,000. It is emphatically an original work, original in design and execution, and whether in letter press, illustrations or price, it is unapproached by anything of the kind in existance. It is recommended by the highest scientific, ecclesiastic and educational authority as being the most attractive, meritorious, pure and ennobling exporition of our ornithology yet given to the public. Dr. Elliott Coues, author of "Birds of the North-West," says: "It is a really notable work." Prof. C. J. Maynard, author of the "Birds of Eastern North America," says: "It contains the best pictures of the species which I have ever seen." Thos. G. Gentry, author of "Life Histories of Birds," and "Nests and Eggs of Birds of the United States," says: "It is the cheapest and best publication on ornithology in this country. The drawings are of a very high order, and rivals in beauty of design and finish the more costly works published abroad or in this country. It should be found in our homes and in libraries generally." And, according to Dr. Theodore Gill, a member of the National Academy of Sciences, "It is not only a meritorious volume, but is altogether so handsome as to make it a very appropriate presentation book or ornament for the family table." It is an imperial quarto volume of engraved figures of all our species, artistically reproduced, true in all hues of color to their natural plumage and botanical surroundings. It also includes a copious text description of their habits and characteristics, and embracing in general the observations made by the most eminent writers on ornithology, and a systematic table, arranged according to the classification adopted by the American Ornithologists' Union. Includes all the additions and corrections of our North American species which have been made to date, with an index to page, plate and figure of each species according to the A. O. U. number. It is illustrated with one hundred and nineteen full page colored plates, each representing from one to thirty or more species. It is the finest book on American birds issued since Audubon, and is pronounced by some authorities superior to that now rare and costly work. It is issued in half and full bindings, Russia, seal, or morocco, at the net price of $40 and $45 respectively; but in response to a special letter, the association authorized me to say that a substantial discount will be made to such of our A. A. members as are working naturalists. We commend this work especially to members of the Wilson Ornithological Chapter. It is also a very useful and appropriate addition to the home and reference library, and for presentation purposes generally. Address regarding it, the Natural Science Association, 114 Fifth Avenue, New York, N. Y. Sample of plates and text can be had by sending twenty-five cents in postage stamps.

Are You Ambitious?

Especially, are you an ambitious woman anxious to make a career for yourself? Then you will be more than interested in "The Road to Fame or Fortune," published in Demorest's Family Magazine for December, which is a faithful chronicle of how ambitious girls desirous of becoming successful business women live and labor in New York, giving suggestions and valuable information that cannot fail to be of inestimable benefit to all talented and ambitious girls. And this is an ideal Christmas number, also. The lovely water color "Did Santa Claus Bring You?" will appeal to everyone, young or old. "Christmas Eve at Bethlehem," with its numerous illustrations, takes one back to the first Christmas Eve and tells how the traditions are preserved and what ceremonies are observed at the present day. There are two splendid Christmas stories splendidly illustrated: "An Excursion to the Land of Dolls," also illustrated, will interest all little maidens who love their dolls; there is a charming Christmas play, "The Prodigal," which will afford most timely entertainment; a very beautiful Christmas carol with original words and music, arranged so that it is appropriate for church, school, or the home circle; there are numberless suggestions for Christmas gifts; the many departments are full to overflowing with good things and everyone who loves babies will be charmed with the portraits of nearly a hundred who are competitors for the "Baby Prize," offered by this Magazine. Indeed, the December number is a generous twenty cents' worth; but it is only a fair sample of what is furnished twelve times a year for $2.00. Published by W. Jennings Demorest, 15 East 14th St., N. Y.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss

At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, on Tuesday, the 28th day of November in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three.

Present, Richard B. Robbins, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Alexander Patterson, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of John Linton, executor of the last will and testament and upon the estate of said deceased, alleging that the funeral expenses and debts of said deceased and the expenses of administration thus far incurred, have been fully paid, and that he is now ready to render his 8th annual administration account as such executor, and praying that said account may be allowed, and for such other order and decree as to this Court shall seem proper.

It is ordered, That Tuesday, the 26th day of December, next, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the City of Adrian, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of said Petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said Petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee for three successive weeks, previous to said day of hearing.

RICHARD B. ROBBINS, Judge of Probate.

RIDGEWAY RAMBLES.

La Grippe is making his annual visit in our village.

F. J. Temple was in Dundee Tuesday evening, on business.

D. W. and Mrs. Loree were in Adrian Saturday and Sunday.

Prof. Martin Palmer, of Jackson, was in the village Saturday.

Ethel Palmer, of Morenci, is visiting relatives here at present.

Saturday's snow storm reminded one of an old time Nor'easter.

E. M. Collier, of Tecumseh, was the guest of Emma Miller Thursday afternoon.

Daniel and Jessie Lowe, of Mason, were in the village with friends, last week.

W. P. Cadmus and wife, of North Harvey, Ill., are visiting friends here at present.

The usual number of Thanksgiving gatherings were enjoyed by the friends of the village.

David Fetzer, and wife, of Raisin, spent Monday at the home of her father, Jacob Barrett.

Emma Miller will assist E. M. Collier in his music business at Tecumseh until after the holidays.

Geo. Dibble and family, of North Adrian, visited C. M. Gove and family Thursday of last week.

W. L. Jones takes second place, as T. S. Vanduser was the first out with his cutter. Surely old age is telling.

Mrs. W. B. Barrett and daughter, Browney, went to Allegan Saturday, where they will make their home.

Sidney Clarkson and family, of Ann Arbor, enjoyed Thanksgiving at the home of his parents, J. J. Clarkson.

Kittie Clark was among those who attended the Bachman-Underwood wedding at Britton, on Thanksgiving day.

Once more mother earth has put on her mantle of white and the merry jingle of sleigh bells breaks the stillness of nature.

Floyd Smith was the recipient of a very fine present from the Sabbath school, a few days ago, as an expression of their gratitude for his services as black-board artist.

Upwards of forty of the Lowes were entertained by Mrs. Florence Lowe and family, at her home, at their annual Thanksgiving reunion. All but three of the family were present to enjoy the pleasures of the occasion.

A very pleasant evening was spent at the home of Miss Kittie Clark, on Tuesday evening of last week, by a goodly number of her young friends of our village, at a piano recital given by her music class. Her class numbers upward of twenty students at present and a deep interest is manifested by both teacher and pupils in their work.

The annual election of officers for the Hall Memorial Library Association was held at the library, on Tuesday afternoon, when the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:—

Pres—T. H. Temple.
Vice Pres.—J. D. Arner.
Sec.—Miss Salome Clark.
Treas.—W. L. Jones.
Board of Directors—D. W. Loree, Mrs. Sarah L. Rappleye, Miss Jennie Osgood, F. J. Temple, W. R. Wilson, Miss Ella Hall, Mrs. W. L. Jones, M. J. Martin.

RAISIN RACKET.

Eva Osgood spent Sunday with relatives in Macon.

Warren Ducber, of Adrian is moving into this neighborhood with his family.

Miss Elnora Charles has again resumed her duties as "school marm" in district No. 6.

Eugene French is confined at home on account of coming in contact with poison ivy.

THE MODERN MOTHER

Has found that her little ones are improved more by the pleasant laxative, Syrup of Figs, when in need of the laxative effect of a gentle remedy than by any other, and that it is more acceptable to them. Children enjoy it and it benefits them. The true remedy, Syrup of Figs, is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only.

Special Offer to Farmers.

The Michigan Farmer offers its readers one of the best Agricultural, Live Stock and Family Journals in America, at the low price of only one dollar per year. It has recently changed hands and is now printed in 16-page form, on fine quality of paper, in convenient shape for reading, being pasted and trimmed like a book. Some of the best correspondents have been engaged for 1894, and the paper will be improved in every way as fast as possible. It is the the determination of the new proprietor to place their paper in the front rank and no expense or trouble will be spared to accomplish it.

Agents wanted in every neighborhood, to whom liberal commission will be given. Sample copies will be sent free to any address. Write for one at once and see for yourselves what a change has already been made. We will send the remainder of this year, '93, free to all who subscribe now. Address Michigan Farmer, Detroit, Mich.

A CHILD ENJOYS

The pleasant flavor, gentle action and soothing effects of Syrup of Figs, when in need of a laxative, and if the father or mother be costive or bilious, the most gratifying results follow its use; so that it is the best family remedy known, and every family should have a bottle on hand.

BRITTON BUDGET.

Miss Lydia Burton visited at F. E. Newell's last week.

Sleigh bells are also keeping up their chorus with the wedding chimes.

Samuel Knifin and family returned from Coldwater last Monday evening.

Monday the 20th was the day on which Kemph & Bacon shipped their last car load of poultry.

Mrs. A. J. Wood and daughter returned Monday from a few days visit with relatives near Sand Creek.

S. C. Spitler swings out a sign notifying the public that hereafter his market will not be open on Sunday.

Jack Frost, with his retinue of snow, ice, falls, bumps and chilblains, has made his presence felt among us.

The new firm of Osgood & Dubois are now ready to exchange flour, feed or bran for wheat or do custom grinding.

The result of the Thanksgiving hunt is as follows: Nichols' total count, 5340, Osgood's, 3705. Nichols' side won the supper by 1635 counts.

By order of the committee all members of the W. R. C. are requested to be present at the annual election of officers, Saturday evening Dec. 9.

The small blaze in the post-office last Monday evening was only extinguished by the prompt action of those present when it was first discovered.

Dr. Hendershot has arranged a very neat and commodious office in the bank building where he says he will deal out the pills, 16 ounces to the pound.

Uncle Sam's coffers again shell out their coin to the brave soldiers who endured the hardships and privations of war to defend their nation's honor.

We are happy to announce that the pension of John R. Wrisley having been allowed he will receive something over $300 back pay, besides a pension of $12 a month.

The person who lost an overcoat in front of John Zeluff's village residence on Chicago street, on Monday, Nov. 20, may find the same by calling on the said Mr. Z.

We can not help but censure the strong, able-bodied, lazy man who is so bereft of pride and concience as to ask assistance of the town, when we know, of a certainty, of offers of work that he has refused.

Considering the biting cold there was a good attendance at Geo. Getty's sale last Friday, everything selling at prices in accordance with the times with the exception of two or three colts which went comparatively low.

Dr. P. B. Hardy has placed a street lamp in front of his residence. The lamp bears his name, and in the darkness of the cold dreary night stands as a welcom guide to those in need of aid. We only wish that more of these same lights might be had.

Married, at the home of Wm. Underwood, at 2 p. m. on Thanksgiving day, Michael Bachman to Miss Libbie Underwood, only near relatives being present. Rev. Jas. Wright tied the knot in his own pleasing way. We extend to the happy couple our hearty congratulations and wish them many years of life and usefulness.

Mike Bachman's horse, while hitched to a clothes line post in John Britton's yard, became frightened at a Wabash train, overturned the cutter to which he was hitched, whirled about and ran west on Chicago street, took the walk from the drug store to Lenardson's corner and then ran south two miles where he was finally halted. No damage was done more than breaking one thill and strewing the starched and frozen clothing about the street.

MACON MUSIC.

Mrs. Divens is still very sick.

The Day sisters, of Tecumseh, spent last week with friends here.

The social held at Chas. Morgan's was well attended and all report a good time.

Mr. Rhodes, of Lansing, visited his cousin, Mrs. Libbie Augustus and family last Saturday.

Mr. Randall moved his family last week on the Hebron Camburn farm, formerly the Wilkens farm.

Miss Maud Howell began the winter term of school in the Mills district last Monday, also Minta Jackson in the Lake Ridge school.

Mr. Mark Pennington and wife and R. G. Sage and wife attended the Martha Osgood family reunion, at Richard Clarkson's, on Thanksgiving day.

The young people of the Reformed church met last Tuesday evening and organized a Society of Christian Endeavor. The following officers were elected: Pres.—Harry L. Richart, Vice Pres.—Emma Cotton, Sec.—Leanna Morgan, Treas.—Grace Sage, Cor. Sec.—Percy K. Morgan.

T. & F. FARMERS' CUB.

The club met at the residence of Mr. H. A. Hoag, on the evening of Dec. 1. The weather being very pleasant there was a large attendance, and a good time was enjoyed by all. The club adjourned to meet at Mr. Henry Wilson's, in two weeks, Dec. 15. Program for the evening:—

Music, Cornet Solo—Fred and Maud Poucher and Frank Osborn.
Oration—Abner Wilson.
Essay—Dollie Waldron.
Music by the Harry Family.
Parody—Mrs. VanValkenburg.
Charade—Henry Wilson.
Music—Alta Bradley.
Select Reading—Mrs. Will Waldron.
Dialogue—Ada and Lena VanValkenburg, Neta Osborn and Mrs. A. Haire.
Music—Duet by Fauline and Christine Wilson.
Question—Birds and Weeds, the farmers' friends and foes. How shall we protect the farmer and eradicate the latter?—B. Hurry, Geo. Swarts, H. Hoag, Will Waldron, Abner Wilson, Wm. Osborn, Hugh Ager.

S. W. FARMERS' CLUB.

The December meeting of this club was held on Friday, Dec. 1st., with Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Tracy, at their home two miles south of Manchester village.

The pleasant winter-day, together with smooth roads, favored a good attendance and nearly every number was present. A lively social time preceded the fine and bountiful refreshments our hostess had prepared and all apparently enjoyed this part of the program particularly well. After dinner, president English called the assembly to order, and Mrs. J. P. Tracy, secretary pro tem read the report of the last meeting.

The president then added another name to the committee on program, W. E. Pease.

Miss Myra Spafard read a fine selection from the writings of Mark Twain, relating humorously a visit to the Vatican and the French guide's discomfiture at the failure of the party to properly appreciate the bust of Christopher Columbus as well as other of the treasures of the vatican.

Miss Edith Tracy recited a story of an early New England Thanksgiving day. This was creditably recited by a little girl.

Miss Nettie English read an essay, Subject: "Are we ever truly happy?" The qualities that promote happiness are cheerfulness, sympathy and a spirit of helpfulness toward others, the power to see and enjoy the beauty about us."

Amariah Hitchcock read an interesting, carefully prepared paper on "The North-west, its influence on our agricultural interests." He gave an elaborate geographical description of the territory under notice. He spoke of the northwest exclusive of the British dominion and said though, for the present, the wheat-growers of the west were strong competitors of ours, it would not last. We need not feel menaced nor alarmed.

D. G. Rose opened the discussion with an account of a visit in that locality, especially a drive through the region occupied by the famous Dalrymple grain-fields of the Red River valley. He also, described the exhibit of the State of Washington at the World's fair, their state building, their magnificent fruit and grain display.

Mrs. L. S. Hulbert gave one of her productions on this subject closing with an apt quotation from Edward Everett.

S. M. Merithew had visited the west traveling in a far different manner from Mr. Rose's railway trip. Forty-one years ago, he took an overland journey on foot and on horse-back, to the Pacific coast.

L. Whitney Watkins throught the time near at hand when the mode of farming at the west must change from the extensive to the intensive plan.

A. D. English:—In the march of civization, the soil seems to deteriorate. recall the result in America, once the supposed Garden of Eden. The people have pressed toward the setting sun until nothing remains but to cross the Pacific and begin again near the first home of man." We need nothing so much as a market for our crops.

J. G. English, Wm. E. Pease, H. R. Pease and others joined in the discussion and nearly all agreed that there is a possibility that Southern Michigan lands will reach the condition of the abandoned farms of New England but not in this generation nor the next.

Mrs. J. F. Spafard responded to the call for music with a beautiful song and thus closed another eventful day in our club history.

School Notes.

Raynor Sutfin is absent from school this week.

Clarence Hurry returned to school Monday.

Another scholar entered school Monday.

George Hoag was absent from school Monday.

The Virgil class have finished reading the first book and are now reading the second.

School begins at a quarter past one for the next few days, on account of the short days.

Ella Primrose and Emily Hall were absent Wednesday afternoon.

Lena Hardenburg, Hattie Osborne and Edith Corey were absent Monday forenoon.

Wednesday morning, last week, the High School was entertained with vocal and instrumental music by scholars of the school.

Miss Olive Martin, a young and beautiful actress is the leading lady of the "Ole Olson" company this season. Miss Martin is a native of California and is considered one of the handsomest women on the American stage. Although she has had but four years experience Miss Martin possesses the true spirit of dramatic art, and her advaneement has been rapid. Her rendition of "Mrs. Jordan" is entirely satisfactory, both to the management as well as to the public.

WORLD'S FAIR JURY.

Grants Highest Award to Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder.

CHICAGO, Nov. 22—On the analysis and recommendation of Dr. Wiley, Chief United States Government Chemist at Washington, and greatest living authority on food products, the World's Fair jury to day gave the highest award to Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder for strength, purity and excellence. This conslusively settles the question of superiority. Dr. Wiley rejected the alum powers, stating to the World's Fair jury that he considered them unwholesome.

A new Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine for sale at this office. Call and examine it, for it is a bargain.

WHAT OUR EXCHANGES FIND OUT.

Hudson Post—Miss Nellie Baskorville was cutting wood with a cleaver Monday, when a slip of the cleaver caused it to strike her fingers, and cut off the ends of two of them.

Adrian Telegram—There are tricks in all trades. It has just been learned that the seedling that captured the big prize at the Toronto chrysanthemum show the other day was one that was stolen from the greenhouses of Nathan Smith & Son, by a Toledo man. Mr. Elmer Smith thinks that he will make the matter extremely warm for the thief.

Adrian Press—Co. C. of Tecumseh, is doing all in its power to secure a new armory. If the citizens help it will be a go. If they do not help the company will go into disbandment and some other town will have a Co. C., for the number of military companies will be kept up to the limit. Let Tecumseh keep her military. She may need it yet to suppress bad blood at foot ball.

Co. C. is bound to stay anyhow.

Hudson Post—We acknowledge a call from a gentlemanly looking fellow, on Friday last, who wanted to "write up" our business houses and have it published in the Post. These "write-ups" are usually a set of notices which are used in every town, and a simple change of name, and are therefore chestnuts. Hudson business men are usually capable of furnishing their own copy for ads, and the Post certainly prefers to print such announcements, rather than a lot of dishwater puffs which have grown gray with age traveling about the country.

Hudson Gazette—A Hudson quail-hunter saw one of the brown beauties sitting at the end of a sluice that ran under a roadway. He stepped back a few feet to avoid tearing the bird to pieces with the charge from the gun and blazed away. He killed his game, but, alas, what did he lose? With a whirr and a buzz thirty quail flew out at the other end of the sluice and were out of reach before the hunter could reload. If he had discharged his piece into the sluice he would have bagged the whole lot, and returned to the city famous.

Possibly the hunter's fame is just as great by telling the above.

Brooklyn Exponent—Last Saturday morning, while out hunting with some other boys, Paul Reyer ran in front of a gun just as Bert Waters shot at a rabbit and received the full charge of shot in one of his legs. The boy was taken home and Dr. Palmer sent for and the little sufferer is as comfortable as possible. The wound is a very serious one and may prove dangerous, though it is hoped his recovery will not in any way be impeded. The gun was heavily loaded and it is supposed that more than 100 shot are imbedded in the boy's lacerated limb. It should serve as a lesson to the boys in the village, some of whom are very careless in the use of fire arms.

Blissfield Advance—Uncle Robert Pollard got up from bed Wednesday evening, dressed himself and went outdoors. Not returning soon, Mrs. Pollard began to look for him, going over to her son-in-law's, A. Ellsworth. He was not there, and while determining what to do, Mr. Pollard came along dripping wet from head to foot. It is believed that in a fit of temporary insanity he wandered into the river, but the cold bath he received brought his right senses back to him and he lost no time getting out and returning home. Mr. Pollard has sustained several shocks of paralysis: and his mind has been wandering at times ever since.

Morenci Observer—David Ford met with a painful accident, affecting one of his eyes, at Emmet Emerson's in Fountain Valley, Tuesday noon. The farm bell there didn't work properly and he was trying to repair it by using a sharp pointed nail as a wedge to tighten the handle. As he struck the nail to drive it in, it bounded out and flew into his right eye, striking the orb about a sixteenth of an inch outside of the iris and nearly puncturing the sclerotic coat. It stuck there so that he had to pull it out. He came to town, fearful that the sight of the eye was gone, and consulted Dr. S. Stevenson. He has since been in a darkened room at Hotel Salsbury and is now happily assured that he will not be so unlucky as he first feared.

The celebrated English basso, Mr. John C. Lince has just been engaged for the "Ole Olson" company. Mr. Lince was especially engaged during the summer in the grand production of "America" at the Auditorium. The gentleman will render a number of beautiful songs during the evening.

THE POLAR PROBLEM

DESPERATE SCHEMES DEVISED BY WHICH TO SOLVE IT.

The Frozen Hand of Poor De Long—A Grewsome Picture—Commander Melville's Peculiar Idea—New Arctic Projects—Drifting in the Polar Sea.

Special Correspondence.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—There has been a sudden revival of interest here, as elsewhere, in arctic work. Washington contains quite a number of men who have already made records in the frozen north, and by anyone are the two arctic ventures now in progress more carefully watched than by those veterans of the snow and ice, Lieutenant Greely of the army and Commander Melville of the navy. Neither Greely nor Melville is likely to go again to the arctics, though the latter has got lost his ambition, if he ever had it. He has had experiences which would make any ordinary man resolve never to repeat them, but Commander Melville is not an ordinary man. He is a great big fellow, large of bone and muscle, and with a heart to correspond. He would like nothing better at this very moment than to place himself at the head of a party bound for the north pole, that glittering unknown goal which so many men have sought and died, but which, as far as we can see, is going to be the world's standard for many generations to come.

The great work in the arctic regions during the past decade with the exception of what Commander Melville himself has done, has been accomplished by the English. Nor is there anything to be wondered at in that, for the English have always been a race of hardy and daring explorers. Do I hear anyone say "Dr. Kane?" Kane was an American, but he was an Englishman in all but birth. He was educated in England, and after graduating in medicine at the University of Edinburgh he entered the British navy, and made his first arctic voyage in it. Then he came to America, and when he made his arctic voyages he was in the employ of Henry Grinnell, a wealthy American merchant. Dr. Kane's arctic work, however, is one of the brightest chapters in the history of Arctic exploration.

It is now generally admitted that the only way to reach the pole is by the route which he suggested in his book, forty years ago, that with a properly equipped party and provisions sufficient to last a year, departure the right sort of boat with the right sort of a leader will enable us to reach the pole itself and back again with little risk of life and without being cast upon for any unusual extraordinary hardships.

Mr. Melville holds a different theory concerning the conditions which exist at the pole than that held by most arctic students. He believes the north pole of the earth is surrounded by an ice cap perhaps 1,000 feet in thickness, dwindling down on the edges to 200 or 300 feet from the pole. The surface of this great ice cap, he says, is really as level as a floor. Over it he believes a party could with sledges could travel at a rapid rate. The difficulty which they would encounter would be in approaching and getting upon this mass of pulverized ice. The sea-born glacier which annually ice have handed [illegible] Peary's Efforts.

While [illegible] among the [illegible] the scientific men of Washington, congress could never be induced to [illegible] propriation for the purpose. Nothing could humiliate Mrs. Greely more than to see Lieutenant Greely and his men and the same efforts made to have them that [illegible] other generation will have to pass away before our government can be induced to become sponsor for a new expedition. This is to be regretted, because Americans have shown themselves to be the most daring and successful of all arctic explorers. Up to date it is the American flag which has been planted farther north than any other. Americans have approached nearer the pole than the parties of any other nation.

We hold the record still, but in the opinion of the arctic experts of Washington we shall have to look to our laurels during the next few years. I find a remarkable concurrence of opinion among the arctic and scientific men of Washington to the effect that the solution of what is known as the polar problem is now near at hand. It may not be done by Dr Nansen, nor by Lieutenant Peary, who are the only men so far in the field, but the reappears to be the greatest confidence that we are approaching the conquest of the frozen north and that revealing of its mysteries which mankind has been so long struggling for.

In Washington naturally the greatest interest is taken in the efforts of Lieutenant Peary who is now in camp on the west coast of Greenland, about the seventy seventh parallel of latitude, awaiting the advent of spring for another journey over the glacial ice cap of that remarkable continent. Lieutenant Peary did not reach as high a latitude in his last expedition before this as other explorers had reached before him. He did not go as near to the pole as Lockwood and Brainard of the Greely party went 20 or 25 years ago. He did not go as far as Markham and Parr of the royal navy. Markham, then lieutenant, now admiral, has become conspicuous through his connection with the Victoria disaster in the Mediterranean. Nor yet as far as Sir Edward Parry went away back in 1827 from the northern shores of Spitzbergen. But in exploring the ice cap of Greenland and in surveying the northeastern coast of that continent he rendered splendid service to geography and science.

A New Field.

Next year Peary may go much farther north than any explorer has yet been. It is his purpose to explore the islands which lie to the north of the mainland of Greenland as far as they extend. If they go to the pole, he may follow them that far. The probabilities are, however, that these islands do not run much farther north than the latitude of 84 degrees 23 minutes, made by Lockwood and Brainard. That point is 396 miles from the north pole, reckoning geographical or nautical miles, 60 of which equal a little more than 69 statute miles.

Lieutenant Peary's brave wife is a Washington woman. Her mother and sisters still live here and are well known and much liked. Mrs. Peary will come back to the arctics next summer or autumn, it is expected, with a baby born on the shores of Greenland.

The arctic enthusiasm of Washington gives Peary credit for having marked out a new and distinct field in arctic endeavor. His methods are original, and his [illegible] on a large scale wholly new. He has demonstrated that the very farthest results in the way of travel and exploration may be accomplished by small parties. He and Astrup the faithful Norwegian were the only members of the party which traveled across the continent to Greenland to the eastern shore two years ago. Whereas the English government and other nations have sent out expeditions which [illegible] dollars—the largest expedition of [illegible] is believed [illegible]

MATSUYAMA MIRROR.

A WONDERFUL JAPANESE DEVICE THAT PUZZLES SCIENTISTS.

Images Reflected Through Metal—A Japanese Fairy Tale That Will Be Enjoyed Around Every American Fireside—How a Mother Lived In a Mirror.

[Special Correspondence.]

YOKOHAMA, Nov. 14.—Among the many marvelous things to be seen in this country of marvels that first attract the attention of the foreigner is the Japanese mirror. Its peculiarity consists in the fact that it is made of metal—generally of bronze—coated on the front with an amalgam of tin and quicksilver, and so highly polished that but for its weight it might be mistaken for an ordinary looking glass. The back is adorned in relief with flowers, birds or Japanese characters which extend to the handle, and the general appearance is that of a handsome metal fan.

That which is most extraordinary about the mirror, however, is the quality it possesses of reflecting a luminous image of the design on the back. In other words, the sunlight seems to penetrate the metal and display the figures that are otherwise hidden from view. The attention of men of science has long been attracted to the phenomenon, but no explanation heretofore given has proved satisfactory. The consensus of opinion is that the effect is produced by an unequal convexity resulting from the manipulation of an iron tool accompanied by the application of mercury.

In connection with these mirrors, the Japanese have a pretty fairy tale and because of the poetical thought it conveys, and the pleasure it may afford to young as well as old, I send you the following free translation as it has been given to me by one of the English residents here:

A long time ago there lived in a quiet spot a young man and his wife. They had one child, a daughter, to whom they were greatly attached, and their home was known as Matsuyama, a beautiful village in the province of Echigo. It so happened that the father was obliged to go to the great city of Tokio, the capital of Japan. The mother, never having been farther from home than the next town, could not help being frightened at the thought of her husband making such a long journey, yet she was proud of the fact, for he was the first man in all that country side who had been to the big town where lived the emperor.

At last the time arrived for his return, and dressing the baby in its best clothes and arraying herself in the pretty blue gown which she knew her husband liked, she waited to give him welcome. And whendo grace, how the little girl clapped her hands and laughed with delight over the beautiful toys her father brought. "And for you," he said to his wife, "I have brought this. It is called a mirror. Look and tell me what you see inside."

He gave to her a plain, white wooden box, in which on opening it she found a round piece of metal. One side was white like frosted silver and ornamented with raised figures of birds and flowers. The other was as bright as the clearest crystal. The young mother looked into it with delight and astonishment, for from its depths was looking at her with parted lips and bright eyes a smiling happy face.

"What do you see?" asked the husband, gratified at her astonishment. "I see a pretty woman looking at me. She moves her lips as if she was speaking, and—dear me, how odd, she has on a blue dress just like mine." "Why, you silly woman, it's your own face that you see," said the husband, proud of knowing something that was new to his wife. "That round piece of metal is called a mirror, and everybody in the great city has one, although we have not seen them in this country place before."

The wife was charmed with the present. But the wonderful thing was far too precious for every day use, so she shut it up in its box again, putting it away carefully among her most valuable treasures.

Years passed on and the husband and wife continued to live happily. The joy of their life was their little daughter, who as she grew up became the very image of her mother. The latter, mindful of her own passing vanity on finding herself so lovely, kept the mirror carefully concealed, fearing that the use of it might breed a spirit of pride in her little girl. She never spoke of it, and as for the father he had quite forgotten the circumstance. So it happened that the daughter grew up as simple as the mother had been, knowing nothing of her own good looks or of the mirror which would have reflected them.

After awhile, however, a terrible misfortune occurred in this happy little family. The good mother fell sick, and though waited upon with loving care by day and night she grew worse and worse until at last the sad announcement was made that she must die. Calling the girl to her, the mother said: "My darling child, I must soon pass away and leave you and your father alone, but I want from you a promise. Here is what is called a mirror," taking it from its hiding place and handing it to her daughter. "Promise me that you will look into this mirror every night and morning, for there you will see me and know that your mother is still watching over you."

The child promised with many tears, and the mother, being now calm and resigned, soon after died. Obedient and dutiful, the daughter never forgot her mother's last request, and each morning and evening took the mirror from its box and looked at it long and earnestly. There she saw, as she supposed, the bright and smiling vision of her lost mother. Not pale and sickly as in her last days, but the beautiful young mother of long ago. To her at night she told the story of the trials and difficulties of the day, and to her in the morning looked for sympathy and encouragement in what ever troubles might be in store for her.

So, day by day, she lived as if in her mother's sight, striving still to please her as she had done in her mother's lifetime, and careful always to avoid whatever might give her pain or grief. Her greatest joy was to look in the mirror and say, "Mother I have been today what you would wish me to be if you were by my side."

Thus seeing his little daughter every night and morning looking into the mirror holding converse with it, her father one day asked her the reason for the strange behavior. "Why, father," she said, "I look into the mirror every day to see my dear mother and talk with her." Then she told him of her mother's dying wish and how she never had failed to fulfill it. Touched by so much simplicity and such faithful loving obedience, the father shed tears of pity and affection; but he could not find it in his heart to tell the child that the image she saw was only the reflection of her own sweet face, which by sympathy and association had become more and more like her dead mother's day by day. And so she lived on, happy in the thought that though absent in the flesh, the one she loved best was always present in the spirit and always looking on her from the depths of her cherished mirror!

SANCTUARY FOR DESPERADOES.

A World of Romance Found In the Little City of Key West.

[Special Correspondence.]

KEY WEST, Dec. 1.—An American Baedeker would read as follows: "Key West is a flat city of 5,000 people, Cubans, negroes and a small sprinkling of Americans. The streets are a little wider than those in Havana, and some of the inhabitants speak English. The postoffice is a nice building. The principal occupations are sponging, tobacco manufacturing and diving for pennies. Key West from April to October is the hottest place in the world. Its mosquitoes are very famous. Tourists would do well to take a Spanish interpreter along when viewing the city."

It is a misnomer to call Key West an American city. It is not. It has all the Cuban characteristics, and I doubt if one-third of the population is naturalized. The first six persons I met after landing and leaving the wharf were unable to understand English. The seventh man was a Cuban, but had acquired our tongue.

There are hundreds of hot blooded Cubans in this city who never forgot their real or fancied grievances. They plot, of course, and form a clan bound by ties that hold the anarchists together. They are in constant communication with their beloved island, and if the moment is ever ripe Key West, will ye, nill ye, sends its quota to aid the insurgents against the Spanish government. Buried in the Cuban quarters of Key West are many old men who could tell strange stories of deeds that are written in Spanish blood. They are looked upon as patriots. When they rehearse the wrongs done to them or their countrymen the fierce eloquence of the south burns in their speech, and we feel our own cheeks flush.

Often have I sat in the dark room of a Cuban dwelling and heard how 19 Cuban youths, from 10 to 20 years of age, were arrested and shot by the Spanish soldiers, because some careless boy had slightly scratched the monument erected to a dead government official; how this man's wife and daughters had been subjected to dreadful brutality, his plantation confiscated and he himself forced into exile, because he had refused to guide a party of soldiers to the house of his brother; how that woman was made a widow because she had called in her husband to aid her in repulsing a drunken soldier's advances.

Said a great, black bearded Cuban to me, "We want this island for our own, and we will have it." I met him at Bahia Honda, a bay in the Cuban coast about 25 miles west of Havana. It is in this bay that the expeditions from Key West will land, if such expeditions are ever sent out. The region is closely guarded by the Spaniards. It is a breeding place for the revolutions, and the little insurrections that constantly spring up in the majority of the cases originate here—a desolate enough place too. Mangrove swamps encompass the bay and are infested with herons. The tide falling discloses the black mud and oysters clinging to the roots of the trees. Alligators are found in the depths, and during the rainy season mosquitoes swarm by millions. Eight miles inland is a range of mountains very thickly wooded.

A CUBAN REVOLUTIONIST.

At the entrance to the bay, crowning a hill, are the remains of a fort which is rarely occupied. But at the lower end of the bay, squatting, as it may be, on the edge of the swamp in the midst of buzzing mosquitoes and squawking herons, is a dock and shed where military can always be seen. Five miles inland are some barracks where the officers live. A more disagreeable place to be sent to is hard to imagine. The poor, ignorant people who eke out an existence in the region seem incapable of mischief. No one would think that this is the most dangerous locality in all Cuba. In the mountains, whose outline can be plainly seen, is many a rebel, who is perfectly secure from the authorities. There is a world of romance locked up in these woody heights.

Cubans look to the United States for aid. They trust that some time they will be in a position to offer themselves and the island to our nation. But the day is as yet far off.

Aside from the political character that attends the Cuban majority in Key West there is a mercantile phase to the question. Everybody knows about the excellence of Key West cigars. Now this tobacco is sent over from Cuba. The only reason that the Key West cigar has claims to superiority over New York productions is that better tobacco is obtained cheaper by the Key West manufacturers. This of course applies in a general way, and Cubans assert to the truth of it.

I inferred from a chance remark made to me by an American resident of Key West that Cubans must have facilities for obtaining the tobacco in Key West that are not available farther north. Despite the watchfulness of the United States officials there is an enormous amount of the weed smuggled into Key West. This is done in various ways, by trucks well known to the customs officers. I was instructed by a stranger whom I met at Key West to go into a coffee house to buy my cigarettes, and to be sure to ask for some "without stamps." He told me that I could obtain them at 50 cents a real, while the usual price was $1.25. I did as he suggested. I entered a dirty little shanty, asked for cigarettes "without stamps." But unfortunately three companions greedily followed me in and the proprietor, a villainous looking scamp, assured me he had none of the articles such as I wanted.

A comrade of mine, however, later went to a coffee house and following the instructions that I had received, soon possessed a real of cigarettes on which there was no government stamp. They were manufactured in Havana the number and street have escaped my memory and were smuggled into America. Strangers, and natives, too, are frequently approached on the street by a negro or a Cuban, who has his pockets stuffed full of cigars. He offers them to you at two for a nickle. Passure you if you buy them you will never regret it. They are equal to the best you can obtain at reputable establishments.

THOMAS MINCHIN.

Before Treatment. After Treatment.

Nervous Debility and Catarrh Cured.

Thomas Minchin says: "I was reduced to a nervous wreck—only weighed 118 pounds. The result of early abuse was the cause. I had the following symptoms: Miserable mentally and physically, melancholy, nervousness, weakness, specks before the eyes, dizzy, poor memory, palpitation of the heart, flushing, cold hands and feet, weak back, dreams and losses at night, tired in the morning, pimples on the face, loss of ambition, burning sensation, kidneys weak etc. Doctors could not cure me but Drs. Kennedy & Kergan by their New Method Treatment, cured me in a few weeks. I weigh now 170 pounds. It is three years since I have taken their treatment.

MAJOR W. A. SIMFIELD.

Before Treatment. After Treatment.

Blood Disease and Dyspepsia Cured.

Major Simfield says: "I had Dyspepsia and Catarrh of the Stomach for many years. To make matters worse I contracted a Constitutional Blood Disease. My bones ached. Blotches on the skin looked horrible. I tried sixteen doctors in all. A friend recommended Drs. Kennedy & Kergan. I began their New Method Treatment and in a few weeks was a new man with renewed life and ambition. I cannot say too much for those scientific doctors who have been in Detroit for fourteen years. I conversed with hundreds of patients in their offices who were being cured for different diseases. I recommend them as honest and reliable Physicians."

A Steel Windmill and Steel Tower every 3 minutes. These figures tell the story of the ever-growing, ever-going, everlasting Steel Aermoter. Where one goes others follow, and we "Take the Country."

Though sold, we were unable to make all of the 20,049 Aermotors in 91. Orders from waiting were mostly filled, but now we are vastly increasing our plant and are prepared promptly to fill orders in less than every habitable portion of the globe.

Are you curious to know how the Aermotor Co. can afford to make many times as many windmills as all other makers combined? How we came to originate the Steel Wheel, the Steel Fixed Tower, the Steel Tilting Tower?

1st. We commenced in a field in which there had been no progress for 25 years, and in which there seemed no talent or ambition, and upon this profession shown expended its first imitation of our inventions.

2d. Before commencing the manufacture, exhaustive scientific investigations and experiments were made by a skilled mechanical engineer, in which over $5,000 dynamometric tests were made on 61 different forms of wheels, propelled by artificial and therefore uniform wind, which settled definitely many questions relating to the proper speed of wheel, the best form, angle, curvature and amount of sail surface, the resistance of air to rotation, obstructions in the wheel, such as heavy wooden arms, obstructions before the wheel, as in the vanless mill, and many other practical questions, though not less important questions. These investigations proved that the power of the best wind wheels could be doubled, and the AERMOTOR daily demonstrates it has been done.

3d. To the liberal policy of the Aermotor Co. that guarantees its goods satisfactory or pays freight both ways, and to the enormous output of its factory which enables it to furnish the best article at less than the poorest is sold for. For '92 we furnish the most perfect bearings ever put in a windmill, and have made as exhaustive revision of the Aermotor and Towers.

If you want a strong, stiff, Steel Fixed Tower—or if you want the tower you don't have to climb—the Steel Tilting Tower; and the Wheel that runs when all others stand still, that costs you less than wood and lasts ten times as long (The Steel Aermotor) or if you want a Geared Aermotor to churn, grind, cut feed, pump water, turn grindstone and saw wood, that does the work of 3 horses at the cost of one, $100., write for copiously illustrated printed matter, showing every conceivable phase of windmill construction and work, to the AERMOTOR CO., 12th and Rockwell Sts., Chicago, or 2749 Dean St., San Francisco.

The Aermotor Pneumatic Water Supply System enables you to supply every part of your house with water without an Elevated Tank.

D'ARSONVAL MAGNETIC OINTMENT.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

All Sores, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Burns, Sore Throat, Lameness, Rheumatism, Piles, Inflammation of Lungs and Bowels, Bronchitis, Croup, Salt Rheum, Chilblains, Affection of the Spine, Erysipelas, Nervous Irritation, and all disorders attendant with Inflammation.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years.

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such, that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should be perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Price 25 and 40 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

KING OF THE BLOOD

The Most Thorough Purifier of the Blood Yet Discovered.

It purifies the Blood.
It invigorates the Liver.
It regulates the Bowels.
It strengthens the stomach.
It gives vivacity in place of lassitude; cheerfulness in place of gloom, and robust vigor in place of debility.

By pepsia, Biliousness, Disordered Liver, Constipation, Nervous Affections, General Debility, in short all the numerous diseases and discomforts caused by impure blood are speedily conquered by this powerful corrector, the chief and sovereign of all ancient or modern medical discoveries—KING OF THE BLOOD.

Its name is its best description as it is a royal diagnoser of the blessings of health and vanquishes the foes that lurk in the blood.

It banishes PIMPLES, SALT RHEUM, SCALY ERUPTIONS, ULCERS, SCALD HEAD, FEVER SORES and all SCROFULOUS DISORDERS.

It checks CONSUMPTION in its early stages. It has frequently cured it when advanced.

It disperses TUMORS and CANCERS without the Surgeon's knife.

It cures DROPSY, general or partial.

It cures FEMALE WEAKNESS and DISEASE.

It reduces in a safe and effectual manner all swellings, external or internal.

It eradicates the effects of Venerial Disease and Mineral Poisons and establishes a sound constitution.

MANY certificates, much further information and full directions for using will be found in the pamphlet, "Treatise on Diseases of the Blood," in which each bottle is enclosed.

Price $1 per bottle containing 1½ ounces, or 50 doses. Sold by dealers in medicine.

If your druggist does not happen to have it on hand, request him to order a supply of it for you. It will be cheaper than for you to order direct of us, and less trouble.

TECUMSEH vs. CLINTON.

Ru Rah, Ru Rah, Ru Rah Re, Co. C. T. L. G. Tiger.

The Co. C foot-ball team went to Clinton Thanksgiving day and played the Woolen Mill team. The field was laid out over the old base ball grounds and was in prime condition. Tecumseh won the toss and took the north goal, Clinton taking the ball. As the two teams lined up Clinton showed a heavy set lot of fellows who looked formidable. Tecumseh's team was composed of lighter men, somewhat shorter than their opponents. At the word, Clinton opened by the solid wedge play and with a crash the teams collided for the first time Clinton's half-back being downed with a gain of five yards. Clinton forfeited the ball on three downs. Tecumseh gained five yards and lost the ball on a fumble, but recovered it in the same way on the next down. Tecumseh finding it impracticable to buck the center, made a quick end play and advanced 20 yards; they next followed with a criss-cross and with a good run, aided by interference scored a touch-down. Heesen kicked goal. Clinton tried the solid V, having faith in their heavy line. Again the Co. C. boys avoided the shock and as Clinton's half-back broke from the wedge he received no aid from interferers and was downed. Clinton pushed a center play with a gain of 5 yards. The second time this play was ineffective and an end play was made advancing Clinton another 5 yards, but losing the ball. Tecumseh failed to advance the ball in two downs and on the third it was passed to full-back Corey, who punted it for 25 yards. Tecumseh's rushers recovering the ball. On the next down Tecumseh used its end criss cross, which was a fooler to Clinton, a bluff interference to left, and Hicks went over on the right for a touch-down. Heesen failed to kick a goal. Again Clinton began forcing the rush line and crowded C to their 25 yard line. Here Corey again got the ball and aided by fine interference made a run to Clinton's 25 yard line, but as the snow had covered the touch-line he inadvertantly stepped outside and had to come back half the distance. Time was called at the next down for the first half.

Tecumseh took the ball for the second half and with its forcible flying Harvard wedge, made fifteen yards but lost five by dodging back, being unable to recover it. Tecumseh pushed Heesen through the right end for a gain of 5 yards and went around to right end for 5 more, then dropping back to cross playing found Clinton's 5 yard line. As the players arose from the down. Capt. Doane of Clinton, called for time when it was found that he had broken his nose by bumping it against the hard head of one of his own men. As Clinton had no available substitutes they asked that the game be called. The score was 10 to 0. The boys were pleased with their treatment by Clinton and yells for Clinton were mingled with the shouts for the black and gold.

Ole Olson Is Coming.

The clever comedy novelty "Ole Olson" that so thoroughly pleased the people in this city last season, and besides stamping its future success throughout the country, is again down on Manager Sutton's books for Friday, Dec. 8th.

It goes without saying that it will meet the same hearty reception as on former visits. The company has been somewhat strengthened and now includes some of the best comedy talent possessed in any organization. Edwin Cogle is the Ole. Pretty Adelaide Crawford is looking after the role of Genie, Ole's sweetheart. The balance of the company is made up of such clever talent as Olive Martin, Irene Worrell, W. J. Holton, John C. Lince, Z. T. Evans, J. A. Allison and others. A new novelty is introduced this season in the person of "Olaf" Olson, a brother of Ole's. Olaf is only 36 inches in height, 28 years of age and weighs 48 pounds, and is said to perform a most unique specialty. All in all Ole's visit will be hailed with delight by his old time admirers. One continual roar of laughter is the verdict by all who have spent an evening with "Ole Olson." This is really one of the brightest, unique and most novel plays that the American theatre going public have enjoyed for many a day. It is bubbling over with wit and originality, while it is held together with a clean and wholesome plot that speaks for itself in the last act. This season's Company embraces superior talent, while the specialties, songs, dances etc., are fresh, new and pleasing. The date is fixed for Friday, Dec. 8.

THE OSGOOD FAMILY REUNION.

Your correspondent enjoyed the privelege of attending the 48th annual reunion of the Martha Osgood family. A unique affair throughout a most enjoyable occasion.

It is a cause for Thanksgiving on this Thanksgiving day of 1893, that for 48 years, without interruption these reunions have occurred on each successive Thanksgiving day, by this Osgood family.

Grandma Osgood is now in her 87th year. She came to this state when it was little more than a wilderness. She settled with her young children, in the woods and cut down the forest and with her boys cleared the land where the beautiful farms of Lester Osgood, and Mrs. George Osgood now lay, and yet at this advanced age is still hale and enjoys the fun and frolic of her grand-children well.

This year the gathering was at the house of her daughter, Mrs. Richard Clarkson. Nearly all the children and grand-children were present, and the day was spent in a most enjoyable manner.

After a most superb dinner was served consisting of all that the most fastedious could desire, or an epicure relish, a sort program was rendered consisting of reading scripture and prayer and Thanksgiving, songs appropriate, music both vocal and instrumental, recitations, short addresses, reading of the minutes of preceeding gathering last year, election of committees and president for the next gathering of the same nature.

It is indeed a benison, a real inspiration, to witness the Octogenarian leaning on a staff, and apparently interested in all that is transpiring about them in this day of progress and changes; but what a mighty uplifting is it to witness such an aged Saint of God, standing erect among her children, (all delighting to do her honor) and walk about and move among the number as one of the younger, giving a word of praise and a smile of love to all, without a staff or any help, and tell of "Ye Olden times" and of easier days; and above all, of God's love to herself and her household in His constant care and blessing.

May her life still be spared to her children yet many years to enjoy their companionship and love. It would be indeed a source of joy to her entire family of children, grand-children and great-grand-children, of whom there are five in number, could Grandma Osgood live to see the opening of the 20th century. God knows best. We leave all this entirely in His hands, devoutly thanking Him for present good. G.

ENTERED INTO REST.

Mrs. P. V. Woodard, after a lingering illness of several months entered into rest on the morning of the 23d. of November. She was a daughter of Thos. Boyce of Macon. Was born Jan. 13th, 1861. Married to P. V. Woodard Aug. 16, 1883. For some time she had not felt well but all the while was confident of a complete recovery. But God in His infinite wisdom rewarded her with spiritual, rather than physical health and took her to be with Him. Her illness was borne with Christian fortitude and bravery. Even when told by loving friends that the hours were but few a smile of perfect resignation came over her face. She was ready to go. She could trust not only herself to her heavenly father's care but also her beloved husband and the dear seven months old bate which had been given them. At her request the session of the Presbyterian church met in her room but a few hours before she died and celebrated the Lord's supper. She with her loved ones partaking thereof. It was an experience long to be remembered by those present. Not alone because of its sorrow but for its joy. She was held in high esteem by all who knew her and her demise was mourned by a large circle of friends. The funeral occurred Saturday the 26th, at the Presbyterian church, of which she was a member. The spacious audience room was filled with those who came to pay their last tribute of respect and love and to take their final farewell. Thus we commit our loved ones unto Him who has promised life and a blessed reunion in the near future, resting ourselves in His promises and strengthened by His hope.

DETROIT JOURNAL.

SIGHTS and SCENES Of the World.

Is the title given to a rare and magnificent collection of 320 superb views representing the famous natural scenery, palaces, castles, cathedrals, noted street scenes, and places of historical interest in all parts of the earth. This series is the result of years of extended travel and many thousands of dollars in expense. The photographs are 11 x 15 in size. Each one is executed in the highest style of art, and accompanied by an interesting description, replete with historical and other data.

Great Panorama of Visions.

The series consists of twenty parts of sixteen views each, and embraces scenes in England, Scotland, Ireland, Germany, Italy, France, Holland, Belgium, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Portugal, Spain, Switzerland, Russia, Greece, Egypt, Asia, Turkey, Australia, New Zealand, Ceylon, Sandwich Islands, China, Japan, Africa, Malay, India, North and South America, and by distinguished tourists both in this country and abroad, is conceded to be the most interesting collection extant.

Better than a Trip Around the World.

The possession of such a splendid series of views is even better than a trip around the world. It saves time and money and the inconveniences of travel, and may be enjoyed not merely for a brief space, as in the course of one's travel, but may be referred to at pleasure and delighted in over and over again, surrounded by all the comforts of home, and if perchance a personal visit should be made at any time to the scenes represented, they will be all the more appreciated from the knowledge already had of them through the views and descriptions which make up the series above described.

Let us Tell You All About it.

The well defined principle of THE DETROIT JOURNAL for many years has been to give its patrons the greatest value for their money that it was possible to obtain for them, and it is in accordance with this purpose that we now offer them this magnificent collection of views, embracing twenty parts of sixteen numbers each, on terms that are so easy as to enable every one of our great family of readers to obtain them.

PART I CONTAINS:

1. Osborne Palace as Queen Victoria's Home on the Isle of Wight.
2. Pope's Villa at Twickenham, on the Thames, near London.
3. Robert Burns' House in Ayr.
4. The Giant Causeway, County of Antrim, Ireland.
5. Lakes of Killarney, Ireland.
6. Palace of Sans Souci, Potsdam, Germany.
7. Castle of Rheinstein, Germany.
8. Appian Gateway, Rome.
9. The Grand Canal, Venice.
10. The Grand Opera House, Paris.
11. The Grand Staircase in the Paris Opera House.
12. The Stora Theatre, Gothenburg, Sweden.
13. The City of Lisbon, Portugal.
14. The City of Bethany.
15. Native Malay Village.
16. The Cathedral, City of Mexico.

Only 3 Coupons and 8 cents Needed to Obtain the Series.

In every issue of the JOURNAL there will appear a numbered coupon. Cut this coupon out and preserve it until three different dates have been accumulated, then forward them, together with eight cents, to the Coupon Department of the DETROIT JOURNAL, and there will be delivered to you one of the parts of the series containing 16 views similar in style and character to those described above. The coupons for each of the 20 parts of the series run one entire week, but only three coupons of those published during the week are required to secure any one part. They must, however, be cut from the paper of different dates, and if perchance six coupons are cut from different issues during the week, the holder will be entitled to two numbers of the part called for by sending the coupons, with eight cents for each part desired. This arrangement enables any family to secure two complete sets by taking one paper each day. Each view contained in the series will be consecutively numbered, so that when the entire 20 parts have been received, an index will be furnished by which ready reference can be had to any particular paragraph.

Do Not Miss this Great Opportunity.

The DETROIT JOURNAL is the newsiest, cleanest and brightest daily in the State. Every home should receive it regularly. Leave your order with our local agent in your city, or drop us a postal card, and we will see that you receive it. Thousands have received Part One. Attend to it at once. You can receive all the parts if you give this immediate attention.

OUR HOLIDAY GREETING.

In accordance with our usual custom, which has been observed in this establishment for the past ten years, without interruption, we issue this week our holiday supplement, and the HERALD greets its readers as a twelve page paper. This extra sheet will be continued during December. Considering the prevalent hard times and the business depression which has oppressed all agricultural communities during the past six months, we feel more than gratified at the splendid showing of Tecumseh's business interests in this week's issue of the HERALD. We began the canvass for the supplement advertising with some misgivings, rather expecting that we might be compelled to give up the project this year, but our merchants toed the chalk line with their usual alacrity, and the sheet was filled with less expenditure of time and labor than it took last year. The "Old Reliable" stood ready, as ever, to do its part to inaugurate a December business boom in this community, and it found our business men prepared to do their part also to make December, '93 a red-letter business month in our local annals. This combination, when heartily entered into, never fails to make a newspaper, which is a credit to local journalism and a financial benefit to its business patrons.

Look through the advertising columns of this week's HERALD, kind reader, and if you are not profited it is your own fault. Here you can ascertain where you can purchase to the best advantage your winter household supplies and your holiday gifts. The farmer can find out where to buy his furniture and crockery, his tea, coffee and sugar, and all other kitchen supplies; where to get his own overcoat, his wife's plush cloak and the warmest caps and boots for Sammy and Sally. The mother will turn her attention perhaps to the latest patterns of dress goods, the nobbiest head gear, the newest designs in glassware, and the choicest brands of Rio and Java. The young Miss in her teens will naturally inquire where the finest perfumes are on sale, where the nicest photos are taken and where the most fashionable wedding gowns are made. The young man will interest himself in the merchant who sells the best furnishing goods, and in the tailor who makes the best fitting claw hammer coat. The "little folks" are sure to learn, or at least endeavor to learn, where Santa Claus makes his headquarters, and they generally manage to post themselves fully on that point. All of them can peruse these columns with profit and delight, as everything which man, woman or child may want to eat, drink or wear can be found advertised therein. It is a truth, which has grown into a truism, that the merchant who has the best goods and sells at the best figures always has an ambition to let his friends and neighbors know it.

A man who has had the fun of paying the bills of a local newspaper establishment for a few years, becomes painfully cognizant of the fact that there are two classes of business men in the community. One class are always abreast of the times, study the wants of their customers, keep posted on prices and deal liberally in printer's ink for the benefit of both themselves and their patrons. The other class run their business after the style of forty years ago, seem to think that society owes them a living without any effort on their part, and regard all newspapers as humbugs and all editors as impostors. We can easily imagine how two representatives of these two classes would disagree on the subject of newspapers in general and advertising in particular. One class may be fitly personified by Old Fogy and the other by Hustling Merchant. They meet accidentally, while shoveling the snow off the sidewalk in front of their stores and the following colloquy ensues:

O. F.—I am almost afraid that this snow will make a run of sleighing. A fine run of sleighing always hurts my business. In that case the Hustler is sure to get out an extra sheet, filled with the bargains offered by the other merchants, and customers give me the go by.

H. M.—Very well, why don't you take the hint and talk up some of your own bargains in a similar manner? Or don't you offer any bargains?

O. F.—I offer bargains, of course, but I don't believe in blowin' about it. I've been in business here for years. Every body knows me and knows where I am. Why don't they come in and trade?

H. M.—How do you expect people to trade with you, if you hav'nt enterprise enough to let them know what you have to sell? This is a progressive age. Folks read the newspapers nowa-days. These are hard times and folks are on the look out for bargains. I have tried both plans and I tell you it pays to advertise.

O. F.—Well, I say that advertising is a humbug. I'll venture to say that you pay out at least one hundred dollars a year to the local newspapers, and it is just that much money sunk out of sight. You can fool away one hundred dollars in that way if you like, but I prefer to salt mine down in the bank.

H. M.—I can tell you a trick worth two of that. I can spend one hundred a year for advertising, increase my sales $1000 and my profits $200, and thus salt down $200 in the bank instead of $100. See?

O. F.—But the trouble is that some merchants advertise and some don't. If every man would withdraw his advertising entirely, it would place them all on an equal footing, and we should all save the money fooled away on the newspapers.

H. M.—Why, you infernal old goose. If every merchant withdrew his advertising patronage it would drive every newspaper out of town in three months time. Adrian, Clinton, Britton and Onsted would take your trade and mine too, and we would both be sold out by the sheriff in about three months thereafter. We are all alike interested in sustaining first-class home newspapers, but you are too stingy and penurious to do your share in that direction, that's all.

This last shot settled O. F., and he retired into his store to brush the dust off the counters. We are very glad to chronicle the fact that a goodly majority of Tecumseh's business men belongs to the H. M. class.

THE BIRDS OF NORTH AMERICA.

In connection with the foregoing review of the Ornithological Chapter, it is only right to call the attention of all lovers of birds to the magnificent work now being issued by the Natural Science Association of America, and entitled "The Birds of North America." Edition limited to 1,000. It is emphatically an original work, original in design and execution, and whether in letter press, illustrations or price, it is unapproached by anything of the kind in existance. It is recommended by the highest scientific, ecclesiastic and educational authority as being the most attractive, meritorious, pure and ennobling exporition of our ornithology yet given to the public. Dr. Elliott Coues, author of "Birds of the North-West," says: "It is a really notable work." Prof. C. J. Maynard, author of the "Birds of Eastern North America," says: "It contains the best pictures of the species which I have ever seen." Thos. G. Gentry, author of "Life Histories of Birds," and "Nests and Eggs of Birds of the United States," says: "It is the cheapest and best publication on ornithology in this country. The drawings are of a very high order, and rivals in beauty of design and finish the more costly works published abroad or in this country. It should be found in our homes and in libraries generally." And, according to Dr. Theodore Gill, a member of the National Academy of Sciences, "It is not only a meritorious volume, but is altogether so handsome as to make it a very appropriate presentation book or ornament for the family table." It is an imperial quarto volume of engraved figures of all our species, artistically reproduced, true in all hues of color to their natural plumage and botanical surroundings. It also includes a copious text description of their habits and characteristics, and embracing in general the observations made by the most eminent writers on ornithology, and a systematic table, arranged according to the classification adopted by the American Ornithologists' Union. includes all the additions and corrections of our North American species which have been made to date, with an index to page, plate and figure of each species according to the A. O. U. number. It is illustrated with one hundred and nineteen full page colored plates, each representing from one to thirty or more species. It is the finest book on American birds issued since Audubon, and is pronounced by some authorities superior to that now rare and costly work. It is issued in half and full bindings, Russia, seal, or morocco, at the net price of $40 and $45 respectively; but in response to a special letter, the association authorized me to say that a substantial discount will be made to such of our A. A. members and others as are working naturalists. We commend this work especially to members of the Wilson Ornithological Chapter. It is also a very useful and appropriate addition to the home and reference library, and for presentation purposes generally. Address regarding it, the Natural Science Association, 114 Fifth Avenue, New York, N. Y. Sample of plates and text can be had by sending twenty-five cents in postage stamps.

Preprietor—Did you let the lady know it was no trouble to show your wares?

New Clerk—Yes, sir. I told her that selling them was where the rub came in.

Student—I tell you frankly that I shall not be able to pay for the suit till next year. When will you have it ready?

Tailor—Next year.

Watts—You look rather shaky this morning.

Potts—Naturally, I feel rocky.

Naturalist—And now, how shall we prove that man is the superior creature?

Pupil—By asking him.

"Name your baby Dorothy, as you intended, Jimpson?" "Nope." "Why not?" "James seems more suitable."

MONTAGUE'S NOVELTY STORE.

He Was Curious, Too.

Prisoner—As my counsel has failed to put in his appearance I would ask your honor to adjourn the case.

Judge—Why, you were caught in the act of stealing a gold watch from the person of a gentleman. Besides, you admitted the charge. I am curious to know what under these circumstances your counsel could have to say in your defense.

Prisoner—So am I, your honor, and therefore I should like to hear him.—Vogue.

A Good Reason.

"I don't see why you employ Dr. Hugo as your physician. He's the most ill tempered, quarrelsome fellow I've ever met."

"I quite agree with you, but you see I have often been told that my throat trouble would disappear if I only would get my larynx cauterized."

"Well?"

"Why, I naturally chose Dr. Hugo on account of his caustic temperament."—Journal Amusant.

A Natural Mistake.

A Chicago clergyman, having performed the marriage ceremony for a couple, undertook to write out the usual marriage certificate; but being in doubt as to the day of the month, he asked:

"This is the ninth, is it not?"

"Why, parson," said the blushing bride, "you do all my marrying, and you ought to remember that this is only the fifth."—Texas Siftings.

A Decided Gump.

Dora—Mr. Nicefello seems to have a bad cold.

Clara—Well, it's his own fault. When he called last evening he sat down on a chair way off by himself, although there were loads of room on the sofa. Then, to give him an excuse for moving, I complained of the heat and opened the window behind him, but there he staid like a gump, the whole evening.—N. Y. Weekly.

Calorie.

"During your Arctic expedition," some one asked an explorer, "how did you get warm when your fuel gave out?"

"Simplest thing in the world," answered the explorer. "Two of us were republicans and two democrats, and whenever the thermometer in the hut went below the freezing point, we talked politics."

The Sweet Thing.

Ethel (somewhat passe)—Oh, dear! I had such fun at the fair. A young girl always does at such things, you know.

Maud—Yes; you always said you enjoyed the centennial, didn't you, dear?—Chicago Record.

The Usual Quietus.

Mother (wishing to hurry matters)—Mr. Sampson has been coming here now three years. I should think he would be getting tired of making love to you.

Daughter—I guess he is. Last night he asked me to marry him.—Puck.

Poor, Weak Human Nature.

"Don't you smell fire?"

"No, I don't think I do."

"I don't, either, but most people do if you ask them."—Boston Globe.

More Appropriate.

"Isn't that rainbow-colored cloak of Mrs. Dawson's a perfect symphony?"

"No; I should rather call it a wrapsody."—Truth.

WELL-EARNED REST.

Lady (to Polite Laborer who has offered her his seat)—Oh, no! Keep your seat, my good man; you have been working hard all day.

Polite Laborer (sympathetically)—Take it, ma'am. Thrue, Oi've bin carryin' th' hod all th' day; but you've bin shoppin'.—Puck.

One on Hicks.

"Some people are much more fortunate in their marriages than others," sneered Hicks. "That's the only reason why I don't consider matrimony a failure."

"You are very right there," said Mrs. Hicks. "Here in our own family you got me, but I—I only got you."—Harper's Bazar.

A Reason.

Papa—Won't you be glad when you are a big man, Harry?

Harry—No, papa.

Papa—Why not?

Harry—Why, because then I cannot get into the circus for half price.—Harper's Young People.

A Domestic Episode.

"I'll have to leave you, mum," said the hired girl to the lady of the house, who was finding the burden almost too much to bear.

"Thank heaven," she exclaimed, "you don't have to take me along with you."—Detroit Free Press

Timely Caution.

"If you ever 'spect to go to Heaven, my dear," said the little girl, sewing up a gaping rent in her doll's back, "you'll have to take better care of yourself. They don't have any sawdust in Heaven."—Chicago Tribune.

An Outward and Visible Sign.

Perdita—Has young Dr. Pellet just started in practice?

Penelope—Just about; there goes one of his funerals now.—Truth.

What Causes the Dew.

A government inspector visited one day a large grammar school in the north of France. He asked, among other things, what was the cause of the dew. Nobody could give an answer. At last one of the pupils got up and said:

"The earth turns round its axis once in twenty-four hours with such rapidity that it perspires, and thus the dew is formed."—L'Eclaireur.

Epidemic in the Family.

"My great-grandfather was a lawyer," remarked the lad, with considerable pride. "So was grandfather, and father has been a member of the bar ever since I can remember."

"It seems to be a sort of epidemic in your family."

"I believe it is," he replied. "And I guess mother's caught it too, for pa's friends say she is always laying down the law to him."—Judge.

Limitations of Literature.

Little Boy—What is your papa?

Little Girl—He's a literary man.

"What's that?"

"He writes."

"What does he write?"

"Oh, he writes most everything 'cept checks."—Good News.

An Economical Wife.

He—I can't send my clothes to the tailor's every time they need a button. We must economize. Can't you sew on these suspender buttons yourself?

She—Here, my dear; fasten them up with a hairpin. That will save thread, you know.—N. Y. Weekly.

On Trust.

First Speculator (philosophically)—Well, my boy, we've got to take lots of things on trust in this world.

Second Speculator (gloomily)—I'd be mighty glad to get them!—Judge.

Knew What Was the Matter.

Maude (apropos of nothing)—I wish I were dead!

Elaine—Who is he?—Chicago Record.

IT MAKES A DIFFERENCE.

Mother (near-sighted)—See that disgracefully intoxicated brute across the street! Where can the police be?

Daughter (weeping)—Oh, ma, it's Brother Bob!

Mother (swooning)—Then the saloon-keepers have been drugging that poor child again!—Judge.

A Possible Attraction.

Little Girl—Your sister is real pretty, isn't she?

Little Boy—Guess not; I never noticed it.

Little Girl—Then what's the reason so many gentlemans keep calling on her?

Little Boy—Don't know. Maybe it's 'cause we haven't any piano.—Good News.

Sarcastic Sister.

"I wonder how Europeans come to persist in that idea that bands of savages frequent New York," asked the athletic young man.

"Possibly," replied his sister, "because some of the visitors to this country have heard a football team giving the college yell."—Washington Star.

A Source of Embarrassment.

Esmerelda Longcoffin—I've got such a lovely parrot.

Birdie McGinnis—Can he talk?

"I should say so. He says: 'Oh what a fool' all day long."

"Well, doesn't that embarrass you a little when there is company present?"—Texas Siftings.

A Supposition.

Cynic—Your father was a great man, I fancy.

Chappie—Well, no. Why did you think so?

Cynic—It is a current belief that great men's sons never amount to anything.—Truth.

A Sad Disappointment.

Rich Uncle—So, my dear boy, you haven't forgotten your uncle's birthday, have you? You have bought me this nice smoking cap. Thanks, little nephew! Here is half a dollar for you.

Little Nephew—Boo-ooh-ooh. It cost seventy-five cents.—Texas Siftings.

Very Mean.

"Dinny, did you be radin' that Rothschild's income is a penny every toime the clock ticks?"

"Troth an' Oi did. Wouldn't it be a manestrick, now, if some blagyard was to shnake in an' shtop his clock fur him?—Truth.

A False Alarm.

The Old Man (to daughter's lover)—Young man, do you smoke cigarettes?

The Lover (apologetically)—Yes, sir; but—

The Old Man—Well, give me one.—Judge.

Too Much of a Rush.

Friend—I see you have begun spelling your name in the old-fashioned way, 'S-m-i-t-h.

Smythe—Yes; I have to. Too many "Smythes," nowadays, you know.—Puck.

The West Ahead as Usual.

Eastern Girl—We have the cradle that my grandfather was rocked in.

Western Girl—We have the boots that my grandfather died in.—Life.

Swearing and Swearing.

He asked fair Janette's father for her hand,
And swore the maid he truly, madly loved;
But, later on, he swore in other ways
To learn how much it cost to keep it gloved.
—Harper's Bazar.

AVERY & CO.

"My dear," said Mr. McMint to his wife, "you are not half severe enough with Bobby. You must be firm. Now, watch me! Bobby! you must not play ball in the parlor!"

"Why mustn't I?"

"Because I say so."

"Freddy Gibbes plays ball in his parlor—"

"That doesn't—"

"And his folks don't lick him, an'—he's got a good home—boo-hoo—an' his parents is kind—boo-hoo-wow!"

"Bobby!"

"Boo-hoo-wow-ee-wow!"

"Bobby! Come here, Bobby. Never mind; there's a good boy. You can play, Bobby."

"Boo-hoo! Will you gimme a quarter, too?"

It was here that Mr. McMint gave Bobby a twenty-five-cent piece and changed the subject, ignoring a happy smile which played over Mrs. McMint's features.—Chicago Record.

Saving Money.

Mrs. Swiftly—I'm making all my hats myself to save money.

Mr. Swiftly (much pleased)—Indeed!

Mrs. Swiftly—Yes; this one I got on only cost me twenty-five cents.

Mr. Swiftly—Well, I declare!

Mrs. Swiftly—And I put all the trimming on myself.

Mr. Swiftly—Where did you get the trimming?

Mrs. Swiftly—At Dreighood's. I got it for eighteen dollars.—Chicago Record.

Humor's Decay.

Minstrel End Man (to professional literary humorist)—I say, old fellow, now, really, is there any money in writing jokes for the comic papers?

Humorist—Certainly. Why, I can live a whole week on about forty jokes!

End Man — Slavery, sir; positive slavery! Why in the palmy days of ministrelsy I could start in at the beginning of the season with one joke, and live on it for forty weeks.—Puck.

Fatal Gift of Beauty.

"That is an awfully pretty girl that Timmins is engaged to just now."

"Yes; too pretty, in fact. Timmins tells me that he is so fascinated with her beauty that he has never had the courage to turn down the gas when he was calling on her for fear of losing sight of her pretty face."—Indianapolis Journal.

Outraged.

Tramp—Can't you give me somethin' to eat, ma'am?

Kind Woman—Yes; here is a piece of homemade mince pie.

Tramp—I asked for food, madam, not work.—Truth.

Her Preference.

Aunt Alice—Here is a cake full of plums and raisins and currants and citron. Now, which part of it do you like the best, Mabel?

Mabel—The part that is put on my plate.—Harper's Young People.

Her Ruling Passion.

Husband (listening)—I think there is a burglar in the house.

Wife (excitedly)—Mercy me; is my nightcap on straight?—Answers.

Good Piece to Know.

He—Do you play Gottschalk's "Last Hope?" It just carries me away.

She—Yes. I'll play it for you.—Brooklyn Life.

The Latest Creation.

"Now, Fred, what was the last thing God created?"

"The Haskin's baby."—Life.

PISCATORIAL ITEM.

Mrs. Jones—Nine cents is a big price for that fish. The fish dealer must be getting rich.

Bridget—Yes, mum, all his profits are net profits.—Texas Siftings.

Mere Force of Habit.

Judge Cowing—You are charged with having knocked your wife down with a club, and then kicked her. Do you know of any mitigating circumstance?

"Well, yes, your honor. You see that's the way I always do when anybody annoys me."—Texas Siftings.

Get There.

Don't be too slow in love affairs;
Such methods are unwise.
Some fellow with more diligence
May carry off your prize.
To be a winner brave and strong,
In life's tempestuous whirl,
Embrace your opportunities—
Likewise embrace your girl.
—Kansas City Journal.

Taking a Broad View.

"No, Johnny, I can't buy any candy for you. It's bad for the teeth."

(After some moments of profound thought)—"Mamma, what would the dentists do for a livin' if every fam'ly was run like ours is?"—Chicago Tribune.

Generosity Personified.

Bagley—Bent is a very generous man.

Brace—In what respect?

Bagley—He never passes a beggar that he doesn't borrow a dime from me to give to him.—Brooklyn Life.

The Same Boy.

Proud Papa (playfully)—Whose little boy are you?

Little Johnny (seriously)—I'm your little boy, but I has been washed.—Good News.

Didn't Work.

Caller—What's all that howling upstairs?

Mrs. Boardem—That faith-cure doctor has the toothache.—N. Y. Weekly.

Miss Frost (smiling and displaying her pearly teeth)—Mr. Youngling, is there a window open somewhere? Do you know I have just a twinge, a tiny twinge, of toothache? (A fetching smile displays teeth to better advantage.)

Mr. Youngling (looking fixedly at her teeth through eyeglasses)—Really—

Miss Frost—O, I know you will not believe it; but it is really so. Now—now don't flatter, you naughty boy.

Mr. Youngling (still regarding teeth with stolid respect)—No, really, I'm not surprised—not at all, you know. I once read of a fellow who had his leg amputated—taken right off, don't you know, and yet he used to complain of twinges of pain in his toes—fact, really!—Pearson's Weekly.

In the Honeymoon.

(Outward Bound). She—O! Arthur, the guard has just told me that this is the longest tunnel on the whole journey.

He—That may be so, my darling, but unfortunately the lamps are lighted.

(Homeward Bound). She—O, Arthur, here we are again in this charming long tunnel.

He—I wonder why the stupid donkeys haven't lighted the lamps?—Pfullendorfer Anzeiger.

Could Be of Assistance.

Jim—Say, Fred, old boy, I'm looking for some friend who will loan me ten dollars. Come, now—can't you be of assistance?

Fred—Certainly.

"Thank you ever so much."

"Yes, it's going to rain, and if you'll step over to my office I'll lend you one of your umbrellas so you won't get wet while you're looking."—N. Y. Weekly.

BY A ROUNDABOUT ROUTE.

"How very stylish you are, Mr. Softleigh. You hold your elbow very high."

"Ya-as; I got it from the prince of Wales."

"Did you meet him abroad?"

"No, but Cholly Davis saw him meet a friend on the street one day."—Brooklyn Life.

Grateful for the Question.

Maud (just back from the land o' cakes)—The Scotch have an odd way of confusing the tense. For example, they would say: "Will you be Capt Dashington?" instead of "Are you Capt. Dashington?"

The Captain (seizing his opportunity)—Well, Miss Maud, I am not a Scotsman, but supposing I were to say: "Will you be Mrs. Dashington, what would you think?"

Still Another.

"There seem to be two classes of people in your country," said the observant foreigner on a tour through the United States; "those that have wealth and those that are struggling frantically to get it."

"There is a third," replied young Asa Spayds; "the sons of rich men. They struggle frantically to spend it."—Chicago Tribune.

A Sure Thing.

Mr. Henpeck—Well, there is one thing certain, and that is that I can't miss Heaven. I'm sure to get there.

"How do you make that out?" asked his friend, Pete Amsterdam.

Mr. Henpeck—Easy enough. If I die before my wife does then I'll be in Heaven. If she dies first then this earth will be Heaven enough for me.—Texas Siftings.

Fortifying Himself.

Albert—Now that I have finished my luncheon, may I put a couple of pieces of cake in my pocket?

Mamma—Why do you want to do that, Albert?

Albert—Just to have them to eat in the afternoon, because you won't let me ask for anything to eat between meals.—Harper's Young People.

A Cheap Amusement.

Mrs. Upton—I don't know what to do with myself this afternoon. Give me three dollars for a ticket to the concert and I'll go there.

Hardy Upton—Really, Clara, I haven't but twenty-five cents, and—

Mrs. Upton—Oh, well, give me that, and I'll spend the afternoon shopping.—Puck.

Reasoning by Induction.

Old Gableigh (introduced on the train)—May I inquire, Miss Brown, where you live?

Miss B.—I have the honor, sir, to reside in—

Old Gableigh—Ah! I see? Boston.—Town Topics.

Lucky Little Boys.

Little Dick—I know why little colored boys are so happy.

Little Bob—Why?

Little Dick—'Cause their mothers can't tell when their hands are dirty.—Good News.

Had Occasion to Know.

Fond Parent—I cannot interfere, Bobby; your teacher writes me that she thrashed you on principle.

Bobby—Well, she didn't. Don't you think I know where she licked me?—Life.

A Matter of Dollars and Cents.

Old Gentleman—So you'd like to become my son-in-law.

Mr. Hardupp—Yes, sir, if you can afford it.—Brooklyn Life.

Hard times in the city, Too.

"Gosh!" exclaimed Uncle Josh addressing his nephew, who had taken him as a spectator to a society ball. "Gosh, there must be hard times in the city, too!"

"What makes you think so?" asked the nephew.

"There's mighty few of them women seem to have been able to scratch up enough of clothes to wear."—N. Y. Press.

Putting Her Near Heaven.

Porter of Sleeping Car—Your berth is the top one, lady.

Passenger—What do you take me for; a bundle of old-fashioned dry goods, that you want to put me out of sight on the top shelf?

Porter—No, madam; only an angel, who ought to be as near Heaven as possible.—Boston Gazette.

Infant Terrible.

"Now, Master Jacques, I've caught you again. You drank a whole glass of wine during my absence."

"No, mamma, 'twasn't me; 'twas a biscuit that drank the wine."

"And where is the biscuit?"

"O, I ate it in order to punish it."—Paris Gaulois.

A Candid Son-in-Law.

"Tell me, candidly, how do you like my daughter now you have been married three weeks," said Mr. Boulevard to Gus Birdwhistle.

"As long as I live I'll never forgive you for not kicking me out of the house when I asked you for her hand," replied Birdwhistle.—Texas Siftings.

His Only Chance for Fame.

Rinx—What are you writing now?

Scrib—I am collaborating with my father on a book of poems.

Rinx—I didn't know that your father wrote poems.

Scrib—He doesn't; he's paying for their publication.—Town Topics.

Realism in Aart.

"Why do those children over the way get such a terrible thrashing every morning?"

"Ah! a genre painter lives there whose specialty is weeping children. So every morning he whips his models into shape."—Humoristische Blaetter.

Apprehensive, and for Reasons.

Doctor (meeting a former patient who had come out for a walk)—Well, Frau Schulze, how do you feel now?

Frau Schulze (timorously)—You are not going to charge anything, are you, doctor?—Unterhaltungsblatt.

The Better Way.

Why grieve we over vanished joys?
Regrets are vain, as each one knows,
Much wiser he who time employs Rejoicing over vanished woes.

—Judge.

JUST PLAIN ENVY.

Parke Rowe—What d'ye think of the suit? Election bet, you know!

Hoffman Howes—That's too bad! How long do you have to wear it?—Puck.

Society's View.

Mrs. Bostonne—I understand that you will have a season of grand opera this winter.

Mrs. Manhattan—Yes, and it will be that nice, low Italian music that doesn't interrupt conversation.—Life.

Succinct.

He (taking a seat next to both of them)—What has come between you and Helen?

She (who thinks the question impertinent)—Nothing.—Truth.

Understood It.

Teacher—Do you understand the phrase "rapid enunciation?"

Boy—Yes'm. It's the way folks say their prayers on cold nights.—Good News.

Wanted More Data.

Papa—So you've asked my daughter to marry you. Can you support a family?

Suitor—How many of you are there?—Town Topics.

Capable Substitutes.

"You don't have monarchs in this country," said the foreigner, musingly.

"Not by that name," replied the native. "We have servant-girls, however."—Judge.

The Umpire.

Mrs. Wickwire—Who shall decide when doctors disagree?

Mr. Wickwire—The coroner, I guess.—Indianapolis Journal.

But He Does—to Trains.

Snooper—This is a brave watch of mine.

Skidmore—What's brave about it?

Snooper—It never runs.—Town Topics.

Wouldn't Get Left.

Maud—Do you believe that marriages are made in Heaven?

Marie—I don't know. But I don't intend to wait and see.—N. Y. Herald.

A Vast Difference.

"So you didn't marry Jack after all?"

"No, my dear. You see, there is a vast difference between an engagement and a cinch."—Judge.

Paradoxical.

Clews—She's a curious sort of girl.

Baine—In what way?

Clews—Well, she's not at all curious.—Town Topics.

A Sign.

The burglar approached the thread of moonlight that stole through the half-closed shutters and made a pathway of silver across the chamber floor.

With a swift glance at the face of the sleeper upon the couch he crept stealthily to the window.

He stared at the object in his hand.

"I was not prepared for this!" he gasped, and trembled with excitement.

He looked again, and incredulity gave way to gratulation.

"Yes," he whispered, "the initials have been scratched out, but it's my umbrella all right."—Town Topics.

Great Scheme.

He—What became of that "Old Maids' club" you girls organized last winter—none of you ever going to marry, and all that sort of thing?

She—Oh—why—you see, as soon as the young men found what we were doing they just wouldn't let us alone, and now the last one of us is engaged.—Indianapolis Journal.

WANTED PUBLICITY.

To walk upon the crowded street
He said was his fond wish.
He did not care for alleys now—
He'd caught a string of fish.

—Judge.

His Objection.

Pork Butcher—Sir, have you any fault to find with that sausage?

Customer—Yes; the ends are not quite to my liking.

"Why, every sausage has got two ends!"

"True enough, but this one has them too near together."—Hirschberger Tageblatt.

A Good Excuse.

"My youngest son is twelve years old to-day, and I am puzzled to know what profession he should adopt."

"Why don't you make him a cashier?"

"Oh, no. He doesn't like railroad traveling."—Paris Figaro.

Sex in Garments.

Mamma—Did you find your uncle Tom sick in bed, Arthur?

Arthur (aged seven)—No, mamma. He was sitting up with his Father Hubbard wrapper on; an' he was eating some tea.—Judge.

Old News.

S. S. Teacher—If Eve, the first woman, had done as she was told, there never would have been any trouble in this world.

Little Girl—Oh, yes, I've heard papa tell mamma that many a time.—Good News.

His Conscience Troubled Him.

Judge Duffy—You admit you broke a chair to pieces on your wife's head. Don't you feel any remorse?

Mr. Thompson Street—Yes, I has lots ob remorse. I paid a dollar for dat chair, an' hit was as good as new.—Texas Siftings.

He Wouldn't Kick.

"Don't your dancing classes disturb the man downstairs?"

"I suppose so," replied the professor. "But he isn't going to kick."

"How do you know?"

"He runs a shoe store."—Washington Star.

A House Divided.

"It's a very happy little family, isn't it?"

"Oh, dear, no! Her husband is jealous of her poodle, and her poodle is jealous of her baby, and the baby cries for its father all the time."—Vogue.

An Unmistakable Sign.

Charles—There's the door bell ringing. I wonder who it is?

Edward—A man. I just saw Sister Nellie run to the looking glass.—Chicago Record.

Another Brute.

Wife—The doctor says I need a change of climate.

Husband—Well, the sky looks as if we'd have it in a few hours.—N. Y. Weekly.

Practical Knowledge.

Intellectual One—I should not say you had much experience with men.

The Demure One—Perhaps not. I have refused seven and accepted five.—Life.

Waiting.

Ada—No; Priscilla will never marry unless she finds her ideal.

Ida—What sort of a man is her ideal?

Ada—A man who will propose.—Puck.

Explained.

She has a harsh and rasping voice,
An eye that's blue and cold,
A temper hot, yet she's my choice,
For she has stores of gold.

—Harper's Bazar.

Two Things Had Stopped.

Mr. Staylate (taking out his watch)—Pshaw! My watch has stopped going.

Miss Caustique (sleepily)—The effect of example, maybe.—Chicago Herald.

Metaphors.

Teacher—Yes, "thorny paths" is a metaphor. Now, what are metaphors?

Dull Boy—Paths where yeh can't ride pneumatics.—Good News.

Politeness Pays.

There's little doubt that courteousness
More dividends than rudeness pays;
See how the gambler gathers in
The dollars by his winning ways.

LOCAL AND MISCELLANEOUS.

Bring along that wood.

Do you hear the merry jingle of the bells?

How do you like the looks of our holiday supplement?

Lenardson Bros. have a new card on the first page this week.

Blessed is the girl in these days whose best fellow owns a horse and cutter.

Our holiday supplement issued this week is fully up to the usual standard.

D. L. Whitenack & Co., swing out a new winter announcement this week.

We hope the weatherclerk will condescend to give us a good run of sleighing.

P. S. Hendershot, of Buffalo, is spending the holidays with old friends at home.

Read all the cards in the holiday supplement. Every one of them is worthy of perusal.

Geo. Heesen has a holiday announcement on the first page which our readers should peruse.

Geo. H. Stacy, of East Buffalo, has been spending a few days with old friends in Newburgh.

The President's message is so lengthy that we are reluctantly compelled to forego its publication.

The Temple Quartette will give a concert at the Clinton Town Hall, next Saturday evening. Dec. 9th.

Religious services were held on Thanksgiving forenoon at the Presbyterian and Episcopal churches.

Adamson Bros' propose to get their share of the holiday trade. For particulars read their card on the first page.

Mrs. Giles Cleveland, who went to Lyons, Neb., a short time ago to spend the winter with her son, is reported very sick.

Alva Spayde swings out a double space this week to let people know where they can buy useful articles for Christmas presents.

Remember that you can get a first-class oyster supper at the Opera House next Saturday afternoon at any time between four and nine o'clock.

"Herr Scharwenka, the renowned Pianist, Composer and Conductor," is expected to give a recital in Tecumseh soon. Particulars later.

The snow storm of last Saturday night is rarely equalled in this latitude so early in the season. It resulted in fine sleighing which we pray may abide with us till New Years.

The Womans' Christian Temperance Union will meet at the home of Mrs. Coville's every Friday, at 2:30 p. m., during Dec. It is very important that every member be present at the next meeting, Dec. 8th.

Everybody knows Teeple the Artist, who takes the best photos in Lenawee county. Few people however know Teeple the hunter, but they are one and the same man. The hunter went gunning Tuesday and brought home a big string of rabbits.

Thanksgiving Day was very generally observed here. Most of the stores were closed all day and all of them in the afternoon. Family reunions were numerous and a big dinner was served at the Lilley House as usual. Everybody seemed to enjoy themselves.

Secretary Schermerhorn of the Mich. Press Association has begun the publication of "The Bulletin," a neat little monthly, designed as the official organ of the Association. Two numbers have been issued and if they are an earnest of what is to follow, The Bulletin has evidently come to stay. The idea is a splendid one and the execution of it could not be in better hands.

Leon McNeil spent Thanksgiving in Adrian.

W. C. Burridge was in Brooklyn, Monday.

Avery and Co., have in a new and very fine stock of hanging and stand lamps.

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss.

At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Lenawee holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, on Tuesday, the 28th day of November in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three.

Present, Richard B. Robbins, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Alexander Patterson, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of John Linton, executor of the last will and testament and upon the estate of said deceased, alleging that the funeral expenses and debts of said deceased and the expenses of administration thus far incurred, have been fully paid and that he is now ready to render his six and final administration account as such executor, and praying that said account may be allowed, and for such other order and decree as to this Court shall seem proper.

It is ordered, That Tuesday, the 26th day of December, next, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate are required to appear at a session of said Court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of said Petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said Petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

RICHARD B. ROBBINS, Judge of Probate.

TO THE LADIES.

There are thousands of ladies throughout the country whose systems are poisoned, and whose blood is in an impure condition from the absorption of impure matter, due to menstrual irregularities. This class are peculiarly benefited by the wonderful tonic and blood-cleansing properties of Prickly Ash, Poke Root and Potassium (P. P. P.) Roses and bounding health take the place of the sickly look, the lost color and the general wreck of the system by the use of Prickly Ash, Poke Root and Potassium, as hosts of females will testify, and many certificates are in possession of the Company, which they have promised not to publish, and all prove P. P. P. a blessing to womankind.

CAPT. J. D. JOHNSTON.

To whom it may concern:—I take great pleasure in testifying to the efficient qualities of the popular remedy for eruptions of the skin known as P. P. P. (Prickly Ash, Poke Root and Potassium). I suffered several years with an unsightly and disagreeable eruption on my face, and tried various remedies to remove it, none of which accomplished the object, until this valuable preparation was resorted to. After taking three bottles, in accordance with directions, I am entirely cured.

Allow me to add my tribute to the efficacy of Ely's Cream Balm. I was suffering from a severe attack of influenza and catarrh and was induced to try your remedy. The result was marvelous. I could hardly articulate, and in less than twenty-four hours the catarrhal symptoms and my hoarseness disappeared and I was able to sing a heavy role in Grand Opera with voice unimpaired. I strongly recommend it to all singers.—Wm. H. Hamilton, Leading Basso of the C. D. Hess Grand Opera Co.

NEW ATTIRE FOR MEN

THE CUT OF STYLISH TROUSERS AND COATS.

Ideas Started by Sartorial Cranks—Coats Longer Than Ever—Pantaloons Again Large at the Knee—Evening Dress Hats and Stylish Neckwear.

[Special Correspondence.]

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—"It would be quite out of the question to say just how the styles for men's attire originate," said Mr. John J. Mitchell the other day, "but the sartorial cranks start more good ideas than any or all other classes." Mr. Mitchell, who knows more about fashions for men than any one else in New York, continued: "Let one of these fellows get it into his head that he wants a novel notion embodied in a coat, or a waistcoat, or a pair of trousers, and there is no rest for his tailor until the scheme has been tried. In nine cases out of ten the crank is dissatisfied with the result after the work is done, for the effect is usually extravagant, but he sometimes originates a good thing. In fact, he is the author of many good things."

OVERCOAT, CUTAWAY AND FROCK.

To the eye of the laymen who wear them there is little variance in men's clothes from the styles of a year ago. In fact, the changes are always more gradual than those in the fashions for women. In a general way the styles of last year and this year differ from those of previous years mainly in the length of all sorts of coats and the cut of the trousers. The latter are now cut fuller than ever before at the knee and narrow at the bottom. All coats are now so outrageously long that the tails are sure to look wrinkled after wearing half a dozen times unless you lift them whenever you sit, and you mustn't do that nowadays, it isn't "form," and if you do somebody will say that you haven't another coat to wear while that one is being pressed. It is a comfort to be able to write on the authority of Mr. Mitchell that the tendency is likely soon to turn against such clumsy and uncomfortable lengths.

In overcoats the Chesterfield, or fly front oversack, is, as it has been for years, the prime favorite. In light weights it was made during the fall chiefly in soft gray materials, though smooth faced goods in blues, blacks and browns were fancied by many. In heavy weights for winter wear kerseys and smooth faced beavers are favorites. As the season advances softer finished fabrics are likely to be more used. The form is slightly defined, though the cut is moderately loose, and center and side seams, with "vents" to match, are about equally in favor. The collar is velvet. Next to the Chesterfield comes the new ulster, sometimes called the kennel, likewise the paddock, and also the racing coat. It is comparatively novel except in some of the largest cities. It is "very swell," close fitting and long. The favorite materials are venetians, covert coatings and light colored, smooth faced fabrics. In length it is about 50 inches for a medium sized man. The front is usually single, with a fly, but sometimes it is heavily double breasted. The hip pockets are crescent shaped, with big flaps. The breast pocket is straight, with a moderate flap to go in or out. The collar and sometimes the cuffs are of velvet.

The box overcoat is made from 46 to 48 inches long, hanging straight from full shoulders, heavily double breasted and with very deep vents. The Inverness cape is a greater favorite than ever and is the only coat to wear over evening dress. It should fall very straight in the back, be finished in front with a fly and close to the throat, with a Prussian collar or roll, as a Chesterfield. The material may be smooth faced or rough and soft, but frosted beavers are favorite, and black or very dark colors prevail. The covert coat doesn't seem to be "in it," and nobody seems to be sorry because of its absence.

The changes in evening dress are limited mostly to increased length and more decided V shaped openings for vests. Fine twilled worsteds, crapes, dress broadcloth cloth finished worsteds and worsted viennas are favorite materials, the two last named being specially "swell." Peaked lapels and shawl rolls are about equal in favor, young men preferring the latter. The very latest in lapels are silk faced. The vest, unless of white or tinted silk, is single breasted. When single breasted four buttons are used; when double, three. Vests of the same material as the coat are oftener used than for several years past, but "good dressers" still adhere to silk. The material of the trousers is a little heavier than for the coat, and soutache braid is often used at the side in place of stripe. They are well hollowed over the instep and have a slight spring. The Tuxedo jacket for dress lounging is as popular as ever.

The double breasted frock is very long and full skirted. Black worsted, thibet or some such fine dressy fabric is the favorite material. Single breasted frocks are not quite so long. Vests are made of the same material as the coat, or of some fancy vesting. The trousers are moderately light in color, of fine stripe or unobtrusive check. There is a slight spring at the bottom. Half dress frock coats are rather longer than dress coats—say 43 to 45 inches—and Oxford mixtures and grays in worsteds, vicunas, cheviots, thibets, etc., are favorite materials. Lighter shades are expected to increase in popularity as the season advances.

Cutaways continue to be greater favorites than frocks, and all sorts of materials are used. For business wear Oxford and Cambridge mixtures and soft finish fabrics in grays and wood effects are most popular, as also are fine striped checks and plaid suitings. The one button cutaway for stout men is made a trifle shorter in the skirt than the three. The roll is longer, and the fronts are cut away below it to show two or three buttons of the vest.

Sacks are made both single and double breasted, and the three buttoned coats are worn much more generally even by stout men than the one button. All sorts of material, excepting those suitable only for dress suits, are worn, favorites being undressed and fancy worsteds, cheviots, vicunas, homespuns, cashmeres, tweeds, mohair serges, etc., in all sorts of shades, stripes and checks. In length sack suits run 32 inches. Vests are generally single breasted, no matter how the coats are made.

In neckwear four-in-hands and De Joinville scarfs maintain their popularity. The effort to force wide brims on derby and silk hats meet with favor only with very large men and small men who are ultra in their dressing. In the east soft hats are still worn to a considerable extent, the Alpine being almost the only style, but the derby is beginning to approximate its old sway. In the west soft hats, of course, maintain their popularity. J. O. B. ELLIS.

MUTATIONS OF A TOWN.

A New York Suburb Where Millionaires Delight to Dwell.

[Special Correspondence.]

GREENWICH, Conn., Dec. 4.—It was when William M. Tweed was in the zenith of his power as "boss" of the city of New York that he discovered this pretty town on the shore of Long Island sound from the deck of his yacht. He was looking for an attractive place within easy distance of the city of which he was dictator where he might build a summer residence to his liking, and he fell in love with Greenwich at first sight. Further acquaintance with the place confirmed his first impressions and as soon as possible he located himself within its borders, to the great advantage of the town, which straightway began to shake off its purely provincial characteristics.

The Greenwich of today is largely a place of suburban residences. The homes of scores of New York business men, many of whom are among the city's financial magnates and some of national repute, are located here. Although the evolution of the suburban idea would have included Greenwich eventually without Tweed's help, there is no doubt that his influence set its development ahead by many years.

The old Tweed place now forms part of the Milbank estate, a property created by Jeremiah Milbank, deceased. Mr. Milbank's fortune was enormous at the time of his death, and he accumulated it in the manufacture and sale of articles of table consumption. Tweed's purchase of the farm now known as the Milbank place came about in a curious way. The farm was, before Tweed got it, the property of a man named Mead, a member of a very numerous family in Greenwich, and it had been owned by a Mead almost ever since it first came into the possession of a white man. It was valued at about $200 an acre, but Mead told Tweed when the latter asked about a selling price that he didn't want to sell at all.

"Now, Mr. Mead," said Tweed, "suppose you would sell, how much would you want?"

"A good deal more'n you or any one else would be willing to pay—more'n it's worth by a long chalk."

"But how much?" persisted the "boss;" "maybe you'd get your price. Besides, I'd like to know your figure as a matter of curiosity."

"Waal," said Mead, "say $1,000 an acre. That would be $60,000, but no one would pay that for it."

"Just as a matter of curiosity," said Tweed, "let's make a memorandum of that, Mr. Mead."

Then he drew up a few lines to the effect that for $63,000 the undersigned would sell the farm at any time during the next three months. Mead signed the paper, and to his amazement Tweed gave him a check for the $63,000 ($3,000 more than Mead asked) the next day, and the farm passed from the possession of the family that had held it for so many years. The place was at once put in good order, and has ever since been one of the show places of Greenwich.

More interest is nowadays shown in the deer park and trotting track that were laid out by William Rockefeller than in the old Tweed place. When the Standard Oil company decided that it would be best that one of its founders should live in or near New York, Mr. Rockefeller was chosen to come east, and Greenwich looked as good to him as it had some years before to Tweed. He built a fine residence here, and being fond of horses laid out the track of which I have spoken. Every morning before breakfast the petroleum magnate used to devote a half hour or so to speeding his most promising horses, and his place and his manner of amusing himself attracted a good deal of attention, which was doubled when he established his deer park. Mr. Rockefeller determined a year or two ago to make his permanent home in Tarrytown, N. Y., where he still resides, but he retained his summer home here and his deer, which last are the admiration of the entire town and its many visitors.

Henry O. Havemeyer, president of the Sugar trust, is another prominent resident of Greenwich. Mr. Havemeyer has been most open handed ever since he settled down here. Mr. Havemeyer's most magnificent gift to Greenwich is the handsome new schoolhouse that is being erected at a cost of over $100,000. The small taxpayers of the place agree that it is a mighty fine schoolhouse, but they are worrying a good deal about how they are going to pay the taxes when the educational machinery of the district is enlarged to meet the requirements of the house, and its expenses are correspondingly keyed up. The schoolhouse at one time threatened to cause a lasting rupture between D. C. Benedict, "the president's friend," and Mr. Havemeyer. Mr. Benedict discovered one morning to his surprise that the roof of the new building when complete would shut off his view of the sound. There was a very earnest conference between Mr. Benedict and Mr. Havemeyer, and a compromise by which the roof will be built six or eight feet lower than was intended.

E. H. Johnson, ex-president of the Edison Electric company, is also a resident here, and his house is one of the marvels of the town by reason of the numerous and expensive electric appliances with which it is fitted up. Its system of burglar alarms is so perfect that cracksmen are said to steer quite clear of the town for fear of being shocked to death, and its lighting is so elaborate and so brilliant that it is an object of rare beauty at night. It may be seen for miles up and down the sound and is a landmark to all who navigate these waters. CHARLES APPLEBY.

A Young Lady of Detroit Comes Into Possession of a Big Sum.

DETROIT, Dec. 1.—It was a memorable Thanksgiving for Miss Catherine Marie Moran, daughter of William B. Moran. Her late mother was the youngest daughter of the late James A. Van Dyke, and when the estate was divided in 1881, Miss Moran received outlying real estate which was then valued at $17,000. Her father was appointed her guardian and has since had the management of her property. Miss Moran attained her majority Saturday and her father concluded to give her a Thanksgiving surprise by winding up the estate and presenting her with the result of his guardianship. To-day Miss Moran finds herself the undisputed possessor of $132,000 worth of valuable real estate in the city; $9,500 in mortgages, and $163.60 in cash. All this is the outgrowth of the original $17,000 of twelve years ago, under Mr. Moran's management.

GRAND RAPIDS, Dec. 2.—S. A. Carno, of the firm of Carno & Morton, furriers, took $585 of the firm's money and went to New York a week ago to buy goods. He has written to his partner, Mrs. Morton, that he will not return. The money he took belonged to her, as he had no financial interest in the firm. Carno made love to his landlady, Mrs. Theresa Mendel, a pretty Jewess whose husband is dead, and succeeded in borrowing $364 from her, promising interest at the rate of $15 a month. Mrs. Mendel is sick from the shock and swears she will kill him at sight. It is believed that Carno will not return to the city and his present whereabouts are unknown. He was a man of exemplary habits and associated with the best German families in the city.

CHICAGO, Ill., Dec. 4.—The nearest guess of the official count of the paid attendance at the world's fair, made by farmers and dealers in agricultural implements who registered in the registry at the exhibit of the Champion Wagon company, through the Joliet Strowbridge company, their western agents, in the Transportation building, was made by M. E. Rich, a farmer residing at Bay City, Mich., whose guess was 21,468,475, or within 1,014 of the official count, which was 21,469,461. Mr. Rich has been declared winner of the prize and will receive one of those fine wagons which were awarded the medal for progress and improvement by the board of awards at the world's fair.

A PIONEER GONE.

Death at Portage of Hon. Stephen Howard.

KALAMAZOO, Dec. 2.—Hon. Stephen Howard died at Portage Friday morning, aged 86 years. He was the first white man to settle in that township, sixty-five years ago, and when he came there were only six houses in all this section outside of the present limits of Kalamazoo, then an Indian trading post. One of his nearest neighbors was Judge Basil Harrison, a picturesque pioneer character, whom James Fenimore Cooper has rendered famous as "Bee Hunter," the hero of one of his Indian romances, "The Oak Openings, or The Bee Hunter," the scene of which was laid in Prairie Ronde, this county. Mr. Howard was a personal friend of the great author and gave valuable aid in some of the details of the work.

Novel Method Adopted by a Prisoner to Escape.

JACKSON, Dec. 2.—J. Repp, having an examination at Stockbridge, 20 miles north of here, on the charge of burning the Grand Trunk depot, was put into a room at the hotel to remain over night. To render him safe his clothing was taken away from him. During the night Repp wrapped himself in bed clothes, wound towels around his feet, leaped from the window and escaped. Repp visited his wife in Stockbridge village, got other clothing and cannot be found.

Bail for De France Is Fixed at $15,000 Which He Fails to Furnish.

KALAMAZOO, Dec. 1.—The examination of L. J. De France, charged with forgery, was resumed in the recorder's court Friday. The defense declined to produce any witnesses unless the prosecution would put Banker Wagner, the complainant, on the stand. Recorder Peck then bound De France over to the December term of the circuit court and fixed bail at $15,000, which was not offered. Col. Irish of the defense filed an exception on the ground of excessive bail. De France appealed from conviction.

A benefit entertainment for the fire department will be put on the stage here soon, under the supervision of Messrs. J. W. Higby and C. C. Stocking, two actors of note. The gentlemen are here making the necessary arrangements and seem to be hustlers. The following from the Wilkes-Barre Daily Times tells its own story. "The audience at Music Hall last night did not relax interest in the attractive story of Lady of Lyons, until Claude had returned from the war loaded with honor and he and Pauline were happily united. Mr. Higby as Claude again demonstrated his ability as an actor, giving an intelligent interpretation of Lytton's romatic lines, and was frequently interrupted by pleasing testimonials on the part of his audience." In the Yankee Boy, "Mr. Higby filled every demand as Paul Freeman. He is a splendid actor and has made a good impression among the theater goers in this city.

As a special feature with the "Ole Olson" company this year, Major Atom has been engaged to play the new part of "Olaf Olson," Ole's brother. The Major is 28 years of age, 36 inches in height, and weighs 48 pounds. He has made a great hit as "Olaf," being a clever little actor and singer. The Major says that what he lacks in size he makes up in salary. At the Opera House, Friday, Dec. 8th.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss

At a session of the Probate court for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office, in the City of Adrian, on Saturday, the 2d, day of December, in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three.

Present Richard B. Robbins, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Lewis V. Miller deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Benjamin F. DePuy, administrator upon the estate of said deceased, alleging that the funeral expenses and debts of said deceased and the expenses of Administration thus far incurred, have been fully paid, and that he is now ready to close said estate and to render his final administration account, and praying that said account may be allowed, and that the residue of said estate may be assigned and distributed to the parties entitled and that he may be discharged and his bond canceled, and for such other order and decree as to this Court shall seem proper.

It is Ordered, That Tuesday, the 23 day of January next, at 9 o'clock in the forenoon be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, that said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

RICHARD B. ROBBINS, Judge of Probate.

Husband—You are naturally of an unhappy disposition, that's all that's the matter. Wife—That's your theory, is it. Husband—I never saw you happy. Wife—That's because you never saw me before I met you.

A Difficult Question. Fond Parent—Yes, Bobby, the Angel of Death passed over the houses and smote the firstborn of each Egyptian family. Bobby (after a moment's silence)—Pop, what did the angel do when it was twins.

Are You Ambitious?

Especially, are you an ambitious woman anxious to make a career for yourself? Then you will be more than interested in "The Road to Fame or Fortune," published in Demorest's Family Magazine for December, which is a faithful chronicle of how ambitious girls desirous of becoming successful business women live and labor in New York, giving suggestions and valuable information that cannot fail to be of inestimable benefit to all talented and ambitious girls. And this is an ideal Christmas number, also. The lovely water color "Did Santa Claus Bring You?" will appeal to everyone, young or old. "Christmas Eve at Bethlehem," with its numerous illustrations, takes one back to the first Christmas Eve and tells how the traditions are preserved and what ceremonies are observed at the present day. There are two splendid Christmas stories splendidly illustrated: "An Excursion to the Land of Dolls," also illustrated, will interest all little maidens who love their dolls; there is a charming Christmas play, "The Prodigal," which will afford most timely entertainment; a very beautiful Christmas carol with original words and music, arranged so that it is appropriate for church, school, or the home circle; there are numberless suggestions for Christmas gifts; the many departments are full to overflowing with good things and everyone who loves babies will be charmed with the portraits of nearly a hundred who are competitors for the "Baby Prize," offered by this Magazine. Indeed, the December number is a generous twenty cents' worth; but it is only a fair sample of what is furnished twelve times a year for $2.00. Published by W. Jennings Demorest, 15 East 14th St., N. Y.

TWICE-A-WEEK

A REVOLUTION IN NEWSPAPERDOM.

"TWICE-A-WEEK" is the new name given to the Semi-Weekly Detroit Free Press. The "Twice-a-Week" has taken the place of the old Weekly edition which, after an existence of 62 years, was discontinued Nov. 30th, 1893. A weekly paper is no longer fully adequate to the requirements of this progressive age. The Free Press, first in everything, is the first to provide for its great host of readers a "Twice-a-Week," —complete in every detail of the modern newspaper,—at a price ($1.00 a year) hitherto unheard of for an 8-page semi-weekly family journal. This is indeed a newspaper revolution—a revolution the benefits of which accrue wholly to the reader. The spirit of Free Press enterprise is ever alert to promote the interests and welfare of patrons.

SOMETHING TO REMEMBER:

1st.—The Twice-a-Week Free Press comprises 8 or more pages and is published every Tuesday and Friday morning in time for early outgoing trains.

2nd.—It is the largest and best Twice-a-Week in America and contains all the News, Markets, Literary Miscellany, etc., brought down to the hour of going to press.

3rd.—The Twice-a-Week Free Press will cost only ONE DOLLAR a year—104 newspapers for $1.00. Did you ever hear of so liberal a proposition?

4th.—Take your local paper for local news and The Twice-a-Week for general news. No other papers in the world will give you so much for so little money.

The hotel here is doing a large business under the management of George Exelby and its guests are loud in their praises of the meals provided, it being a mystery to some how George can set so good a table for the small price of 25 cents a meal, but Mr. Exelby is here to stay and will leave no stone unturned to make his patrons comfortable. We learn on good authority that the hotel will be enlarged in the spring and the feed and livery barn altered and improved to make room for the rapidly increasing business.

The remains of Arthur Beasley, second son of John Beasley, were brought home last Friday afternoon from the Wabash railroad hospital at Peru, Ind., where he had been for five weeks previous, suffering from an attack of typhoid pneumonia which, in the end, proved fatal. Last Wednesday morning his parents here received a telegram stating their son's dangerous illness, the first they were aware of it. His elder brother, William, left at once for Peru, remaining with him till the end came, Friday morning at 7 o'clock, and returning with his body the same day, the funeral, being held at the home Sunday at 1 p. m. Only one short year ago the deceased left home to shift for himself, going to South Milford, Ind. where he had been working as section hand up to his removal to the hospital. Thus it is that the young are often taken away in the embryo, as it were, of their life of usefulness. We extend to the bereaved family our heartfelt sympathy in this their loss of a dear son and brother.

OBITUARY.

Stella L. Hanford came to Tecumseh with her parents when four years of age and the family resided for about ten years on the farm now occupied by M. E. Conklin, afterward moving into the village. Her youth and early womanhood were passed in this city. She was one of the belles of Tecumseh and a great favorite in social circles. All who knew her respected and loved her and many a heart was made sad when she decided to seek a new home in a Western State. On the 10th. of January 1877 she married Mr. Augustus Blackman and her home was transferred to Georgetown, Col. She died in that city Nov. 6, 1893, after a painful and lingering illness, having been an invalid for nearly ten years. Her remains were brought to Tecumseh for burial by her father, Abraham Hanford, and deposited in the family lot by her mother's side on the 13th of November last.

"WANG"

Will be Produced in Jackson, the Receipts to be Devoted to Charitable Objects.

The great comic opera "Wang" which will appear at the Hibbard, Monday, Dec. 18, under the management of Mr, W. W. Todd, will without doubt draw an immense house. The play is one of the most popular of the sort presented in America. The efforts of Mr. Todd to give Jackson people an opportunity to see something first class will be appreciated. The net receipts of the entertainment will be devoted equally between the city poor and the woman's art building. Mr. Todd has selected Mr. W. A. Bennett to represent the art association, and will designate some prominent citizen engaged in charitable work to look after the interests of the poor of the city in settling of the house, etc.

A quantity of magnificently printed paper, depicting scenes enacted in the play, has arrived and will soon be displayed.

The price of seats on this occasion will range from $1.50 downward, but as the receipts will be devoted to charitable objects, people will gladly pay the price. Mr. Todd has been obliged to post several hundred dollars as a guarrantee in order to secure the attraction. He has leased the opera house for this occasion and will personally manage the entertainment. Already the gentleman has assurances from several citizens that they will take blocks of seats on the occasion of the presentation of "Wang."

IF PEOPLE ONLY KNEW

That the Mobile & Ohio Railroad runs through the best section of the South, where lands within a mile of the railroad are $3.00 an acre on long time, and improved farms are only $10 to $15 an acre, and that two farm crops or three vegetable crops are grown every year, each of which will net more dollars per acre than the same crop in the North; that the weather in summer is cooler, and in winter warmer, enabling the farmer to work in the field all the year; where one has better health, and gets more pleasure in living, makes a living easier and gets rich faster than he can in the north, there would be such a rush for these cheap homes as no other portion of America has ever seen.

The knowledge is spreading and the boom is coming. Prices will double every year. Now is the time to buy. Half fare excursions will leave St. Louis Dec. 12 and 19, and Jan. 9 and 16. Full information sent by E. E. Posey, Gen. Passenger Agt, Mobile and Ohio R. R., Mobile, Ala.

A CHILD ENJOYS

The pleasant flavor, gentle action and soothing effects of Syrup of Figs, when in need of a laxative, and if the father or mother be costive or bilious, the most gratifying results follow its use; so that it is the best family remedy known, and every family should have a bottle on hand.

A BAD BLAZE.

John J. Orr's Drug Store and Pharmacy Completely Ruined.

At three o'clock Tuesday morning nightwatch Lute Bates smelled smoke and after considerable difficulty located it in the drug store of John J. Orr and at once turned in an alarm. Some big hustling was done, the fire pressure put on to the water mains and soon a stream of water was turned into the interior of the burning store. The fire was burning fiercely and more hose was attached until three nozzles were in use and the store was literally swimming. By hard work and the splendid facilities afforded by the waterworks the fire was confined to the one store. With the wind blowing as it was and the start which the flames had got, the department would have had a picnic trying to stop the blaze with the fire engine. In fact it might have been burning yet, under the old system.

The stock represents a total loss, the stock and furniture being entirely destroyed. About half way back from the front door the floor is burned away and the stove, prescription case and counter went down cellar. The cases of perfume and toilet articles are only a confused mass of disreputable looking rubbish. The store was decorated with a kind of staff and the woodwork was cherry finished, but the fire cleaned the staff from the walls and gave the cherry a charcoal finish. Tom Lowry came very nearly being suffocated with the smoke.

It is thought the fire originated in the north end of the cellar although some think it possible that the stove is responsible and the theory of spontaneous combustion also has its advocates.

The store belongs to Waldo & Gould and is insured, damage nominal. Mr. Orr values his property at $4,500 on which there was $2100 insurance, $1800 being on the stock and $300 on the furniture and fixtures.

Mr. Orr had one of the best and most tastily arranged drug houses in town. The building was not large but was well filled, excellently displayed and well taken care of. Other than his regular drug trade Mr. Orr has acquired no small reputation in preparing patent medicines of his own for which he has a good sale. His store had been established but a few years yet he has established a trade second to none, and he is greatly sympathized with by his fellow business men. Doubtless as soon as the store can be cleaned out and repaired a new stock will be put in and the business pushed with old time vigor. Marsden's store, first door east was somewhat damaged.

Ed. Kirchgessner, assisted by Alva Spayde and Jim Boyd, removed the former's silverwear into the counter cases so they could be moved at a moment's notice. No one doubts that the water works paid for themselves Tuesday morning.

Special Offer to Farmers.

The Michigan Farmer offers its readers one of the best Agricultural, Live Stock and Family Journals in America, at the low price of only one dollar per year. It has recently changed hands and is now printed in 16-page form, on fine quality of paper, in convenient shape for reading, being pasted and trimmed like a book. Some of the best correspondents have been engaged for 1894, and the paper will be improved in every way as fast as possible. It is the the determination of the new proprietor to place their paper in the front rank and no expense or trouble will be spared to accomplish it.

Agents wanted in every neighborhood, to whom liberal commission will be given. Sample copies will be sent free to any address. Write for one at once and see for yourselves what a change has already been made. We will send the remainder of this year, '93, free to all who subscribe now. Address Michigan Farmer, Detroit, Mich.

THAT UGLY FEELING.

BITTER REMARKS ARE HEARD IN ALL PARTS OF THE CAPITAL.

The Tariff Bill Will Make Trouble—The Hawaiian Matter Creates Hard Feelings. Silver Wounds Are Still Unhealed—The President's Independent Methods.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14. —[Special.]—The general feeling prevalent in Washington at this time is decidedly an ugly one. Every day or two there is some outbreak of ill temper or of dissatisfaction in one or the other house of congress. What is said publicly serves only to indicate and not by any means to measure what is said privately. There is an ugly feeling about the tariff, a great many men not being satisfied with the details of the new bill, and almost as many more being dreadfully concerned about the provisions which are to be reported in the revenue bill. It is as certain as anything can be that there will be more or less trouble about getting the new tariff bill through congress. It will probably go through the house without much delay, for in that body the speaker and his lieutenants have learned how to ride over factious opposition and to cut off filibustering. But in the senate the shoe will pinch a good many weeks. The Democrats have but a small majority, and not all of the senators of that party are satisfied with the tariff bill which the ways and means committee has framed at the other end of the capitol. Before the bill is put through there will be a good many outbreaks of local, personal or other prejudice on the part of Democratic senators, while the Republicans will keep up a fire all the time. They are not likely to go to the extreme of filibustering, for they will certainly insist upon a very full debate. And a "full debate" in the senate means months of time consumed and broad acres of The Congressional Record filled with speeches and statistics.

All Round Ugliness.

If this were the only cause of the prevalent feeling of ugliness in the capital, the situation would not be so disagreeable. It is only one of the sores which cause irritation and give rise to naughty words and bitter remarks. More troublesome than anything else just now is the Hawaiian question. Readers of the newspapers cannot gain an adequate notion from the Washington dispatches of the state of feeling here with reference to that complication. The opposition to the administration policy in Hawaii is not confined to the men of one party. Already the debate in the senate has brought forth some exceedingly bitter speeches, and more are to follow. Senator Sherman's remark of a few days ago with reference to the policy of the president is taken as meaning that if the executive has used force in Honolulu without the consent of congress the Republicans will not stop short of impeachment proceedings. That would be heroic final indeed. Even the best friends of the administration now admit that the restoration policy was a mistake.

Aside from the merits of the question the general feeling in congress is one of dissatisfaction with the president. The senators in particular are loud in their complaints of the manner in which the president has treated them. They claim he failed to send them any information concerning the situation in Hawaii and his intentions with reference thereto though congress was in session after Commissioner Blount had made his report and while Mr. Willis was getting his instructions as to what he should do on his arrival in Honolulu. The congressional contention is that before taking such a serious step the president should have asked for some authority from the lawmaking branch of the government. If Mr. Cleveland were thin skinned, or prone to care much what senators and representatives say of him, he would be kept awake at nights if he could hear some of the remarks that are being made about him on the hill.

As to a Bond Issue.

There are other sources of irritation. The old silver trust left a great many wounds, which are not healed. All the silver men in both houses are still talking about the way in which they were tricked. They openly declare that the president had no right to use his power to coerce the legislative branch of the government. They recall what he said as much as they did last summer, or this fall, when a good many of them got only a wriggling chance to get even with the president when some measure came up in which he is specially interested. It is now pretty well conceded that the most determined fight in legislation, the issue between Democrat and Republican next year, will be between the silver men desiring the coinage of silver and the white metal men backing Cleveland and the whole administration. In the bad place before they will consent to the issue of bonds. It is generally a great mistake [illegible] store by the threats. We have had them before in Washington and they were rarely executed.

Certainly the president does not seem to be afraid of congress. If he had been he would have long since sent to congress a message suggesting the issue of bonds. The lawmakers of this city could not help seeing dispatches in the newspapers showing that the president appears to be eager to place congress in the attitude of making appropriations. It is not more than the president makes such appointments as he would make almost without regard to the wishes of senators and representatives. There was a case in point yesterday in the change in which the Vance controversy was settled. Senator Vance had indorsed a candidate for the position of collector of internal revenue in the Asheville district, and had given the appointment to another man. In one instance of this kind the president had nominated a man to whom no one had objection, and in the second instance of the president's independent methods. As soon as it became known that this was his last term in the White House and he is determined to have all the fun he can get out of it.

A Republican Still at the Head.

When you come to add to all the other causes of irritation the slowness of the president in making changes, as is illustrated by the fact that though Mr. Cleveland has been in office nearly a year the great government printing office, with its 3,200 employes, is still under the control of a Republican, the fact that some of the members of the cabinet are charged with out-Clevelanding Mr. Cleveland in their lack of appreciation of the deference to senators and representatives, and the third fact that the members of the president's party are inclined to be downcast over the political outlook and also to charge the trouble up to the account of the administration, it will be easy to understand that we have on our hands at the capital a great many uncomfortable, irritable and unsatisfied persons.

THE TIP ON WHISKY.

SOME OF OUR LAWMAKERS ARE OUT FOR THE DUST.

Why They Are Buying Up Whisky Trust Shares—But It May Not Materialize—A Case Where a Fool Killer Was Needed. How an Opportunity Was Embraced.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13. —[Special.]—For several days rumors have been rife of great speculative deals being made in Wall street, Cattle Feeders and Distillers' trust certificates being the article dealt in. A rumor has it senators, representatives and others who have been given the tip are buying whisky trust shares, and according to the current reports certain statesmen of both houses stand to win a large sum of money. The tip is that the ways and means committee will recommend an increase of the tax on whisky from 90 cents to $1.10 a gallon, though whether this is the precise figure, or the increase is to be more or less than 20 cents a gallon, no one appears to know. In fact, no one knows that there is to be any increase at all, but a great many people believe they have a straight tip, and on the strength of it are putting up money with their brokers. It is reported here that the members of the whisky trust were among the first to get news of the good fortune awaiting them, and that they have worked the market to the queen's taste. In order to be able to buy certificates at a price where they have so lightened the affairs of their concern and set rumors thereabout in circulation as to fear the stock.

While they were beating the price down their brokers were at work secretly picking up certificates for them in 1,000 and 5,000 share lots. If we may believe the reports current here, the managers of the whisky trust have given the tip to some of their friends, newspaper owners and others whom they wish to placate, and these favored persons are also in the market buying trust certificates.

The Whisky Tax.

If the tip proves to be a correct one, it will be an easy way to make money. If congress increases the whisky tax 15 or 20 cents per gallon, the price of whisky will advance just that much and the millions on millions of gallons which the trust now has in bond will be increased in value. The result would be a sharp advance in the specific value of whisky certificates, and the profits on speculative deals would be very handsome. But it should be remembered there is many a slip betwixt the whisky cup and the lip of the eager speculators. The ways and means committee may hit upon some other way in which to raise the necessary revenue. Or it may attempt to carry out a plan which your correspondent has been informed a majority of the committee have decided upon, and that is to declare in the new law that whisky now in bond must pay the increased tax the same as whisky now in process of manufacture. The whisky part of the new tariff law could be put into operation very quickly, as the law provides that the liquor will be drawn from bond for consumption must pay the new rate of tax that would exist were it not for speeding the whole affair. [illegible] still a question of constitutional law whether congress can raise the tax on whisky in bond. If an effort were made to settle this question in the courts, probably the matter would be carried to the supreme court, and whatever the decision might ultimately be the delay would shelter many of the castles in the air which certain unpatriotic persons have been building on the strength of their investment in whisky certificates.

Seeking Information.

The members of the ways and means committee have been more frightened present than this whisky tax matter. They have been besieged by friend and foe, by [illegible] organizations and by [illegible] to know what is to be done with whisky. Members of the committee have been [illegible] to know what is to be done with whisky. Members of the committee have been [illegible] to know what is to be done with whisky. AYER'S Sarsaparilla

Is superior to all other preparations claiming to be blood-purifiers. First of all, because the principal ingredient used in it is the extract of genuine Honduras sarsaparilla root, the variety richest in medicinal properties. Also, because the yellow dock, being raised expressly for the Company, is always fresh and of the very best kind. With equal discrimination and care, each of the other ingredients are selected and compounded. It is

HOW IT WAS WORKED ON SUSPECTS BY INSPECTOR BYRNES.

The Shrewd Catcher of Criminals Had a Way of Making the Guilty Ones Confess. How McGloin Was Brought to Time and Increased the Rope Collection.

Scenes—intense, dramatic, horrible beyond conception, to the men who are compelled by a subtle force, a moral magnetism, to convict themselves with their own uncontrollable words—are not infrequent at police headquarters.

An interesting case was that of McGloin, a tough who killed a Frenchman. There was little positive evidence against him. Everything was suppositious, but Thomas Byrnes' suppositions in matters of that kind are likely to be not far from right. He was reasonably certain that McGloin was guilty, and that there had been three witnesses of the crime. The names and whereabouts of these probable witnesses he knew. McGloin had also pawned a pistol. Byrnes guessed that it was the pistol with which the crime had been committed. But he had not a particle of proof of any one of these things.

One day, however, he had McGloin and the three other men arrested, taking care that no one of the quartet should know that the others had been captured, giving no one of them an inkling of why he had been taken into custody. This also occurred during Byrnes' term as inspector. He occupied the room now used by Inspector McLaughlin, and around its walls in those days were the cases of implements and mementoes of crime now on exhibition in the museum across the hall. Into this room, where, as he entered, a tall glass case full of the ropes and black caps which had figured in the city's executions stared him in the face, McGloin was led. Neither the surroundings nor the fact that he was to be closeted with the famous police official worried him, however. He was full of the bravado of the "tough."

One of the windows of this room looks out upon the courtyard in the center of the building. Inspector Byrnes placed a chair so that its back was close against this window, and another facing it, with only room for knees between it and the casing. To the latter chair McGloin was led. As he sat there he had a full view of the courtyard. Byrnes sat in the other chair, with his back to it. Close on Byrnes' right was a desk.

Thus arranged, the plot began to unfold. For 10 minutes the inspector talked earnestly to the prisoner without good result. Then he touched a bell. The door of the room opened, and an obsequious Jew entered, and approaching the desk laid on it a pistol. McGloin's attention was attracted by the noise of the newcomer, and he turned to see the pistol with which he had killed the Frenchman and the pawnbroker to whom he had pledged it. Without a word, but keeping his eyes on McGloin's, the Jew backed out of the room. It was a good deal of a shock to McGloin, but not enough to break down his bravado.

"What in —— does this mean?" he demanded loudly.

"Oh, nothing," replied the inspector nonchalantly. "It is merely a pistol I wanted to see." Then he picked it up. "Handsome weapon, isn't it, McGloin? Might kill a man, eh?"

Then, laying the pistol down again, the inspector went on calmly talking about the crime. McGloin, beginning to feel the mystery, the dramatic force of it all, was getting nervous. He looked for a moment at the inspector, but one long, steady, searching glance from those penetrating eyes made him quickly turn away and direct his gaze out of the window into the courtyard again. Thus relieved of the strain of seeing disagreeable things, he began to regain his self possession. "A man named Barker saw that crime committed," said the inspector quietly. McGloin started a trifle at hearing the name. Then Byrnes saw his face pale, and his mouth twitch, and knew that Barker was being led across the yard between two officers, and that McGloin was watching them. Even this did not break McGloin down, however. Five minutes later, though, when Flint, the second witness, was marched between two bluecoats across the court, he started almost from his chair. "Sit still, McGloin," said Byrnes impassively. "Another of those witnesses I spoke about was named Flint." From that time on McGloin weakened. Then, having spoken about Flint's connection with the crime, Byrnes said, a few minutes later, "And the third witness, McGloin, was Henry Farley." As the words left Byrnes' lips Farley began a slow progress across the yard. Byrnes had worked the third degree. McGloin yielded all at once. With a cry of terror, he literally sprang from his chair, and falling to his knees clasped Byrnes about his legs, crying like a child, confessing and begging the inspector not to have him hanged. His prayer was not granted, however. He was executed a year later in the Tombs yard, and the three witnesses were sent to state prison for 12 years each. Among those rope ends and black caps in that glass case now is one bearing on a bit of cardboard the name "McGloin."—New York Press.

Humbert's Civil List.

The civil list or salary of King Humbert of Italy is the largest of all those paid by European nations to their respective sovereigns. This is so much more remarkable because Italian finances are at the lowest ebb. Humbert's civil list is fixed annually at 14,500,000 francs—nearly $3,000,000. The European sovereigns who receive the highest pay below that of Humbert are Emperor William of Germany, with a civil list of 12,000,000 francs, and Queen Victoria, with about 9,000,000. —New York Tribune.

ANACREONTIC.

I'd be the fruit on yonder vine
That bends its luscious purple tips
To tempt that liquid eye of thine
And melt upon thy rosy lips.

Or, better still, some favored rose
By thee beloved, by thee caressed,
That I might on thy breast repose
An hour and die; but, oh, how blest?

The Action of Chloroform.

The impression held by Dr. George F. Shrady as to the greater safety of chloroform in young people, relatively, than in old, is of note in connection with the case of a boy patient, about 9 years of age, whom he saw in consultation with two other physicians, and who was to undergo an exploratory operation for a wound of the head sustained in falling down stairs. He passed very easily under chloroform anæsthesia, when suddenly he ceased breathing, the eyes became glassy, and death pallor quickly spread over his face. Bystanders said the boy was dead, and Dr. Shrady was ready to express the same opinion, but concluded to institute artificial respiration at once, and continued it 20 minutes before obtaining any sign of life—respiration had entirely ceased, the radial pulse could not be felt, and the only evidence of life had been a few convulsive heart beats.

Suspension by the feet was tried as well as the inhalation of nitrate of amyl. The case appeared desperate, and though tempted repeatedly to abandon his efforts Dr. Shrady was finally rewarded by the return of consciousness. This was his first unpleasant experience with chloroform, although constantly on the lookout for it. It demonstrated in a striking manner the rapidity and force of its action at a time when danger was perhaps least expected. The patient's heart was sound, the chloroform of guaranteed purity, and every precaution observed.—New York Tribune.

Raining Cats and Dogs.

Many explanations have been given of the origin of the expression "raining cats and dogs." One is that it is a perversion of the French "catadoupe"—a waterfall—"it is raining a catadoupes," or cataracts. Another explanation is that the male blossoms of the willow tree, which are used on Palm Sunday to represent the branches of palm, were called "cats and dogs" in some parts of England, where they increase rapidly after a few warm April showers, and the belief prevailed that the rain brought them.

Others trace the saying to northern mythology, in which the cat is said to have great influence on the weather, and sailors still have a saying, "The cat has a gale of wind in her tail," when she is unusually frisky. Witches that rode upon the storms were said to assume the form of cats, and the stormy northwest wind is called "the cat's nose" in the Hartz mountains even at the present day. Then the dog is a symbol of wind, which in old German pictures is figured as the head of a dog or wolf from which blasts issue. The cat, therefore, symbolizes a downpour of rain; the dog, strong gusts of wind, which accompany it, and so a rain "of cats and dogs" is a heavy rain with wind.—Brooklyn Eagle.

The Spit Snake.

There is a snake belonging to the small family caniside, inhabiting Africa, that is said to have the power of ejecting its vepom to a short distance. This snake is called by the Dutch Boers "spuw slang," or spit snake. When this snake erects its teeth, the pressure of the maxillary bone on the gland causes the venom to flow in drops, and it may be quite possible that by discharging air from its mouth the poison may be blown some distance. But this information and observation of these Dutchmen may be taken cum grano salis, or we might fall into the same errors as the ancient Munchausen, Pliny the elder.—New York Times.

The empress dowager of China celebrated her sixtieth birthday recently in the traditional manner of her country. Over 1,000,000 pieces of red silk, each 40 feet long and 3 feet wide, were made in the imperial factories, to be used in decorating the streets of Peking for this occasion.

A Steel Windmill and Steel Tower every 3 minutes. These figures tell the story of the ever-growing, ever-going, everlasting Steel Aermotor. Where one goes others follow, and we take the Country.

Thoroughbred, we were unable to make half the 20,049 Aermotors in '91. Order after order piled in so fast that we could not keep up with the demand, but now we have unlimited capacity in our plant and are prepared promptly to fill all orders in any quantity in every habitable portion of the globe.

Are you curious to know how the Aermotor Co. has been able to do it? The explanation is easy to make—many times as many windmills as all other makers combined? Here we are to originate the Steel Wheel, the Steel Fixed Tower, the Steel Tilting Tower!

1st. We commenced in a field in which there had been no competition, and in which we have since remained without competitors, and have thus been able to devote our entire attention to the improvement of our own goods.

2d. Before commencing manufacture, exhaustive calculations and experiments were made by a skilled mechanical engineer, in which over $5,000 dynamometer tests were made on 60 different forms of wheels, propelled by artificial and therefore uniform wind, which settled finally many questions relating to the proper speed of wheel, the best form, angle, curvature and amount of sail surface, the relations of air to solidity, the proportion in which such as heavy wooden arms, obstructions before the wheel, as in the vaneless mill, and many other matters, though not less important questions. These investigations proved that the power of the best wind wheels could be doubled, and the AERMOTOR daily demonstrates it has been done.

3d. To the liberal policy of the Aermotor Co. that guarantees its goods satisfactory or pay freight both ways, and to the enormous output of its factory, which enables it to furnish the best article at less than the poorest is sold for, we add the most perfect bearings—the only bearings that will run an exhaustive revision of the Aermotor and Towers.

If you want a strong, stiff, Steel Fixed Tower, self-regulating wheel, that runs in oil, and will last a lifetime, and the lowest priced Steel Tilting Tower and the Wheel that runs in oil, and will last a lifetime, that costs you less than wood will last, at the same time, (The Steel Aermotor) or if you want a Geared Aermotor, Steel, grind, feed, pump, saw wood, run any machine, and saw wood, that does the work of a horse, at the cost of one $100 with the additional patented mutual shaving expansion saw table, that will saw 4 cords per day, and work to the AERMOTOR CO., 12th and Rockwell Sts., Chicago, or 2500 Market St., San Francisco.

D'ARCY'S MAGNETIC OINTMENT.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

All Sores, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Burns, Sore Throat, Lameness, Rheumatism, Piles, Inflammation of Lungs and Bowels, Bronchitis, Croup, Salt Rheum, Chilblains, Affection of the Spine, Erysipelas, Nervous Irritation, and all disorders attendant with Inflammation.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years.

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should be perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

BOSTON'S GREAT REVIEW

A Backward and Forward Glance. The Arena Publishing Co.

The November Arena, which lies before us, is strong, able and invigorating. It closes the eighth volume of this review, whose career has been so remarkable, and whose influence has grown to be a potent force in our country. The superb courage, the catholicity of spirit and the cordiality with which it has received the advance guard among the world's thinkers finds no parallel in the history of magazine literature. While employing talent fully as learned and scholarly as that represented in any other great review, it has as a rule avoided discussions of problems not vital in character, while its influence has always been thrown against class privileges, entrenched injustice and outgrown ideas. A glance over the index for the past year reveals a coterie of contributors which it would be difficult to surpass in any review published in the English-speaking tongue.

Among those who have written for its pages during the past 12 months are such leaders of thought and eminent scholars as Rev. M. J. Savage, Rabbi Solomon Schindler, Sir Edwin Arnold, Bishop L. L. Spaulding, Rev. Lyman Abbott, Prof. W. J. Rolfe, Helen Campbell, Alfred Russell Wallace, D. C. L., Dr. J. F. Furnivall, Prof. David Swing, Hamlin Garland, Rev. George C. Lorimer, W. D. McCracken, A. M., the Marquise of Lorne, Prof. J. R. Buchanan, Rev. John W. Chadwick, O. B. Frothingham, Henry George, President J. M. Coulter of Indiana University, Rev. Marion D. Shutter, D.D., United States Senator W. M. Stewart, Prof. N. S. Shaler, Edmund Gosse, Prof. Orello Cone, D. D., Louise Chandler Moulton, Gerald Massey, Ignatius Donnelly, Prof. A. E. Dolbear, Edmund C. Steadman, the late Richard Proctor, Henry Irving, Henry Wood, Napoleon Ney, Louise Frechette etc., etc.

The announcements for next year are even more inviting, if possible, than those made before. Among the great features of the Arena for 1894 will be a series of six papers on the "Ascent of Life" by Stinson Jarvis. They will take up the evolution theory where Darwin dropped it, and proceed in a search for the soul of man in a strictly scientific manner. The editor of the Arena predicts that this work will create a pronounced sensation, and will be a contribution of great value to the modern critical literature. Another brilliant feature of the Arena for 1894 will be a series of papers setting forth the "Aims and Objects of the Higher Criticism by leading orthodox scholars of Europe and America who stand with Prof. Briggs. The opening paper will appear in the December Arena.

It is written by the great Oxford professor, Dr. William Sanday, LL.D., D. D., A. M., who is recognized as one of the most profound students of sacred literature in England. Dr. Sanday will be followed by R. F. Horton, A.M., the eminent author and lecturer, who was called from London to deliver a course of lectures at Yale College the past winter on the "Higher Criticism." A third paper has been prepared for this series by Rev Washington Gladden, D. D., and others will follow by scholars equally eminent. A third feature will be a series of papers on "Indian Occultism," by Heinrich Hensoldt, Ph. D., German scientist who had spent 10 years in Ceylon, India, Thibet, and Burmah. The opening of this series will appear in the December Arena; it is entitled "The Wonders of Hindoo Magic."

Vital political, economic and social problems will appear in the following series embracing discussions by the most able and live thinkers of the age. 1. Short talks on the Land Question embracing 12 short papers on this great problem by leading specialists. 2. Ideal Republican Measures, embracing a series of papers on the Initiative, Referendum and Proportional Representation. 3. The Nervous and Arterial Systems of the State, a series of papers by Rabbi Solomon Schindler and other leading thinkers on governmental control of railways. 4. The present aspect of the Money Question, the light of European and American history, a number of brilliant papers by students of finance. 5. The Slums of Our Great Cities and how to abolish them.

Another series of papers will deal with the Civilization of Tomorrow, in which hereditary and prenatural influences and early environment will be ably discussed. Popular papers on Emergency Surgery, by a leading Massachusetts physician and surgeon. Psychic Science and progress in the real of Physical Science will receive attention from experts. Among other attractions are a series of short papers by Rev. M. J. Savage on Our Latter Day Poets. Short stories, brief biographies, portraits of leading thinkers and critical reviews of leading books of the day will be the features of the Arena for 1894.

In a critical editorial which appeared in the Toronto Sunday World for Oct. 1, 1893, the writer observes: "Boston is the head and centre of American literature, and the Arena is known as the leader of Boston's thought." The writer might have broadened his limit, for in fact the Arena leads the advance column of American thought in the realm of vital present day problems. The publishers announce a magnificent premium album, containing portraits of prominent thinkers, which will be given to every subscriber whose subscription is received after Oct. 1, 1893. The announcements made indicate that the Arena for next year will be indispensable to those who wish to be in touch with the world's best thought.—Boston Traveler.

ABSOLUTELY PURE

AN ODD REGULATION.

HOW THE HOUSE OF COMMONS GETS MEMBERS TO PRAYERS.

Piety Not Always the Incentive to Punctuality—Spurred by the Desire to Sit During the Day's Proceedings—The Ceremonial of Opening the House.

The house of commons is unique among the legislatures of the world in having no complete accommodation for its members. There are altogether 670 members of the house, and there are exactly 430 seats, of which only 300 are on the floor. The speaker takes the chair at 3 o'clock, except on Wednesdays, and unless the house has agreed to what are called "morning sittings," which begin at 2 o'clock. Three o'clock is sufficiently late in the afternoon, judging by the example of other legislatures, but it is too early for the men of business, the practicing lawyers and the men of fashion, who still form so large a factor in the membership of parliament. It is rarely therefore that there are more than a few members in attendance at that hour. Another reason for this abstension may be that this is the hour of devotion. Each sitting of the house is begun by the solemn reading of prayers by the speaker's chaplain, at present the well known Archdeacon Farrar. Those who attend prayers reap an immediate and earthly reward. On the large table that stands in front of the speaker's chair there is a box which contains a number of cards with the word "Prayers" printed upon them.

The member who has attended prayers writes his name on this card and thereafter places it in the small slot which is at the back of each seat in the house; and for that particular evening that seat is his. He may leave the seat for hours, but he is entitled to it whenever he returns and can expel any person who may have taken it during his absence. There are only two classes of persons in the house who have any settled rights with regard to seats. The front bench on the right hand side of the speaker's chair is called the treasury bench, and on this sit the various members of the existing administration. The bench immediately opposite is called the front opposition bench, and on this sit the members of the previous administration.

There are, it will be thus easily understood, two peculiarities under these circumstances about the attendance at prayers. First, the gentlemen usually present are not always those most distinguished for their piety. The caustic editor of Truth has taken in recent years to laying the foundation stones of nonconformist places of worship, but nobody would be less likely to set up a claim for special piety than Mr. Labouchere. Nevertheless, every night of the week Mr. Labouchere listens with pious attention to the ministrations of the chaplain. The secret reason is that the first seat on the front bench below the gangway is a place peculiarly well suited for the guerrilla that is ever on the watch for the moment to make an onslaught on a wicked administration, and Mr. Labouchere, as the chief of the guerrillas, is especially fond of this seat and has occupied it for years. This incumbency, though sanctified by so many years of usage, has still to be won by regular attendance at every evening's prayers. The rule is inflexible, except in the cases already mentioned, that a seat can be held only for one night, and that then it shall be won by attendance at prayers. The second peculiarity is that the men who are most in want of the assistance of prayers, as having the heaviest responsibility upon their shoulders—the members of the administration and the leaders of parties—are always conspicuously absent.

Just before prayers are begun the procession of the speaker to his place in the house takes place. Enough of the old ceremonial still exists to make this a quaint and interesting spectacle. The speaker still wears the large, full bottomed wig of state occasions, is dressed in a short tailed coat, covered by a sweeping robe, wears knee breeches and low shoes with large buckles. Behind and before him is a small cohort of attendants—the sergeant-at-arms bearing the mace, the chaplain with prayerbook in hand, the trainbearer holding up the train and two or three other attendants, the exact purpose of whom it is impossible to tell beyond the desire to make the procession more imposing in point of numbers. The sergeant-at-arms, like the speaker, is arrayed in knee breeches, with low shoes. He carries a sword by his side, but is allowed to dispense with the wig. The ceremonial is made more imposing by the policemen and attendants, who shout along the corridors which separate the speaker's house from the house of commons: "Speaker! Speaker!" a shout which has a strange, indefinable effect, however often heard, and stirs the blood somewhat as the dreams of De Quincey were moved by the recollection of the Roman consul passing over the Appian way. It sounds like a reminiscence and momentary embodiment of all the fierce struggle, oratorial triumphs, tragic and world shaking events which are associated with the history of the august parliament of Great Britain.

When the speaker reaches the lobby, the chief of the police force attached to the house repeats the cry, "Speaker!" with the additional words, "Hats off, strangers," and it is rarely that the lobby, however noisy and tumultuous before, does not fall into a certain timid silence as this black, solemn and picturesque group sweeps by.

When the speaker enters the house, every member rises from his seat. The speaker bows two or three times as he walks up the floor, and some of the country gentlemen and the more ceremonious members of the house bow at the same time.—Thomas Power O'Connor in Harper's Magazine.

FOOTBALL IN MALAY.

A Game That Might Give Our Own Players a Few Pointers.

Among the Malays football has been in existence from time immemorial, but it is with them essentially a game, as, for instance, battledoor and shuttlecock is with us, and it is not a contest. The football is rather smaller than that used at Eton and is made of wicker work. Those who join in the game arrange themselves in a wide circle and kick the ball from one to another with the inside, or, at times, with the flat of the foot. The object of the players is to keep the ball passing about without its ever touching the ground or the hand of any one. Great dexterity is shown in this performance, and the ball is usually kicked to a very respectable height. There seems to be no penalty exacted from a player who may kick the ball badly or fail to kick it at all.

We had our own game of football, and the Dutchmen, assisted by two members of our team, scored two goals to our four. During the game the natives collected in still greater numbers, and at its termination they begged us to allow them to have a game among themselves. To this we assented, and two of us acted as captains of the sides, numbering about 30 players apiece, most of whom stripped to the "sarong," and wrapped it round their loins, leaving the rest of their bodies bare.

The ball was started, and then followed one of the most extraordinary games of football that has ever been seen. The game soon ceased to be a game at all and became a veritable battle.

As when a sort of lusty shepherds try
Their force at football, care of victory
Makes them salute so rudely, breast to breast,
That their encounter seemed too rough for jest,

Hands, arms and even teeth, were used on all sides, blood flowed freely, and scattered about the field were soon to be seen the wounded, I might almost say, the slain. As some fell exhausted to the ground they were removed, and their places in the fray were taken by others, who rushed forth eagerly from the crowd of spectators.

Shouts of victory and groans of defeat rent the air, and at length things became so serious that the two captains were obliged to seize upon the ball and bolt with it to the pavilion. The game thus came to an end, and the players withdrew to their homes, with the excited crowd following at their heels. This must have been regarded as a red letter day by the native community of Medan, and the visit of the "Orange Puteh" (Englishmen) will be remembered among them for some time to come. We received a hint next morning from the authorities that the natives must not be allowed to take part in our games.—Fortnightly Review.

To Benefit Barmaids.

A movement is on foot in England, fostered by a group of noble ladies interested in the subject, to protect barmaids as to their hours of labor. It is estimated that there are 120,000 young women in London in licensed houses who work from 15 to 18 hours a day on weekdays and from seven to nine hours on Sundays, with one Sunday off in each month. Surely when so much is said about an eight hour day for men these young women ought not to be forgotten. They find a haven of rest in their brief intervals of leisure at the Morley rooms, established by the late Mr. Samuel Morley and now under the superintendence of Miss C. M. Gough. Here barmaids out of work can stay, paying a very small sum for board and lodging. But the social part of the work is the most valuable. Barmaids are brought into contact with ladies of education and refinement. The rooms are used for reading, writing, music, conversation, rest and advice, and books are lent from an excellent library.—London Truth.

Butler Took the Case.

"I had a important law case on," said a Wakefield gentleman. "I knew no one could win that case for me but Ben Butler. He was in Washington at the time. I went to Washington, and after hard scrabbling for two days got an audience with him. He said he wouldn't take my case for $1,000 a day. He had more work on his hands now than he could attend to, and he went about his work right then.

"'General,' I said, 'I was born in the same town with you.'

"He grunted, but wasn't otherwise affected that I could see.

"'Do you remember little Miss ——? And you remember the boy who used to send notes to her, and the boy who used to take them? I am the boy who took the notes.'

"'And I am the boy who sent them,' said the general. He held out his hand. 'I guess I'll take your case, after all,' he said, and he did and won it."—Boston Globe.

Dream Warning of Death.

There is a family well known in literary circles in New York of which one member, an old lady, has had 12 or 13 repetitions of a dream that she was carrying a child a long and weary distance up hills and over rough paths. Whenever the dream occurs, some member of the family dies shortly afterward. It is not connected with previous knowledge of ill health, for in one of these instances the death has been that of a person supposed to be perfectly healthy, sitting at his study table at work, and carried off quickly by a stroke of apoplexy. The last instance of this dream was just before the death of a well known newspaper man in this city last winter.—Chicago Post.

The Tecumseh Herald.

Issued Every Thursday Morning.

SOME OF OUR ADVERTISERS.

An enumeration of the advertisers represented in this issue of the HERALD would make a very full and almost complete business directory of Tecumseh. The business firms that are not represented in some manner in these columns are very few indeed, and a large majority of the delinquents this month are occasional advertisers at other seasons of the year. It occurs to us that it would be a good scheme to introduce some of them personally to our readers this week and next. We will begin with the first page and take them seriatim.

Anderson & Co.—It seems almost superfluous to introduce them, for every man, woman and child in Northern Lenawee County knows where their big triple store is located, and we venture to say that every woman in Northern Lenawee has traded there more or less during the past five years. This firm has become noted for their extensive sales and liberal dealing, not only at home but throughout this section of the state. The house never had a better trade than now and it is constantly increasing.

Adamson Bros., the proprietors of the red banner jewelry store, is one of our old reliable firms, which has stood the test of years. They are both men of long experience in the jewelry business, and also men of absolute probity. What they say about the worth of a watch, precious stone or other article of jewelry can be implicitly depended upon. They deal extensively in books and stationery. This house is considered one of our best business firms.

Geo. Heesen is one of Tecumseh's old land marks. But few men on Chicago street have been in business longer than he. He began selling clothing in the same store he now occupies away back before the war, and he has probably clothed more people in the vicinity of Tecumseh than any other dealer. He carries a well assorted stock which his long experience enables him to do, and his prices are always right.

Lenardson Bros., though not a Tecumseh firm proper, belong in this neck o' words and they believe in the efficacy of printers' ink. They occupy a large double store at Britton, carry an extensive miscellaneous stock and are justly regarded as the leading firm in the bustling village east of us. They are both young men of fine business qualifications, in the prime of life, and a prosperous business future lies before them.

McCann Brothers, the successors of Strong & McNair in the clothing trade, although one of our latest firms, have already gained an enviable reputation as superior business men. They have one of the best locations in the village and keep at least of the times in the clothing trade. They are both young men and hustlers, and are a decided acquisition to our business circles. From the fine trade they have already received, a prosperous future seems assured to them.

D. L. Whitenack & Co., need no introduction to our readers. Mr. John Whitenack, the founder of this house, began selling stoves to the people of this section away back in the war times and the present manager of the business, Delos Whitenack, has been connected with the house from that day to this. The firm has always enjoyed a large trade and has been regarded as one of our solidest business houses. Within the last three years they have built up an extensive trade in illuminating oils.

Two or three attempts have been made within the past twenty years to give Tecumseh a music store, but they all resulted in failure until E. M. Coller put his hand to the helm. Mr. Coller combines the musical knowledge and the business tact to make his venture successful and he is working up a fine trade. He does not carry a large stock, but one that is carefully selected and exactly adapted to this market. He deserves success and is achieving it.

This is a good stopping place, as it brings us to the supplement sheet, to which we shall direct our attention next week.

THE BIRDS OF NORTH AMERICA.

In connection with the foregoing report of our Ornithological Chapter, it is only right to call the attention of all lovers of birds to the magnificent work now being issued by the Natural Science Association of America, and entitled "The Birds of North America." Edition limited to 1,000. It is emphatically an original work, original in design and execution, and whether in letter press, illustrations or price, it is unapproached by anything of the kind in existance. It is recommended by the highest scientific, ecclesiastic and educational authority as being the most attractive, meritorious, pure and ennobling exporition of our ornithology yet given to the public. Dr. Elliott Coues, author of "Birds of the North-West," says: "It is a really notable work." Prof. C. J. Maynard, author of the "Birds of Eastern North America," says: "It contains the best pictures of the species which I have ever seen." Thos. G. Gentry, author of "Life Histories of Birds," and "Nests and Eggs of Birds of the United States," says: "It is the cheapest and best publication on ornithology in this country. The drawings are of a very high order, and rivals in beauty of design and finish the more costly works published abroad or in this country. It should be found in our homes and in libraries generally." And, according to Dr. Theodore Gill, a member of the National Academy of Sciences, "It is not only a meritorious volume, but is altogether so handsome as to make it a very appropriate presentation book or ornament for the family table." It is an imperial quarto volume of engraved figures of all our species, artistically reproduced, true in all hues of color to their natural plumage and botanical surroundings. It also includes a copious text description of their habits and characteristics, and embracing in general the observations made by the most eminent writers on ornithology, and a systematic table, arranged according to the classification adopted by the American Ornithologists' Union, includes all the additions and corrections of our North American species which have been made to date, with an index to page, plate and figure of each species according to the A. O. U. number. It is illustrated with one hundred and nineteen full page colored plates, each representing from one to thirty or more species. It is the finest book on American birds issued since Audubon, and is pronounced by some authorities surperior to that now rare and costly work. It is issued in half and full bindings, Russia, seal, or morocco, at the net price of $40 and $45 respectively; but in response to a special letter, the association authorized me to say that a substantial discount will be made to such of our A. A. members and others as are working naturalists. We commend this work especially to members of the Wilson Ornithological Chapter. It is also a very useful and appropriate addition to the home and reference library, and for presentation purposes generally. Address regarding it, the Natural Science Association, 114 Fifth Avenue, New York, N. Y. Sample of plates and text can be had by sending twenty-five cents in postage stamps.

Are You Ambitious?

Especially, are you an ambitious woman anxious to make a career for yourself? Then you will be more than interested in "The Road to Fame or Fortune," published in Demorest's Family Magazine for December, which is a faithful chronicle of how ambitious girls desirous of becoming successful business women live and labor in New York, giving suggestions and valuable information that cannot fail to be of inestimable benefit to all talented and ambitious girls. And this is an ideal Christmas number, also. The lovely water color "Did Santa Claus Bring You?" will appeal to everyone, young or old. "Christmas Eve at Bethlehem," with its numerous illustrations, takes one back to the first Christmas Eve and tells how the traditions are preserved and what ceremonies are observed at the present day. There are two splendid Christmas stories splendidly illustrated; "An Excursion to the Land of Dolls," also illustrated, will interest all little maidens who love their dolls; there is a charming Christmas play, "The Prodigal," which will afford most timely entertainment: a very beautiful Christmas carol with original words and music, arranged so that it is appropriate for church, school, or the home circle; there are numberless suggestions for Christmas gifts; the many departments are full to overflowing with good things and everyone who loves babies will be charmed with the portraits of nearly a hundred who are competitors for the "Baby Prize," offered by this Magazine. Indeed, the December number is a generous twenty cents' worth; but it is only a fair sample of what is furnished twelve times a year for $2.00. Published by W. Jennings Demorest, 15 East 14th St., N. Y.

Special Offer to Farmers.

The Street Singer's Christmas

It had been snowing all day, intense cold had succeeded the storm, and the stars, shining brightly in the clear sky, looked down on the good old town of Nuremberg. It was a beautiful winter night, and although curfew hour had passed the lights still glistened through the small diamond-shaped window panes in the houses, and the church bells rang out loud and clear.

The people were coming out of their dwellings and walking slowly but cheerfully along the streets, not seeming to mind the crisp cold nor the deep snow under their feet. There were old women leaning on their sticks; little children holding their mothers' hands; rich merchants with their families, accompanied by apprentices and servants; grand ladies preceded by pages who carried the prayer-books; young students frolicking in the snow. There was a murmur of voices, a rustling of garments, the sounds of doors opening and shutting, mingled with laughter and merry shouting.

THE PEOPLE WERE COMING OUT OF THEIR DWELLINGS.

Some of the groups were provided with lanterns that gleamed like great fireflies with the movements of the bearers and cast golden rays upon the snow. These lanterns were a very necessary precaution, indeed, for the condition of the streets in the good city of Nuremberg was not all that could be desired in the year of grace 1500.

The throng of people had passed on and the voices of the bells had become mere reverberations, when a little girl about eight years old appeared in the principal street, which was now silent and deserted. She was all alone and looked so small as she walked fearlessly along, taking short steps so as not to slip on the hard glistening snow, and singing in a soft voice, made a little tremulous by the sharp cold, an old Christmas hymn about the angels, Bethlehem, and a child asleep in a manger.

Suddenly she stopped, uttered a cry of dismay, and falling on her knees, began searching for something in the snow. She was evidently unsuccessful, however, for her sighs changed to tears, and her grief increased until it found vent in sobs.

"My money!" she cried, "my poor groschen; O dear Infant Jesus, bring me back my groschen!"

Like an answer to her prayer there sounded not far off a strange sweet melody, and she dried her eyes suddenly and looked about, half expecting to see an angel, for she thought the music must have come from heaven, so beautiful it was!

But soon she perceived a figure without wings, harp or halo, a lad about 15 years old, dressed unlike any one in Nuremberg, with dark blue breeches, a short cloak on his shoulders, and a little red cap on his black hair. He carried a musical instrument and touched the strings as he glanced up at a house where a light was gleaming. It was the home of a rich merchant, and a lantern swung from above the doorway, and this light had attracted the young musician. When he had played a few chords on his lute he sang, and the little girl remembering the guide of young Tobias who had seemed but a simple traveler, began to think that the singer was indeed an angel. He had stopped before the house of Madame Alcyse Wischen, who was dying of consumption, and such a good, pious soul that God might well spare one of his angels to tell her about that paradise which she was soon to see! The child did not understand the singer's words, and feeling sure that he was using the language of heaven she threw herself at his feet, clasped her hands, and raised her eyes entreatingly to his face.

"Good angel, I pray thee," she cried, "help me to find my groschen. I beg thee in the name of the Infant Jesus!"

"Thy groschen, little one; what sayest thou?" he answered, speaking with a strange accent. "Why dost thou call me thy good angel—me, a poor Italian singer?"

"Is that true?" she asked, still in doubt.

"Indeed yes," he answered. "I saw a light in this fine house, and thought that if I sang I might be offered a night's shelter, but all seems to be silent."

"Every one but the sick lady and her servant has gone to church," explained the little girl; and her hearer added:

"Then I shall go there, too; and what wilt thou do?"

At this question the child, remembering her loss, began to cry again, and the lad took her hand in his and, stroking it, asked gently:

"What is the trouble, little one? Tell me, and if I can help you I will. There is so much sorrow in the world for every one that I always like to help other people carry theirs." He smiled cheerily as he spoke, and the child answered:

"I have lost my money, my groschen. We never have anything nice for supper, but because it is Christmas time, my mother gave me the money to buy a sausage and an apple-pie, but I have dropped my groschen in the snow; we have no more, and now we can have no Christmas supper."

"Where did you drop it?" asked her listener, and when she pointed to the spot, he knelt down and began turning over the snow. His back was turned toward the child when he gave a cry of triumph and held up a coin in his fingers.

"Oh, you must be an angel," cried the little girl joyfully. And he added with a smile:

"A Florentine angel, then. My name is Maso Napone—remember it, and pray for me sometimes, little one. Now good-by. Go buy your supper."

"Not until I have been to the midnight mass," replied the girl. "My mother is ill, so I must go and pray for her."

"Then I will go with you," said Maso, taking her hand. "What is your name?"

"Christine Dachs. My mother is the Widow Gudule."

"Poor little thing! Do you remember your father?"

"Perfectly. He used to hush me to sleep by the fire, every night, and sometimes I seem to feel his arms round me still. Ah, how well he loved me!"

"Your mother has to work!"

"Yes, she does beautiful embroidery. I do a little of it, but I have not learned to work very well yet. Pretty soon I shall do it better, and then mamma can rest. She is often tired and weak, and when she cannot work we have no money."

"I am all alone in this world," said the youth when Christine stopped speaking. "I have no parents, no money, no home. My father's creditors took everything except my lute, so I left Florence, and now I earn a little money by singing in the streets, but I often have to sleep in the open air, and without supper. But I am very strong, so I do not mind it, and I have many happy hours. Beautiful ladies call me into their houses to sing to their guests, and then I am well treated and well fed. One lady gave me a warm cloak and a purse full of money. At other times, though, I have only the poor people to listen to me. They have nothing to pay me with, so I sing to give them pleasure."

The little girl nodded approvingly, as if such conduct were the most natural in the world, and at that moment she and her companion reached the door of the church.

As they entered, Maso doffed his hat reverentially, dipped his fingers into the holy-water font and touched them to Christine's. Then the two children knelt down in the shadow of a great pillar which rose to the high arched roof. At the end of the nave stood the altar, gleaming with wax-lights and flooded with the rising incense; priests, acolytes, and choristers were engaged with the Christmas service, and one could see the fluttering white surplices, and the glitter of gold and precious stones on copes and stoles. The whole congregation joined in singing the carols, and the weak broken voices of the aged, the silvery ones of the children, the sweet tones of the maidens, the clear high notes of the young men, and the strong deep ones of their elders combined to produce harmonies both powerful and sweet. Maso could not keep silence; suddenly his voice rose above the rest, and it was so full, so clear, and so sweet that every one near turned to look at him. A tall man wrapped in a great cloak left his place, and, coming nearer to the lad, listened attentively, with his eyes fixed upon Maso's face as long as he continued to sing. Neither of the children noticed the stranger. Christine was admiring the altar, the lights, and the music, and praying for her sick mother with all her heart; her companion was at one moment enraptured by the poetry of the midnight mass, and at the next overwhelmed with a new emotion. He, the singing bird-of-passage, who journeyed merrily from place to place with no care for the future, was suddenly filled with sadness.

HE REVERENTLY DIPPED HIS FINGERS AND TOUCHED THEM TO CHRISTINE'S.

"Poor me!" he thought, "no one on earth loves me, no one cares what becomes of me; if I should die to-night there would be not one to shed a tear for me, I am all alone. This little girl who mistook me for an angel will return to her home and receive her mother's kiss, but I do not know what a mother is—I would give anything to have one kiss me."

Tears filled his eyes, without his knowing it, and Christine seeing them, said to herself:

"He is crying; then he is not an angel. Poor boy, how I pity him—he is so lonely."

"Ite, missa est!" sang the priest—"go, mass is over." and a few minutes later the boy and girl were outside the church again.

"Why were you crying?" asked Christine, and the lad replied:

"I was thinking how sad it was to have no mother—God grant you may long have yours, little one! Do not look so sorry, but come, and let us buy your supper in one of these shops. See, I am not sad now!" He led her into a provision shop, and, not allowing her to spend her only coin, purchased ham, fruit and pastry for her, and then, seeing that she shivered in the cold night air, he took off his own cloak and put it round her shoulders. "Now I will take you home," he said. And when they reached her door she asked wistfully: "Will you not come in and have supper with us, as if you were my brother? Mamma will be so glad."

Maso followed her in, and was welcomed by the Widow Gudule. While they sat at supper Maso told them of his childhood's home in Italy, which had been opulent, but sad because motherless, of his father's ruin and death and of his own wanderings.

"And so, mother, he sings—you should hear him! The angels in Heaven have not sweeter voices," exclaimed Christine, and the lad taking up his lute struck the chords lightly, then began to sing, while the mother and daughter listened with clasped hands and tearful eyes. As soon as he stopped there was a knock at the door; Christine opened it fearlessly, for there was nothing in that poor home for robbers. Outside stood the tall man who had been in church; he recognized the child, and smiled as he said:

"My dear, I want to speak to your brother who has just been singing."

"He is not my brother," said Christine, surprised.

"No? Well, it does not matter. I want to see the lad who was in church with you. Tell him Master Kriegwinckel wants him a minute."

This man was one of the most celebrated musicians of that time, not only in Munich, where he lived, but throughout the music-loving world. Little Christine, however, knew nothing about him, and thinking that the stranger merely wished to compliment Maso upon his singing, she bade him enter. He bowed politely to the widow and then addressed Maso, saying:

IT WAS THE TALL MAN WHO HAD BEEN IN CHURCH.

"You have a beautiful voice, my lad, an unusually fine one. I am an old man, but I have seldom heard such a voice as yours. You understand what you sing, too, and you love music; you have all the makings of a great artist. But—you do not know how to sing!"

"That is because I have never been taught," said Maso sadly and humbly.

"I observed that. It is not your fault, and it can be remedied. How old are you?"

"Fifteen on Candlemas Day."

"Very good. I have a proposition to make you. Have you relatives?"

"None. I am all alone."

"Better still. I will take charge of you. I will take you back to Munich with me, I will teach you music and singing, and in three or four years—you will see! Kings and princes will invite you to come to court and sing for them, and I shall have the honor of giving the world another great musician. Perhaps you have heard of me. I am Kriegwinckel, leader of the choir in Munich."

Maso bowed low, for having always been interested in musical matters,

"GOOD-BYE CHRISTINE, I WILL COME BACK SOME DAY; DO NOT FORGET ME."

and ever on the watch for new songs, he had heard of Master Kriegwinckel and had often sung his composition.

"I would be only too happy, master," he stammered, "but I am obliged to earn my living, I have nothing——"

"You will not need money; I will treat you as my own son, and you will earn a great deal more than your living when I have taught you music. It is agreed, is it not? Ah, it was not for nothing that I watched you in the church, followed you out, and after losing sight of you in the crowd searched for you until I heard your voice through that window. But I must leave Nuremberg to-night. Come."

The boy took up his cloak and lute, saying: "Good-by, Christine, I will come back some day; do not forget me."

The girl clung to his arm and whispered: "I shall never forget you. I thought at first that you were an angel, because you sang like one and were as good as one. I will love you all my life."

"Then ask your mother to kiss me good-night—it will bring me luck," he said, and the Widow Gudule, clasping him in her arms, prayed that Heaven's blessings might always follow him. As he turned away he handed his purse to Christine saying:

"The master says I shall not need money, so here are my day's earnings;

"SWEET SAVIOUR JESUS, PROTECT HIM!"

I have had a very good day and they will help you until your mother can work again."

Then he followed his new friend, and Christine stood on the threshold

Eighteen Different Patterns in Dinner Ware, the Haviland [French], Broomfield's, Allcock's, Meakin's, Ridgeways and Johnson, [English].

Our Haviland We Buy Direct on import order from Limoges, France, in lots o eight sets, and many of our English Patterns we import direct from Potteries, thus saving jobber's profits.

Our Toilet Sets We import direct or Purchase direct from Potteries as cheap as any Jobber can buy them. We advise the use of American Toilet Ware, for this reason; should you ever break any article in your set, we can replace it for you within a fortnight. In Foreign Toilet Ware should you break an article, it takes an unlimited time and it is doubtful if you ever can replace and keep your set whole. We think every housekeeper will appreciate the force of this argument. We have both American and English wares for sale.

Guarantee We Guarantee all our goods, and on all those which we import, buy direct from Potteries. We will give our customers the advantage of the jobbers' profits.

listening to his departing footsteps till they were lost in the silence of the night.

Eight years passed.

The Christmas bells were ringing merrily, and the people, coming out of their houses to attend the midnight mass, greeted each other with Christmas wishes. Among the throng there were none who received more salutes and friendly smiles than an elderly woman who leaned upon the arm of a beautiful young girl, tall and slender as a reed. By the light of the torch she carried, the girl's bright blue eyes, rosy cheeks, and golden hair were seen, and every passer looked at her with admiration; young and old greeted her smilingly, even portly Burgomasters murmured as they met her, "God bless that sweet young creature!" while the poor people exclaimed aloud, "God bless the widow and her daughter for their goodness and charity to us!"

Young girls nodded with a friendly air; apprentices, students, and more than one young gentleman in velvet cap and embroidered doublet bowed respectfully to the mother and daughter.

These two were but simple workpeople, yet all Nuremberg honored them. Every one knew that Dame Gudule Dachs, when left a widow with her child to bring up and her husband's debts to pay, had set about bravely to perform the task. She had become the most successful embroiderer in the town, her daughter had soon grown celebrated for her taste in designing new patterns, and now the window owed nothing, and could hardly fill all the orders she received from the richest ladies in the land. The poor and the suffering well knew the way to Widow Gudule's door, and the fair Christine was never happier than when attending to their wants. One year a plague desolated Nuremberg, and the girl accompanied her mother to the homes of the stricken ones, nursing the sick and consoling the dying. It was thought that Christine had dedicated herself to God and would soon take the veil, for if she did not mean to be a nun why was she so indifferent to the tender glances, sighs, and words of the young men? She might have married the richest tradesman, or even have become a countess! Every one knew that.

"GOD BLESS THE WIDOW AND HER DAUGHTER," THE PEOPLE SAID.

As the people entered the church the organ's peals rose to the vaulted roof, and Widow Gudule kneeling at Christine's side heard her murmured prayer: "Sweet Saviour Jesus, protect him! Bring him back to us that I may tell him I have not forgotten him!"

The mother smiled sadly, for she had had experience of the world, and she knew that with young persons remembrance often fades. Every Christmas Eve Christine had said, "Suppose he should come to-night!" and when her mother tried to explain how unlikely it was that the youth who for a single hour had been their guest should ever think of them again, the girl only shook her head and answered, "He will come."

The widow was growing uneasy, for her daughter was 16 years old.

Suddenly, just as the priest turned round to administer Communion to the faithful, a voice in the choir rose above the organ's strains, and Christine's face was transfigured as she whispered: "It is he!"

Oh that beautiful voice, powerful, impassioned, yet as sweet as if it came straight from heaven!

Glory to God in the highest and Peace on Earth, it sang, and Christine, carried out of herself as she listened, wept softly, and wondered whether it were not indeed an angel's voice. With a saddened look in her soft blue eyes she followed her mother out of the church, casting a wistful timid glance up the dark winding staircase which led to the choir, and the widow, who also had recognized the voice, hurried her daughter away. When they reached the street the girl looked about her in vain, for there was no sign of the red cap and dark curls of the young lute player, no strange figure was to be seen except a tall man wrapped in a handsome cloak and wearing a gold-embroidered cap which glistened in the moonlight. When the two women arrived at their home this person stepped quickly up and with a bow said:

"Merry Christmas to you, Dame Gudule! Merry Christmas, Miss Christine! Will you let the Florentine singer share your supper once again?"

"I knew he would come, mother!" cried Christine, and the widow, in spite of her misgivings, almost against her will, added:

"He is welcome, as before."

They all entered the house, and when the girl had lighted the candles on the supper table Maso Napone gazed round the room eagerly. It was unchanged, and he even recognized the old chest on which he, the poor orphan minstrel, had laid his cloak and lute on that night eight years before. Now, however, a cheerful fire blazed upon the hearth, the candle light shone upon the red berries and green leaves of the holly that ornamented the table, and Widow Gudule, opening a cupboard, brought out a jar of preserved fruit and a bottle of sweet cordial in honor of the guest. When Maso took off his cloak Christine was astonished to see that the slender stripling had become a strong, handsome man, who looked at her with smiling admiration. Her simple and yet well fitting blue gown showed off her graceful figure to advantage. While she filled his glass Maso said to her:

"One might take you for an angel now."

Then he related how Master Kriegwinckel had brought him up, and taught him, and been a father to him. The old man was dead now, and Maso once more traveled about to earn his living by singing. But he went as a great artist, not a poor vagabond; kings and princes wrote asking him to come and sing to them, just as the master had predicted; he was rich and honored—and yet he was not happy, for he was alone.

"Dame Gudule," he added, after a pause, "you once gave me a mother's kiss—will you not accept me as your son? Will you let me ask Christine if she remembers her promise?"

"I remember," murmured the girl, while her mother smiled and nodded.

"You promised not to forget me, and to love me all your life," he said, taking her hand. "I have always thought of you, Christine, my little Christmas rose! Sweetheart, will you be my wife?"

"HE IS WELCOME, AS BEFORE," SAID THE WIDOW.

"I knew you would come back," was all the answer.

Then Maso put upon her finger a gold ring set with precious stones, and said gaily, as he kissed her lips:

"A queen gave me this ring, and I kept it for you, my darling, that are more precious than all the queens on earth!"

CARRIED OUT OF HERSELF SHE LISTENED, WEPT SOFTLY AND WONDERED.

Saved by the Angelus.

The following beautiful instance of a providential escape from death occurred in Austria: Two brothers, aged 9 and 4 respectively, were playing towards midday at a brook close to a mill. The small brother happened to fall into the water. Immediately the elder brother, well aware of the danger, jumped into the brook, which, though at that place shallow enough, began to flow rapidly towards the mill, which was only 20 paces off. The younger brother was therefore in the greatest danger of being carried away by the current and if not saved then and there would be torn to pieces by the wheel, meeting with a certain and cruel death. The elder brother, aided by the current, was lucky enough to get hold of the younger one; already he had grasped with one arm his half-dead brother, by as seemed certain, only to die with him. Rapidly both brothers were being carried by the current to the revolving wheel, and nobody seemed to hear the shouting and screaming of the elder boy. Already the brothers were touching the wheel, and the elder was caught in it, when, behold, at the last critical moment the wheel suddenly ceases revolving—the Angelus bell is tolling—and bareheaded and praying appears the miller, who, at the sound of the Angelus bell, had stopped the wheel and mill for the usual time of prayer and the midday rest, and the two brothers were saved.

The Nobility of Labor.

The Saviour of mankind never conferred a greater temporal boon on mankind than by ennobling and sanctifying manual labor, and by rescuing it from the stigma of degradation which had been branded upon it. Before Christ appeared among men manual and even mechanical work was regarded as servile and degrading to the freeman of pagan Rome, and was consequently relegated to slaves. Christ is ushered into the world not amid pomp and splendor of imperial majesty, but amid the environments of an humble child of toil. He is the reputed son of an artisan, and his early manhood is spent in a mechanic's shop—

LOCAL AND MISCELLANEOUS.

Bring along that wood.

Wait for the Christmas party.

Give the firemen a big lift next Tuesday evening.

Great preparations are making for the Christmas party this year.

Hear Tony Leon's orchestra in their great concert Christmas night.

To Manager and Mrs. R. J. W. Bowen Wednesday the 13th, a new boy.

Tony Leon's orchestra of Toledo, will furnish music for the Christmas party.

Reserved seats for the Christmas party concert will be on sale at Adamson's.

Popular prices at the benefit next Tuesday evening. Only 10, 20 and 30 cents.

You can get lost in London next Tuesday evening for only ten cents by taking the gallery route.

Miss Etta Coddington left for Brooklyn, N. Y. last Tuesday, where she will make an extended visit.

Program for the Christmas party concert by Tony Leon's society orchestra will be announced next week.

Tickets for the Scharwenka Concert are on sale at Adamson Bros and Anderson & Co's dry goods house.

Township Treasurer, Albert Hyde, will receive taxes every Friday this month at the Lilley State bank.

What is Tecumseh doing to aid the starving miners up north? We should not lag behind in this charitable work.

Lake Shore R'y will sell reduced rate tickets Dec. 23, 24, 25, 30 and 31, and Jan. 1, good to return Jan. 2, inclusive.

Jno J. Orr wishes to thank his friends for kindness shown and especially those who fought the fire so faithfully Tuesday morning.

The rain and thaw last Saturday looked bad for the sleighing but the freeze up came just in time, and the sleighing is prime again.

Those indebted to Jno J. Orr will confer an especial favor at this time by settling their account, even though it be small, as in emergencies every little counts.

We are indebted to David Boyd for late copies of the Greeley, Col., Tribune. Although the Tribune has always been a republican paper, it is red hot for the free coinage of silver.

The play "Lost in London" is a fine drama and it will be well presented next Tuesday evening. The fire department deserve a good benefit and they should be greeted with a crowded house.

We invite attention to the prospectus of the N. Y. Tribune which appears elsewhere. People who desire a high tariff paper cannot find a better one than the Tribune. If you favor that side of the tariff issue, then take the best.

Mr. Enoch Tindall has secured the agency of a "History of the World's Fair" and is now canvassing Tecumseh for subscribers. It is a splendid work and one which ought to be in every household. For fuller particulars read his announcement elsewhere.

The members of Macon Grange are requested to meet at Grange Hall, on Saturday the 16th, at 1 o'clock, P. M. A good attendance of members is expected as an important question will come up for discussion and must be acting upon without delay. By order of Master, Overseer and Lecturer.

Below is the cast of characters for "Lost in London" which will be presented on the evening of Dec. 19th: Miss Grace Heesen, Miss Mary Strong, Mrs. C. C. Stocking, Mr. Levi Hayden, Martin Crossman, Will Hicks, Wilbur J. Higby, Harry Tansley. Under the personal direction of C. C. Stocking.

Next Tuesday Evening, Dec. 19th, the Melo-drama, "Lost in London" will be put on the boards at the opera house for the benefit of the fire department Mr. Wilber J. Higby, an experienced actor, has the management in hand, who will be assisted by Mrs. C. C. Stocking—"Bessie Clifton"—and the best local talent of Tecumseh. A first class dramatic entertainment is assured. The valiant service performed by the fire laddies at the Orr fire deserves especial recognition. Turn out and give the boys a crowded house.

Alf. James Sundayed in Toledo.

The Ariel Quartette at the opera house this evening. Go and hear them.

Misses Flora Hartbeck and Asenath Hosmer were Toledo visitors Saturday.

E. J. Hollister and S. P. Hosmer arrived home from Kissimmee, Fla., Saturday.

Everybody should turn out to the concert this evening and give Co. C a benefit.

Frank Avery was unable to be at the store for several days this week and last but is again at his post.

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union will celebrate Crusade Day, Dec. 23rd, by holding a mass meeting on that evening.

Seven of the teachers of the public schools made up a sleighload and went to Adrian Saturday to the teachers convention there.

Arthur Strong, who has been clerking in a bank at Oak Harbor, Ohio, for the past year, returned home Monday to spend the winter.

Mrs. Elizabeth Wheeler, of Adrian, has been spending the past two weeks in Tecumseh as the guest of her brother, J. M. Ingersoll.

The Tecumseh Band of Hope will meet at the home of Miss Olcea Owen, Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. All girls from 9 to 15 years of age are cordially invited.

The jam at the opera house ticket window Friday night showed one thing. That is, that a railing will have to be put in front of the office in order to prevent regular foot-ball scrimmages.

The Sunday School of South Macon Reformed church will give a New Year Cantata, on Saturday evening, Dec. 30, 1893. Everybody invited to come and enjoy a fine entertainment. Admission five cents.

Farmers wishing a good warm meal when they come to town, should patronize the lunch room, first door north of Dickinson's meat market. It makes a very convenient place to get a meal quick and cheap.

The regular monthly meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of the M. E. church will take place on Wednesday, Dec. 20, in the church parlors. Business meeting at 4 p. m. Supper will be served from 5:30 till 6:30 by Mrs. Blood's committee.

Ole Olson company had an open date Saturday night and so played a second engagement here. The night was stormy and they were greeted by a small but very appreciative audience who followed the side-splitting Ole through his various adventures.

I regret exceedingly the misunderstanding about the oyster supper at the opera house last Saturday night. It was unavoidable. Any person who bought a ticket and did not get their supper will please notify me and I will make it right. Mrs. N. M. SUTTON.

Where can they beat Old Lenawee? The first prize offered by the International Seed Co., of $100 in gold for the largest yield of No. 6 wheat from one acre has been awarded to Benj. Lamkin, his yield being 61 11-60 bush. We congratulate Mr. Lamkin on having so good a farm and sowing No. 6 wheat.

Thompson's Glassblowers are quartered in the Armory this week. They have fourteen cages of rare animals on exhibition and are also blowing glass into all sorts of fanciful designs a specimen of which they give away to every visitor. It is interesting and instructive and worth anyone's dime and time.

Several business men were heard to remark the other night at the Orr fire, that it would be a good plan to raise the wages of the nightwatch. Guess it would. Put yourself in his place and go prowling around in dark alleys on cold winter nights and your plan will increase in favor; with yourself at least.

A full attendance of the W. R. C. is requested Dec. 18. The roll will be called and other items of interests will claim our attention as it will be the last meeting of this year. The outgoing officers will make it especially so for both Post and Corps. Come comrades and bring your wives who are members of the W. R. C.
A. T. HANLEY, Pres.
A. B. SMITH, Sec.

A rousing big house greeted the novelty comedy Ole Olson at the Opera House, Friday evening. It has been a long time since a traveling troop has been favored with so large an audience. The company is a strong one and the different players well fitted to their parts. It is understood that the management was so wellpleased with their crowd that they will send their Olson companion piece "Yon Yonson" here during the season.

The Rev. W. J. Maybee, of Lansing, has been visiting our town in the interest of the Rocky Beach Orphanage, and has appointed Mrs. Mary E. Sutton, local manager for Tecumseh, to represent this institution. The objects of the organization are to provide homes for orphan and dependent children, and perform other missionary and benevolent work. Our work in all its branches is sustained by free will offerings. The grounds and buildings of the association are located on the south shore of Little Traverse Bay, seven miles west of Petoskey, Mich. The receiving home and nursery are at Lansing. This institution is regularly incorporated under the laws of this State. It is non-sectional, undenominational. For further information address Rev. Winfield S. Sly, Gen. Manager, Lansing, Mich.

Adrian is suffering with an epidemic of the Grippe.

Blissfield is making an effort to secure an electric light plant.

Yesterday morning was the coldest one of the season thus far.

Go to the benefit next Tuesday evening and give the fire department a lift.

Walter Rice and James Cornelius, of Adrian spent last Saturday with Tecumseh friends.

Walter Burridge was in attendance at Circuit Court Tuesday and Wednesday of this week.

The date for the Scharwenka Piano recital has been fixed for Saturday evening, Dec. 23d.

Mr. and Mrs. Levi B. Stevens, of Detroit, were in town yesterday to attend the funeral of Asahel Stevens.

The Jackson Daily Citizen is about putting in a Cox web perfecting press with a capacity of 6000 copies an hour.

Mrs. Mattie Colgate Root is spending a few days at Jerry Root's. She will visit friends in the east before returning to Chicago.

New York Tribune: "Without waste of words it may be said that at a single blow he conquered recognition for himself as one of the strong men in the musical world of to-day.

Boston Advertiser: "The appearance among us of a composer of the rank of Xaver Scharwenka marks an epoch in our musical annals of far more importance than the advent of a Patti.

Tom Lowry had a close call at the fire last Tuesday morning. He was caught in the cellar while handling hose and came near being suffocated by smoke but was finally extricated from his perilous position.

The Tecumseh HERALD was out last week with its annual holiday supplement, with a run of advertisements that puts hard times to shame. There are a lot of hustling business men in Tecumseh.—Evening Telegram.

New York Times: "It is only now and then that a man comes who seems likely to set up a stake or perhaps a mile post to mark the line along which music is marching and to leave behind him a memory worth cherishing. One of these men is Xaver Scharwenka.

About twenty of our single taxers went to Adrian on Wednesday evening of last week to hear Henry George. The train was held until 10 o'clock so they heard the entire lecture. It is needless to say that they returned considerably strengthened in their single tax views.

Chicago Inter-Ocean: "He is dignified and earnest, interesting strong and solid as an executant, with a style that holds well in the balance the virtues of elegance and refinement, and is destined to leave a memory as a pianist that is worth cherishing out of a varied selection that Chicago has enjoyed during the past season."

The revival meetings in the Friends church are progressing very favorably. Rev. Levi Lupton, the evangelist, is a very able and earnest speaker, impressing his hearers very deeply. The prospects are that many will turn from sin to righteousness and inherit eternal life through faith in the Son of God. Come and be convinced that God loves you—Whosoever will, may come.

Tecumseh ought to be doing her share towards furnishing aid for the northern sufferers. Eight thousand people are destitute of food and most of them are without suitable winter clothing. Other towns are moving promptly and we must not be behind in this charitable work. A public meeting will be called soon by the city authorities and we hope our citizens will respond liberally.

The venerable Asahel Stevens, father of Levi B. Stevens and of Mrs. Dr. North, died Tuesday at his son's residence in Detroit. The remains were brought here for burial, the services being held at Dr. North's residence yesterday at 2:30 p. m. The deceased had been a resident of Tecumseh for a great many years and was respected by all. A further notice will appear hereafter.

The water works paid for themselves twice over last Tuesday morning. There was a stiff breeze blowing from the west, and if the firemen had had no other help than the old engine, the fire would surely got into the row of wooden sheds back of Orr's store, and that entire block would have been cleaned out. Tecumseh was saved from the most disastrous conflagration in its history by the timely use of the water works.

At the annual election Tuesday the following were elected officers of the Tecumseh Savings Bank:

Will McGlashen is back in school.

Tina Chidester re-entered school Monday.

Marvin Patterson left school Monday.

Herbert Roy Conklin came back to school Tuesday, after a short illness.

Raynor Anderson called on the A room last Thursday morning.

Ella Primrose was absent Monday afternoon.

The school board recently determined that, as the Union School building has no fire escapes, there should be fire drills. Accordingly last Thursday at 10:30 the alarm was given. All the boys got out in one minute and thirty seconds and the girls in two minutes and thirty seconds, but there are nearly double the number of girls than boys.

In the death of Rev. W. P. Wastell, Clinton is bereft of one of the best men and noblest characters, who ever dwelt within her gates. He was the pastor of the congregational church for many years, and afterwards continued to reside in the village as a retired minister. Upon all special occasions he was an honored guest and his influence left an impress for good upon the community in which he lived. He will be missed and mourned by all who knew him.

CHINA SALE.

On Saturday, Dec. 16, Mrs. Chas. G. Brown, of Adrian, will have an exhibition and sale of hand decorated china at Anderson & Co's dry goods store. Remember a beautiful piece of china makes an elegant Christmas gift. Mrs. Brown also desires to get a class in china painting in Tecumseh, and would be pleased to have all interested to call on her Saturday at Anderson & Co's store.

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

EPPS'S COCOA

BREAKFAST—SUPPER.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided for our breakfast and supper a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctor's bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.

STATE OF MICHIGAN County of Lenawee, ss

At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Lenawee holden at the Probate office in the city of Adrian, on Tuesday, the 28th day of November in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three.

Present, Richard B. Robbins, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Alexander Patterson, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of John Linton, executor of the last will and testament and upon the estate of said deceased, alleging that the funeral expenses and debts of said deceased and the expenses of administration thus far incurred, have been fully paid, and that he is now ready to render his 5th annual administration account as such executor, and praying that said account may be allowed, and for such other order and decree as to this Court shall seem proper.

It is ordered, That Tuesday, the 26th day of December, next, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the City of Adrian, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of said Petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said Petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee for three successive weeks, previous to said day of hearing.

RICHARD B. ROBBINS, Judge of Probate.

Allow me to add my tribute to the efficacy of Ely's Cream Balm. I was suffering from a severe attact of influenza and catarrh and was induced to try your remedy. The result was marvelous. I could hardly articulate, and in less than twenty-four hours the catarrhal symptoms and my hoarseness disappeared and I was able to sing a heavy role in Grand Opera with voice unimpaired. I strongly recommend it to all singers.—Wm. H. Hamilton, Leading Basso of the C. D. Hess Grand Opera Co.

DON'T FORGET TO REMEMBER

that impure unhealthy blood is present in all, and the direct cause of many diseases which we suffer. Scrofula, Rheumatism and Specific Diseases which have ravaged the earth and poisoned the blood of nations for generations, and are the evil parents of indescribable horrors are under absolute control of P. P. P., the only infallible blood purifier known.

The P. P. P. Blood Cure has positively cured numerous cases of Scrofula and Salt Rheum in a short time, where all other blood purifiers have failed.

Pleasant to take; applicable to diseases of infancy or old age.

ADMITTED THE FACTS.

Newspaper editors have to be very careful in opening their columns for statements. But aware that the Dr. Miles Medical Co., are responsible, we make room for the following testimonial from R. McDougall, Auburn, Ind., who for two years noticed a stoppage or skipping of the pulse, his left side got so tender he could not lie on it, his heart fluttered, he was alarmed, went to different doctors, found no relief, but one bottle of Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure cured him. The elegant book, "New and Startling Facts," free at Baker and Hall's. It tells all about Heart and Nervous Diseases and many wonderful cures.

Here's the Idea

Of the Non-pull-out Bow

The great watch saver. Saves the watch from thieves and falls—cannot be pulled off the case—costs nothing extra.

The bow has a groove on each end. A collar runs down inside the pendant (stem) and fits into the grooves, firmly locking the bow to the pendant, so that it cannot be pulled or twisted off.

Can only be had with cases stamped with this trade mark.

Jas. Boss Filled Watch Cases are now fitted with this great bow (ring). They look and wear like solid gold cases. Cost only about half as much, and are guaranteed for twenty years. Sold only through watch dealers. Remember the name

RETROSPECTIVE.

In a wagon made of willow
Wheeled I once a little maiden,
Ringlets shining on the pillow,
Rolling homeward, treasure laden,
Like a boat upon the billow.

Ten years fled. Oh, how I missed her
When I left the village school!
But she said she'd be my sister
As we lingered by the pool,
And I passionately kissed her.

Ten more hopeful years renew it;
Little wagon made of willow,
Loving eyes are bent to view it,
Loving hands adjust the pillow,
And we've fitted rockers to it!

—Boston Transcript.

ROBBING A LAWYER.

"Six months, with hard labor," said the magistrate to the prisoner.

"I'll be quits with you afore long," said the prisoner to the solicitor for the prosecution as he turned to descend to the cells.

For Joe Renshaw felt hurt. That particular solicitor, Benjamin Timpany—Joe made a note of the name and registered a resolution not to forget it—had conducted his case with a zeal that seemed to border on animus, otherwise Mr. Renshaw's explanation as to his presence on inclosed premises at midnight might have been accepted.

Mr. Timpany heard the words. He saw the glance that accompanied them. It was not a reassuring glance. If one met it by the light of a bullseye at midnight—ugh! Mr Timpany shuddered.

"Cleverest cracksman going, Joe!" said the sergeant in a tone almost of admiration. "Electric bells and all that sort of thing don't bother him a bit. He can get through an iron shutter as if it was brown paper."

Mr. Timpany's state of mind became less complacent than ever. He had done his duty to his client in insuring this desperado's conviction, but he began to wonder whether a man could not do his duty too well.

He began to think how exposed his house was, how low the back garden wall, how close the balconies to the ground, how rusty the front door chain and how insecure the window fastenings. There was, however, one consolation—he had six month's start of Mr. Renshaw.

Mr. Timpany's politeness to the policeman whose beat embraced his house and who had once been seen kissing his housemaid was surprising, having regard to the indignation he had evinced when some time previously he had been informed of the housemaid incident.

The six months of his incarceration did not speed quite so quickly for Joe Renshaw as for Mr. Timpany.

Joe was averse to labor of any kind, more especially to the hard variety. He had, however, ample time and opportunity for meditation on what he considered the vindictive wickedness of Mr. Timpany and the means for its requital.

Artist as he was in his own line, in the operation contemplated he meant to excel himself. He would not hurry over it; he would bide his time. Everything comes, he reflected, to the man who waits. He would wait—on Timpany.

At last came the hour when he stepped forth a free man—anyway for a time. He began to look about for occupation, not work. He had had six months at that, and if he had cared for honest work outside prison walls it would have been difficult to find.

One, two, three months since the expiration of Renshaw's sentence had expired, and Mr. Timpany began to imagine that he had forgotten his promise and to sleep soundly of nights. He even ventured occasionally to bring home valuable documents of title and securities in his black bag and to once more believe in the truth of the adage that an Englishman's house is his castle.

But one night while Mr. Timpany was wrapped in gentle sleep and his pajamas a thin streak of white light glimmered for an instant along his back garden. Bendigo, who slept with one eye open, fancied he caught a glimpse of something that ought not to be there and emitted a deep, warning growl.

Much to his surprise, as if by magic, a savory piece of horseflesh, just sufficiently underdone to suit the palate of so dainty a canine epicure, fell within a yard of his nose.

With the snorting growl that was his usual expression of delight, the bulldog rose and sniffed it. Then he licked it, and it tasted even more savory than it smelled.

Bendigo bolted it, and seeing no morsels lying about turned to regain his kennel, but ere he could reach it his limbs stiffened, and he rolled over without a groan—stone dead.

A few minutes later a marvelous centerbit was running its way silently but surely through Mr. Timpany's iron shutters.

Before long the shutter had been quietly pushed open, replaced, and Joe Renshaw was seated in the breakfast room, around which his bullseye flash was moving.

The disk of light rested a moment on a small cabinet, the lock of which Mr. Renshaw leisurely proceeded to neatly pick.

"Tradesmen's bills," he grunted, "all receipted. Wot a spendthrift the chap must be throwin away his money in payin accounts! Some folks never knows the wally o' money. He earns his easier than I does."

Then, his list shoes making not the slightest sound, he crept into a room which served Mr. Timpany for a kind of home office.

"This is better," chuckled the burglar, espying a safe in the corner, and once again the centerbit was called into operation. But it was a tough job, and file and crowbar had to be brought into play, and Mr. Renshaw's brow was moist before the door showed the slightest signs of yielding.

"If I had the man as made this here," he growled, "he'd never make no more. The idea o' folks 'avin awkward furniture like this in their 'ouses! It's only out of aggravation to give folks unnecessary trouble over their work."

But at last the hinges gave way to the brutal but silent attacks of the jimmy where the file had bitten and gnawed, and Joe, quickly forcing the inner drawers, turned his bullseye on the contents.

"Well!" he said, and then he swore. "After all, nothin but a pile o' dirty parchment not worth a crown," and he angrily turned over the bundles of deeds which represented tens of thousands of pounds.

But as the last drawer slid open a chuckle escaped him. There lay a bundle of crisp Bank of England notes, which Mr. Timpany had received on the completion of a conveyancing matter after office hours, on behalf of his client, too late to pay into the bank.

Stuffing the notes into his pocket, he gathered up his tools and prepared to depart; To his great joy, he saw upon the table a bottle of port wine and a tumbler.

"Oh, ain't 'e kind" he soliloquized, "to perwide refreshment as well as amusment? He might a' left it in a tureen, an really I don't like drinkin port out of a tumbler. Reckon he's too thirsty for wine glasses an mops it up here on the Q. T."

And taking up the bottle Mr. Renshaw placed it to his lips and drank and drank, until he had drained it to the dregs.

Replacing the bottle on the table, he picked up his tools. He was a bit tired after his exertions, though he had not felt it so unmistakably as now.

He slid into a chair to rest for a moment. He felt quite sleepy. If there had been more than half a bottle of port, he would have fancied he was drunk.

"This won't do," he muttered. "I must get back to the pony trap. Wasser matter, so sleep-eep-eepy! Ahoo!" And he yawned loudly.

He essayed to rise, but could not. For a moment he felt a thrill of fright, but it died away in a deep and drowning slumber. His arms sank upon the table and his head between them.

* * * * * *

And there five hours later Mr. Timpany, trotting down in his dressing gown, found him. For a moment he started, then he said:

"My friend's a man of his word. I thought he was, though I began to give him up. So the glass bottles on the wall, the bulldog, the electric bells and the iron shutters all failed me. But my own idea—the drugged bottle of wine which I've left in this room ever since this gentleman's last sentence expired—has done its work admirably."

And then Mr. Timpany trotted up stairs for that patent alarm whistle and woke up all the sleepers in the locality—except the burglar, who slept on for several hours more and awoke to find himself seated on a hard deal board in a police station cell.

He is now commencing a term of 12 years' penal servitude, and his constant reflection is that it's "all through doing business with lawyers."—London Tit-Bits.

Erin's Loss or Gain.

Much of the old joyousness of the Irish has vanished. The old stories and legends are rarely told now; politics and trade absorb all the conversation. The narrative of bygone glories and sorrows, of St. Patrick and Brian, of the great O'Neil and of the Geraldines, and 1798 and the famine, have given place to United Ireland, The Nation and the vulgarities of Mick McQuade.

The crossroads are deserted where formerly in the long summer evenings the boys and girls gathered to dance to the fiddler's never tiring music. You may still see the girls milking the cows in the crofts, morning and night, but you hear no more the plaintive ballad and "come-all-ye" to make the dhrimin dhu let her milk down easily. To the nonpoliticiar it seems as if this were due to the all pervading political taint. It appears to him the plan of campaign has banished the "good people," the rise and fall of the butter market put the milking song out of tune, and discontent made the heart too heavy for the heels to be light.

To the less sentimental observer the signs are of brighter omen.

If the people have less of the old careless gayety, they are grown steadier. If they are discontented, it is not mere grumbling shiftlessness; they want something higher than they have, and that, with the power of saving money, is what brings men and nations to the top of the tree.—Westminster Review.

Mother of Sixteen at Thirty-two.

A remarkable case of maternity was developed the other day when an application was made by Sarah Patty to act as guardian of the minor heirs of Maggie James, deceased. All the parties are colored, and interest attaches to the proceeding from the fact that the deceased had 10 children living and was the mother of six who are dead, dying herself at the age of 32, a few days ago, after giving birth to an infant now a week old.

E. R. Bell, a colored lawyer, presented the petition, and when questioned as to the truth of the statements in it said they were correct. The deceased had been married at the age of 16 and had given birth to a child every year since, never having borne twins. Her first husband died, and she at once married again.—Memphis Appeal-Avalanche.

Bequeathing Palls.

Testators in olden times frequently bequeathed palls by their wills for the general use of the parish. The following is an extract from the will of William Parkyns of Brympton, Berkshire, who died in 1558: "Item—I will that mine executours buye one new pall, price 13s. 4d., the which I give unto the parish churche at Brympton to be laide upon any personne or personnes that shall die within the said parishe and be brought to the churche."—Westminster Gazette.

MINES MAY RESUME.

Relief in Sight for Starving Michigan Miners.

Owners Have About Decided to Start Up in the Upper Peninsula and Give the Hungry People Something to Do.

GOV. RICH ON THE ALERT.

LANSING, Dec. 8.—Gov. Rich said that it was not improbable that a special session of the legislature would be called to consider the matter of relief for the upper peninsula miners. It is estimated that $150,000 will be needed to tide them over until May 1. He is preparing to go and make a personal investigation and will decide about a special session on his return.

The governor is not satisfied that the private contributions will accomplish what is necessary in the way of relief, and is ready to act with promptness. He says the men will not starve peaceably, and that as a matter of safety as well as humanity the poor and helpless of the mining region will have to be cared for.

He is patiently awaiting the decision of the supreme court regarding the validity of the Dickenson county bonds, which will doubtless settle the question regarding the right of counties to be bonded for the purpose of furnishing relief. The governor says, too, that he shall be guided greatly in what he says in his proclamation by the report of Gen. R. A. Alger, who is now conferring with the mine owners relative to the probability of the mines resuming operations.

The executive is also anxiously awaiting the report of the Detroit committee appointed by him, which is now making a thorough investigation of the needs of the suffering miners. If the issue in these matters shows that the situation may be improved by a second proclamation the document will at once be issued, and it will doubtless take the form of an urgent recommendation that systematic measures of relief be adopted in all the cities and townships in the state. As matters now are the contributions are practically unsolicited, and the governor has no doubt that if a house to house and farm to farm canvass is made a vast amount of clothing and produce, as well as cash, can be produced from parties who will freely contribute if personally solicited to do so, but who will not give the matter attention under other circumstances.

DETROIT, Dec. 9.—The effort to secure a resumption of some of the mines of the upper peninsula is apparently to be successful. When Gen. Alger went to Cleveland to further that purpose there was little hope that he would be successful. Now, however, it is stated that he has so far succeeded as to secure a promise from the mine owners that the mines be started if sufficient cash capital could be had to pay operating expenses and a reasonably sure market could be found for the output to take care of it now or in the definite future. It was decided that the capital could be found, that the market was in such a condition and that the only thing to be decided was how large the operations could be. That is, how many men should be employed in each mine and how much ore should be mined. This meeting was held last Tuesday. On Monday will be held a meeting of capitalists which will decide exactly how far these operations shall be resumed, and Gen. Alger will be notified at once of the result. In this meeting the mines interested will be the Norrie group, including the Aurora and the Colby, at Bessemer. Gen. Alger said that he would not, even in the face of apparently positive information, say whether the mining was going to be resumed or not.

THE PROSPECT GOOD.

Lumbermen at Alpena Look for Heavy Business Next Year.

ALPENA, Dec. 10.—Shipments of lumber and cedar from this port for the season just closed were about one-third less than last year, but the prospects for next season are good. There is at least 50,000,000 feet of lumber on the docks, the largest cargo ever carried over. All the mills in operation now have a full stock of logs in sight for the next season's cut. About 35,000,000 feet of Canadian logs will be brought here in 1894, being 6,000,000 feet more than this year. Operations in cedar are being carried forward extensively, the new Alpena and Northern opening up a new section, and more cedar will be shipped from here next season than ever before.

JUDGMENT FOR $155,000.

Verdict at Ann Arbor Against the East Saginaw Iron Company.

ANN ARBOR, Dec. 10.—A judgment for $15,5000 in favor of Charles F. Conrad, of Dexter, was handed down by the Washtenaw county court Saturday morning. The judgment was given on default and was against the East Saginaw Iron company on a promissory note. The company will resist its collection by an injunction. The fight grew out of trouble between the stockholders and the directors of the company. Two thousand acres of valuable mineral lands in the upper peninsula figure conspicuously in the case.

Found Gold.

RHODES, Dec. 7.—The citizens of Rhodes and Gladwin county generally are greatly excited over the discoveries of a geologist, who has been making an examination of the land in Bentley township. Gold in small quantities has been found on several farms, and the geologist believes there is a rich vein in the vicinity of this town.

Death of Prof. Hosford.

OLIVET, Dec. 10.—Oramel Hosford, professor emeritus of astronomy and mathematics of Olivet college, died here Saturday. Prof. Hosford was one of the founders of the republican party at Jackson in 1854, and was state superintendent of public instruction from 1861 to 1869.

Clinton Column.

CLINTON, MICH., DEC. 14, 1893.

Mrs. Levi Richmond is reported very ill.

Mr. Geo. R. Brown and wife are both quite sick.

W. C. Burridge, of Tecumseh, was in town, yesterday.

At the present writing Mrs. W. P. Wastell is very low.

Al Heidenrich and wife drove up from Tecumseh, Wednesday.

The doctors are doing a thriving business as sickness is very prevalent.

M. E. Conklin and Sam Shutz, of Tecumseh, were Clinton visitors, Tuesday.

Between thirty-five and forty Clintonites went to Tecumseh, Friday evening, to see Ole Olson.

Mrs. Alonzo Welsh went to Lansing, Monday, in response to a telegram that her son, William, was very sick.

The creditors of the Dow Draper estate have assigned their claims to Mrs. Draper, at 25 cents on a dollar.

The lecture course seems to have killed interest in other entertainments. People go to about so many shows and no more.

The entertainment to have been given next Saturday night, by the St. Ambrose Musical Society and the Hilarity Dramantic club, has been indefinitely postponed.

The Draper sale was declared off Saturday, Mr. Van Tuyle giving Mrs. Draper an extension of time on the chattel mortgage which he holds on the livery property.

Howard Hause took a sleighload of young people and tin horns to Tecumseh, Tuesday night and as they got back all right it may be inferred that the city marshal down there let them off light.

An immense crowd gathered at the auction sale of the Conger property, last Tuesday, many being drawn thither by a curiosity to view the scene of the late tragedy. Placed on sale, everything brought good living prices, except the horses which were sold very cheap.

There will be a benefit entertainment for St. John's church, at the Town Hall, Wednesday evening, Dec. 20. Wilber J. Higby, supported by the Dramantic Club will present the melo-drama, "Lost in London". They will then go to Brooklyn and neighboring towns and present the play with the same cast of characters.

The funeral of Mrs. Albert Kishpaugh who died quite suddenly last Thursday of neuralgia of the heart, was held Saturday p. m. at the Methodist church. The ladies of Archampaugh Hive, L. O. T. M. attended in a body and conducted the services at the grave, in accordance with the rites of the order. A delegation of Col. A. T. Bliss Tent K. O. T. M. attended as an honorary escort out of respect to their bereaved brother, Sir Knight Kishpaugh.

Clinton is again afflicted by the hand of death and mourns the loss of one of her oldest and most respected citizens, Rev. W. P. Wastell died about 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. He was born in London, England, on August 17, 1804. His father was a merchant in that city and died when Mr. Wastell was quite young. He studied in the theological school at Cambridge, England, under Drs. Sturdevant and William Day, formerely of Oxford University, and was ordained at 19 years of age. He was given charge of Ackley Church when 25 years old, remaining there seven years. At 35 he came across the Atlantic to Canada, and officiated at Quebec, Toronto, Montreal, St. Thomas and other places. He came to Michigan in 1843 and located at St. Clair. He was there five years and at Port Huron three years. In 1851 he came to Clinton and was pastor of the Congregational church several years. In 1872 he retired from the pulpit, but has ever since been an able worker in the cause of Christianity. He married his first wife in England. She died in 1870. They had eight children, who are scattered over the United States, none living here. In 1873 he married for his second wife, Mrs. Sarah Van Tuyle. The funeral was held at the Congregational church at 2 o'clock, Wednesday afternoon and was largely attended. The remains were taken to Port Huron this morning for interment.

Wife—That's your theory, is it.

Husband—I never saw you happy.

Wife—That's because you never saw me before I met you.

A SINGULAR FATE.

A Young Woman Dies During a Sleigh-Ride at Jackson.

An Autopsy Held and the Physicians Declare That Excessive Tight-Lacing Had Caused Paralysis of the Heart.

A VICTIM TO FASHION.

JACKSON, Dec. 11.—Frankie Simons, an inmate of Sadie Hodge's house, died in a cutter while riding with her employer. The drive was continued until the Hodge woman spoke to Miss Simons and she did not answer. She reined her horse at Dr. White's drug store and called for assistance, and the girl, whose head had fallen back over the cutter seat, was taken into the store, but inside of two minutes she ceased to breathe. Dr. White, assisted by Coroner Davis, held an autopsy. Both pronounce the girl's death due to paralysis of the heart, and also declare the condition, remarkable from the fact that the heart was perfectly healthy. They declare further that conditions reveal what has hitherto been a mooted question that a person with a healthy organism can die from the heart's paralysis from pressure of a distended stomach, superinduced by tight lacing. The effects of the corsets were apparent, for the heart, lungs, liver and stomach were crowded together in an abnormally small space. The dead girl had been an inmate of the Hodge house six weeks, coming here from Adrian.

A BRUTAL ASSAULT.

An Ishpeming Attorney Beaten by Unknown Men.

IRONWOOD, Dec. 10.—An unknown assailant made a vicious attack on Thomas Kissane Saturday evening, and he is not expected to survive. The attorney was on his way home at a late hour when he was set upon in a degerted portion of the city and beaten in a terrible manner. Sometime later he revived sufficiently to drag himself to a neighboring house, where he was cared for and subsequently taken to his home. It is thought the motive for the murderous assault can be traced to the recent litigation over the water works contract. The water works plant is owned principally by New York capitalists and Kissane is the attorney for the corporation. As a direct result of this litigation, many people have suffered great privations, and in some instances it is openly charged that persons have starved to death for a lack of the employment that should have been given them. The feeling against Kissane was very bitter and the suffering people attributed their condition to him, as he has been very active in the fight between the city and the company. Threats have been made against his life, but he paid no attention to them and continued the litigation. It is thought here that the attack on the attorney was made by some member of a family which has been brought to great suffering by reason of the water-works war. Kissane will probably die.

WHEAT FAIRLY HEALTHY.

Crop Report Shows the Condition of the Cereal in the Wolverine State.

LANSING, Dec. 9.—The Michigan crop report for December just issued says that the reports this month, with rare exceptions, show that while wheat has made small growth, the plant December 1 was in fairly healthy condition. The small growth is due to late sowing and dry weather. For the southern counties the average condition is reported at 84 per cent.; for the central, 89 per cent., and for the northern, 96 per cent., comparison being with vitality and growth of average years. The corresponding figures one year ago were 82, 93 and 97. The presence of insects is noted by a few correspondents, but the injury done by them, if any, is hardly perceptible. The ground has been well covered with snow since December 2. The total number of bushels of wheat reported marketed in November is 1,704,351. The number of bushels reported marketed in the four months August to November is 6,358,371, which is 378,825 bushels less than reported marketed in the same months last year. Pasture this fall has not been good, particularly in the southern counties, and the condition of live stock is reported from five to seven points below a full average. Stock is practically free from disease of any kind.

Says Her Reputation Suffered.

SAGINAW, Dec. 7.—Mrs. Mary B. Frost, an employe of W. H. Jennings, cloak dealers, has brought suit for slander in the sum of $10,000 against George R Hoyt, president of the Hoyt Dry Goods' company. The allegation is that she went to Hoyt's store to price goods and Mr. Hoyt called her "a spy and tool of Jennings," which she say has damaged her reputation.

Headwork as an agency of physical force and resistance will characterize the games of the brainy young Yale and Harvard men.

Student—I tell you frankly that I shall not be able to pay for the suit till next year. When will you have it ready?

Tailor—Next year.

A benefit entertainment for the fire department will be put on the stage here soon, under the supervision of Messrs. J. W. Higby and C. C. Stocking, two actors of note. The gentlemen are here making the necessary arrangements and seem to be hustlers. The following from the Wilkes-Barre Daily Times tells its own story. "The audience at Music Hall last night, did not relax interest in the attractive story of Lady of Lyons, until Claude had returned from the war loaded with honor and he and Pauline were happily united. Mr. Higby as Claude again demonstrated his ability as an actor, giving an intelligent interpretation of Lytton's romatic lines, and was frequently interrupted by pleasing testimonials on the part of his audience." In the Yankee Boy, "Mr. Higby filled every demand as Paul Freeman. He is a splendid actor and has made a good impression among the theater goers in this city.

Are You Ambitious?

Especially, are you an ambitious woman anxious to make a career for yourself? Then you will be more than interested in "The Road to Fame or Fortune," published in Demorest's Family Magazine for December, which is a faithful chronicle of how ambitious girls desirous of becoming successful business women live and labor in New York, giving suggestions and valuable information that cannot fail to be of inestimable benefit to all talented and ambitious girls. And this is an ideal Christmas number, also. The lovely water color "Did Santa Claus Bring You?" will appeal to everyone, young or old. "Christmas Eve at Bethlehem," with its numerous illustrations, takes one back to the first Christmas Eve and tells how the traditions are preserved and what ceremonies are observed at the present day. There are two splendid Christmas stories splendidly illustrated; "An Excursion to the Land of Dolls," also illustrated, will interest all little maidens who love their dolls; there is a charming Christmas play, "The Prodigal," which will afford most timely entertainment; a very beautiful Christmas carol with original words and music, arranged so that it is appropriate for church, school, or the home circle; there are numberless suggestions for Christmas gifts; the many departments are full to overflowing with good things and everyone who loves babies will be charmed with the portraits of nearly a hundred who are competitors for the "Baby Prize," offered by this Magazine. Indeed, the December number is a generous twenty cents' worth; but it is only a fair sample of what is furnished twelve times a year for $2.00. Published by W. Jennings Demorest, 15 East 14th St., N. Y.

Sunday morning at 3:30 an alarm of fire was rung in from No. 93 Midway, the fire being in Link's restaurant kitchen, where it had gained considerable headway, igniting supposedly from a wooden cuspidore filled with sawdust, sitting near the stove. Mr. Link was first awakened by a dense smoke and rushing from his bedroom, robed only in his night vesture, discovered the fire in its early stage. He proceeded at once to remove his gasoline stove, which was in close proximity, to a place of safety and then made an unsuccessful attempt to extinguish the flames. The two pails of water handy were soon gone, then it occurred to him to call Arthur Hughes, living just across the hallway, and in whose room was a large water tank. The six barrels of water in the tank was soon expended and it became apparent to the two men that more assistance would be necessary if the whole business portion of the village was to be saved. Then it was that Mrs. Hughes rushed out and gave the alarm which soon bro't help from all quarters. Messrs. Enos, Larrabee and Rupp being the first on the scene to discover that the fire had eaten through the floor above and burned nearly across the ceiling of Lee Bros.' store room between the joists, the live coals falling to the floor close to the oil tank. They then began to work the force pump, conveniently by, doing such effective service that the fire was speedily extinguished and all danger passed, it being only about 15 minutes from the time the first alarm was given. Citizens from all directions had gathered, being only too happy to congratulate each other on the narrow escape of Britton's large mercantile interests and her fine business block.

IF PEOPLE ONLY KNEW

That the Mobile & Ohio Railroad runs through the best section of the South, where lands within a mile of the railroad are $3.00 an acre on long time, and improved farms are only $10 to $15 an acre, and that two farm crops or three vegetable crops are grown every year, each of which will net more dollars per acre than the same crop in the North; that the weather in summer is cooler, and in winter warmer, enabling the farmer to work in the field all the year; where one has better health and gets more pleasure in living, makes a living easier and gets rich faster than he can in the north, there would be such a rush for these cheap homes as no other portion of America has ever seen.

The knowledge is spreading and the boom is coming. Prices will double every year. Now is the time to buy. Half fare excursions will leave St. Louis Dec. 12 and 19, and Jan. 9 and 16. Full information sent by E. E. Posey, Gen. Passenger Agt. Mobile and Ohio R. R., Mobile, Ala.

WHAT OUR EXCHANGES FIND OUT.

Adrian Press: A sox war has broken out in the Clinton high school. It appears that some of the "first young ladies" proposed a sleigh ride, and invited a few of the boys to share their society, and then insisted that the lads stand the bill. The boys looked on this as a kind of Vanderpool piano confidence deal and "kicked." The ride was "off" and now the girls declare they will get the Tecumseh boys to ride with them. This, they reckon, will make the Clinton youths tear their hair.

Evening Telegram: It seems that Hudson offered the proper facilities for the new home of the feeble-minded; but owing to its location being so far south and the fact that Adrian has the industrial Home, both towns being in the same county, materially worked against Hudson.

Hudson Gazette: The expert who cleans the clock-work in the time-lock vault of Thompson Savings Bank every year performed that delicate job last week. The action of the bolts is controlled by three different sets of clock work, each acting independently of the others and able by itself to operate the bolts; so all three must get out of order at the same time to make bolts inoperative—something that is next to impossible. The makers of the lock charge $10 each for having their expert clean the locks once a year, and they give a guarantee that they will stand all damages if the bolts should fail to move at the proper time. If such a thing should [illegible] would be necessary to demolish the vault to get inside.

Hudson Post: Hattie Wheeler, of Tecumseh, [illegible] of a dancing class in Adrian, and she but know how well the gentlemen at the county seat loved to sit and hold their Hat on one knee, she would teach ladies only.

Hudson Post: Last Sunday Messrs. Kest and Hermes noticed smoke issuing from the chimney of their slaughter house, and went to see what was the matter. They found a party of tramps boiling soup, and were told by the traveling delegation that it was nobody's business. It must therefore go on record that Hudson has a public soup house.

Morenci Observer: Blessed are they who scorn to borrow their neighbor's paper, says an exchange, but come into the sanctum and, laying down the price of a year's subscription on the desk, say in cheerful tones, "Put me down on the list; I like your paper very much." Yea, verily! they are happier, their family is happier, the publisher is happier—such as they, are entitled to a front seat next to the band.

Hudson Gazette: A careless shinny player put a dot on Leon Randall's eye with his shinny stick, while playing a game on the ice. Leon likes the game, but he doesn't care to furnish eye-balls for his comrades to knock about.

Hudson Gazette: A. O. Abbott is putting the finishing touches on his voting machine, and he proposes to introduce it in Ohio and New York. It is really a ballot-printing machine, being provided with stereotype strips, paper and ink rolls. The stereotype strips with names of the candidates slide in long groves. The voter adjusts the stereotypes so that the candidates he wishes to vote for form a straight column, and then an impression is taken and the ticket he has printed and voted rolls out from the machine.

The executive committee of the [illegible] Pioneer society met at Lansing recently and took the preliminary steps toward securing a list of valuable papers for the annual meeting next June. A feature of the programme will be a paper, "The Indian Trails and Wayside Camps of Southern Michigan, by L. D. Watkins, of Manchester, who has made an exhaustive study of this subject. He maintains that the Indian has a regular system of trunk lines and branches, and will accompany his paper with a map showing their location. Especially is this true of the location of the city of Jackson. It is said that a party of men after following Indian trails all day camped for the night at this place. A close view the next morning revealed that they had arrived at a junction of trails, and the party decided to start civilization on the little stream known as the head of Grand river. To-day Jackson is known as the 'Central City,' has eleven railroad exits—56 passenger trains daily, and a population of over 20,000. Mr. Watkins' paper will undoubtenly be an interesting document.—Evening Telegram.

Adrian Times: James W. Helme, Jr. has a communication in to-day's Detroit Free Press, in which he discusses the condition of miners, and holds land monopolists responsible for the destitution that exists. He says: "Tax land values only in Michigan, and capital and labor will work every mine. Each will receive its just reward. No charity will be needed. The wail of the hungry will cease. Industry will take the place of idleness and the reign of happiness and contentment will be universal."

Special Offer to Farmers.

The Michigan Farmer offers its readers one of the best Agricultural, Live Stock and Family Journals in America, at the low price of only one dollar per year. It has recently changed hands and is now printed in 16-page form, on fine quality of paper, in convenient shape for reading, being pasted and trimmed like a book. Some of the best correspondents have been engaged for 1894, and the paper will be improved in every way as fast as possible. It is the the determination of the new proprietor to place their paper in the front rank and no expense or trouble will be spared to accomplish it.

Agents wanted in every neighborhood, to whom liberal commission will be given. Sample copies will be sent free to any address. Write for one at once and see for yourselves what a change has already been made. We will send the remainder of this year, '93, free to all who subscribe now. Address Michigan Farmer, Detroit, Mich.

AS GOOD AS A FLEET.

WHAT THE LATE MR. BLAINE SAW IN THE ANNEXATION OF HAWAII.

Sentiments Expressed Just Prior to His Death—The Key to the Pacific—San Domingo, Hawaii and the Nicaragua Canal the Master of Both Oceans.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21. — [Special. —] The Hawaiian episode has served to call attention to one of the great ambitions of the late James G. Blaine. Mr. Blaine was in favor of the annexation of Hawaii by the United States. But he saw much more in annexation than the mere acquisition of territory and the extension of American trade. Mr. Blaine was not so anxious to build up commerce as he was to erect an American empire in the western hemisphere which should be wholly and eternally dominant. Mr. Blaine had always contended that for itself Hawaii was not worth taking; that the trouble it would cause this government could not be compensated by the value of the islands, territorially considered. It was the strategic importance of Hawaii that appealed to Mr. Blaine. Not more than a year before his death Mr. Blaine sat in the library of his famous old house on Lafayette square and spoke as follows to your correspondent, at least in substance:

Mr. Blaine's Words.

"We should have possession of the Hawaiian Islands. They are one of the strongest links in the chain of empire which it is our manifest destiny to hang about ourselves. England, always keen and constructive, always reaching out for new vantage points of power, has bristled our eastern frontier with a line of guns and fortifications. From Halifax to the Bermudas, to the Bahamas, to British Honduras, they have run their line. They have built a cable from Halifax to the Bermudas, and now are laying one to Nassau, New Providence is nee completed. As it is in the Atlantic, so in the Pacific. The British have a strong naval outfitting post at Vancouver, and a clean sweep to New Zealand and Australia. We must meet and checkmate this effort to draw lines of naval and military strength about us. We cannot tell when the moment will arrive in which our future as a nation may depend upon our ability to protect our coasts, to maintain that domination which by right is ours in the western world.

"First of all," continued Mr. Blaine, "we must have the Sandwich Islands. They are the key to the Pacific. In the next 50 years the Pacific waters will carry a commerce equal in bulk and value to that of the Atlantic. On this continent civilization is swinging to the west. In the old world it is moving eastward. These mighty forces will meet on the Pacific. They will swell to the eastern and western shores of that sea; they will bridge it with innumerable lines of steamers and freight carriers. The nation that holds Hawaii will be master of that ocean. Without vast expenditures for naval power it will easily maintain its supremacy. There is no such thing as diplomacy without guns. Civilization has not yet reached that point of development—I doubt if it ever will get there—in which great negotiation can be carried on without power behind the hand that treats. To us Hawaii is as good as a fleet. With Hawaii we shall secure an advantage from which we can never be dislodged.

Marks For the Enemy.

"In the Atlantic we must also strengthen our lines," continued Mr. Blaine. "Our seacoast cities must be made easily defensible. So long as they are marks for the enemy, subjects of sacrifice in time of war, we shall be weak. There may come a time when we shall have to choose between surrendering some principle near to our people and the destruction of our seacoast cities by the guns of an enemy. If the principle involves the national honor and self respect, there can be no doubt as to what the choice will be. Though the price will be paid, it is a big price. We must remove this element of weakness by making our chief cities impregnable. Then we must have battleships and coast defense cruisers to make sure of our ground. These things will cost millions upon millions of money, but it will be the best investment the people of this country ever made. A man never regrets the cost of safe foundations under his house, nor of strong locks on the doors to his warehouse.

"We must go still farther. In the West Indies we must have a checkmate for the British strongholds to be found there. We must have Cuba, San Domingo or some other territory in that region, or at the very least a naval station therein where we may coal, repair and outfit our ships, and where we may erect fortifications. Along with these comes completion of the Nicaragua canal under government auspices. To finish that great enterprise is a task worthy the best blood and genius of our people. It should be done through government assistance, on a basis that will give the government right to take possession in time of war, to close the gates leading to the Atlantic on the east and to the Pacific on the west to the ships of hostile nations. That would make us as nearly master of both oceans as we should care to be. It would enable us to transfer our fleets from one ocean to the other without loss of time. Thus our smaller navy could easily be made more effective than England's greater, could be made well nigh invincible. If we add to this a great naval station in Lake Nicaragua—where our works would be secure from any possibility of attack, where we could coal, outfit, repair, clean bottoms and recruit—the ring of defense would be complete. From the West Indies through to Hawaii we should have the mastery. From those points of vantage the world would be ours.

Mr. Blaine's Dream.

"Commerce follows power. The world over, control of the nations, through the unchanging process of human nature, seek relations commercial and other with the holders of power. Trade depends largely upon guns, as does diplomacy. To San Domingo on the east and Hawaii on the west, with the Nicaragua canal in the center, we should add a railway from the United States to South America, topping our naval station at Lake Nicaragua, and making it possible to forward men and munitions without delay, and at the same time cultivating closer commercial and social relations with the Central and South American peoples."

This was Mr. Blaine's favorite dream for the future of his country. No one who has heard him describe it will ever be able to forget his words.

Doing Well.

DUMB AS AN OYSTER.

NEWSPAPER MEN COMPLAIN OF PRIVATE SECRETARY THURBER.

A Blackmailing Scheme Squelched—The Foreign Idea—The Most Devoted and Self Sacrificing Friend President Cleveland Ever Had—Senatorial Dignity Shocked.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20. — [Special.] — The state department sometimes has strange and delicate duties to perform. Not long ago information reached the department that a newly arrived foreign minister was being blackmailed by a certain adventurer, who was assisted in his work by a woman who is fairer of face than of fame. While there is nothing in the traditions of the department or the diplomatic code requiring its officials to interfere for the protection of a foreign minister's reputation or pocketbook, there were circumstances in this case which seemed to require action. First it was necessary to make sure that the information was correct. So one of the younger officials of the department was detailed to call upon the foreign representative and to put to him a few delicate and leading questions. The minister was being blackmailed. He had been guilty of some little indiscretions, and for them was paying rather dearly. The business—at least the payment part of it—was altogether new to him, for he remarked:

"It is a strange custom you have in this country."

"But it is not a custom here."

"Oh, I thought it was. They told me it was a regular thing to make a man pay, or they would publish all about it in the newspapers. I couldn't afford to be published—my government would recall me if I were to get mixed up in any public scandal, so I paid."

"Don't you pay another cent," was the advice of the state department agent. "Leave these people to us."

In 24 hours a woman fair of face and with stylish gown, accompanied by a dashing young man—a pretty pair who had been living, and living well, by their wits—found it convenient to leave Washington for New York. There were no arrests, no publication, no scandal. And the foreign minister has learned in the dear school of experience, that the exaction of hush money from gay but inexperienced diplomats is not one of the customs of our virtuous country.

Thurber Afraid to Speak.

The newspaper correspondents have not gone complaining of Private Secretary Thurber. Their grief is that Mr. Cleveland's private secretary does not give them any assistance in their work of gathering news. Mr. Thurber seems all the time to be afraid to utter a word, always to have before his mind's eye the horrible thought, "What will the president say?" The newspaper correspondents say they do not expect Mr. Thurber to give them great state secrets. They do not ask him to reveal the contents of diplomatic dispatches, nor to repeat what is said at cabinet meetings. They do say that Mr. Thurber should be able and willing to tell them the little things which it does no one any harm for all the world to know. For instance, when the newspaper men ask the private secretary what plans the president has made for celebrating Christmas, there does not seem to be any good reason why the private secretary should not enlighten them. When the president decides to slip away to New York on private business, the newspaper men cannot imagine why Mr. Thurber should tell them fibs about it and throw dust in their eyes. Evidently Private Secretary Thurber has not yet learned the private secretary art of which Daniel Lamont was so great a master—the art of satisfying newspaper craving for news by telling the little things while all the big things are kept as mum as extra dry.

A case in point occurred not long ago. Joe Jefferson was in town, and as he and Mr. Cleveland are warm friends nothing could be more natural than that the president should make up a box party and go to see Old Rip. There was no great state secret about this, and yet Private Secretary Thurber was afraid to tell the newspapers that the president was going to the theater.

The Venerable Senator Palmer.

Poor old Senator Palmer! That's what the gossips are saying in Washington. The old senator has been one of the most devoted and self sacrificing friends President Cleveland ever had, and he has had a good many. Senator Palmer's friends wanted to send a delegation from Illinois to the next Democratic national convention to name him for president, but the senator himself objected and declared he was for the nomination of Mr. Cleveland. When the convention came on and a crisis was reached, there was a movement to bring the old man forward and if possible renominate him with a rush. Senator Palmer put a stop to it, and when called out in the convention cocked for Cleveland. As a senator he has always been one of Mr. Cleveland's staunchest supporters. He stood hard and fast in the silver fight, in the Hawaiian deal—in everything. But whenever there is a big office to be given out in Illinois, an appointment really worth having, it is Senator Palmer's political enemies who are consulted by the president, not Senator Palmer. The result is ill success in the matter of appointments has become one of the standing jokes of the capital. It is now a well understood tradition among the office seekers that the indorsement of the aged senator who has loved Mr. Cleveland so well and served him so loyally is sure to be fatal. Therefore the expression heard on every hand, "Poor old Senator Palmer!"

An Awful Lapse in Etiquette.

Senator Colquitt was guilty of an almost unparalleled breach of etiquette the other day—an offense which would have set John J. Ingalls or George F. Edmunds into a convulsion if had either of the old time guardians of the senate dignity been present on the floor. Some little fuss or resolution had come up for consideration. As it was a matter in which Senator Palmer was known to be interested, Senator Cullom, eager to follow the rule of courtesy which a senator extends to his colleague from the same state, glanced around and saw that Mr. Palmer was not in his seat, and then exclaimed:

"Mr. President, I think this matter had better go over till the old gentleman gets back."

Senator Cullom said it all unconsciously of the fact that in speaking of Mr. Palmer as "the old gentleman" instead of as "my colleague," or "my colleague, the distinguished junior senator from Illinois," he had committed a great crime, and continued unaware thereof until he saw the smiles on the faces of senators all about him and asked for an explanation.

ONE PLAN SPOILED.

Supreme Court Decides Against a Method of Relief.

The Issuance of Bonds for the Relief of the Poor of Dickinson County Is Declared to Be Illegal.

SIGNIFICANCE OF THE DECISION.

LANSING, Dec. 14.—The Dickinson county bonds, according to the opinion of the supreme court, are illegal and void. The action brought was one to compel the chairman of the board of supervisors to execute bonds amounting to $30,000 to defray the current expenses of Dickinson county, the issue of which has been ordered by the board. The real purpose of the issue was, however, to meet the pressing demands for the relief of the poor of that county, but the court says: "The question is one of power, and not one of sentiment, however much the necessities of the case may appeal to us." The writ of mandamus asked for was denied and the bonds will not issue. This settles a very important question which Gov. Rich has been entertaining with reference to the measures to be taken for the relief of the miners in the upper peninsula. He had hoped to devise some scheme whereby the upper country counties might be bonded for the support of their poor, but the present decision dispels that hope. The situation cannot be avoided except by a special session of the legislature called to amend the law.

A PIONEER GONE.

William D. Thompson, a Millionaire, Dies at Jackson.

JACKSON, Dec. 18.—William D. Thompson, one of the earliest settlers in Michigan, and Jackson's wealthiest citizen, died after an illness of several weeks.

[Mr. Thompson was born in New York in 1811 and came to Michigan in 1832. He was prominently connected with the Michigan Central railroad when it was first built, and in later years, in connection with H. A. Hayden and Amos Root, of this city, and O. M. Barnes, of Lansing, purchased the franchise and built the Jackson, Lansing & Saginaw railway, in which deal the four cleared something like $1,000,000 each. Mr. Thompson has done more to assist business men when closely pressed for funds than any other man in this part of the state. He was largely interested in silver mines in Deadwood slate quarries in northern Michigan and a number of manufacturing institutions. His wealth is estimated at fully $2,000,000.]

THE INHERITANCE TAX.

Supreme Court to Pass Upon Senator Doran's Measure.

LANSING, Dec. 14. — The supreme court will pass upon the constitutionality of the inheritance tax law on the first day of January next. Some time ago two suits were brought against the judge of probate for Wayne county, one by Hance and the other by Chambers, to compel him to assess taxes on inheritances according to the law. Judge Durfee, claiming that the law was unconstitutional, had refused to grant the request. Now the supreme court has ordered Judge Durfee to show cause on January 1 why he doesn't comply with the law.

OUR SALT MINES.

The State Inspector Presents Figures of the Production.

SAGINAW, Dec. 15.—The twenty-fifth annual report of the state salt inspector showing the operations of the salt inspection law for the year ending November 30, 1893, has been made public. The salt-producing territory of the state is divided into eight districts with 109 firms operating 112 salt plants having an annual capacity of 5,425,000 barrels of salt. The total quantity of salt inspected during the year was 3,514,485, a decrease of 297,569 barrels as compared with the previous year. Since the manufacture of salt was begun in Michigan in 1859 there has been produced 64,128,949 barrels. The wholesale price in 1856 was $1.50 a barrel. It is forty-five cents now.

CAN'T GET OUT.

De France Must Languish in Jail in Default of $15,000 Bail.

LANSING, Dec. 16.—Stonewall J. De France, who has been for some time in jail at Kalamazoo awaiting trial on a charge of forgery, and against whom there are indictments in several other states for similar offenses, had a hearing in the supreme court Friday. He claimed that bail in the sum of $15,000, in which he was held, is excessive, but the court decided otherwise and turned him over to the sheriff again. Judge Buck continued the case to the February term in order to allow the defense time to secure the presence of two witnesses claimed to necessary, Michael Cusenery, of Detroit and John T. Cobb, of Birmingham, Eng.

Detroit's Unemployed.

DETROIT, Dec. 16.—A special committee of the trades council, at the request of the Quarterly Journal of Economics of Harvard university, for the last three weeks has been making an investigation into the number of unemployed in this city. The report made public at the trades council meeting places the number of the unemployed at 25,000.

A Hard Handicap.

A party of football devotees were in an elevated train and the other passengers were much annoyed by their loud and boisterous conversation, which related entirely to the game and its players. One young fellow boasted so long and earnestly about his sprinting abilities that a crusty old man in the opposite corner resolved to take some of the conceit out of the youngster.

"So you think you can run a foot race?" he demanded.

"Bet your life I can," was the prompt reply.

"I'll tell you what I'll do with you," continued the old man. "I'll race you for a five-dollar bill if you will give me a yard start."

"I'll go you. But where will we run?"

"Up a ladder," was the prompt reply. —N. Y. Herald.

The Message is the Man.

Mr. Cleveland's message throws a clear beam of light upon one of the most highly interesting subjects of modern history—his own character and habit of thought.

Our Democratic President is more unique as a statesman than as a man. He may be called the business man in statesmanship. He differs from nearly all the great national figures in American politics by taking always the business man's point of view. He more resembles Walpole and perhaps the younger Pitt than our Clays, Calhouns, Websters, Davises and Lincolns. He is more like the average business man than like the average politician.

His message to the Fifty-third Congress illustrates his representative character more than any of his previous state papers, because in the earlier ones he was introducing his view and seemed somewhat radical to a nation long accustomed to a strained and sentimental style in public men.

This message shows him as the business man pure and simple. There were several chances for buncombe in foreign affairs. He disdained them all and briefly indicated his conception of business honesty in dealing with other Powers. Like a business man he reviewed with painstaking accuracy the Government's condition, adding a short sentence or two here and there of terse suggestion—all in the same direction of conservative but energetic business action. In urging immediate action upon the tariff reform bill, where he might naturally have been enthusiastic, he writes with only the feeling of a map of deeds, who cannot comprehend why a reform ordered by the people and prepared carefully by competent and authorized agents should not be put in operation immediately.

If Mr. Cleveland were a disturber or a self-seeker, if he were ambitious of personal prestige and power, he would have found some novelty for popular discussion or would have refurnished some old instrument of glorification.

He is the business man in politics. He issues no promises he does not see his way to redeem. He gives no account of himself or his party which he does not believe to be substantiated. The business reforms he has regarded as necessary he sees in the hands of a Congress pledged to carry them out. The rest he is satisfied to regard as matters of conscientious business administration.

These are commercial and not romantic days. The sense of the business man is more puissant than the imagination of the bard or the headlong pugnacity of the soldier whose martial feats the bard celebrates. We live in times of reason and knowledge. The farmer is a student of markets. The lawyer of the highest success is the agent of business rather than the impassioned orator.

Grover Cleveland may be the first of a long line. Having once had the typical business man as a Chief Administrator, the controlling business spirit of the country may demand such executives regularly.—St. Louis Republic.

DR. A. OWEN:

Dear Sir—I take pleasure in stating that the Owen Electric Belt purchased from you last May has been worth more than all the medicines in the world to me. On the 27th of January, 1890, I was taken with La Grippe and from that to nervous prostration of the stomach and spine, liver complaint, exitation of the lungs and constipation. About this time I went to consult the best doctor in the county for treatment. I stopped at my mother's home on my return, as my prostration was so great that I could not reach my own home which I dearly loved. I was a young married wife of six months and had kept house only four months. My hopes seemed all blasted as I gradually failed under the care and treatment and nursing by my kind and willing husband and mother, one of the best of mothers. I could not get up or be moved, so my husband sold his farm and turned all of his attention to me. Time passed, and I suffered more than tongue can tell. I could eat nothing to speak of, and what I did eat hurt my stomach. At times I seemed better and then I would get worse. I remained in this condition about sixteen months, or up to the time I purchased your Belt. Then I commenced to improve at once, and life has been brighter ever since. My husband has purchased another farm and we commenced to keep house on Thanksgiving Day, and I have done our work with my husband's help ever since. Before I purchased one of your Belts I could hardly stand on my feet. May God bless you, as the Owen Electric Belt was the means of saving my life and giving me health and strength to live and enjoy life with my husband once more. I cannot say enough for your Belt if I should write half a day. My sudden improvement caused a good deal of excitement, as the doctors and every one around said I would die of consumption. I can eat my three meals every day. If you wish to publish this letter we will answer all correspondents who wish to inquire fully about my case, by sending directed and stamped envelope.

Yours very truly,

MR. EDWIN and HATTIE McGOWAN,
KEELERSVILLE, MICH.

READ THE NEXT LETTER SIX MONTHS LATER.

KEELERSVILLE, Mich., Aug. 21, 1892.

DR. A. OWEN:

Dear Sir—Six months has passed since I wrote my first testimonial letter in praise of your Electric Belt. I cannot say enough for your Belts. I have been improving rapidly since I wrote you the first letter six months ago. Now I am able to do my work, and this week I rode 22 miles to Thunder Knot on the banks of Lake Michigan, camped out over night, and came back the next day over hills and rough roads, 44 miles in all, through the hot sun. I could not have done the same one year ago for the wealth of Michigan. My health has improved so rapidly that others are waking up to the idea that the Owen Electric Belts are the only means by which they can be cured.

I remain as ever your friend, HATTIE H. McGOWAN.

Best Cure For

All disorders of the Throat and Lungs is Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. It has no equal as a cough-cure.

Bronchitis

"When I was a boy, I had a bronchial trouble of such a persistent and stubborn character, that the doctor pronounced it incurable with ordinary remedies, but recommended me to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. I did so, and one bottle cured me. For the last fifteen years, I have used this preparation with good effect whenever I take a bad cold, and I know of numbers of people who keep it in the house all the time, not considering it safe to be without it."—J. C. Woodson, P. M., Forest Hill, W. Va.

Cough

"For more than twenty-five years, I was a sufferer from lung trouble, attended with coughing so severe at times as to cause hemorrhage, the paroxysms frequently lasting three or four hours. I was induced to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and after taking four bottles, was thoroughly cured."—Franz Hoffman, Clay Centre, Kans.

La Grippe

"Last spring I was taken down with la grippe. At times I was completely prostrated, and so difficult was my breathing that my breast seemed as if confined in an iron cage. I procured a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and no sooner had I began taking it than relief followed. I could not believe that the effect would be so rapid and the cure so complete."—W. H. SOME FAMOUS DWARFS.

One That Was Served In a Pie and Passed as a Talking Cat.

One of the most celebrated of little men was Jeffrey Hudson, who figures in Sir Walter Scott's "Peveril of the Peak." His history has been so often written as to bear but a brief mention. A whimsical mite was he, presented by the Duchess of Buckingham to Queen Henrietta Maria, the wife of Charles I, served up in a cold pie, and many were the pranks in which he took a part. For instance, there was the party of cattle baskets, as they were vulgarly termed, sitting down to enjoy the "cup that cheers" and a dish of gossip at the same time, while Butterkin, the cat, sat gravely by.

The meal over, one guest offered puss a bit of cheese, and was almost paralyzed to have that animal speak up and say, "Butterkin can help himself when he is hungry," and then make off down stairs, leaving the old crones with uplifted hands, in wild confusion, shouting at their hostess, "A witch, a witch, with her talking cat!" while it might have gone very hard with the poor woman had it not soon been found that a wag, for a joke, had killed and flayed her pet grimalkin and dressed wee Jeffrey in its skin.

When knighted by the king, Hudson assumed many high and mighty airs, although he was the butt as well as the amusement of the court; was once almost drowned in a basin of water, and would have been blown into the Thames but for a shrub that saved him. But Lord Minimus (as he was dubbed) really had his doughty adventures; was sent on diplomatic missions; fell into the hands of a Turkish pirate, who carried him off a prisoner to Barbary, and finally distinguished himself by shooting a Mr. Crofts in a duel, that gentleman having at first come to answer the small man's challenge armed only with a syringe filled with water.

A contemporary of Jeffrey was Richard Gibson, an artistic lilliputian, who studied under Sir Peter Lely, painted very creditable historical pieces and miniature portraits and taught drawing to the royal Princesses Mary and Elizabeth, who were afterward queens of England. He was appointed in his youth page of the back stairs, and was married to Anne Shepherd, another court dwarf exactly his own height, having a most brilliant wedding, King Charles giving away the bride, while the queen presented her with a diamond ring, and Edmund Waller, the poet to their majesties, composed a poem on the event. This diminutive pair, 3 feet 10 inches high, passed a long and happy life together, and had nine children, five of whom grew to maturity and were full ordinary size.—Harper's Young People.

The Flag of the Suffrage Cause.

Mrs. Clara B. Colby, the editor of The Woman's Tribune of Washington, in her address before the suffrage convention, happening to mention the colors of the Woman Suffrage association—the narrow orange ribbon worn on the breast of every delegate—explained the circumstances surrounding the adoption of the emblem.

The women of the state of Washington, on the first election day when their newly acquired franchise was in force, each, without respect to the political party with which she cast her ballot, displayed orange colors somewhere about her throat or bonnet in acknowledgement of the obligation to Judge Orange Jacobs, whose efforts were largely instrumental in securing for women their right to vote in the state. The right had since been rescinded by judicial decision, but throughout the country Judge Jacobs' services are commemorated by the orange ribbon. The flag of the suffrage cause—an orange star on a blue field—was first raised on that election day in Washington, and stars have been added as Colorado and Wyoming have also acknowledged the worth of women's opinion in political affairs.

The Miner's Lamp.

In many respects the miners' electric handlamp meets the requirements of mining work infinitely better than the old safety lamp, but it has a radical fault, which must be overcome if it is to be kept in use. The inrush of mine gas to the working galleries is often so sudden that the miner has no idea of its presence, and the only means he has of discovering it is the combustion that goes on within the netting of his safety lamp. As a matter of fact, an electric lamp will give a splendid light while its too confiding owner is being smothered. What is wanted is an electric lamp fitted with an appliance that will automatically give warning of the presence of either black damp or fire damp without the making of any special observation. Until this is done the use of the electric lamp in mines will be attended with anything but safety.—Chicago Record.

It is a matter of sincere regret that Lady Carlisle should have joined her friend and coworker in the cause of temperance reform, Miss Frances Willard, in at least semi-invalidism. THE LAWYER OF TODAY.

He Is Gradually Becoming More and More of a Specialist.

"There is as much learning here in the legal profession as ever, but it is not on exhibition," said a Philadelphia lawyer. "In the first place, the courts will not countenance its undue display. In old times an advocate was allowed great latitude. Formerly, in a case of damages caused by a neglected sidewalk, the attorney would be allowed to expound not only the laws relating to damages for neglect, but he might stray off into the realms of medical jurisprudence at great length, and even perorate with an allusion to the Magna Charta, the constitution and the American eagle. At present a lawyer must confine himself to the real merits of his case. The machinery of our courts has grown too costly to permit such waste of time. It follows that there is less oratorical skill displayed than in former days, especially at the period when some of our leading lawyers made a specialty of criminal defense. Now few lawyers of eminence, either in Philadelphia or the east generally, undertake the defense in a criminal case.

"Today the practice of law, like other professions, is becoming more and more specialized. A law office is simply a business office, as you may discover by visiting some of the handsome new office buildings down town. I know of one office where there are several partners, that would remind you of a banking office, and where a bookkeeper and cashier is employed to pay off clerks, typewriters and other employees. You will, however, still find veteran members of the bar pursuing old time methods in a cozy, quiet office, sitting at a baize covered table amid a wilderness of well thumbed books. They carry a dark green bag filled with briefs when they go to court, precisely as all lawyers did 50 years ago, and as London barristers still do.

"As to young lawyers, however talented they may be, if without social or political prestige, their struggle to advance in the profession is sure to be a hard one. Practice now is often inherited or transmitted in some other way. I could point out to you in Philadelphia law firms that have been confined to the members of one family or its collateral branches since the Revolution.

"I may say that there is an evident impetus to change many useless old legal methods. The remark of Lord Coleridge, when in this country, that there were many volumes of English legal decisions which it would do no harm to destroy, would answer as the mainspring of this impetus. Legislation is certainly advancing in this—that merely experimental general laws are passed with greater difficulty than formerly."

Another lawyer, older than the other, said: "Progress in the legal profession? Progress is hardly a term to apply to law, for it is grounded on precedents, sometimes the older the better. For this reason jurisprudence is the least progressive of the sciences. Still there have been, no doubt, improvements in methods of practice, though I am not much of a code lawyer. I have had to study hard all my life. The younger lawyers appear to do little of that. They seem to believe, with Aaron Burr, that 'law is whatever is boldly advanced and plausibly maintained.'"—Philadelphia Record.

Trained Nurses.

The fashionable impetus which it was expected the patronage of the Princess of Wales would give to the occupation of trained nursing in England has hardly been realized. It will undoubtedly receive a stimulant in the plan, of which word now comes from there, to have nursing lectures at fashionable houses to instruct the aristocratic pupils in the rudiments at least of caring for the sick. These "afternoons" are to be illustrated with genuine hospital implements, including a patient, and, with tea and biscuits handed round, will take on as well an agreeable social tone.

A story heard recently accentuates the need of all this. It was related of an English peeress, who, wishing to master the duties of a trained nurse, procured admission to a hospital for such instruction. She proved an utterly hopeless pupil, and at length it was deemed advisable to ask her to resign. Her martial tread through the wards and general "heaviness" in all that she did actually made her presence a detriment, which would seem to indicate that even aristocratic nurses are born, not made.—New York Times.

When a Chinese Bank Fails.

Bank notes were issued in China as early as the ninth century, when the art of printing was unknown in Europe. These notes have generally been redeemed, because in China, when a bank fails, all the clerks and managers have their heads chopped off and thrown in a heap along with the books of the firm. And so it has happened in those good old barbarous times that for the past 500 years not a single Chinese bank has suspended payment.

Now that China is coming under the sway of western civilization, we have no doubt it will have the same financial troubles as its more civilized banking brethren.—Chambers' Journal.

A Chinese Invitation.

The Chinese send three invitations to the guests that they desire to see at their great repasts. The first is dispatched two days before the feast. The second on the day itself, in order to remind those they expect of their engagement, and the third just before the hour has struck, so as to show how impatient they are to see their friends arrive.—Hong-Kong Letter.

THOMAS MINCHIN.

Before Treatment. After Treatment.

Nervous Debility and Catarrh Cured.

Thomas Minchin says: "I was reduced to a nervous wreck—only weighed 118 pounds. The result of early abuse was the cause. I had the following symptoms: Miserable mentally and physically, melancholy, nervousness, weakness, specks before the eyes, dizzy, poor memory, palpitation of the heart, flushing, cold hands and feet, weak back, dreams and losses at night, tired in the morning, pimples on the face, loss of ambition, burning sensation, kidneys weak etc. Doctors could not cure me; but Drs. Kennedy & Kergan by their New Method Treatment, cured me in a few weeks. I weigh now 170 pounds. It is three years since I have taken their treatment."

MAJOR W. A. SIMFIELD.

Before Treatment. After Treatment.

Blood Disease and Dyspepsia Cured.

Major Simfield says: "I had Dyspepsia and Catarrh of the Stomach for many years. To make matters worse I contracted a Constitutional Blood Disease. My bones ached. Blotches on the skin looked horrible. I tried sixteen doctors in all. A friend recommended Drs. Kennedy & Kergan. I began their New Method Treatment and in a few weeks was a new man with renewed life and ambition. I cannot say too much for those scientific doctors who have been in Detroit for fourteen years. I conversed with hundreds of patients in their offices who were being cured for different diseases. I recommend them as honest and reliable Physicians."

A Steel Windmill and Steel Tower every 3 minutes. These figures tell the story of the ever-growing, ever-selling, everlasting Steel Aermotor. Where one goes others follow, and we "Take the Country." Though still, we were unable to make all of the 20,049 Aermotors in '91. Orders often waited weeks to fill. But now we have vastly increased our plant and are prepared promptly to plant our Aermotor in every habitable portion of the globe.

Are you curious to know how the Aermotor Co. in the 6th year of its existence, came to make many times as many windmills as all other makers combined? How we originated the Steel Wheel, the Steel Fixed Tower, the Steel Tilting Tower?

It's We commenced in a field in which we had been in experiment for 20 years, and in which there seemed to fail to be any limit to the perfection shown except in feeble imitation of our inventions.

24. Before commencing the manufacture of windmills extensive scientific investigation and experiments were made by a skilled mechanical engineer, in which over 5,000 dynamometric tests were made on 61 different forms of wheels, propelled by artificial and therefore uniform wind, which settled definitely many questions relating to the proper speed of wheel, the best form, angle, curvature and area of sail surface, the resistance of air to rotation, obstructions in the wheel, such as heavy wooden arms, obstructions before the wheel, as in the vaneless mill, and many other more abstruse, though not less important questions. These scientific investigations proved that the power of the best wind wheels could be doubled, and the AERMOTOR daily demonstrates it has been done.

34. To the liberal policy of the Aermotor Co., that guarantees its goods satisfactory or pays freight both ways, and to the enormous output of its factory which enables it to furnish the best article at less than the poorest is sold for. For '92 we furnish the most perfect bearings ever put in a windmill, and have made an exhaustive revision of the Aermotor and Towers.

If you want a strong, stiff, Steel Fixed Tower—or if you want the tower you don't have to climb (the Steel Tilting Tower) and the Wheel that runs when all others stand still, that costs you less than wood and lasts ten times as long (The Steel Aermotor) or if you want a Geared Aermotor to churn, grind, cut feed, pump water, turn grindstone and saw wood, that does the work of 4 horses at the cost of one ($100), write for copiously illustrated printed matter, showing every conceivable phase of windmill construction and work, to the AERMOTOR CO., 12th and Rockwell Sts., Chicago, or 27-29 Beale St., San Francisco.

D. R. T. RASH'S MAGNETIC OINTMENT.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

All Sores, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Burns, Sore Throat, Lameness, Rheumatism, Piles, Inflammation of Lungs and Bowels, Bronchitis, Croup, Salt Rheum, Chilblains, Affection of the Spine, Erysipelas, Nervous Irritation, and all disorders attendant with Inflammation.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame, every bone, muscle, vein, nerve and ligament. Is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years.

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should be perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Prices 25 and 40 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

THE LAND OF FLOWERS.

An Interesting Letter from a Tecumseh Citizen Sojourning in Florida.

On the morning of Nov. 29th, the writer bid adieu to Tecumseh and set out on his journey to the land of flowers. It was a cloudy, icy morning. Rain beat against the car windows as we sped on from Toledo to Cincinnati. On the night of Dec. 1st., after a continuous journey from Cincinnati in the same Pulman sleeper, he was safely landed, just before the midnight hour at Jacksonville. The air was mild, even at that hour, and the morning broke bright and balmy. The broad river St. Johns looked like a stream of moulten silver. How different from any northern city of the same size, 17,000, this gateway of the state of palms and pines and orange groves appeared! The sandy streets so muffled the sound of traffic as to provoke a sense of sleepiness. But how beautiful the homes and hotels looked with their broad verandas and blooming shrubbery tempting the weary traveler to stop and rest for a time at least before going farther south. Was not such a town smiling in the sunlight of a day that gave a June like temperature in Dec. tropical enough to suit one who had come from a region where the thermometer had been in close proximity to zero?

But the objective point of this Michigander was 100 miles further toward the equator. These 100 miles were made in a train filled full of fugitives from the rigors of a northern climate. Many had been this way before and were reminded by the effect of freezing snowy days upon them that they must come again. Florida is getting fuller and fuller of such people as each winter comes. After the holidays there will be still more to follow. With a lively companion from Birmingham, Ala. going to see an orange grove at Orlando, which he had bought, the additional 100 miles from Jacksonville were soon passed. As the station Glenwood was called out, your correspondent clasped firmly his grip, threw his overcoat over his arm and stepped forth into darkness. Pine trees and saw-palmettos were dimly visible but no human habitations. But a friend was there who with his mule Mary, hitched to his spring wagon, took trunk and traveler, over a sand road which had been made firmer by being covered with saw dust to the home which was waiting a mile and a half from the depot to receive him. The air was a little chill and the pinewood fire which blazed on the hearth of that southern home was cheerful, and cheering. So was the welcome received by the man who owned the home, whose name is Mann, and who is known by some who read this letter. The supper that had been made ready by this kind hostess increased the cherriness of the welcome. Saturday and Sunday were beautiful days. On Sunday morning a congregation of over 60 gathered in the neat little church of Glenwood. Roses of fine varieties were shedding their fragrance from the pulpit and cabinet organ. The singing was good and we had a true Thanksgiving service—the people being thankful that this was to be for them the beginning of a regular series of preaching services every Sunday morning for the winter, after having been deprived for a long time of such services.

But what, the reader is asking are your impressions of Florida? This is a question easier asked than answered. The first impression is one of disappointment perhaps over the appearance of the country. It is flat of course and quite uncultivated. In winter, but for Pines and Orange groves, it would have a rather ragged and faded look. Mrs. Stowe gives a better description of it than it is possible for me to do in her pleasant volume bearing the title "Palmetto Leaves." I advise any one interested in Florida to get and read it. There are cultivated places however that look attractive even in the winter time. I rode to church on Sunday on a street 100 feet wide, bordered part of the way by Oleanders 20 feet high and large in proportion, but not blooming now, and between almost continuous orange groves loaded with the golden colored fruit, gleaming among the bright green leaves, and now and then a comfortable dwelling half hidden in the grove with tropical plants and shrubs visible in their front. A decidedly pleasant if not enchanting scene, I think you will say for the winter time.

This is the season of orange picking and packing, a season that will last until spring, for the oranges will keep their hold on the trees until that time and many owners will delay their picking and the marketing of their fruit in hope of better prices than can be secured now. And the fruit is improved by being left on trees until late in the season. It gets riper and sweeter. There is a risk of damage however, for damaging frosts sometimes come. Already I have felt the cooling influence of a Florida frost. December 4th and 5th, were cool days and one night or rather in the early morning the thermometer sank to 37 degrees which whitened the grass, etc., a little. The sand of which the soil here is composed is always white and glistening. The contrast between it and the orange trees that grow in it is very striking. Orange culture in this section is the great industry. Nothing else of any account is talked of or planned for. You can judge a little of its extent when I tell you that over 50,000 boxes were shipped from Glenwood Station last season, and nearly or quite as many more will be this one. In an area of country 10 miles long by from 3 to 5 in breadth 500,000 boxes were sent away. At a dollar and a half a box this crop would be worth you see a round half million. I should be glad to tell you more about orange growing, as well as about people and places in Florida as they are coming under my observation. But what I have sent will be sufficient I am sure for the present. So, for the present at least, I will abruptly close. W. H. B.

"The Greatest of all our Periodicals."

The foremost men of the world write the literature of contemporaneous activity for THE FORUM.

Every great subject is taken up by The Forum when it naturally comes into public attention and is treated by the best authorities, without regard to parties or creeds. It will keep any thoughtful reader informed on the tasks and problems of the time, as no other periodical does.

To many thoughtful people, the price of The For has hitherto been prohibitory; indeed all the great Reviews have been too l a price for the masses of intelligent readers. But now the number of reade thoughtful literature —men and women who wish really to know what is going on in the world outside the narrow limits of particular sects and parties—is great enough in the United States to warrant so revolutionary a reduction in price. The Forum discusses important subjects, but it is not dull. The literature of contemporaneous activity is, in fact, the most interesting of all literature. American citizenship implies that a man shall know the opinions of the foremost men and the latest great achievements in every direction of activity.

SOME OF OUR ADVERTISERS.

"I see you are writing up the advertisers, who are represented in the HERALD during December, "remarked one of our business men to our local scribe the other day. "It is a good scheme, and I am glad to see it. I believe the business men of Tecumseh are disposed to treat their home papers with proper liberality, at least a large majority of them, and I am pleased to see you return the compliment."

Here goes for the second installment:

The first card on the supplement sheet is that of Anderson & Co., but as this firm has already been noticed, we refrain from further comment. They advertise just as they do everything else—drive a four-horse team and always keep at the head of the procession—They are constant advertisers in the Dundee, Clinton and Addison papers, as well as in the two home papers, and it evidently pays them.

Teeple, the Artist, is the next man on the list, and he deserves all the good words we can say about him. Tecumseh never had a photographer who seemed to be so thoroughly posted in all the details of the art. He is an expert at the photo trade and this ascertion is no flattery either. His business kept right up all through the dull year of 1893, and he is enjoying a big run now for the holiday season.

E. F. Kirchgessner, the successor of S. P. Hosmer & Son, has become a business fixture in this town and is building up a lucrative trade. He has fully recovered from his recent illness and is prepared to rush business in the jewelry and book line. Although a youngman, he has already acquired a first class reputation for enterprise, tact and integrity, which will certainly give him a successful business career.

As another year rolls round, Harris & Hiteshu are still to be found at the old corner store, with an immense stock of goods for the million. Their capacious store is filled to the brim and running over the edges with about everything, except hardware and furniture that a man needs in the family. Since starting in business here a few years ago, their trade has had a phenominal growth and it keeps booming right along.

James Montague still leads the van in the novelty line. He runs the same old store but he has a full line of new goods for the present holiday season. In addition to his large and well selected stock of Novelty Goods he also makes a specialty of framing pictures, and keeps a very large stock of mouldings for that purpose. We have been informed on what we regard good authority that Santa Claus makes his Tecumseh headquarters at Montague's.

James Lowry, although yet a young man, is the Nestor of the grocery trade in this town, having dealt out tea, coffee and sugar to the denizens of this burg longer than any other grocer here. His large double store in the Lilley House block is scarcely large enough to accommodate his mammoth stock of groceries, crockery and glassware. He is just now making a specialty of the Royal Satsuma Japan tea, a delicious anti-nervous beverage which every one ought to try.

C. A. Wright does'nt sell nails nor ulsters, but when it comes to the drug and wall paper trade Gus is in it every time. He began selling drugs in his father's store several years before he could vote, and has been sticking to it ever since. His trade, which he has held so long, shows what square dealing, enterprise, economical habits and faithful attention to business can accomplish. He is good for a good many more years yet.

Avery & Co. is one of Tecumseh's best and strongest business firms. Mr. Avery is a careful, prudent business man and at the same time one who keeps fully abreast of the times in his own line of trade. He deals in groceries, both staple and fancy, and also carries a large assortment of crockery and glass ware. He is having a big run at present on a lot of splendid honey which took the prize at the Columbian Exposition.

Anderson Bros. are also engaged in the grocery trade and carry a large and well selected stock of staple and fancy goods in their line. They have almost been "brought up" among groceries, having been engaged in that line since boyhood. For many years they were in their father's store and then purchased the business. They are very pleasant men to deal with and know their business thoroughly from top to bottom. Hence they always have a long string of A one customers.

Wm. McCowen, one of our oldest business men, having been compelled to relinquish his task by reason of ill health, has recently sold his furniture stock to J. D. Kinney & Co., of Adrian. The new firm have rearranged the store, added a line of crockery, china and art pottery thereto and shy their castor into the ring, with an apparent determination to gather in their full share of patronage. The firm have conducted a similar business in Adrian and doubtless will succeed here.

THE BIRDS OF NORTH AMERICA.

In connection with the foregoing report of our Ornithological Chapter, it is only right to call the attention of all lovers of birds to the magnificent work now being issued by the Natural Science Association of America, and entitled "The Birds of North America." Edition limited to 1,000. It is emphatically an original work, original in design and execution, and whether in letter press, illustrations or price, it is unapproached by anything of the kind in existance. It is recommended by the highest scientific, ecclesiastic and educational authority as being the most attractive, meritorious, pure and ennobling exporition of our ornithology yet given to the public. Dr. Elliott Coues, author of "Birds of the North-West," says: "It is a really notable work." Prof. C. J. Maynard, author of the "Birds of Eastern North America," says: "It contains the best pictures of the species which I have ever seen." Thos. G. Gentry, author of "Life Histories of Birds," and "Nests and Eggs of Birds of the United States," says: "It is the cheapest and best publication on ornithology in this country. The drawings are of a very high order, and rivals in beauty of design and finish the more costly works published abroad or in this country. It should be found in our homes and in libraries generally." And, according to Dr. Theodore Gill, a member of the National Academy of Sciences, "It is not only a meritorious volume, but is altogether so handsome as to make it a very appropriate presentation book or ornament for the family table." It is an imperial quarto volume of engraved figures of all our species, artistically reproduced, true in all hues of color to their natural plumage and botanical surroundings. It also includes a copious text description of their habits and characteristics, and embracing in general the observations made by the most eminent writers on ornithology, and a systematic table, arranged according to the classification adopted by the American Ornithologists' Union. includes all the additions and corrections of our North American species which have been made to date, with an index to page, plate and figure of each species according to the A. O. U. number. It is illustrated with one hundred and nineteen full page colored plates, each representing from one to thirty or more species. It is the finest book on American birds issued since Audubon, and is pronounced by some authorities surperior to that now rare and costly work. It is issued in half and full bindings, Russia, seal, or morocco, at the net price of $40 and $45 respectively; but in response to a special letter, the association authorized me to say that a substantial discount will be made to such of our A. A, members and others as are working naturalists. We commend this work especially to members of the Wilson Ornithological Chapter. It is also a very useful and appropriate addition to the home and reference library, and for presentation purposes generally. Address regarding it, the Natural Science Association, 114 Fifth Avenue, New York, N. Y. Sample of plates and text can be had by sending twenty-five cents in postage stamps.

Are You Ambitious?

Especially, are you an ambitious woman anxious to make a career for yourself? Then you will be more than interested in "The Road to Fame or Fortune," published in Demorest's Family Magazine for December, which is a faithful chronicle of how ambitious girls desirous of becoming successful business women live and labor in New York, giving suggestions and valuable information that cannot fail to be of inestimable benefit to all talented and ambitious girls. And this is an ideal Christmas number, also. The lovely water color "Did Santa Claus Bring You?" will appeal to everyone, young or old. "Christmas Eve at Bethlehem," with its numerous illustrations, takes one back to the first Christmas Eve and tells how the traditions are preserved and what ceremonies are observed at the present day. There are two splendid Christmas stories splendidly illustrated; "An Excursion to the Land of Dolls," also illustrated, will interest all little maidens who love their dolls; there is a charming Christmas play, "The Prodigal," which will afford most timely entertainment; a very beautiful Christmas carol with original words and music, arranged so that it is appropriate for church, school, or the home circle; there are numberless suggestions for Christmas gifts; the many departments are full to overflowing with good things and everyone who loves babies will be charmed with the portraits of nearly a hundred who are competitors for the "Baby Prize," offered by this Magazine. Indeed, the December number is a generous twenty cents' worth; but it is only a fair sample of what is furnished twelve times a year for $2.00. Published by W. Jennings Demorest, 15 East 14th St., N. Y.

Bellefiend: I see that a discussion is going on as to whether or not chickens talk to each other. Bloomfield: O, well, no one can deny that a good deal of fowl language is used.

Said he to a young actress: "If you went on with a stage fright what a remarkable pair you would be." "How do you make out a pair?" "Well, you know it would be a stage beauty going on with a stage fright." She smiled.

She: The play was excellent except for one thing. He: And what was that? She: The time extends over three months and it shouldn't be more than a week. He: I'd like to know why? She: Why! Because the same servant girl stays through it all.

How He Revenged Himself.

"I don't understand you," said Mr. Harlem Heights to Mr. Uptown Boulevard.

"What is there about me that you don't understand?"

"You have been down on Mr. Cortland Street for the last ten years, and now you have consented to his marriage with your daughter. Isn't that a trifle inconsistent?"

"Not when you know the facts. Just keep quiet until after the wedding before you accuse me of letting up on Cortland Street. He gets my wife for a mother-in-law. If that's not vengeance, I don't know what vengeance is."—Texas Siftings.

What Hurt Him.

"I don't mind your refusing me cold victuals, ma'am," said the time-worn and travel-stained pilgrim at the kitchen door, buttoning his faded remnant of a coat under his chin, "but when you call me a worthless tramp you do me a cruel injustice. I have a standing offer of fifteen dollars, ma'am, from one of the best medical colleges in this country for my corporosity, just as it stands!"

And with a stately bow he turned away, shuffled down the steps and carried his insulted corporosity to the next kitchen.—Chicago Tribune.

HE KNEW HIS BUSINESS.

Kind-Hearted Maiden (fishing for a stray penny in her purse)—I suppose you poor blind people feel your misfortune keenly?

Blind Mendicant—Yes, indeed. The Lord only knows how I miss the pleasure of being able to look into the beautiful faces of the handsome and lovely ladies who are kind enough to donate—

Kind-Hearted Maiden (fishing out a quarter)—Here, poor fellow, take this. I'm sure you are deserving.—Puck.

Delicate Consideration.

Mother (just before Christmas)—Why did you jump and run when your father came in?

Daughter—I had a lap full of Christmas presents.

Mother—But they are not for him.

Daughter—No, but I wanted him to have the pleasure of thinking they were.—N. Y. Weekly.

Time's Transformation.

"Woodman, spare that tree!"
Touch not a single bough!"
Was written of an oak,
But—it's a chestnut now.

—Life.

A Serious Loss.

Mistress—What did you do with that old brown dress that hung in my closet?

Domestic—You told me to get rid of all the rags, ma'am, and so I gave it to the ragman.

Mistress—Goodness me! How do you suppose I am ever to get any new clothes if I haven't an old dress to put on when my husband comes home?—N. Y. Weekly.

A Severe Disciplinarian.

Little Girl—If I was a teacher, I'd make everybody behave.

Aunty—How would you accomplish that?

Little Girl—Real easy. When girls was bad, I'd tell them they didn't look pretty; and when little boys was bad, I'd make them sit with the girls; and when big boys was bad, I wouldn't let them sit with the girls.—Good News.

He Looked It.

Judge Duffy—The evidence that you called this gentleman a donkey is overwhelming. Hadn't you better admit the fact and withdraw your plea of not guilty?

Accused—Maybe I had, your honor. The longer I look at the prosecuting witness' face the more probable it seems to me that I did call him a donkey.—Texas Siftings.

Suspicious.

Editor—I don't believe this Hanks, who asks for a denial of the story printed about him, amounts to anything.

Spaceryt—From what do you judge that?

Editor—He doesn't begin his letter with: "It having been called to my attention," etc.—Puck.

What She Found Out.

Little Miss Muggs (proudly)—My Aunt Mary has a lock of George Washington's hair. It's been in th' family for years.

Little Miss Freckles—I didn't know any of your ancestors were barbers.—Good News.

Painful Piety.

Mrs. Hicks—Bear in mind, young man, that Santa Claus brings presents only to good little boys.

Dick Hicks—That just hits me; I've been so good for a month that none of the boys would play with me.—Jury.

Following the Governor's Example.

Father—When I was your age I earned my own living and never spent any but my own money.

Son—Well, father, I never spend any but your money, either.—Detroit Free Press.

A Halt Called.

Woman Cross-Examiner—In what year were you born?

Woman Witness—The same year as yourself.

Woman Cross-Examiner—Witness excused.

Mr. Shortpurse Entertains.

Domestic—Beggin' your pardon for interruptin' you and your company, sir, but the grocer is here with this bill, sir, and—

Mr. Shortpurse (anxious to gain time)—Have you looked over that bill to see if it is correct?

"N-o, sir."

"Ha! I thought not. How am I to know that it is not full of mistakes? Some other day, when I have more time—"

"Oh, I'm sure it's all right, sir. He's very good at figures."

"How should you know that?"

"Why, sir, he said this was the twenty-seventh time he's called with that bill, and I know that is so, 'cause I kept count myself."—N. Y. Weekly.

Not Much of a Change.

Manager—That young woman whom I placed at this counter a year ago already knows more about the business than you do, and I find that I shall have to put her at the head of the department, though I fear it will be rather unpleasant for you to be under her orders.

Clerk—Oh, no, I am getting used to that. We were married last spring.—N. Y. Weekly.

Fiendish Revenge.

Chollie—Willie Dewdrop insulted me yesterday, but I will be wevenged on him yet.

Dollie—How will you go about it, deah boy?

Chollie—I bwibed his man to punch some pinholes in his shoes. He'll go out on the stweet to-day and catch his death of cold.—Indianapolis Journal.

Where It Would Be Timely.

Rondo—I'm going to send my article, "Is Woman a Failure," to Hyman's Magazine.

Quiller—I wouldn't; the editor has just become engaged.

Rondo—Where shall I send it, then?

Quiller—To the editor of Social Chatter; he has just been jilted.—Brooklyn Life.

Sympathetic.

"What are you reading, Johnny?" inquired the boy's father.

"A sea story, about a man who was wrecked on a cape."

"Read it aloud, Johnny. I can sympathize with him. I have just been wrecked on a seal skin cape myself."—Washington Star.

His Fad.

Mrs. Wellmeant—Well, here is a dime. Ain't you working?

Hungry Harry—Professional gentlemen do not work, lady; but at the present time I am—hem—engaged—er—in picking up rare coins here and there—hum! It is a mere fad.—Judge.

Paid Better Than Working.

John Digg (to classmate)—Well, Jack, college days are over. What are you going to do for a living?

Jack Fastsett—Been engaged by Rich & Co.

"What for?"

"Son-in-law."—Boston Globe.

Papa's Chances.

Papa—What are you going to make me for Christmas, Ethel?

Ethel—I haven't made you anything, 'cause I sent a note to Santa Claus to bring you something, and he'll attend to it for me.—Harper's Young People.

A Wholesale Sufferer.

"I have a felon on my thumb."

"I have thirty or forty on my hands."

"Nonsense!"

"It's a fact. I'm the warden of the state prison."—Truth.

Matrimonial Amenities.

Mrs. Sharpe—Generally speaking—

Mr. Sharpe—Yes, you are.

Mrs. S.—What?

Mr. S.—Generally speaking.—Vogue.

GETTING IT THROUGH HIS HEAD.

—Brooklyn Life.

His Own at Last.

Mr. Hoe Telle—You have changed washerwomen, I see.

Mrs. Hoe Telle—Yes. How do you know?

Mr. Hoe Telle—Instead of getting Brown's, Jones', Smith's and Robinson's shirts, I am getting some strange garments I never wore before. I suppose they are my own.—Truth.

A Worthy Member.

Clamwhooper—So you belong to the elite club?

Vanderchump—Yes, they put up a mean job on me. I happened to tell a member of the club that they were a lot of monkeys, and what did he do but elect me a member by acclamation.—Texas Siftings.

Not Much Time to Lose.

Little Boy—You'll have to hurry, papa, or mamma will be ready before you are.

Papa—Indeed?

Little Boy—Yes, she's trying on her bonnet. Guess you better begin to dress pretty soon.—Good News.

A Nicer Bird.

The other day Tommy was lost in a deep dream; suddenly he looked up and said: "Papa, dear."

"Well, Tommy?"

"Wouldn't the turkey just be a nicer bird if he was only all drumsticks?"—Harper's Young People.

Struck It Just Right.

Bore—Are you busy to-day?

Merchant—Yes; come right in.—Puck.

AVERY & CO.

It Was a Gentle Hint.

It seemed as if the visitor never would go away. She had been there a month or more and gave no signs of departure. One day the small boy of the house was looking at her very intently at the table.

"What is it, Johnny?" she inquired, graciously, as those who are receiving undeserved benefactions.

"No part of your head gone, is there?" he asked.

"Of course not. Why do you ask such a queer question?"

"'Cause I heard mamma say you were eatin' your head off, and I wanted to see if there was any marks of it."—Pearson's Weekly.

All Happy.

"I am particularly happy on Christmas day. It's the anniversary of my marriage."

"And I am too. It's the anniversary of my divorce."—Judge.

Old Hands in Charge.

"You are not trying to get anyone to take my place this Christmas, are you?" asked Santa Claus.

"Oh, no. Yule do," was the reply.—Truth.

TRIALS OF A POOR MAN.

Little Girl—Dad, mother sent me round to see how business is afore she orders dinner?

Dad—Business is bad, very bad. I've tried the lame, the blind and the deaf and dumb on 'em and I ain't made enough to cover my wear and tear. Tell your mother we'll have to eat our sparrergrass cold and to make a salad of the salmon that was left from yesterday!—Life.

A Question in Arithmetic.

Teacher—If a turkey weighs twelve pounds and costs ten cents a pound, how much does the whole turkey cost?

Tommy—One dollar and twenty cents.

"Correct; but suppose the turkey costs twenty cents a pound, how much does it cost then?"

"Then we don't buy any."—Texas Siftings.

A "Coup Double."

Maisie—Mrs. Homeleigh, have you got another face?

Mrs. Homeleigh—No, my dear. What makes you ask?

Maisie—Well, I heard mamma say you were two-faced; but I thought if you had another face you wouldn't wear the one you do.—Judge.

The Flower Language.

Mrs. Murray Hill—There was a time when you called me a daisy, a sweet violet and a lily of the valley.

Mr. Murray Hill—Yes, that was before you began jawing me every night. Now the only flower I wish you were is a "four o'clock." That shuts up sometimes.—Texas Siftings.

Wholesale Buying.

Husband—You'll have to wait half an hour for your change in that big store, and we are in a hurry. Why not go to a little store?

Wife—The idea! Do you suppose I can get enough stuff for sleeves in a little store?—N. Y. Weekly.

Suspiciously Bright.

Cholly—I should hate to marry such a bright woman. Why, last week her husband sent her a telegram saying he should stay late at the office, and she sent an answer to the club that she would sit up till three.—Life.

A Natural Mistake.

Mr. Homested (rushing into his wife's room)—Maria! Maria! Come quick! Nellie's got convulsions!

Mrs. Homested (entering the parlor)—Nonsense! The child's practicing her Delsarte lesson.—Chicago Record.

Mighty Hard Work.

His Friend—What part did you find most difficult when you were on the stage?

Footlights—Trying to live up to the salary I told my friends I was drawing.—Brooklyn Life.

Charity Too Close to Home.

"Is Parker much given to charity?"

"Indeed, he is—of the kind that begins at home, too. Why, that man spent a cool thousand on himself last year; and you know what a heathen he is!"—Harper's Bazar.

Knew It Was a Dream.

First Tramp—Last night I dreamed I found a pocketbook.

Second Tramp—Did you know you were dreaming at the time?

"Oh, yes; it had forty dollars in it."—Brooklyn Life.

After a Dinner.

Mr. Wall Street (tenderly)—May I have the great pleasure of putting you in your carriage?

Miss Hardtimes (haughtily)—I am sorry, but it will be impossible; I came in the cars.—Harper's Bazar.

Slang Suppressers.

"Is Miss Fosdick still president of your Society for the Suppression of Slang, Miss Skidds?"

"No; she got too fresh and we turned her down."—Retailer and Jobber.

It Was Sudden.

Fred—You are not the girl to give yourself away, are you?

Miss Elderly—Oh, Fred, this is so sudden.—Truth.

Ignorance Is Bliss.

When a burglar asks the conundrum: "Where's your money?" it is generally the wisest plan to give it up.—Life.

Rough on the Baby.

An English provincial newspaper recently called attention to a feeding bottle (i. e., nursing bottle) advertisement, which concluded with the words: "When baby is done drinking it must be unscrewed and laid in a cool place under a tap. If the baby does not thrive on fresh milk it should be boiled." This is a trifle hard on the baby.—Demorest's Magazine.

To Suit the Season.

Harry (at the all-year-round hotel in the Rockaroundle mountains)—Papa, does the landlord charge you four dollars a day now, same as in summer?

Mr. Brown—Yes, Harry, and why not?

Harry—I think he might charge less. The days are much shorter, you know.—Harper's Young People.

A Hope Fulfilled.

Carrie—May used to be fond of languages and used to say that she hoped to marry some great linguist, and here she has gone and married old Rocksby Scadds.

Millie—Then her hopes have been fulfilled. She has married money, and it can talk in all languages.—N. Y. Herald.

No Will Like That Wanted.

Old Lawyer (to young partner)—Did you draw up old Moneybag's will?

Young Partner—Yes, sir, and so tight that all the relatives in the world cannot find a flaw in it.

Old Lawyer (with some disgust)—The next time there is a will to be drawn I'll do it myself.—Texas Siftings.

Her Lineage.

Miss Antique (proud of her lineage)—We came over in the Mayflower, you know.

Chumley (who knows nothing about the Mayflower, or anything else, but wishes to be agreeable)—Indeed? And did you have a pleasant voyage?—Judge.

A Never-Failing Remedy.

Mr. Noopop—My baby cries all night. I don't know what to do with it.

Mr. Knowitt—I'll tell you what I did. As soon as our baby commenced to cry, I used to turn on all the gas. That fooled him. He thought it was broad daylight and went to sleep.—Life.

Pleasures of Traveling.

"There is no clean towel in my room," said a New Yorker traveling in the west to the hotel clerk.

"Oh, get out! That's what you said yesterday. You're a kicker."—Texas Siftings.

In St. Petersburg.

"What part of the turkey do you prefer?" asked the American minister at his Thanksgiving dinner.

"Eh? Constantinople," replied his imperial majesty of Russia absently.—Judge.

Cholly Had It Right.

He—So when you married me, it was simply a matter of dollars and cents, was it?

She—Exactly; you furnish the dollars, I furnish the sense.—Brooklyn Life.

A Deputy.

May—What did Santa Claus bring you?

Nannie—He was so busy that he couldn't come to our house, so he wrote to papa and had him get the presents.—Harper's Young People.

Smart.

"What are you boys going to get your mamma for a Christmas present?"

"Won't you tell?"

"No."

"A pair of slippers with soft wool soles."—Puck.

NOT THAT BLUE.

Miss Hanks—Who is that man with the empty sleeve you just spoke to?

Clement—Capt. Ketchum. He lost an arm winning a victory for the blue.

Miss Hanks—Introduce me; I have a brother at Yale.—Frank Leslie's Weekly.

A Neighbor's Mistake.

Little Miss Freckles—Your sister is takin' music lessons, ain't she?

Little Miss Mugg—Yes, she's going to learn to play and sing.

"Is that wot it's for?"

"Of course."

"Then my papa made a mistake."

"How?"

"He said he guessed your papa wanted to buy th' next door neighbors' houses at a sacrifice."—Good News.

Where Honor Lies.

Miss Highflye—They tell me you made a brilliant success at college, Mr. Symons.

Mr. Symons (bashful)—Thank you. I did take first honors in Greek and trigonometry.

Miss Highflye (disappointedly)—Oh, I didn't mean that! How did you stand in football?—Chicago Record.

One Gift Came Early.

Jaysmith—I received one Christmas present before the day was an hour old.

Chinner—Ah?

Jaysmith—Yes; I got home about one o'clock and my wife gave me a piece of her mind.—Judge.

A General Celebration.

"Is Christmas celebrated on the ocean?" asked Mrs. Snooper of Mr. Trotter.

"Yes, indeed," replied Trotter. "On that day the Yule tide ebbs and flows."—Detroit Free Press.

Eighteen Different Patterns in Dinner Ware, the Haviland [French], Broomfield's, Allcock's, Meakin's, Ridgeways and Johnson, [English].

Our Haviland We Buy Direct on import order from Limoges, France, in lots o eight sets, and many of our English Patterns we import direct from Potteries, thus saving jobber's profits.

Our Toilet Sets We import direct or Purchase direct from Potteries as cheap as any Jobber can buy them. We advise the use of American Toilet Ware, for this reason; should you ever break any article in your set, we can replace it for you within a fortnight. In Foreign Toilet Ware should you break an article, it takes an unlimited time and it is doubtful if you ever can replace and keep your set whole. We think every housekeeper will appreciate the force of this argument. We have both American and English wares for sale.

Guarantee We Guarantee all our goods, and on all those which we import, buy direct from Potteries. We will give our customers the advantage of the jobbers' profits.

Of Course.

In France, instead of our "What else may I show you?" the shopkeepers use the phrase: "And with that?"

An Englishman recently in Paris had bought several things in a large shop there and considered the formula repeated between each purchase most impertinent.

The last thing he bought was a pocket handkerchief, and the shopman most blandly asked: "And with that?"

This proved too much for the exasperated Briton, who angrily replied: "And with that," pointing to the handkerchief: "I blow my nose, you blockhead."

The Sale of New Jersey Havanas.

"Good morning, sir," said the oily stranger, entering the office. "I hear that you are a lover of fine cigars. Now, if you know how to keep a secret, I have here a few boxes of perfectos which were smuggled through the custom house, you know, which I can sell you at—"

There were two reasons why the oily stranger did not continue. One was that he had sold cigars to the same man before; the other was that the man was in fine physical trim and needed exercise.—Chicago Record.

Time by the Forelock.

Father—Seems to me you have been making a big lot of additions to Dick's wardrobe lately.

Mother—Well, he just teased for first one thing, and then another, until I had to get them. You can't blame a boy for wanting to look nice.

Little Dot (in another room)—Why did you make such a fuss about wanting new things? Your old ones look all right.

Little Dick—I wanted to get 'em now so they couldn't give me any of 'em as Christmas presents.—Good News.

What's One Little Cipher?

May B. Willing—You remember I told you when you had a salary of $10,000 a year I would marry you.

Ben A. Fraid—Yes (hopelessly).

May B. Willing—How much is it now, dear?

Ben A. Fraid—One thousand (more hopelessly).

May B. Willing—I don't suppose the extra cipher is really worth bothering about, do you?—Harper's Bazar.

MORE WAYS THAN ONE.

Mr. Pokes—Land ob lub, Clindy, wha' yo' doin' wif my razah?

Clindy—What's I doin'? Why, dere hain't no papah 'tall in de house ter make a blaze wif ter scorch de hair off dis chicken, an' I jes natchully has ter shave 'im.—Harper's Bazar.

Identified.

The one that Mary had.
—Yonkers Gazette.

The Prescription Free.

Tramp—I jus' dropped in, mum, to offer my new cure for indigestion, dyspepsia and kindred ailments, mum. It may prove a great blessing to your family, mum, and I charge you nothing for the prescription.

Housekeeper—Well, I must say that's reasonable enough. What is the cure?

Tramp—Live on plain food, and give your rich and indigestible dishes to the poor. I'm the poor, mum.—N. Y. Weekly.

Very Nice.

Dusty Rhodes—I said to Mrs. Dogood that the merry Yuletide brought to me only sad recollections; memories of a day when I had turkey and cranberry sauce, and hot mince pie and gooseberry jam, and—

Hungry Higgins—And—then—she—

Dusty Rhodes—Said she considered those very comfortable things to think about.—Truth.

Probably Not Their Last.

Mr. and Mrs. Wickerby's first quarrel had reached its height.

"I was drunk, madam, when I proposed to you," he said, savagely.

"Then I owe you an apology for having misjudged you, Silas!" rejoined Mrs. Wickerby, sweetly. "I thought I was merely engaging myself to a rich idiot."—Chicago Tribune.

Hobson's Choice.

Jack—Miss Gushly and Sappy are engaged.

Tom—Is that so? She has been hunting for an affinity for years. Has she found one in him?

Jack—No; but she wasted so much time seeking an affinity that, as a last resort, she had to take up with an asininity.—Truth.

Then She Knew All About It.

"What is that big iron thing?" asked Laura.

"Locomotive boiler," said Tom.

Laura looked thoughtful. After a moment's silence she asked: "Why do they boil locomotives?"

"To make 'em tender," he said, slowly.—Boston Globe.

Admitted His Error at Once.

A flashy young man wearing a loud checked suit and a pair of yellow patent leather shoes stood on an uptown corner and talked volubly to two friends.

"I think," he said, "that she's one of the prettiest young girls I ever saw. There isn't a thing that girl don't know and can't do. She swims and rides and plays billiards and poker, and dances beautifully, and can do anything about the house that any girl can do. I tell you, she's fin de sizzle."

"What's that?" asked one of the friends.

The flashy young man hesitated for a moment. "She's fin de sizzle, I said."

"You mean fin de sozzle, don't you?" asked one of the friends.

"Yes," said the flashy young man, evidently much relieved. "Fin de sozzle, that's it. I thought fin de sizzle didn't sound right all the time."—Buffalo Express.

A Christmas Request.

"Now, Tom," said Tom's father, "you must go to the fireplace, and call up to Santa Claus, and tell him what you want him to bring you for Christmas."

Tom thought deeply for a few minutes, and then strode bravely over to the fireplace, and sitting down before the fender began:

"Well, Mr. Claus, I want a three-wheeled bicycle, because I always fall off the other kind and break my neck. I want lots of marbles and tops, and railway engines, and steamboats. Got that?"

There came no answer.

"Go ahead," said his father. "He hears you."

"And I want a pony, and a dog, and a wagon, and lots of books and tin soldiers. In fact, Mr. Santa Claus, you might bring me a little of everything."—Harper's Bazar.

LOCAL AND MISCELLANEOUS.

A Merry Christmas to all.

D. T. Hall was in Detroit Friday.

Tony Leon's orchestra Monday night.

Rufus Raymond, of Mason, is in town.

Rev. H. A. Smith was at Weston Friday.

J. S. Strong was a passenger for Toledo Friday.

Miss Edith Kirk, of Clinton, was in town Tuesday.

Mrs. Alice Johnson, of Chicago, was guest of Mrs. Abbie Fisher, Friday Saturday.

It is nip and tuck between wheels and runners this week.

E. F. Kirchgessner was at Clinton on business last Tuesday.

The Morenci Observer had a big holiday supplement last week.

Miss Asenath Hosmer is clerking at Kirchgessner's during the holidays.

The installation of officers of the W. R. C. was held last Monday evening.

The date of the Scharwenka piano recital has been postponed till Jan. 2d.

Those desiring flowers for the Christmas party leave orders at the store of J. Orr.

Remember the change of date of the Scharwenka piano recital. It will occur Jan. 2d.

Lt. Elliott Gray has been confined to the house for some time by indisposition. We hope to see him out again soon.

There are many very handsomely decorated windows about town at present. Window advertising is becoming quite a fad.

Will Stevenson. who has been at work in a stave factory at Bowling Green, Ky., returned home Saturday to spend the winter.

People who have faith in the muskrat as a weather barometer say they have built their houses high in anticipation of a wet, open winter.

From the size of the audience which habitually greets home talent plays, one can imagine that the sentiment of our people is—no benefits need apply.

Mrs. Nettie Crossman has a new cough syrup on the market which is giving splendid satisfaction. Nearly every one needs a bottle just now, too. Its a rare cure.

I will be at the office of Drs. Catlin & Tefft, Mondays, Wednesdays and Saturdays. Call and have your eyes tested and correctly fitted with glasses.
S. P. HOSMER.

The continued popularity of the extensively-made Magazine, even in these hard times, is attested by the fact that the usual edition of the Christmas Harper's has been exhausted, and that a second edition is being printed.

Up to last Monday, A. W. Mills had received exactly 350 orders for the Page fence from the state of Ohio. He took the agency in February last and has probably got his last order for this year. A pretty good season's work.

The January number of The Forum (reduced to 25 cts.) will contain an impartial review of the whole Hawaiian question by Mr. James Schouler, the well-known historian, who writes not for the sake of controversy, but to tell the facts of the whole contention and set them forth in their proper proportion.

In this season, everything, either by word or in aspect dons its holiday attire—and "Table Talk" among the rest. The December number is full of suggestions for Christmas—dainty dinners, decorations, appropriate gifts,—in fact almost any help you need in your preparations for "A Merrie Christmas" you will find between its covers. It is published by Table Talk Publishing Co., Philadelphia, at $1.00 per year or 10cts. a copy.

The following is the program for the Christmas party concert, next Monday evening, by Tony Leon's society orchestra.

1. Overture "Concert in G"—E. Sommer.
2. Spanish Dance 'La Bella Espagnola'—Theo. Moses.
3. Selection, Bells of Normandy, arranged by Geo. Weigand.
4. A Musical Dream (new)—Emil Kaan.
5. Selection, La Cigale (new)—from La Cigale.

Concert begins at 8 o'clock sharp. Come out and enjoy Merry Christmas.

Christmas party Monday.

Now is the time to pay up.

Adrian is to have a grand charity ball.

Miss B. Cathryn Lehn, of Manchester, is the guest of her niece, Miss Lena Arnold.

Remember that the Scharwenka piano recital has been postponed until Tuesday, Jan. 3d. '94.

Reserved seat tickets are on sale at Adamson's for the christmas party Monday evening.

The Christmas party concert will begin at 8 o'clock sharp. Dancing will begin immediately after the concert.

J. S. Gilman, the oldest harness maker in Lenawee County, has a new card in this week's issue which everybody should read.

Owing to the weather of Friday eve., Dec. 15th, the Tecumseh and Franklin Farmers Club, with the same program, will meet at Henry Wilson's, Friday evening, Dec. 22, '93.

Mrs. Dwella Hodges, of Jackson, is visiting in town. Mr. Hodges was here a day or two, the first part of the week and will return to take in the Christmas party Monday night.

The Hudson Gazette issued a sixteen page paper last week, filled to the brim with choice reading and holiday advertising. The Gazette still leads the procession in the new city on our western border.

The Lilley State Savings bank will be officered next year as follows: President, L. Lilley; vice president, A. L. Brewer; cashier. L. P. Tribou; directors, L. Lilley, J. S. Strong, A. L. Brewer, L. I. Bidwell, L. P. Tribou.

New York World: "Herr Scharwenka's playing is distinguished by brilliancy and refinement as well as elegance of style. He is dignified and earnest and always an interesting artist, one who commands respect whether he comes before us as conductor, pianovirtuoso, or composer."

The Co. C boys struck a very unfavorable night last Thursday for their benefit concert. The Ariel Quartette is a fine troupe and they gave the fortunate ones who attended a splendid evening's entertainment. Nearly every selection was greeted with an encore. Mart Dow filled his role as reader and humorist very happily and he was called back repeatedly after each reading.

The Presbyterian Sunday School will give their Christmas Concert at the Church next Sunday evening, commencing at seven o'clock. All are invited. The S. S. proper sending a box of clothing, provisions, etc., to the church at Bessemer, Mich., and articles may be brought to the church at time of any service till Christmas. Scholars will bring their gifts to the concert.

Nearly all the Tecumseh lawyers were in Adrian Monday and Tuesday, courting. The case of Polly Johnson vs. Jacob Cheever was on trial, Wightman and Will Ingersoll appearing for the plaintiff and Walter Burridge for the defendant. It was a case for civil damages for the illegal selling of liquor. The jury rendered a verdict in favor of the plaintiff for six cents damages and costs.

Xaver Scharwenka belongs to a family that has won the highest distinction in the musical world. He shares with his older brother, Philip, the honors of international fame as a teacher. His name was well known on this side of the Atlantic even before he paid his brief visit to us in August, 1890, when he came as a visitor and not in a professional capacity. His reputation as the founder and director of the Conservatory of Music in Berlin, which bears his name, is based on the success of an institution from which very many promising and brilliant American students have graduated during the past decade.

The girl that gives way to a desire to gad around the streets, cultivate the acquaintance of young men and act the simpering simpleton, is laying the foundation for a senseless after life. Ten to one when married she will develop into a slatternly gossip, if no greater misfortune befall her. It is the girl of good sound sense, the girl who loves home and helps mother that wins the model man and becomes an ornament to womanhood. The girl who does this and devotes some of her spare time to reading, and strives for the graces of mental culture, commands the respect and esteem of everybody, while the street gadder only wins the admiration of those whose admiration is not worth having.—Adrian Times.

The following letter from Foote & Jenks, perfumers of Jackson, to John J. Orr, shows their willingness to accommodate and their especial kindness in business reverses: "It is with deep regret thatwe learn of your loss by fire. If we can serve you in any way do not fail to command us. We think that though you probably could not get a new drug store filled up for the Holiday trade you might have time to open up in temporary quarters a line of goods, particularly for Christmas. You will have no difficulty in getting a consignment of such goods. If you do this we will gladly send you a complete line of our bulk and bottled perfumes, etc., or anything in our line on terms to suit yourself. Any fancy packages not sold may be returned to us. You can secure a line of books, albums, etc., of the Geo. D. Brown Book Co., on same terms,

Yours Sincerely,
FOOTE & JENKS.

Now is the time to bring that wood.

Ed. Smith, of Toledo, was a Tecumseh visitor last Saturday.

Mrs. Frank Merrill went to Port Huron Wednesday to visit her parents.

Supper will be served by Mrs. Van Antwerp in the Opera house, Monday night at 75 cents per couple.

The Tecumseh schools will close tomorrow for the holiday vacation. The winter term will begin on Tuesday Jan. 2d, '94.

Dr. J. F. Jenkins of this village attended the semi-annual meeting of the Tri-State Medical Association held at Adrian last Tuesday.

The official report of County Treasurer Wiggins, showing the liquor taxes collected in this County during the year 1893, appears elsewhere.

The Ann Arbor Argus issued a double sheet last week, sixteen pages. The new proprietor, Prof. Hammond, is giving the Argus a big boom.

Mrs. Aaron Aten died suddenly at the home of G. H. Tansley Monday night of neuralgia of the heart. Funeral was held to-day at ten o'clock a. m.

While in Adrian the other day, we called at Brown's Photo parlors. We found him well and gathering in his full share of the holiday trade.

Tickets for Scharwenka Concert on sale at Anderson & Co's dry goods store, and Anderson Bros' grocery. Reserved seats can be had at Adamson's any time.

Postmaster Kyle has issued some neat time cards, giving the time of closing all the mails at the Tecumseh office, for distribution around town. They will be a great convenience.

John J. Orr has received a large number of letters from the wholesale firms, with whom he has traded, all expressing regret at his misfortune and readiness to assist him in every way to start again.

Wm. H. Mather, who has been seriously ill for several months, succumbed to the dread summons yesterday morning. His has been a very sad case. The funeral will be held to-morrow afternoon at the residence on Chicago street.

Anderson Bros. have a large stock of candies for the holiday trade, which they are selling very cheap. Also a large lot of nuts of all kinds, sweet Florida oranges, Baldwin and Greening apples. They are headquarters for Chrismas edibles.

John Hanley was arrested last night upon a warrant sworn out by his wife, charging him with an attempt to asphyxiate the whole family by removing a length of stove pipe. Hanley furnished bonds in the sum of $100 for his appearance Saturday before Justice Frazier. The charge is rather shaky.

S. Milo Dole has a large Sunday school class in the Methodist church and is a great favorite with his scholars. Last night thirty of them called on him. To say he was "all broke up" would be putting it mild. Light refreshments were served, a grand time enjoyed by all, and many wishes for a bright and prosperous future were bestowed on the genial host and hostess. —Evening Telegram.

Noah S. Burroughs, who has been in feeble health for several months past, departed this life on Saturday last. Had he lived until the 2d day of next January, he would have been 82 years of age. He came to Michigan from Seneca Co. N. Y., and settled on a farm in Franklin in the year 1833. The funeral was held Tuesday afternoon at the family residence. Further obituary mention will appear hereafter.

Tecumseh Chapter, No. 42. R. A. M. elected the following officers at their meeting last night:

High Priest—Jos. H. Smith.
King—L. M. Kellogg.
Scribe—C. F. Patterson.
Secretary—A. James.
Treasurer—J. A. Boyd.
Patient Sojourner—S. P. Hosmer.
Capt. of the Host—R. M. Boyd.
Royal Arch Capt—B. J. Garlinghouse.
Master 3d Vail—G. B. Garlinghouse.
" 2d " —Wm. Britton.
" 1st " —T. R. Kyle.
Sentinel—W. C. Jordan.
Stewards not yet appointed.

John J. Orr, with characteristic push is again ready for business. He has rented the DeWolfe store, three doors east of his old stand, and put in a full line of perfumes, toilet articles and other holiday goods. It is of course impossible in so short a time to equip a complete drug store, but he will be able to furnish his medicines, a large stock of which he has prepared. Foote & Jenks, perfumers of Jackson, have sent him a large consignment of their best bulk and bottled goods, and he has received a line of albums, books, etc., from Geo. D. Brown & Co.

The benefit for the fire department last Tuesday evening was a decided success under discouraging circumstances. Mrs. Stocking was unable to take her part, owing to illness, and Miss Grace Stevens of Clinton, was called upon to fill it. Harry Tansley could not take his part on account of a death in his family, and the character was taken by A. M. Kennedy of Clinton. The same play is put on at Clinton this evening, and these persons had already learned their part. Miss Grace Stevens acted the heroine superbly. She enters fully into the details of the character, without over acting it. Mr. Higby personified Job Armroyd to perfection. He possesses the elements of a first class actor. The other characters all did well. The program concluded with a glove contest between A. M. Kennedy and Will Hicks.

Evans Creek was on the rampage last Saturday, owing to the heavy rains of the preceding day.

In these times of grip and pneumonia it is of great importance that we should know where to look for a safe and sure remedy A very slight cold may become a serious one, the scarcely noticeable pain in the chest is too often the forerunner of pneumonia. The first cough may lead to consumption (a cough is always dangerous). Never neglect a cold or cough for even one day, but get at once, as a safe and sure remedy, Kemp's Balsam, the best cough cure, which is recommended on all sides. It should be kept in the house regularly to avoid delay when needed. It is sold at all drug stores.

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

EPPS'S COCOA

BREAKFAST SUPPER.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided for our breakfast and supper a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctor's bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss

At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, on Tuesday, the 28th day of November in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three.

Present, Richard B. Robbins, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Alexander Patterson, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of John Linton, executor of the last will and testament and upon the estate of said deceased, alleging that the funeral expenses and debts of said deceased and the expenses of administration thus far incurred, have been fully paid, and that he is now ready to render his 5th annual administration account as such executor, and praying that said account may be allowed, and for such other order and decree as to this Court shall seem proper.

It is ordered, That Tuesday, the 26th day of December, next, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the City of Adrian, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of said Petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said Petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee for three successive weeks, previous to said day of hearing.

RICHARD B. ROBBINS, Judge of Probate.

I have been bothered with catarrh for about twenty years; I had lost sense of smell entirely, and I had almost lost my hearing. My eyes were getting so dim I had to get some one to thread my needle. Now I have my hearing as well as I ever had, and I can see to thread a fine a needle as ever I did, my sense of smell is partly restored, and it seems to be improving all the time. I think there is nothing like Ely's Cream Balm for catarrh. Mrs. E. E. Grimes, Rockrill, Perry Co., O.

THE FREIGHT TRAIN.

How I love to watch the local
Winding up around the hill
In the sunrise of the morning,
When the autumn air is still,
And the smoke, like loosened tresses,
Floats away above her back,
And to hear the chuka, chuka,
Chuka, chuka of the stack.

The man who rides these mountains,
Whose fiery steed of steel
Drinks at nature's flowing fountains,
Must inevitably feel
A divine and peerless painter
Spread the scenes along the track,
While he hears the chuka, chuka,
Chuka, chuka of the stack.

In the solemn hush of midnight,
When his pilot plows the gloom,
From a hundred hills wild roses
Send their subtle, sweet perfume
To the wary, weary watcher
Whose lamps light up the track,
And a hundred hills give back the
Chuka, chuka of the stack.

Oh, how I miss the music
Of the whistle and the bell,
And the drumming of the furnace,
More than any tongue can tell!
And the mighty, massive mogul
Always seems to call me back,
With her chuka, chuka, chuka,
Chuka, chuka of the stack.
—Cy Warman in New York Sun.

A NEW OTHELLO.

What a difference love makes in a man! Practical and methodical business man as I always prided myself I was, I had been changed and altered to a romantic, nonsensical lover, and I have not the least doubt but that I was equally as silly—to the disinterested observer—as any boy of 20. Then, too, there came the little moments of hope or fear, doubt or jealousy, and passions such as I never dreamed formed part of my nature. In fact, I had become a different being. Ennui and apathy vanished, and in their stead arose energy and ambition. The old delights of the club bored me now. Poker was obnoxious, cards stupid, pool and billiards tiresome, bowling foolish, baseball—had I ever been crank enough to go to see a game? Even the theater and german were useless and empty, except with Mabel by my side. O love, what power is thine! To what mayest thou not actuate even the dullest men!

April's rainy days were fast drawing to a close. It was Saturday afternoon, and I had not seen Mabel since Wednesday! All because of that vexatious "indisposition" on Friday evening. In fact, these frequent illnesses, occurring so often of late, were beginning to alarm me, and I intended to insist that the doctor's advice be asked. Strange enough, these short spells of sickness usually came the same day each week—I had noticed that—and though they lasted but a short time—barely a day, in fact—they were enough to cause me not a little anxiety.

It was so nearly a perfect day I could not resist the temptation, so shortly after 3 o'clock, all work for the day being over, I closed the office and turned my face toward North Charles street. Mabel may be feeling better, I thought, and a promenade on the avenue will do her good. A short, brisk walk up the fine street, and I stood before my fiancee's home. The servant who opened the door appeared to hesitate when I asked if Mabel was feeling better, and after a moment's awkward pause answered: "Miss Mabel is perfectly well. Walk into the parlor, sir."

"Perfectly well!" I echoed to myself. "I'm glad of that." Then, turning to the servant, who had seen me often before, I said: "You need not announce me. I will surprise her."

Carefully depositing my hat upon the rack, and after a hasty glance at the glass—love even makes a man vain—I tiptoed softly across the hall and gently placed my hand upon the knob of the parlor door. I was on the point of entering the room when I fancied I heard talking. I stopped and listened. Yes, Mabel was conversing with some one. Possibly some girl friend, and my presence would be an intrusion or an embarrassment. I paused. It seemed strange! Mabel entertaining a visitor with all the parlor doors closed! There she was speaking again, but so low and soft I could not understand a word. For fully a minute I stood thus in a quandary, not knowing how to act, when suddenly Mabel raised her voice, and in bewilderment I distinctly heard:

"And you will always be true—no matter what comes, what fortune may bring?"

"Ah, dearest, can you doubt me?" came the astounding answer. "Can you question the depth of my love?"

I was dumfounded. "The depth of"— What did it all mean? It was no woman's voice that I heard, for the words had been spoken by a man—a man for whom in that one instant I conceived a violent hatred. My God! Could it be possible that Mabel, my dear loving Mabel, had deceived— "No!" I cried in my heart, checking the awful thought. "I must have heard wrongly."

The voices had subsided once more, and for a few minutes, though I pressed close to the door and strained every nerve, I could not distinguish a solitary word. Presently the sounds became more audible and the words clearer. With caution I pressed anxiously forward.

"But I wanted to surprise you, love," said Mabel affectionately.

"Well, dear, you have done so most effectually," came the equally affectionate response.

Good heavens! My hand dropped to my side, and I staggered across the hall as if I had been shot. I was stunned.

Utterly bewildered, I stood as one in a dream. My entire life seemed in that one minute to pass in frightful vision before my gaze. Was this the retribution of a just fate, that I, who had always been a hater of womankind, a scoffer at all things feminine, should fall so deeply in love, dream—sad dream!—that love reciprocated and then suddenly learn that the woman I cherished and believed true and faultless, for whom no sacrifice had been or was too great, this woman had trifled with me, this fickle, faithless woman had deceived me?

How long the painful reverie continued I have no idea. It may have been a few seconds; it may have been an hour—cannot tell. I was dead to all feeling save that of my humiliation and shame. Impulse led me to seize my hat and leave the house, hide my head from the sight of men and ever after cut society.

Still musing, I turned to take my hat, when a loud, merry laugh from the parlor woke me to my senses. Laughing! They were laughing over it. I could stand it no longer. Pain and sorrow fled, and only the wound to my honor remained.

Surprise and astonishment gave way to resentment and anger. Anger became hatred. Dashing my poor hat upon the floor, I rushed to the door. My blood seemed to boil within me. Unconsciously I clinched my fists.

Again that gay laugh. Surely my name was mentioned that time! They were laughing at me, were they? Ah, trifiers, beware! He laughs best who laughs last.

Thought upon thought rushed upon me and drove me nigh to desperation. What an ass, what a dolt I had been! And hereafter—curse it all!—I would be a laughing stock for all the busybody gossipers of the city.

"I wonder what George will say when he finds it all out?" I heard Mabel say, and then she laughed again, even heartier than before.

"Oh, I fancy he will be the most astonished man in the city," answered her companion, joining in the laugh.

I have often read the old fable about the last straw breaking the camel's back, and this last jeering allusion to myself, that heartless laugh, exasperating in its mockery, was the last straw.

Unable further to restrain myself, I flung open the door and rushed into the room. Without a word I sprang toward that man, and not even pausing to glance at his face I caught him fiercely by the nape of the neck and dragged him to the center of the room.

"George!" shrieked Mabel, regaining her voice.

"Let go, I say!" cried the fellow at my feet, shaking me off after a mighty effort. "George Froham, are you crazy?"

"Tom Holbrook!" I exclaimed, recognizing a prominent member of my own set. "You scoundrel! I'll"——

"George, George!" cried Mabel, grasping me tightly and trying to hold me back. "Are you mad? What's the matter?"

"The matter!" I almost yelled, releasing her hold. "Can you dare to ask me such a question?"

"Can I dare? What do you mean, George? I don't understand you."

"I mean," I replied, "that I have been standing by that door and have heard the loving words"——

"What," interrupted Mabel, "you heard"——

"Yes," I continued, "I heard the tender names and loving words you whispered so affectionately to one another. You, Tom Holbrook, rascal that you are"——

A sudden idea seemed to strike the fellow, for, disregarding my hot words, he actually smiled. "Ah, laugh!" I yelled. "I'll teach you to laugh, sir! As for this girl here"——

I turned toward Mabel as I spoke, when to my utter consternation I saw that she, too, was smiling. It was too much. With a loud cry I raised my hand to strike the fellow, but Mabel clutched my arm so suddenly and closely that the blow was checked.

"George, George!" she cried, "let me explain this to you!"

"Explain?" I queried. "Do you mean to say that you will try to clear yourselves in my eyes?"

"Of course I will," she answered, still smiling. "I had no idea you were such an Othello. Tom and I are to play lovers' parts in the performance at the Odeon next month, and we were merely rehearsing the lines. Don't you see?"

"You take in amateur theatricals! Why, I thoroughly de—but you never told me a word about it."

"No, George. They had all agreed not to mention it to you, and I was going to surprise you the day beforehand. But," she continued teasingly, "Mr. Othello No. 2 has spoiled all the fun. Now don't you see, dear?"

And I saw.—S. J. Block in Philadelphia Inquirer.

A Chinese Legend About Tea.

There is a strange Chinese legend concerning the tea plant. According to the story there once lived a very pious hermit who passed the greater part of his time in prayer and vigils. He was, however, unable to keep awake as long as he wished, and often found his eyes closing while he was in the very midst of his devotions. This naturally annoyed him, and one day in a fit of wrath against this weakness of the flesh, which he seemed unable to overcome, he cut off the offending eyelids and cast them upon the ground. But his action had been observed by a god, who immediately caused a tea shrub to spring up from the spot where the eyelids had fallen. It is in reference to this, according to the legend, that the leaves of the tea plant are shaped like eyelids, fringed with lashes, and possess the power of warding off sleep.

A Famous Electrician.

Charles F. Brush, the famous electrician, became interested in the mysteries of that force when he was but 13 years of age. It is related that while he was attending the Cleveland high school he distinguished himself by making electric machines and batteries for that institution. During his senior year the chemical and physical abilities of the laboratory were placed under his charge. When he was but 16 years of age, he constructed an electric motor having magnets and armature. He also constructed a microscope and a telescope, making all the parts with his own hands, even to the grinding of the lenses.—Exchange.

THE GRANGE.

Michigan Patrons of Husbandry Meet at Lansing.

Its Views on the Currency and Other Questions—Eastern Banks Blamed for the Financial Situation—Opposed to Good Roads.

SECRETARY MORTON CENSURED.

LANSING, Dec. 15.—The Michigan State Grange has just closed its twenty first annual session. The report of the treasurer showed receipts of $5,917 and disbursements of $5,091, but the order still has a safe balance in its treasury, of which several thousand dollars are in safe investments. The grange placed itself on record as in favor of a mutual fire insurance organization and opposed to the state and county road system, for the reason that the farmers must bear the expense, while the bicyclists and the pleasure-riding citizens will reap the larger benefits. It opposes the contract system for erecting bridges and culverts, and insists that all such work be with per diem service.

The Michigan grange adopted the report of the executive committee. The currency question was elaborated upon at great length. The withdrawal of foreign capital led the banks to demand the issue of more bonds as the only means of salvation. The panic is charged wholly to our financial system.

The repeal of the silver clause of the Sherman bill is deplored and attention is called to the fact that there is no sign apparent of returning prosperity which was promised to follow its repeal.

While there is no special financial policy advocated they demand either a bimetallic basis or the substitute of paper as preferable to a single metal standard.

It demands the restriction of corporate captitalization to the actual value of corporate property, government postal telegraph and parcel delivery in connection with the railway mail service up to 100 pounds in weight.

It asks that there may be severe penalties for railroad officials violating any of the provisions of state law for their regulation; a more effective pure-food law, and denounces the repeal of the mortgage-tax law of 1891. Free coinage, government loans and warehouses for grain are treated as dead issues and no recommendations are made.

Secretary of Agriculture Morton was hauled over the coals for his alleged hostility to farmers' organizations. The secretary of agriculture is accused of having wished that farmers would abandon gregariousness and return to individualism. Grand Master Horton in his annual address polished off the secretary for this utterance, the report of the executive committee also denounced him, and resolutions were adopted censuring Secretary Morton for open and avowed hostility to the grange.

Resolutions were also adopted in favor of rural free mail delivery; advocating the passage of a law, under which cities and villages may be incorporated, and favoring the election of United States senators by direct vote of the people. The educational committee's report recommended a uniform system of text books. J. G. Ramsdell, of Traverse City; F. W. Redfern, of Clinton, and R. M. Taylor, of Shelby, were elected members of the executive committee for a term of three years.

CONSPIRACY IS CHARGED.

J. M. Jacobs, of Battle Creek, and His Brother Are Arrested.

BATTLE CREEK, Dec 18.—J. M. Jacobs, a clothier here, and his brother, J. L. Jacobs, a clothier at Albion, this county, have been arrested on the charge of conspiracy. The men are relatives of Morris Rosen, of Grand Ledge, who secured $27,000 worth of goods on time, and it is alleged spirited them away. The Jacobs are charged with being implicated with Rosen in defrauding his creditors. The prisoners were taken to Charlotte to answer to the charge. The officers claim to have a clew to where a large amount of the goods has been secreted.

The Commercial Union.

LANSING, Dec. 14.—The third annual meeting of the Commercial union of Michigan was held in this city. Its specific work is the purchasing of goods of any description whatever for the farmers. Owing to the conditions existing this year, trade has been rather dull, nevertheless the organization has done a business of $50,000. I. F. Cressman, of St. Johns, was elected president.

Died in His First Illness.

JACKSON, Dec. 16.—Charles Abbey died at his home here Friday, aged 95 years. Mr. Abbey was a native of Connecticut, but in 1819 he moved west, and after prospecting through Michigan settled in Ohio. Thirty years ago he took up his residence in Jackson. He never knew what sickness was until last Monday, when he was taken with pneumonia. He was the oldest man in central Michigan.

Convicts Aid the Miners.

JACKSON, Dec. 14.—The chairman of the soliciting committee of the Eighth ward reports that he has $300 to turn over, $112 of which was a voluntary offering from the convicts at the prison, a very great credit to the inmates of the institution, and so substantial that it will carry comfort and consolation to many.

Kalamazoo River Rice Swamps.

KALAMAZOO, Dec. 16.—The rice swamps along the lower part of the Kalamazoo river are gradually filling up and becoming solid ground. This is particularly noticeable in the swamps east of Douglas. Cattle are now pastured in places where logs were rafted twenty years ago.

Robbed by a Footpad.

CHARLOTTE, Dec. 14.—William Greensmith, contractor and builder, was knocked down and robbed of $200 by unknown footpads. Mr. Greensmith is under the doctor's care.

TWO LIVES SAVED.

Mrs. Pheobe Thomas, of Junction City, Ill., was told by her doctors she had consumption and that there was no hope for her, but two bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery completely cured her and she says it saved her life. Mr. Thos. Eggers, 139 Florida St. San Francisco, suffered from a dreadful cold, approaching consumption, tried without result every thing else then bought one bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery and in two weeks was cured. He is naturally thankful. It is such results of which these are samples, that prove the wonderful efficacy of this medecine in coughs and colds. Free trial bottles at J. J. Orr's drug store. Regular size 50c. and $1.00. 5

Arbitration is a good remedy for strikes, but it is better to use it as a preventive.

The great value of Hood's Sarsaparilla as a remedy for catarrh is vouched for by thousands of people whom it has cured.

The storm scenter is usually located in the Weather Bureau.

People who have tried it say that there is no better medicine for dyspepsia than Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It may not give one the stomach of an ostrich, but it so strengthens the alimentary organs that digestion of ordinary food becomes easy and natural.

Hair matresses are quoted much cheaper now that the foot-ball season is over.

Nearly all women have good hair, though many are gray, and few are bald. Hall's Hair Renewer restores the natural color, and thickens the growth of the hair.

The weather is chill, coal is high and a Wagner club has been organized in Chicago.

ASK YOUR FRIENDS.

Who have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla what they think of it, and the replies will be positive in its favor. Simply what Hood's Sarsaparilla does, that tells the story of its merit. One has been cured of indigestion or dyspepsia, another finds it indispensable for sick headache or billiousness, while others report remarkable cures of scrofula, catarrh, rheumatism, salt rheum, etc.

RECOVERS HIS SPEECH.

Alphonce Hempbling, of Summitt township, Butler Co., Penn'a made an affidavit that his twelve-year-old son, who had St. Vitus Dance for twelve years, lost his speech, was completely cured after using three bottles of Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine and recovered his speech. Thousands testify to wonderful cures from using it for nervous diseases, dyspepsia, nervous debility, dullness, confusion of mind, headache, etc. Four doses of this Nervine cured Mrs. W. E. Rev. Varner, of Tecumseh, occupied the Methodist pulpit Sunday. The elder Rev. Ramsdell preached in Rev. Varner's place at Tecumseh.

Mrs. Ed. VanDeMark, Mrs. C. S. Burroughs, Miss Pet VanDeMark and Jno Machan attended the benefit entertainment at Tecumseh Tuesday night.

Rev. J. Barnes, former pastor here, has been delivering a series of scientific lectures at the Congregational church. The last one was given last evening. They were interesting and instructive.

Four boxes of goods have been sent to the destitute northern people, and another one is about ready to go. Wm. Wood's wagon shop is the receiving station and the generosity of our people is highly commendable.

Frank Woodward's foundry is running with a full set of hands, right through the hard times. The shop is turning out 300 plows a month, and will keep up this tally until next May, preparatory to the coming season's trade. The Clinton plows are getting a splendid reputation, and their sale is constantly increasing.

W. B. Keyser, having been elected to the office of Justice of the Peace, thought he would try the experiment of opening an office. Accordingly he secured a good room over Brown's hardware store and "opened up" for business last September. His Justice business is constantly on the increase and he is doing considerable at insurance and collections.

For the third time in six months, the grim destroyer has entered the household of G. R. Brown, an old resident of this place. Last June a married daughter died; in September, a single, and the only daughter at home, was taken away, and Friday his companion for about fifty years followed after. Mrs. Elizabeth Brown was born in Newberry, Pa., in 1822. She was married to G. R. Brown in 1844, came to Michigan with her husband in 1865, and had ever since lived here. She was the mother of twelve children, six of whom are living. She was a member of the Methodist church, and when near the end she said, "Jesus can make a dying bed." The funeral was held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Mr. Brown is dangerously low at present.

VICTORS FOR $125.

The First Break in the High Priced Brigade.

Springfield, Nov. 22.—After all the debate which has gone on regarding the price of '94 model wheels, the first of the leaders in the trade to boldly announce prices for the ensuing year is the Overman Wheel Co., which now makes public the fact that Victors for '94 will be listed at $125 instead of $150. This price applies only after Jan. 1, '94. The action of the Chicopee Falls people will force the other leaders in the trade to show their hands and announce their plans and prices for the ensuing year, as the Overman Wheel Company has done. This will be an advantage to everyone connected with sport. The uncertainty heretofore existing as to what prices were to be demanded next year by the great makers has had a particularly baneful effect upon a trade which is at present more in need of stimulation than it is of any retarding treatment at the hands of those who control it. With all the talk regarding next season's prices which has gone on for the past three months, the buyer has declined to even consider the purchase of his next year's mount until he knew something definite regarding the price thereof, while the dealer, himself in the dark regarding same, has also refused to lay any plans for the future until he was in possession of something more substantial than rumors. We believe the Overman wheel company by announcing the price of its '94 patterns has conferred a distinct favor upon the whole of cycling from a standpoint of sport as well as trade. With Victors in the market at $125 it will be a bold maker who will announce a higher figure without a great deal of thought upon the subject. The Overman Company has thrown a bomb-shell into the fort of high prices which will cause an awful scattering for cover on the part of the small fry who have heretofore been waiting to see what the big guns intended doing. It looks as though the Victor next year again intended to "make the pace" as its makers have always claimed it to have done in the past.

THE HIGHEST AWARD

Royal Baking Powder has all the Honors —In Strength and Value 20 Per Cent above its Nearest Competitor.

The Royal Baking Powder has the enviable record of having received highest award for articles of its class—greatest strength, purest ingredients, most perfectly combined—wherever exhibited in competition with others. In the exhibitions of former years, at the Centennial, at Paris, Vienna and at the various state and Industrial fairs, where it has been exhibited, judges have invariably awarded the Royal Baking Powder the highest honors.

At the recent World's Fair the examinations for the baking powder awards were made by the experts of the chemical division of the Agricultural Department at Washington. The official report of the tests of the baking powders which were made by this department for the specific purpose of ascertaining which was the best, and which has been made public, shows the leavening strength of the royal to be 160 cubic inches of carbonic gas per ounce of powder. Of the cream of tartar baking powders exhibited at the Fair, the next highest in strength thus tested contained but 133 cubic inches of leavening gas. The other powders have an average of 111. The Royal, therefore, was found of 20 per cent. greater leavening strength than its nearest competitor, and 44 per cent above the average of all other tests. Its superiority in other respects, however, in the quality of the food it makes as to fineness, delicacy and wholesomeness, could not be measured by figures.

It is these high qualities, known and appreciated by the women of the country for so many years, that have caused the sales of the Royal Baking Powder, as shown by statistics, to exceed the sales of all other baking powders combined.

America's Advertisers.

We are in receipt of a work just issued, entitled "America's Advertisers," which is the first book ever published on this continent, and for that matter, in the world, dealing with the subject of advertising, its relation to the advertisers, the public and the business world. The book in question contains the histories of over 4,000 houses in America who do general advertising. It tells who they are, where they are, how they have developed and what they are doing at the present time. In many cases the histories of the houses occupy several pages, and the means adopted for achieving their success are clearly set forth.

But in addition to this valuable information this work contains a complete analysis of each State, from an advertising standpoint; what articles are most advertised in each state, and the causes that lead to such advertising.

But this work contains even more. It has special articles on Local Advertising, Mercantile Advertising, Advertising of Ladies' Goods, Agricultural Advertising, Worthless Advertising Mediums, Experimental Advertising, and many other subjects of great interest, in addition to the history of advertising, and the only true and complete definition of advertising itself, which has ever been printed.

"America's Advertisers" is certainly a work which is destined to be standard in its nature, and from which any individual or house who contemplates the expenditure of any money for general advertising, cannot fail to secure great benefit. It will be sent postpaid to any address upon receipt of the price ($5.00), by The National Advertising Co., 114 Nassau St., New York.

It has been decided by a Delaware court that the razor is not a deadly weapon. Barbers rarely kill—they merely mutilate.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss.

At a session of the Probate Court for the county of Lenawee, holden at the Probate Office in the City of Adrian, on Saturday, the ninth day of December, in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three.

Present, Richard B. Robbins, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Charity Gallatin, an insane person.

On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Alfred D. Hall, guardian of said insane person, praying, for reasons therein set forth, that he may be empowered and licensed to sell the real estate of said insane person in said petition described, in accordance with the statute in such case made and provided.

It is ordered, that Monday, the 8th day of January, next, at 9 o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the next-of kin of said insane person, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court then to be holden at the Probate Office in the City of Adrian, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate, of the pendancy of said petition and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss.

At a session of the Probate court for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office, in the City of Adrian, on Saturday, the 2d. day of December, in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three.

Present Richard B. Robbins, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Lewis V. Miller deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Benjamin F. DePuy, administrator upon the estate of said deceased, alleging that the funeral expenses and debts of said deceased and the expenses of Administration thus far incurred, have been fully paid, and that he is now ready to close said estate and to render his final administration account, and praying that said account may be allowed, and that the residue of said estate may be assigned and distributed to the parties entitled and that he may be discharged and his bond canceled, and for such other order and decree as to this Court shall seem proper.

It is Ordered, That Tuesday, the 2d day of January next, at 9 o'clock in the forenoon be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

TWICE-A-WEEK

A REVOLUTION IN NEWSPAPERDOM.

"TWICE-A-WEEK" is the new name given to the Semi-Weekly Detroit Free Press. The "Twice-a-Week" has taken the place of the old Weekly edition which, after an existence of 62 years, was discontinued Nov. 30th, 1893. A weekly paper is no longer fully adequate to the requirements of this progressive age. The Free Press, first in everything, is the first to provide for its great host of readers a "Twice-a-Week," —complete in every detail of the modern newspaper,—at a price ($1.00 a year) hitherto unheard of for an 8-page semi-weekly family journal. This is indeed a newspaper revolution—a revolution the benefits of which accrue wholly to the reader. The spirit of Free Press enterprise is ever alert to promote the interests and welfare of patrons.

SOMETHING TO REMEMBER:

1st.—The Twice-a-Week Free Press comprises 8 or more pages and is published every Tuesday and Friday morning in time for early outgoing trains.

2nd.—It is the largest and best Twice-a-Week in America and contains all the News, Markets, Literary Miscellany, etc., brought down to the hour of going to press.

3rd.—The Twice-a-Week Free Press will cost only ONE DOLLAR a year—104 newspapers for $1.00. Did you ever hear of so liberal a proposition?

4th.—Take your local paper for local news and The Twice-a-Week for general news. No other papers in the world will give you so much for so little money.

BRITTON BUDGET.

Miss Martha Ackley is the happy possessor of a fine Sherwood upright piano.

Read Lenardsen Bros.' ad. on this page. Something new. It will do you good.

A. J. Smith who is attending Brown's Business University at Adrian, came home for Christmas.

Wm. B. Smith and wife, of St. Johns, Mich., are visiting friends and relatives here for a few days.

Stephen Plews, of Muskegon, is visiting his uncle, C. A. Linn, family and friends for a few weeks.

One bottle catsup, one quart oysters, bill 15 cents. Where do they get that much? Can't say. Ask Link.

D. R. Wiggins, wife and son, Fay, passed Christmas with Wm. Swick and family, returning home to-day.

Lenardson Bros. have received only three-fourths of their spring stock of wall paper comprising 5300 rolls.

Don't forget the New Year's night party given by Messrs. Lee & Larrabee. $1.00 pays the whole bill. All are invited.

The Ladies Aid Society of the Reformed church will meet at the residence of John Britton Wednesday, Jan. 3d., at 2 p. m.

L. C. Helm, wife and son, Jesse James, of Decatur, Ind., are visiting W. J. Helm here and his father, Samuel Helm, and relatives, at Ridgeway.

By rearranging and tearing out partitions George has a very large and commodious office for his hotel. He is making great additions to the interior accomodations.

The meeting called for last Tuesday evening at Exelby's hall, to arrange for a system of fire protection, was adjourned till Friday night, Dec. 29. All are cordially invited to attend.

We are pleased to understand that the charges against that insurance agent which appeared in this column last week, are very emphatically refuted by said agent who savs the statement was without foundation.

Having arranged for Saturday of each week as special bargain day we will offer some one or more articles of our mammoth stock at greatly reduced prices, for the one day only, and cordially invite everyone to give us a call which we trust may result in our mutual benefit. LENARDSON BROS.

A Black Crook company changed cars here for Marshall last Saturday, making a wait of three hours, during which many of our citizens, especially the little boys, were very rarely as well as very highly entertained. Bertie Gillen took in 40 cents with his song and dance which pleased the bald-headed actor who rode the saw horse in front of the hotel.

HOLLOWAY HASH.

Joe. Billmeyer is home from Ann Arbor for the Holidays.

Mrs. C. C. Robinson, of Adrian, is visiting with friends here this week.

La Grippe is a visitor in this locality. She acts as if she had come to stay although very unwelcome.

Mrs. Stead and Miss Doty gave a candy pull in the basement of the Presbyterian church, to their Sunday-school classes, last Tuesday evening.

The Free Methodists are holding revival meetings at their church here. Everyone is cordially invited to attend and help the good work along.

If you want to know the time of day, ask Guern. Kelley. He can tell you for he is the proud possessor of a gold watch found in his stocking Christmas morning.

Aunt Jane Kelly has nearly had a hospital on her hands the past few weeks, all the household, with the exception of aunt Jane, being ill. All are on the gain.

Jim Sutherland is situated in the P. O. building where he is prepared to doctor clocks, watches etc. Office hours: As long as there is a cent in it and the janitor does'nt close up.

Hamilton Moore was the lucky man to draw the single harness at Hartman Bros.' last Saturday. They will have another drawing for a pair of $12.00, all wool, 5A blankets next Saturday evening.

The Y. P. S. C. E. of this place are practicing a cantata. The Seasons, which they will soon present at the Holloway public hall. The object is a worthy one, the proceeds to go to the suffering miners in the north.

The Christmas dance here was not very lucrative, but those boys from Britton who come prepared to have everything their own way had better not load up so heavy next time or they may receive a warm reception the next time they visit us. The habit some people have of disturbing every gathering of any description seems to betoken the delight with which they follow the footsteps of his Satanic Majesty.

Comstock Post, G. A. R., were in attendance. He was born in Aurora, Erie Co., N. Y., July 7, 1835, came to Michigan with his parents in 1845 and removed to Wisconsin about twenty years ago.

IF PEOPLE ONLY KNEW

That the Mobile & Ohio Railroad runs through the best section of the Southwhere lands within a mile of the railroad are $3.00 an acre on long time, and improved farms are only $10 to $15 an acre, and that two farm crops or three vegetable crops are grown every year, each of which will net more dollars per acre than the same crop in the North; that the weather in summer is cooler, and in winter warmer, enabling the farmer to work in the field all the year; where one has better health and gets more pleasure in living, makes a living easier and gets rich faster than he can in the north, there would be such a rush for these cheap homes as no other portion of America has ever seen.

The knowledge is spreading and the boom is coming. Prices will double every year. Now is the time to buy. Half fare excursions will leave St. Louis Dec. 12 and 19, and Jan. 9 and 16. Full information sent by E. E. Posey, Gen. Passenger Agt, Mobile and Ohio R. R., Mobile, Ala.

A. J. Rumsey, representing the International Seed Co., of Rochester, N. Y., was in the neighborhood last week with his imported No. 5 oats and Rutland Rose potatoes.

Mr. and Mrs. Manly Calhoun and baby, of the U. of M., came over from Ann Arbor Friday. Mrs. Calhoun is spending the vacation with her grandmother, aunt Emily Whelan. Mr. C. has gone to Nebraska on business.

On Nov. 25 Clark and Laura R. Whelan, of near Owosso, celebrated their golden wedding. They were married Nov. 25, 1843. Mr. Whelan is a brother of Mrs. Julia Knight. Relatives here were invited but owing to circumstances did not attend. We shall take pleasure at a later date in giving a synopsis of the happy event as gathered from the Owosso Times.

Special Offer to Farmers.

The Michigan Farmer offers its readers one of the best Agricultural, Live Stock and Family Journals in America, at the low price of only one dollar per year. It has recently changed hands and is now printed in 16-page form, on fine quality of paper, in convenient shape for reading, being pasted and trimmed like a book. Some of the best correspondents have been engaged for 1894, and the paper will be improved in every way as fast as possible. It is the the determination of the new proprietor to place their paper in the front rank and no expense or trouble will be spared to accomplish it.

Agents wanted in every neighborhood, to whom liberal commission will be given. Sample copies will be sent free to any address. Write for one at once and see for yourselves what a change has already been made. We will send the remainder of this year, '93, free to all who subscribe now. Address Michigan Farmer, Detroit, Mich.

OUR ART OFFER.

SHEPP'S WORLD'S FAIR PHOTOGRAPHED FOR THE HERALD READERS.

A Magnificent Art Series Within Reach of All and a Most Beautiful Souvenir.

With a desire to again promote the interests of its readers, the HERALD has closed a contract with the famous Globe Bible Publishing Company., of Philadelphia by which the magnificent series of Photographs, with descriptive matter, known as "Shepp's World's Fair Photographed," will be brought within the marvelously-low purchasing price of TEN CENTS in cash for each part when accompanied by one HERALD coupon.

It should not be forgotten that Messrs. Shepp's famous series of photographs were OFFICIALLY INDORSED by the Columbian Exposition, and the Globe Bible Publishing Co. was given exclusive rights to publish and sell these photographs. They are an immensely valuable and important souvenir of the greatest Exposition ever held, and at the price offered to readers of the HERALD every subscriber will want the series, not only for themselves, but also for their friends.

The well-deserved reputation of the Shepp Brothers, whose firm is known all over the United States and in Europe, is a guarantee that "Shepp's World's Fair Photographed" will be issued in their usual first class style, and that neither pains nor expense will be spared to make it worthy of the great event which it so graphically, thoroughly and ably portrays.

The first coupon in the series will be printed about the middle of January, 1894, and the succeeding coupons will appear each week until the series is completed. This is the chance of a lifetime to get a souvenir of the Exposition, and no one should neglect to take advantage of the opportunity.

Remember you must have one coupon cut from the HERALD and ten cents in coin to obtain each part of the series. There are thirty-two parts in all, thus requiring a total outlay of only $3.20 for the finest publication of the kind extant, the retail price of which is $8.00. An abundant supply will be kept on hand, so that subscribers can have their books, upon the presentation of their coupon and ten cents at this office. Part first has already been issued, samples of which can now be examined at our counting room.

ANNUAL CHRISTMAS PARTY.

As the year rolls round toward the holiday season, general interest is manifested as to whether, according to custom, there will be a Christmas party. Some are interested in having a successful party and some hope to see it fall flat. The hopes of the former have always been gratified and for a number of years the party has been looked forward to as one of the essential features of the year.

In spite of the hard times the committee for the Christmas party of '93, determined that though modest there should be as successful a party as ever, and Monday evening proved the fulfillment of their efforts. Contrary to former usage, little or no decorating was done. At eight o'clock when Tony Leon's orchestra began their concert, the gallery was not as well filled as usual, but those who were in attendance were treated to an hour of musical enjoyment.

The attendance of dancers was up to the usual standard, there being thirty three couples present. The promenade was commenced at 9 o'clock and was led by W. D. Ross and Miss Margaret Clarkson. After various evolutions the march changed to the first waltz and the evening's pleasures were fully begun and from that time until an early hour Tuesday morning, when to the strains of Home Sweet Home, the party broke up in the final waltz, everyone seemed to lay aside every thing but the enjoyment of the hour.

The mode of serving refreshments was something new and novel. Some folding tables were placed in the main hall and an oyster supper under the supervision of Mrs. VanAntwerp, was placed upon them.

Present from abroad were the following: Mr. and Mrs. Len Kimball, Miss Louise VanDeMark, Miss Grace Stevens, and A. M. Kennedy, of Clinton; Miss Engfer, Miss Gilmore, Alfred Heesen and Ed Clement, of Toledo; Misses Matié and Etta Baker, Miss Meade, R. A. DeWolf, E. H. Pasmore and A. W. Haight, of Detroit; Miss Mamie Crowell, Mr. Mitchell, of Cleveland; Charles Bidwell, of Buffalo; Miss Frances Patterson, of Elkhart; Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Hodges, of Jackson; Miss Mary Burridge, of Ann Arbor; Miss B. Cathryn Lehn, of Manchester.

A KEEN SNICKERSNEE

MR. RICHARD CROKER HAS ONE FOR CONGRESSMAN COCKRAN.

The Deadly Enmity That Exists Between the Two Leaders—Senator Morgan's New Synonym—Two Famous Phrases From Alabama—"Where Am I At?"

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28. — [Special.] — Richard Croker has his knife out for Bourke Cockran. During the last 10 days Mr. Cockran has been made painfully aware of the fact that the chief of Tammany Hall means to have his lifeblood—politically not physically, speaking, of course—if he can get it, and Mr. Croker thinks he can. There was a mild sensation about the Sugar trust and the alleged connection with it of a certain member of the ways and means committee of the house. All this was made the most of in Mr. Croker's New York newspaper, for, in addition to owning New York, Tammany Hall, a stable of race horses and a good many other nice things to have lying around loose, Mr. Croker owns a newspaper. A smart, chipper newspaper it is too.

Mr. Cockran fought back and explained that while it is true he has in the past acted as attorney for certain men who are members of the Sugar trust, though not for the Sugar trust itself, he was careful when sugar questions were under discussion in the ways and means committee to ask to be excused from voting thereon. Mr. Cockran, like Mr Croker, has made a fortune in politics, or it something, and if they should start throwing stones at each other on this score probably a great many glass windows would be broken in the course of the melee.

Strange Bedfellows Made by Politics.

The point is that deadly enmity exists between the chief of Tammany and his great orator of the recent past. The chief has sworn to drive Mr. Cockran out of politics and is likely to keep his word. Without the support of Tammany, it is difficult to see how Cockran, with all his talents and popularity, can maintain himself in public life. Mr. Cleveland may appoint him minister to some foreign country after the expiration of his present term in the house and your correspondent hears upon pretty good authority that this is Cockran's ambition and a thing very likely to happen.

It will be noticed that Mr. Cockran was among the first and most eager of the members of the house to come to the defense of the administration on the Hawaiian question, proposing a resolution which had for its object a postponing of the whole matter under the guise of an investigation. It is only a year and a half since Mr. Croker ordered Mr. Cockran to thunder his anathemas at Mr. Cleveland in the Chicago convention, and Mr. Cockran obeyed, with how much force and eloquence as well as a little bitterness every one will remember. Now Croker and Cockran are out, and the latter, anticipating a sudden ending to his bright and promising political career, is obviously courting favor, and successfully, with the very man whom he abused in his celebrated speech. Politics does indeed make strange bedfellows.

"Cuckoo Senators."

We have had a noteworthy addition to the English language at this capital. Senator Morgan was the author of its application, and it has become so common that nowadays one hears it on every side. It is "cuckoo." During the rather heated discussion of the Hawaiian question that has been going on here, publicly and privately, for several weeks, every man who has taken the trouble to defend the administration policy has been called a "cuckoo." The senators who spoke in favor of the president's course with reference to Hawaii were promptly dubbed "the cuckoo senators," and in the house those representatives who had a good word to say for Secretary Gresham and Mr. Cleveland were at once called "cuckoo congressmen." Even the newspaper correspondents who write in a tone friendly to the administration are set down as "cuckoo journalists."

The term had its origin in the speech which Senator Morgan made on the silver question at the special session. He said, in that drawling, funny way of his, "When the clock in the White House strikes, the cuckoos in the senate come out and show themselves." This was so happy that it was soon taken up, and a few days later Mr. Wilson of Washington set the house in a roar when a member of Democrats of the house applauded the mention of Mr. Cleveland's name by singing out at the top of his voice, "Cuckoo! cuckoo!" Such a shout of laughter as that sally created has not been heard in the halls of congress for many a day. It was fully five minutes before the business of the day could be proceeded with. Probably no one who heard Bourke Cockran make that terrific speech against Cleveland a year and half ago thought he would now be one of the "cuckoos."

Immortal Phrases.

It is rather odd that Alabama has given to the world two of its most famous catchwords or phrases in the last two years. This "cuckoo" business is one of them, the product of the gifted senator from that state, and the other is the "Where am I at?" which has been heard millions of times in this land since Judge Cobb, a member of the house from Alabama, got it off a year and a half ago. Judge Cobb is one of the ablest and most useful members from his state and has always denied that he made use of the language attributed to him on that occasion. But the weight of evidence is overwhelmingly in favor of the argument that he did utter precisely the words which have since become so common, and which have been applied to every conceivable variety of situations and incidents.

Your correspondent is one of many newspaper men who heard the words spoken and who are willing to make affidavit to that effect. It would be too bad to have such an immortal phrase as that spoiled by doubt as to its origin, and luckily no doubt exists in this case. "Cuckoo" and "Where am I at?" will go down to posterity as the two greatest gifts to the world of the statesmanship of the good commonwealth of Alabama.

Look Out For Mirrors.

Everything is made easy for the lazy people of the world. For instance, people who exercise a little ingenuity can enjoy the sights of the street without ever stirring from their comfortable chairs. All that it is necessary to do is to fasten a small mirror sideways on the window ledge and then to lean back and watch the world pass by. The same mirror may be so adjusted in a second story window that the person who rings at the front door can be recognized before the peal has ceased. The advantages of this it is unnecessary to point out. The remarkable feature of the matter is the number of such mirrors that may be seen in various neighborhoods. It is a charitable view of the matter to suppose that invalids and infirm people are the ones for whose benefit the mirror show is arranged.—Chicago Post.

GOOD ROADS NEEDED.

THE HIGHWAYS OF THE COUNTRY MUST BE IMPROVED.

Why Some Senators Take a Narrow View of It—A Road Building Napoleon Needed—Bicycles and Draft Dogs In Washington—Townsend's Opinion.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27. — [Special.] — That was an interesting debate which we had in the senate a few days ago about the petitions for congressional action looking to an improvement of the highway system of the country. Though some senators choose to take the narrow view that the movement should be discouraged because the manufacturers of bicycles are pushing it, the fact still remains that a large number of public men are at this very time giving much thought to the subject of the roads of the country and the best means of securing their improvement. George Alfred Townsend, the famous newspaper correspondent, has had a good deal of influence in favor of this reform. Mr. Townsend was among the first men in this country to perceive the necessity for road improvement, and for a number of years he has advocated the movement with his voice and pen. Mr. Townsend lives about a hundred miles from Washington, in Maryland, and has had a splendid opportunity to observe the loss that falls upon every farming community each year through the absence of proper highways or avenues of communication away from the railroads. Mr. Townsend has a very good sermon which he delivers to senators and representatives and to any one else who will listen to him.

Townsend's Sermon.

"Improvement of the highway system of the country is the next great internal improvement which our people must take up," he says. "We have been living in an era of railway construction. We have been railroad mad. There has been such a craze for railroads that we have sadly overdone the thing. We have built railroads where no railroads were needed and where a good highway for wagons and carts would have done infinitely more service to the people. The people of many counties throughout the country, especially in the middle and western states, have bonded themselves to induce railroads to run through their neighborhoods. They would have done much better to devote this money to an improvement of their common roads. The railway craze has saddled upon the country an enormous debt in bonds and stocks. Some one has to pay for the maintenance of these properties, for their operation, for the interest accounts. It comes out of the people. We should let the railroads alone for 20 or 30 years and turn our attention to the building of pikes and highways wherever there is much travel. One cause of the hard times is the suspension of railway building. Thousands upon thousands of men who have found employment in the construction of new lines of rails, in getting material out of the forests, in the earth works, in rolling rails, in laying track, as surveyors and engineers, as workers in tunnels and for all sorts of contractors, are now forced to seek work in other directions. They do not find it, and hence the land is filled with idle men.

Good Roads and Employment.

"If we can substitute for the railway craze a craze for good roads," continued Mr. Townsend, "we shall be able to find employment for these men. There is work enough in this country at road building to employ every man now idle for the next 10 years. It will not be money thrown away as in the case of so many of our iron highways, but will contribute vastly to the economy of the future. It will increase the earnings of farms, the pleasure of life in the country. It will help to keep the boys out of the large cities. No other rich and prosperous country in the world has such poor roads as the United States. Our highways, ditches of mud, rough and dangerous, taking the life out of our horses, breaking up our vehicles, at certain seasons of the year almost entirely preventing communication between neighborhoods, are the source of much amazement to visitors from Europe. They cannot understand how a people so rich and energetic as we, a people that are able in a half century to build nearly one-half of all the railways in the world, should be content to go along running car wagons and carriages through the mud roads. I would like to see congress take hold of this question.

"The old Jeffersonian idea may hold some statesmen back, but it will be remembered that our forefathers, before the days of the railroad craze, built national highways. It was not too much paternalism for them then. It is not too much paternalism now. If the doctrine of limited federal powers interferes, that can be got over by extending the federal aided or federal built roads from one state to another. It doesn't matter where the roads are nor by whom built. The point is to get them. Just at this time, when railway building is almost at a standstill, when there are hundreds of thousands of unemployed men, when woodsmen stand with their axes and laborers with their shovels in hand ready to work and no work for them to do, would be a specially good time to institute this grand system of common road building. It would be a national blessing in more ways than one. It would benefit the present generation and all succeeding generations. The greatest works performed by Napoleon for France were his roads. We need a road building Napoleon in America, and we need him now."

Washington Motive Power.

The senate, which is becoming a breezy gossip center, has also had a discussion about bicycles. When it comes to bicycles, this is the place to study them and to use them as object lessons. If the bicycle craze has a strong footing anywhere in America, it is in the Capital City. Even the street fakirs have taken to the use of wheels. Yesterday your correspondent saw a group of senators and representatives on Pennsylvania avenue standing about a street fakir who had a three wheeled machine on which he carried his wares and which served as his platform.

The next thing the Capital City needs is a system of draft dogs. The smooth streets of the capital are as well adapted to the use of draft dogs as they are to the use of bicycles. The asphalt pavements of this city are rough on the feet and limbs of horses. A horse breaks down quicker here than elsewhere on account of the pavements. Besides, it is expensive to keep a horse nowadays. For all light work, such as milk and bread and butter carts, delivery of packages, small mail wagons, etc., the draft dog is just as good as the horse. He will do fully as much work, lasts longer, costs less to buy and to keep and does not litter the streets. We have something to learn in this respect of our thrifty friends, the French, Belgians and Dutch.

THE OLD AND THE NEW.

BY LOU V. CHAPIN.

History has set the last word on the scroll, has rolled it and sealed it, and Time places it among the myriad other mysterious records which fill his treasure-house. The year has gone, or rather let us say, the year has become our own forever; no mutation nor accident can take from us its days and hours. Looking back at this season over the centuries of the world's history, we see ourselves the crown and glory of them all, at the apex of human greatness. That for which the dreamers yearned in the dim old times, when men were "girt with doubtful light," has become a reality, that for which the great of earth prayed, when ignorance and brutality reigned supreme, stands glorious and permanent in the sunlight of the smile of the Creator. The Brotherhood of Man and the Fatherhood of God are recognized as great facts all over the earth to-day.

A retrospect fills us with awe and wonder at the mighty forces, the Omnipotent Power that have led the world along, through paths dark and bloody, through fiery trials and conflicts, to the glad Present and the hill-top of Hope, from which we may view the Peulah land of the glorious future. In the immutable purpose running throughout the warp and woof of human history, we see the sign of the Divine hand upon all nations. Throughout all the ages, up to this very hour when we stand upon the verge of a new year and a new epoch, man's errors have never been able to thwart that purpose, though they have made suffering a necessity in the purification of human ideals.

Our own nation has become the heir of the world's noblest heritage both spiritual and material. Every new year has marked a stride forward of liberty under law, of culture and prosperity. But little more than a century ago, the patriots of our land looked forward to the new year with doubt and almost despair. Foes were on every side, ready to invade and desecrate the home of freedom, which was then comprised in a narrow strip of thinly settled country on the shores of our eastern ocean. To-day the temple of liberty is arched by skies stretching from ocean to ocean, and it is filled with the fairest trophies of man's endeavor. Art, science, literature and religion have been revivified by the breath of the republic, which, like the Hercules of the fable, has strangled the lion of tyranny, has performed the labors deemed impossible, and reigns the ideal of government in every land, a vital force in the world, a center of impulse and aspiration.

A runner must pause to take breath, a bird's flight cannot be straight upward or its wings will weary, and now and again fate lays her hand upon nations that they may pause to view whence they have come and whither they go. The year just past has witnessed such a halt in our own career of material prosperity. Though financial distress was widespread, and the wheels of commerce almost idle, though the palsy of inaction seized upon our legislators, even this pause in the race has made its contribution to our national greatness. The people of our country have seen with swelling hearts the patriotism of the leaders of the masses rising above all political and personal motives and the noble charity of the favored of fortune to the poor and unfortunate has quickened the fraternal spirit and softened class prejudice. Public and private beneficence has reached a height never before witnessed in any country, and the narrow lines of intolerance have been erased or dimmed by the chastening touch of adversity.

As individuals, the New Year opens to us boundless opportunities. If it bring sorrow, is not woe the fire that is to burn the dross from our souls? If it bring poverty, let us remember that there is an infinite side to it, and the poor have before them a world of hope and endeavor that is closed to those who must make no struggle against opposing forces. Riches may be its boon, but riches are precious only for their power of conferring happiness and enlightenment upon the world. Death may be its cup of healing, yet there is no death but the cessation of endeavor; and leaving this fair earth is no more death than merely living upon it is life.

False was the song of the poet who said that the New Year is a "Time for memory and for tears." For memory it is indeed a time, for the gleaned sheaves of the sweetness of past days is an imperishable possession, but tears, even though their waters surge over the fragments of shattered resolve and self-murdered hope, are vain and idle. Then let us give Time a benediction as he turns his glass, for he has mingled the bitter in our draught of life with sweet, and as the blithe New Year assumes the robe and crown shout with earnest hearts: "Le roi est mort, vive le roi!"

The Opening Wedge.

Miss Pinkerly—Have you made any New Year's resolution, Mr. Tutter?

Tutter—Yes, Miss Pinkerly. I have solemnly resolved not to be so bashful.

Miss Pinkerly—How nice! By the way, have you seen the arm-chair papa gave me for Christmas? It's big enough for two.—Truth.

At 11:59 P. M.

George—Well, the old year will soon be going out.

Ethel—Yes; a splendid custom, isn't it? Why don't you follow the example?—Truth.

The Rose and the Thorn.

It's nice to hear the joyous chimes
The bells on New Year's ring;
Unless, of course, you catch betimes
A cold that lasts till spring.

Advancing the Tariff.

The report prepared by Mr. Wilson, as chairman of the committee of ways and means, to accompany the presentation of the new tariff bill in the House, goes over the history of past tariff legislation, pointing out the gradual development of the practice of incidental protection into the bold doctrine that culminated in the monopoly legislation of the McKinley act.

It shows that the degree of actual protection to American manufactures provided in the new bill is greater than was ever thought necessary or desirable by any of the early advocates of protection, or even by those who had to deal with the conditions growing out of the civil war. Accompanying this historical review is a brief statement of the reasons which have governed the committee in dealing with the several schedules. This part of the report is similar to the statement furnished by Mr. Wilson with the publication of the original draft of the new tariff.

The bill will be presented in the House to-day, so that it may be in the hands of the members during the Christmas vacation. It will come up for consideration in the House immediately after the recess, and as little time as possible ought to be expended on general debate. This is entirely useless, for the broad principles of tariff reform have already been exhaustively discussed, and passed upon by the people, and the business of the house is simply to enact the revised tariff.

There are several important amendments that we believe ought to be made in the bill as reported by the committee, looking to a larger revenue than is now provided for, but these ought not to require very long discussion. If two weeks be allowed for debate in the House, two weeks more ought to be abundant for the detailed consideration in the committee of the whole.

This would carry it through the House towards the end of January so nearly perfected that whatever delay it may encounter in the Senate its general outlines will be well determined, and the manufacturers will be able to base their plans for the future upon its provisions. What the country wants now is not argument but action, and action to be successful must be prompt.—Philadelphia Times.

A STATEMENT OF THE CASE.

CROOK CITY, S. D., Jan. 22, 1892.

The Owen Electric Belt and Appliance Co., Chicago, Ill.:

GENTLEMEN—I have been for some time considering the propriety of writing you a few lines, relative to my experience with the Owen Electric Belt and Appliance obtained from you about eighteen (18) months ago. Justice to your company, and a desire on my part to make known to others who may be suffering from a similar affliction the relief I obtained from your institution, prompt me to send to you a voluntary statement of my case.

I am a gold miner by occupation, and have been for many years. I crossed the plains to California in 1852, and since then have been in most of the prominent mining camps in the then territories of Oregon, Washington, British Columbia, Idaho, Utah, Wyoming, and at present in Dakota. Leading the rough and exposed life incidental to my occupation, caused me to fall a victim to rheumatism which finally utterly prostrated me in Helena, Mont., in '65." I was under the best medical treatment obtainable in Montana for one year, with but slight improvement, and was finally advised to live among the Indians, and subject myself to their "sweat" treatment. This I did and remained with them about a year, obtaining only temporary relief.

Since that time I have been a chronic sufferer—suffering pain and torture indescribable almost continually. It would be useless to attempt to describe my sufferings. It must be sufficient to state that I suffered from rheumatism in its worst form. I have spent large sums of money, changed climate, visited Hot Springs, lived alternately in high and low altitudes, and employed the best medical advice obtainable, hoping to alleviate, if not cure my complaint. It was all to no purpose, and I had about despaired of ever recovering fully my shattered health, when my attention was called to the Owen Electric Belt by a fellow miner, Mr. J. C. Johnson, of Creek City, who was also suffering from rheumatism, and who claimed to have derived great benefit from the belt obtained from you. I had tried so many remedies that I was fairly discouraged and skeptical about obtaining relief from any source, but finally determined it was my duty to give your appliance a trial. I will also state right here that, since coming to the town, I have also suffered greatly from kidney disease.

At last I sent for one of your belts, and applied it carefully, according to the printed directions accompanying the same, and can now truthfully say, as I now do to you, that I am no longer troubled with my kidneys, that I am entirely free from rheumatism, and I consider my health as perfect. All this I consider is owing to your valuable and priceless Owen Electric Belt, and I feel I am only performing a duty and paying a deserved tribute to Dr. Owen in sending this unsolicited statement of my case for his information.

Sincerely your friend,
JOHN MULVANE,
Crook City, Lawrence Co., S. D.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss.

At a session of the Probate Court for the county of Lenawee, holden at the Probate Office in the city of Adrian, on Saturday, the ninth day of September, in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three.

Present, Richard B. Robbins, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Charity Gallatin, insane person.

On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Fred D. Hall, guardian of said insane person, praying for reasons therein set forth, that he may be empowered and licensed to sell the real estate of said insane person in said petition described, in accordance with the statute in such case made and provided.

It is ordered, that Monday, the 8th day of January, next, at 9 o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the next of kin of said insane person, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court then to be holden at the Probate office in the City of Adrian, and show cause, if there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate, of the pendancy of said petition and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

To Preserve

The richness, color, and beauty of the hair, the greatest care is necessary, much harm being done by the use of worthless dressings. To be sure of having a first-class article, ask your druggist or perfumer for Ayer's Hair Vigor. It is absolutely superior to any other preparation of the kind. It restores the original color and fullness to hair which has become thin, faded, or gray. It keeps the scalp cool, moist, and free from dandruff. It heals itching humors, prevents baldness, and imparts to

TIMES ARE HARD.

General Business Fails to Show Any Improvement.

Holiday Trade Proves Very Unsatisfactory —Nearly 3,000,000 Persons Without Support, Owing to Lack of Work.

TRADE IS QUIET.

NEW YORK, Dec. 23.—Bradstreet's says:

"The features of the business week are the increased uniformity in reports that general trade is quite as much or more depressed than previously; that holiday trading has been unsatisfactory and far below that of a year ago, continued closing down of important industrial establishments, reductions of wages and increased instances where short time is being enforced. Nearly all staple markets are quiet almost to stagnation, the exception having been cotton, the price of which was stimulated late in the week by revival of confidence in low crop reports. Wheat, too, was higher for a time, but reacted. On the other hand, pig iron never was lower than at present. Commercial travelers are on the road to a very limited extent, as is usual at this season, and stock taking is beginning at many points, which tends to emphasize the lack of business activity.

No Claim to Improvement.

"With the exception of Augusta, Ga., and possibly one other point, absolutely no claim to even a slight improvement in any line of business is made at any point this week. Exports of wheat from both coasts of the United States are not as large as last week, amounting to only 2,605,000 bushels, about 60 per cent. of the total a year ago, and three-quarters of the aggregate so shipped in the week two years ago.

"Transactions in lumber, leather, wool, dry goods and, in fact, almost all staple lines, are for actual wants only, and the outlook is not for a material revival during the next sixty days.

Nearly 3,000,000 Without Support.

"Special telegrams to Bradstreet's from 119 important cities throughout the country indicate the total number of employes in industrial and other lines out of work at this time from all causes, together with the total number of people directly dependent for support upon those so rendered idle, is nearly 3,000,000.

Christmas Helps Retailers.

"There is an improvement in Christmas trade among retailers at a few western cities. This is true at Cleveland, where business in other respects is unchanged. At Cincinnati trade is very quiet. Transactions in staple goods at Toledo are reported fair, but in other lines business is very dull. The holiday trade at Detroit is less than anticipated and industrial lines continue inactive. All departments of business are reported dull at Indianapolis and Louisville.

"The volume of Christmas trade at Chicago is only fair and in other lines there is comparatively little doing, travelers being off the road and merchants receiving relatively few orders by mail. This is the beginning of the season for inventories, which empathizes the dullness. Jobbers in hats and shoes at St. Louis report business restricted to actual wants and the movement of iron is as slow as ever. There is no activity in business circles at Kansas City aside from Christmas specialties except in lines of cheap goods. Trade remains steady at Omaha, though smaller than a year ago, and dullness characterizes the situation at Milwaukee, Minneapolis, Duluth and St. Paul, as for weeks past.

The Failure Record.

"Failures for the week were 341 in the United States, against 283 last year, and 37 in Canada, against 18 last year. The liabilities in failures reported last week appear to have exceeded $6,239,887 in amount, including $2,325,950 for manufacturing and $2,084,919 for trading concerns, against $5,459,409 for the previous week."

OHIO BARGES LOST.

Low Water in the River Causes the Loss of 400,000 Bushels of Coal.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Dec. 23.—The low water has caused the coal barons to suffer a loss of 400,000 bushels of coal in the last twenty-four hours. The Coal City sunk four barges at Caseyville, Ky. The barges lost contained at least 100,000 bushels. The Diamond sunk four boats down the river between Cairo and Memphis. Eight other barges of the same fleet, towed by the Diamond, were stranded at this point. The coal lost will exceed 100,000 bushels. The Beaver lost three boats at the same place, which were freighted with 75,000 bushels.

GIVES ANOTHER MILLION.

Mr. Rockefeller Said to Have Made Another Gift to the Chicago University.

NEW YORK, Dec. 23.—It is reported that John E. Rockefeller has made a further gift of $1,000,000 to the Chicago university. It is known that President Harper, of the university, is in the city. Mr. Rockefeller's secretary, Mr. Rogers, refused to make any statement as to the alleged gift, and Mr. Rockefeller could not be seen.

Death of a Dubuque Pioneer.

DUBUQUE, Ia., Dec. 21.—One of the original founders of Dubuque has passed away in the person of Mrs. Elizabeth Lullis Emmerson, widow of the late James M. Emmerson. She settled here in 1832, and with her brother, the late Judge King, printed the first newspaper published in Iowa, the Dubuque Visitor. She was 83 years old.

In Honor of Harrison.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 22.—The union League club of this city tendered a reception to ex-President Harrison Thursday night, which was attended by 1,500 persons. Addresses were made by Gen. Harrison, Whitelaw Reid, ex-Senator Edmunds, of Vermont, Gov. Pattison and others.

Eight Horses Burned.

PACKWOOD, Ia., Dec. 22.—Ramey's livery stable with eight horses, Mitchell's hardware store and Fryer Bros.' general store were burned Thursday. The loss is $15,000, with small insurance.

West Point's Oldest Graduate Dead.

NEW YORK, Dec. 23.—Col. William Clark Young, the oldest graduate of West Point, died in this city Friday of pneumonia. He was born in 1799. He was graduated in 1822 from West Point.

Couldn't Live Alone.

FROM WASHINGTON.

The Fifty-Third Congress Is Now in Regular Session.

Measures of Importance Being Considered in the Senate and House—A Summary of the Daily Proceedings.

THE SENATE.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—A bill was introduced in the senate yesterday to impose a discriminating duty on tea imported from this side of the Cape of Good Hope. The bill to repeal the federal election laws was discussed. The nomination of Wayne MacVeagh, of Pennsylvania, to be ambassador of the United States to Italy was received from the president.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—The Hawaiian question was discussed in the senate yesterday and Senator Hoar in his remarks said that the president had no power to appoint a paramount commissioner without the advice and consent of the senate; and in undertaking to decide the Hawaiian question and to withhold from the people what he was doing until it was settled one way or the other the president seemed to have supposed that he was the United States of America. A resolution was adopted directing the committee on foreign relations to inquire into and report on the whole matter. The urgent deficiency bill was passed.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22.—A bill was introduced in the senate yesterday by Senator Proctor (Vt.) to annex the territory of Utah to the state of Nevada. Adjourned to January 3.

In the House.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—In the house yesterday a resolution was offered and referred to the committee on rules for the appointment of a committee of seven to investigate the Hawaiian question and the privileges of the house in such matters. The Wilson tariff measure was reported, and the urgent deficiency bill was passed.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—The New York and New Jersey bridge bill was passed in the house yesterday. The committee on territories reported in favor of admitting Oklahoma as a state in the union.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22.—In the house yesterday it was decided that debate on the tariff bill would commence January 3. The foreign affairs committee presented a resolution condemning the action of ex-Minister Stevens in Honolulu and the minority report denounces the course taken by President Cleveland and Secretary Gresham. Adjourned to January 3.

FOURTEEN KILLED.

Disastrous Cave-In in the Carnegie, Mills at Homestead, Pa.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Dec. 23, 3 a. m.—News has just reached here by telephone from Homestead that a disastrous cave-in has occurred in the new addition to the Carnegie mills. Fourteen men are said to be killed and four seriously injured.

The cave-in occurred at Munhill station, where the Carnegie Steel company is erecting a large furnace. Two men have been taken out of the ruins dead. At least twelve more workmen are buried beneath the ruins, all of whom are no doubt dead. Four others have been rescued, all of whom are seriously injured.

FOUR DROWNED.

Sad Fate of a Party of Skaters in Nova Scotia.

HALIFAX, N. S., Dec. 20.—Four young persons skating on Chocolate lake, 4 miles from this city, broke through the ice and were drowned. Three were named Doyle, two boys and a girl aged 20. The fourth was a boy named Neill, from the industrial school. Neill's body was not recovered. Mrs. Doyle nearly lost her life in attempting to rescue her children. She was rescued by her 9-year-old daughter.

Nominations Hung Up in the Senate.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—Of the 400 nominations sent to the senate by the president since the regular session began 105 were unacted upon at the time of the recess for the Christmas holidays, and of these a large majority are of postmasters in small places. The Hornblower nomination and that of Robert E. Preston for director of the mint have been hung up since the extra session. The list also includes J. Scott Harrison (brother of ex-President Harrison) for surveyor of customs at Kansas City.

His Losses Overwhelmed Him.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 22.—George B. Prochaska, president of the American Rice Milling company, whose works were destroyed in Wednesday's fire, shot himself through the right temple at an early hour. He is dead. The fire and business reverses unsettled his mind.

Officers Robbed by Tramps.

OSKALOOSA, Ia., Dec. 22.—Tramps held up the deputy sheriff and two policeman here Thursday night and robbed them of all their valuables. One tramp was fatally shot and the officers badly bruised. The town and vicinity are overrun with the vagabonds.

Killed by an Explosion.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 23.—A telephone message from South Knoxville says the boiler of the Scottish Timber & Lumber company's plant exploded with fearful results, killing four or five men, injuring several others and completely demolishing the plant.

Defended His Mother.

NASHVILLE, Dec. 22.—Seth Crawford, colored, killed his stepfather, Billy Crawford, in Henry county while the latter was beating his wife, the boy's mother. Seth Crawford is 17 years old. He is now in jail at Paris.

Death of Ex-Consul J. W. Love.

OMAHA, Dec. 21.—James W. Love, consul to San Salvador under President Harrison, died at his home at Fremont, Neb., aged 43.

Worried Over Finances.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—Treasury officials are worried by the decrease in the cash balance, which is but $90,589,727.

because the alleged steel when in the country inexperienced manufacturers have gone down in ordinary winds a feeling has grown that the Steel Wheel is unsafe. Judge it only by the Aermotor.

In this year's blizzards and cyclones the Aermotor loss is proportionately much less than any wooden wheel, while the loss of the imitation steel ones has frequently been total.

45 sold in '88

A Steel Windmill and Steel Tower every 3 minutes. ☞ These figures tell the story of the ever-growing, ever-going, everlasting Steel Aermoter. Where one goes others follow, and we "Take the Country."

Though sold, we were unable to make all of the 20,049 Aermotors in '91. Orders often waited 8 weeks to be filled, but now we have vastly increased our plant and are prepared promptly to plant our Increase in every habitable portion of the globe.

Are you curious to know how the Aermotor Co. in the 6th year of its existence, came to make many times as many windmills as all other makers combined? How we came to originate the Steel Wheel, the Steel Fixed Tower, the Steel Tilting Tower?

1st. We commenced in a field in which there had been no improvement for 23 years, and in which there seemed no talent or ambition, and none has yet been shown except in feeble imitation of our inventions.

2d. Before commencing the manufacture, exhaustive scientific investigation and experiments were made by a skilled mechanical engineer, in which over 5,000 dynamometric tests were made on 61 different forms of wheels, propelled by artificial and therefore uniform wind, which settled definitely many questions relating to the proper speed of wheel, the best form, angle, curvature and amount of sail surface, the resistance of air to rotation, obstructions in the wheel, such as heavy wooden arms, obstructions before the wheel, as in the vaneless mill, and many other more abstruse, though not less important questions. These investigations proved that the power of the best wind wheels could be doubled, and the AERMOTOR daily demonstrates it has been done.

3d. To the liberal policy of the Aermotor Co., that guarantees its goods satisfactory or pays freight both ways, and to its enormous output of its factory which enables it to furnish the best article at less than the poorest is sold for. For '92 we furnish the most perfect bearings ever put in a windmill, and have made an exhaustive revision of the Aermotor and Towers.

If you want a strong, stiff, Steel Fixed Tower—or if you want the tower you don't have to climb (The Steel Tilting Tower) and the Wheel that runs when all others stand still, that costs you less than wood and lasts ten times as long (The Steel Aermotor) or if you want a Geared Aermotor to churn, grind, cut feed, pump water, turn grindstone and saw wood, that does the work of 4 horses at the cost of one ($100), write for copiously illustrated printed matter, showing every conceivable phase of windmill construction and work, to the AERMOTOR CO., 12th and Rockwell Sts., Chicago, or 27-29 Beale St., San Francisco.

DR. TRASK'S MAGNETIC OINTMENT.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

All Sores, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Burns, Sore Throat, Lameness, Rheumatism, Piles, Inflammation of Lungs and Bowels, Bronchitis, Croup, Salt Rheum, Chilblains, Affection of the Spine, Erysipelas, Nervous Irritation, and all disorders attendant with Inflammation.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years.

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such, that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used the Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should be perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Price 25 and 48 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

FROM THE LAND OF FLOWERS.

GLENWOOD, Florida, Dec. 13, '93.

Wonder has not ceased with me at waking these December mornings, and seeing instead of ice and snow the glisten of the green orange trees laden with their fruit, with the verdure of the tall pines whispering over them, in the breeze. The heavy dew childs the morning for a while, but soon the day grows warm and summerlike, inviting rambles in groves and forests. It is not the season for wild flowers—but the yellow jessamine is beginning to bloom and there are places where the lover of flowers, can find them hidden away from all but those who seek them. This is the season for picking and packing oranges. At one packing house visited this morning some 20 hands were found busily employed in getting off speedily a car load of boxes. It was an attractive sight. Here were two colored bretheren, managing the sizer which sent each orange into a dumping place along with those of the same size with itself. Yonder is a man putting together the boxes, the materials for which are all ready to be fastened together.

Down in a sort of pit where the oranges can easily be reached are two packers, wrapping them deftly in papers and placing them so closely and symmetrically in the boxes that the number in each box can be marked on it without counting. Yonder is a man whose business it is to place the lid on the filled boxes and fasten it securely. Then they are passed over to the marker, who with his stencils marks the number which the box contains, the quality, whether brights, or golden russets, the name of the shipper or owner of the grove, and destination. Wagons also are arriving at the same time with their loads of fruit in picking boxes, which held a trifle more than those in which they are shipped. The boxes for shipping are divided into two equal compartments, each one of which is a perfect cube. These boxes will hold 100 to 300 oranges, according to the size of the fruit, and each box will weigh about 80 lbs. While the present is a busy season because of the demand for oranges at Christmas time, there are growers who will not pick until February or March. Unless there should be a heavy freeze the fruit will improve by remaining on the trees and the owners hope that the price will also. A good picker will gather 60 boxes in a full day where the crop is good. The fruit on the lower limbs can be reached of course from the ground. The picker has his orange scissors with which he cuts each from its stem and then drops into a bag at his side which he empties, as it gets heavy and cumbersome into his picking box. For the fruit on the higher branches he mounts a short ladder. It is no light work to pick oranges all day. The hands often get wounded from the thorns on the trees and the back and feet ache from climbing ladders and carrying the bag and reaching for the fruit. The price per box for picking is 4 or 5 cents, and very good wages can therefore be made by those engaged in it. The freedmen make good wages while the season lasts and white laborers also are attracted from other parts to do this work. The writer picked a couple of boxes the other day the pay for which would have enabled him if he had taken it, to buy a supper ticket at a church supper in Tecumseh, and the exercise was sufficient to give him a good appetite for one of those generous repasts. There are some lemon trees with the orange, and they also produce well—but not many are raised. There are two fancy varieties of oranges, a few of which are shipped, called Mandarines and Tangerines. From each of these the skin is easily removed with the fingers and the compartments also are easily separated without soiling the fingers—which causes them to be called kid glove oranges, because they can be eaten from a glove hand. An orange tree is a noble member of the tree family. It begins to bear quite generously at 5 years of age and keeps on steadily, if supplied with proper nourishment, for years and years, increasing in its yield. From a good tree in full bearing 8 or 10 and even 20 boxes are often gathered, making a weight of 1000 to 1600 pounds, at one yield. Often on the same small branch of little finger size will be found a cluster of 5 or 7 or 12 heavy oranges, each one clinging so firmly that it can hardly be loosened by pulling. Orange trees it is said will live for 100 years or more and still bring forth fruit in their old age. But they need to be tilled and fertilized and cared for. If they are, they will repay the care. I visited with my friend, Mr. Mann, to-day the famous Norris grove of 200 acers, and which yields an income of $40,000 a year. A part of this grove consists of wild trees left, where they sprang up, in irregular order, but they were budded early. The result is that they are bearing now luscious fruit and plenty of it. This morning was spent in a visit to DeLeon Spring three miles north of Glenwood. The village of DeLeon has little to attract. But the ride thence to the spring is one of great beauty through what is called a hammock; consisting of a forest of live oaks, Magnolias, Hickories, Bay, Water Oak, Palmettos, etc., with a rich and varied undergrowth of tropical shrubs. The view in advance as one rides through, with the trees nearly meeting at the top and bearded with hanging moss is very beautiful and impressive. Arrived at the Spring one sees a circular body of clearest water 100 feet or more in diameter, boiling up in the center and sending a strong current into the neighboring lake which receives its waters and carries them to the river St. Johns. DeLeon found this place three centuries ago. It was the nearest he ever came to discovering his fountain of perpetual youth. The waters are still held to possess great curative properties and are exceedingly pleasant for bathing. Along side this spring stands a tall massive chimney of brick, covered from base to top by a heavy clinging vine. At its foot lie two large rusted iron cog wheels, through the middle of one of which a good sized tree is growing. The tradition is that these are the ruins of a mill for manufacturing sugar from the sugar cane—which was erected by the Spaniards. The remains of other brick work in which boilers were probably set are to be seen. My description is brief, but the place is full of interest and well worthy of a visit. W. H. E.

OBITUARY.

Died—Wm. H. Mather breathed his last and entered into rest Dec. 20. Mr. Mather was taken to his bed last May, and never left it until death claimed him. For seven months he was a sufferer. At times suffering most severely. Yet bore it all with christian fortitude and bravery. He was of the old New England stock, a direct descendant of Cotton Mather. Was born at Darien, Conn. May 17, 1822. At ten years of age he removed with his parents to Benton, N. Y. In 1844 he came to Michigan, and settled at Three Rivers, where he resided until 1864, when he came to Tecumseh. For 18 years he resided on a farm some two miles from the city. Thirteen years ago he left the farm and moved into the house where he died. He was married in March, 1846, to Miss Clarissa F. Brewster who survives him. In 1840 he, at the age of 18, united with the Presbyterian church, during all of these years has been a faithful member. For 14 years was an office bearer in the church at Three Rivers. He was a man of strong convictions of what he thought was right and wrong. The exponent of these convictions was a consistent life, he hated wrong and anything that was akin to it. Thought a great deal of his family and friends. Was always willing and ready to do anything to assist those in need. He will be missed and mourned not only by his family, but by neighbors and friends, and all who knew him. The funeral service occurred Friday, the 22nd, at the house and was attended by a great number of those who came to pay their last respects to their beloved friend and neighbor. He was buried in the family lot in the Tecumseh cemetery beside those who had gone before. Thus endeth a good and useful life. May comfort come to the sorrowing through the memory of the past and the hope of the future, which was so bright to him.

RELIEF MEETING.

Pursuant to a call issued by the President of the village, J. H. Smith, a citizens meeting was held at Armory Hall, on the evening of Dec. 26th, to make arrangements for the soliciting of relief for the Northern sufferers.

David McNair was elected chairman of the meeting and J. H. Smith was chosen secretary.

On motion the following soliciting committees were appointed.

" " No. 2—Jno M. Hendershott.
School district No. 3—J. F. N. Bowen.
" " No. 4—Ambrose Welch
" " No. 5—Blinn Tallman.
" " No. 6—Wm. Mathews.
" " No. 8—Joseph Russell.
" " No. 9—Albert Waring.
" " No. 7—Tecumseh divided into 4 sections:

S. W. Sec.—S. W. Bordine and J. A. Boyd.

N. W. Sec.—S. W. Anderson and Jas. Lowry.

N. E. Sec.—D. T. Hall and John S. Temple.

S. E.—S. P. Hosmer and Thed Harris.

Executive and receiving committee: David McNair, J. H. Smith and H. W. Stevens.

The principal donations wanted are groceries, provisions and money. The money will be expended here for provisions. Some wearing apparel needed. It is desirous that all contributions be delivered at the council building, next week and not later than Jan. 10th.

ANNOUNCEMENT FOR 1894.

Again the "Old Reliable" greets its patrons, extends its thanks for past favors, and lays before them its program for 1894. The HERALD passed through the panic of 1893 much better than we anticipated, and is prepared to face the future with confidence. We have several attractive offers to present, some of which we believe will merit the approval of every subscriber. With the attractions herein offered we hope to retain all our old friends and make many new acquaintances during the coming three months.

Realizing the fact that every dollar counts in these hard times, we have concluded to make our rates for the coming year on a "hard times" basis. One dollar will pay for the paper for one year, when sent to any post office in Lenawee County. Beyond Lenawee County $1.25. In making this concession however we shall be compelled to adopt the strict advance rule. We cannot afford to accept these rates and wait several months for our pay. Sixty days grace will be allowed for payment of subscriptions which is ample time for all who desire to keep the paper, and all papers not renewed within that time will be stopped. People expect to pay for their outside papers strictly in advance. Why should they not be willing to treat their home paper with the same courtesy?

We have a few combination offers, which we believe will prove especially attractive.

FIRST.

The Detroit Weekly Free Press has been changed to a semi-weekly, and is now a "twice a week" paper, each edition containing at least eight pages. These two papers with the HERALD—three papers in all—will be furnished for $2.00.

SECOND.

The American Farmer and the Farmer's Guide are both first-class farm papers, well edited and finely printed. The subscription price of each is fifty cents. Either of these papers will be furnished in connection with the HERALD for $1.25.

THIRD.

The Cosmopolitan Magazine is now acknowledged to be one of the very best monthlies published. It ranks with Harper's, Scribner's and the Century. Its December edition was unprecedented, being over 400,000 copies. The Cosmopolitan will be sent in connection with the HERALD, both journals, for only $2.25.

FOURTH.

We have closed a contract with the Globe Bible Publishing Co. by which we can furnish our patrons with the entire series of "Shepp's World's Fair Photographed." The work is issued in thirty-two parts, regular price twenty-five cents each, each part containing eight pages of descriptive matter and eight full page half tone photographs. One coupon cut from the HERALD, accompanied by ten cents in coin will entitle the subscriber to one of these parts. The distribution will begin about the middle of January and continue weekly until the entire series shall be taken. Every HERALD subscriber will be able to obtain this magnificent series of World's Fair views at exactly wholesale cost price. This offer is more fully described in detail elsewhere.

OUR CLUB LIST.

The following table gives the combination price for the papers named in connection with the HERALD. We have a special business arrangement with these, but any paper published can be ordered through this office at reduced rates.

The donations received by the Relief Committee up to this morning amount to fifty dollars. This before any systematic canvass has been made.

Wife: Can you let me have some money, dear? I am going shopping. Husband: Great Heavens, Maria, you'll ruin me. Wife (calmly): All I want is 10 cents for car fare.

GATHERED TO HIS FATHERS.

Rarely has a greater sorrow filled the hearts of all who knew him than when the sad word went out "Noah Burreughs is dead." A pioneer in Michigan's territorial days, who with his own strong right arm had cleared away the heavy forest and made three fine farms in what is now Franklin township, and passed sixty of his own four score years in this vicinity, a loving and lovable husband, a fond and affectionate father, a true and steadfast friend, a kind sympathetic and obliging neighbor had been suddenly summoned to his Heavenly home.

Noah S. Burreughs was born in Fayette, Seneca Co., New York, January 2d., 1812, where he passed his boyhood, and on his twenty-first birthday married Miss Electa Hunter, of the same place. In later years in his humorous moods he often referred to this incident; saying: "I never was a free man, for on the day I passed from my father's control, I was given a new boss, who has ruled me all these years." But those of us who have been sufficiently intimate to see the perfect understanding, the entire confidence and harmony existing between the heads of that family, will say, as we know he felt: Fortunate indeed is the man who is thus bound through life. A year after their marriage they had the misfortune of losing by fire, their home, containing all their household goods, provisions and clothing save what was on their persons, and this incident caused them to decide to join some friends who were about to emigrate to the territory of Michigan. Of course they had to come all the way by private conveyance. The fall of 1834 found them settled in the woods, in what is now the township of Franklin, Lenawee Co., Michigan. Referring to this period Mrs. Burroughs says, "We were never happier or more comfortable than in that little log house, chinked and made warm by Noah's hands." Game was abundant. Noah was a good marksman and venison and other wild game had a prominent place in the daily fare.

During the next thirty years Mr. and Mrs. Burroughs lived the life of pioneers and citizens of the new commonwealth. Few of this day realize the meaning of pioneer. The heavy timber must be removed and roads must be made. They must plow among the thick stumps, plant and harvest the new crops, enduring many privations, have few privileges of society, church or school. It involved a struggle requiring courage, energy, perseverance and ability of a high order. These first settlers not only possessed these qualities in an eminent degree, but were high toned, public spirited, patriotic, moral and religious as well. A little later churches and school houses must be built, and in all such improvements Noah S. Burroughs was among the foremost. When the congregational church in Franklin, of which he was a member, was built, Mr. Burroughs was one of the erecting committee. After liberal subscriptions had been promised the committee went forward and contracted for the building. Suddenly hard times came on. Many could not fulfill their promises. Mr. Burroughs' strict sense of honor was such that he assumed the debts and mortgaged his home that the promises of the committee should be honored. It was an accepted fact that nothing could induce him to swerve from the path of rectitude. His word was as good as his bond. In 1865, having accumulated a competence, Mr. and Mrs. Burroughs decided to sell the farm and took up their residence in Tecumseh, where they have since lived.

They were the parents of six children. One son died in infancy and a loving daughter at the age of 19 years. The surviving children are Mrs. Elizabeth Mills, of Dallas, Texas, Mrs. Mahala Packard, of Tecumseh, Nelson T. Burroughs, of Cherokee, Iowa, and Mrs. Ida Vail, of Rock Rapids, Iowa. His companion for over 60 years, left alone in the afternoon of her life has the respect of her entire acquaintance as she certainly has their sincere sympathy in her great sorrow. About five years ago Mr. Burroughs first noticed that his sight was failing. A surgical operation gave temporary relief but his eyes became gradually worse until in November 1892, he awoke one morning to find himself totally blind.

For some years he had not been able to attend church, but on Sabbath day he loved to have his daughter read sermons to him. During his last sickness, when his mind was perfectly clear, his daughter said to him, "Father, you are very sick, ain't you?" Yes, he replied. "If you should not get better, is it all well with you, father?" and he replied, "Yes, it is all well." There was no dread, no fear of meeting his Master. "All is well!" Though dead, Noah S. Burroughs still lives in the memory of all who knew him, for the many acts of charity, the kind words, the Christian spirit that marked and controlled his life. He died peacefully and happily on Saturday, Dec. 16th, 1893. The funeral services were held at his late residence on Tuesday, Dec. 19th. All his immediate family were present except Mrs. Mills. The house was crowded with other relatives and friends anxious to pay this last tribute of love for the departed and sympathy for the bereaved. The services were conducted in a very impressive manner by Rev. C. M. Brown, pastor of the Presbyterian church, assisted by the Presbyterian choir. The pall bearers were near relatives of the deceased, and very tenderly did they convey all that is mortal of our dear friend to their last resting place in our beautiful village cemetery. A. W. M.

SOME OF OUR ADVERTISERS.

This week we give the third and final installment of our advertising directory. With the exception of our manufacturing establishments and men engaged in the professions, the three chapters taken together would constitute almost a complete business directory of Tecumseh.

Moses Long is a late acquisition to our business circles. He hails from Leslie and sells all kinds of horse furnishing goods. He has fitted up the store in the Hewitt block west of Adamson's and put in a very complete stock of harness and other goods pertaining to that line of trade. He is a skillful workman and deserves a remunerative trade.

John A. Heck is an old and honored citizen engaged in a new trade. During the past summer he bought the old stable opposite Hayden's warehouse on Logan street and started a coal and wood yard. He deals in all kinds of hard and soft coal and keeps wood on hand for those who wish it. He is well known for square dealing and is evidently working up a good trade.

Wolc. Marsh still runs the Railroad street meat market where he has held forth for so many years. The old frame shop has given way to a fine brick building and he carries a larger supply than ever of fresh and salt meats, suitable to this market. Tecumseh housewives who do their own marketing always go there to trade, for they can get exactly what they want.

A. E. Kennedy still runs the news room in Bidwell's block. Since the post office was moved out of that building, he has extended his business very much, adding fruits, soft drinks, etc., and now enjoys an extended trade, which has had a healthy growth and is constantly increasing. "Chuck" is regarded as one of our business fixtures.

One of Tecumseh's solidest business men is C. E. Williamson, who runs a poultry house and grocery store. A few years ago he bought the poultry business of Frank Buman, which has developed under his management into large proportions. He next added a retail grocery department and this has grown in a wonderful manner also. "Ed." is a hustler and whatever he takes hold of is bound to go.

Will Spalding is located in the Morrison block on Logan street. He began on a small scale two years ago with a tin shop, and now has quite a stock of general hardware. He makes a specialty of metal roofing, putting up furnaces etc., and is working up a fine trade in these lines, besides his retail trade. His prospects for the future are very encouraging.

Chas. A. Slayton has held forth in his present location on Railroad street almost as long as we can remember, and his business has grown every year since it was started. We doubt whether any retail firm in Tecumseh does a larger volume of annual business. He buys and sells grain and produce of all kinds, has a very large retail coal trade, and keeps on hand a large assortment of wagons and carriages, cutters and harness.

Men may come and men may go but the Central Market keeps booming right along. Geo. H. Keller is the present proprietor and from the manner in which the market has been conducted during his brief ownership he evidently understands his business. His Saturday sales of Chicago beef are growing more popular every week and he is having a special run on these now.

Alva Spade needs no introduction to the HERALD readers. His combined business of clothing and boots and shoes has grown into a large and lucrative one, and his big double store is filled to the brim with a mammoth stock of goods, which he is selling at hard times prices. By his gentlemanly treatment of customers and honorable business methods he has built up a lucrative trade.

The Satterthwaite Bros. have grown up in a hardware store. They began clerking for Sutton & Swan while yet in their teens and have remained right there in the same store ever since. Their long experience has given them a most intimate knowledge of the hardware trade in all its branches, which they are now putting to good use. A successful business career is a certainty for them.

A repetition of the above item would apply equally well to the McClure Bros. by simply substituting groceries for hardware. The large trade which their father built up in his life time has fallen into good hands and they are proving themselves to be worthy sons of an honored sire. This firm is justly regarded as one of the strongest business houses on Chicago street.

J. S. Gilman has had the reputation of being the oldest harness maker in Lenawee County, and we venture to say that a better workman never manipulated a needle and awl within the confines of the County. He will put up any kind of a harness, light or heavy, on special order, and he also makes a specialty of repairing. Remember his location, when you want anything in the harness line—on Railroad street, just around the corner.

When the water works were completed last summer and everything in readiness to attach individual water mains, James M. Ingersoll procured a plumber's license and opened a shop of his own on Railroad street. As he is a skillful workman his success was assured from the start. In addition to plumbing he does all kinds of work in tin, copper and sheet iron, and maks a specialty of repairing old furnaces and putting in new ones.

The State Saving's Bank, although organized only a few months ago, has already gathered a fine run of business, and we believe it is destined to grow in public confidence as time rolls on. The bank has a very strong list of stockholders, it is well officered and very prudently managed. Time alone is required to make it one of the solid financial institutions in this section of the State.

This completes the list of parties who have been running "display ads" during December. In addition to these we have a large number of small cards from attorneys, dentists and the lumber yards. Again some of our most liberal advertisers indulge wholly in locals. Among these are the two flouring mills, the merchant tailoring firms, the City Bakery, Rude's laundry and floating advertisements of almost every name and nature. Besides, the above list does not include any "foreign" ads. whatever, and these alone constitute quite a business during a calendar year. A full list of the HERALD'S advertisers for a full twelve months would make a very interesting showing.

THE BIRDS OF NORTH AMERICA.

In connection with the foregoing report of our Ornithological Chapter, it is only right to call the attention of all lovers of birds to the magnificent work now being issued by the Natural Science Association of America, and entitled "The Birds of North America." Edition limited to 1,000. It is emphatically an original work, original in design and execution, and whether in letter press, illustrations or price, it is unapproached by anything of the kind in existance. It is recommended by the highest scientific, ecclesiastic and educational authority as being the most attractive, meritorious, pure and ennobling exporition of our ornithology yet given to the public. Dr. Elliott Coues, author of "Birds of the North-West," says: "It is a really notable work." Prof. C. J. Maynard, author of the "Birds of Eastern North America," says: "It contains the best pictures of the species which I have ever seen.' Thos. G. Gentry, author of "Life Histories of Birds," and "Nests and Eggs of Birds of the United States," says: "It is the cheapest and best publication on ornithology in this country. The drawings are of a very high order, and rivals in beauty of design and finish the more costly works published abroad or in this country. It should be found in our homes and in libraries generally." And, according to Dr. Theodore Gill, a member of the National Academy of Sciences, "It is not only a meritorious volume, but is altogether so handsome as to make it a very appropriate presentation book or ornament for the family table." It is an imperial quarto volume of engraved figures of all our species, artistically reproduced, true in all hues of color to their natural plumage and botanical surroundings. It also includes a copious text description of their habits and characteristics, and embracing in general the observations made by the most eminent writers on ornithology, and a systematic table, arranged according to the classification adopted by the American Ornithologists' Union, includes all the additions and corrections of our North American species which have been made to date, with an index to page, plate and figure of each species according to the A. O. U. number. It is illustrated with one hundred and nineteen full page colored plates, each representing from one to thirty or more species. It is the finest book on American birds issued since Audubon, and is pronounced by some authorities surperior to that now rare and costly work. It is issued in half and full bindings, Russia, seal, or morocco, at the net price of $40 and $45 respectively; but in response to a special letter, the association authorized me to say that a substantial discount will be made to such of our A. A. members and others as are working naturalists. We commend this work especially to members of the Wilson Ornithological Chapter. It is also a very useful and appropriate addition to the home and reference library, and for presentation purposes generally. Address regarding it, the Natural Science Association, 114 Fifth Avenue, New York, N. Y. Sample of plates and text can be had by sending twenty-five cents in postage stamps.

SPEED THE PARTING GUEST.

BY OLIVE OHNET.

FAREWELL, farewell, the best of friends must part,
And as a token of how dear thou art,
How fond and dear, Old Year, Old Year,
Here take a glint of gold from out my hair,
A shade of rose from cheek and lip, and there
Sprinkle a touch of snow before you go,
Old Year, before you go.

Good-by, God-speed, all earthly things must end,
One look into your fading eyes, my friend,
So fond and dear, Old Year, Old Year,
There's mild regret within my heart in place of pain,
All that was sweet in thee shall once again
In memory live and make me glad,
Old Year; then why be sad?

Now that we're parting, I'm impelled to say,
What I've in secret thought for many a day—
Yet still I love you, dear Old Year,
Youv'e always worn a somewhat somber face,
You've never had the winsome sprightly grace
That I remember in your foregone kin,
Old Year, that I have ushered in.

Your stay was shorter, too, it seems to me,
Than that of former years was wont to be.
Oh, fond and dear Old Year, Old Year,
Maykap for me all time is near complete,
And toward the end you're hast'ning with glad feet.
Then speed, no longer stay,
Old Year, go swift thy way!

HIS NEW YEAR'S MAIL.

BY ELISA ARMSTRONG.

"Ah, now, this is pleasant!" cried young Mr. Dovecot, as he threw aside his newspaper on the morning of the 1st of January. "What more can a man want than a beefsteak such as we had for breakfast, a clear fire like this, and a little wife of his own? By the way, my dear, you are looking very charming this morning. I do not remember ever having seen that dress before."

"It—it's a surprise," faltered Mrs. Dovecot, turning very pink. "I am so glad you like it—you know I try to please you in all things."

"I couldn't help admiring it, my dear. I pity those poor fellows who are bachelors—I was telling Jollycliffe so only yesterday."

"Yes, indeed, and I was saying to Marie that she would never know what real happiness is until she is married."

"We must ask them both to dinner some evening and try to make a match between them. Ah, there comes the postman, tramping through the snow."

"I'll go and meet him. I hate to keep him waiting."

"No, I'll go; you might catch cold from the draught."

A moment later he returned, saying: "See what a pile of letters, invitations

"OH, FERDIE, HOW EXTRAVAGANT!"

and New Year's greetings, no doubt. Hello!"

"What is the matter?" queried Mrs. Dovecot, who was anxiously looking over the letters.

"A bill for another ton of coal—why, I paid for one only the other day!"

"But don't you remember? I forgot to give you the other one when it came, and"—

"I remember, you forgot it until after your sealskin was bought. What's this? O, never mind;" and he stuffed a bill into his pocket; it fell out and she pounced upon it.

"O, Ferdie, another suit; how extravagant!"

"My dear, a man must look decent, if he is married. By the way, when your china painting is quite finished I wish you would mend the hole in my pocket."

"Why, Ferdie you said the other day that I musn't prick my little fingers with sewing;" and she burst into tears. In drawing out her handkerchief she dropped a bill which he picked up.

"Clara Dovecot! another dressmaker's bill!"

"Only for the dress I have on, dear. I wanted to surprise you."

"Well, my love, you have succeeded, and here's a bill for a bath robe. I never bought a bath robe."

"O, Ferdie, that was your birthday present, and—"

"In future we will do without birthday presents, my dear; I can't afford them. What's this? O, only the statement from my club."

"And you promised me you'd give up the club and stay at home when we were married!"

"And here's a bill for ice cream and lunches; what extravagance!"

"O, dear, if I'd known how unkind you are I never would have married you!"

"And if I'd known your temper I never would have asked you!"

"I shall tell Marie never to marry as long as she lives!"

"And I shall tell Jollycliffe that he is the luckiest dog I know!"

And that was why they didn't speak for the rest of the day.

UNCLE SAM'S FINANCES.

Text of the Annual Report of the Secretary of the Treasury.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—The annual report of John G. Carlisle, secretary of the treasury, was transmitted to congress yesterday. The secretary estimates the revenue of the government for the fiscal year which will end June 30 at $430,121,000, and expenditures at $458,121,000, leaving a deficit of $28,000,000 on the year. He suggests as a means of enabling the government to promptly meet the emergency and to provide a larger reserve fund several courses of action. One is the issue of 3 per cent. five-year bonds in small amounts to be disposed of through the subtreasuries and post offices to our own people. Another, the issue of $50,000,000 in one-year 3 per cent. bonds at par. Until the effect of the repeal of the Sherman silver-purchase law is more fully developed he does not consider it advisable to recommend further specific legislation on that subject. He favors legislation to authorize a more extended use of silver certificates. He refers to the opinion of his predecessor and of the late attorney general that the gain or seigniorage resulting from the coinage of the silver bullion as it progresses constitutes a part of the general assets of the treasury, and states that he has ordered the mints at New Orleans and San Francisco to be kept in readiness to commence the coinage of standard silver dollars at any time when required. He champions the system of substituting ad valorem duties for specific duties in the collection of customs, and recommends an increase of ten cents a gallon in the internal revenue tax on distilled spirits, the imposition of additional internal revenue taxes on cigars and cigarettes, the imposition of new taxes on playing cards, cosmetics, perfumeries, legacies and successions and incomes derived from investment in stocks and bonds of corporations in joint stock companies.

READY TO FIGHT.

The Provisional Government at Honolulu Will Resist Overthrow.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 22.—The steamship Mariposa, which has just arrived from Honolulu, reports the arrival at that port of the United States cutter Corwin with dispatches to Minister Willis, the contents of which had not been declared. The general belief at Honolulu was that the minister was instructed to make every effort to restore the queen short of force. The provisional government at Honolulu has prepared an ultimatum declaring its intention to resist with military force all attempts to overthrow it.

The provisional government is confident and will fight if attacked. Americans and the government are prepared for the fight which may be precipitated at any moment. The government insists in the belief that no trouble will occur. This is not the general opinion among Americans. The militia are all in readiness and within twenty minutes 1,000 men could be in the field to defend the provisional government.

The government has framed an ultimatum in which it declines to negotiate for the restoration of the crown and declares that it will resist with military force any and every attempt to overthrow the provisional government. This ultimatum is held ready to be sent to Minister Willis should he enter upon the fulfillment of his instructions.

TWO DOZEN SLAIN.

Desperate Battle Between Mexicans and Americans in New Mexico.

CERRILLAS, N. M., Dec. 23.—News has just reached here that at Laguna del Gallo, Lincoln county, N. M., a race war broke out Thursday and five Americans and nineteen Mexicans were killed. The governor had offered troops to recover a herd of sheep, but before this could be commenced the trouble began. The scene of action is inland. Much feeling is expressed by herders and more trouble is expected.

Buys the Betsy Ross House.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 23.—An ordinance has been introduced in common council providing for the purchase by the city of the house 239 Arch street, which was occupied by Mrs. Betsy Ross when she made the first United States flag. The property is valued at $8,000. It is proposed to remove the dwelling to Fairmount park. William Penn superintended the construction of the building.

Child Carried Off by an Eagle.

SELMA, Ala., Dec. 23.—The body of a 3-year-old child of Henry Smith (colored) was found on a rocky cliff by a party of searchers. The child had been left alone, and an older child, on returning, saw an eagle with what appeared to be a child in its talons. The body was recognized by bits of clothing, the flesh being eaten from the bones.

Two Women Drowned.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Dec. 22.—Two women named Williamson and Alexander were drowned Thursday in the Tombigbee river at McCary's Ferry, Ala., while attempting to rescue the child of the latter.

Couldn't Pay His Salary.

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 22.—Rector R. W. Graham, of the Church of the Good Shepherd in this city, resigned because the financial stringency has made it impossible to meet his salary.

Ohio Railroads Make a Record.

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 21.—Reports to the railroad commissioner of Ohio show that not one passenger was killed within the state during the year ended November 15.

May Stop the Fight.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Dec. 23.—Gov. Mitchell has refused a charter to the Duval Athletic club of this city, before which Corbett and Mitchell were to fight.

Secured by the Illinois Central.

CHICAGO, Dec. 20.—Collis P. Huntington has sold control of the Chesapeake & Ohio Southwestern to the Illinois Central for $5,000,000.

TRAINING HIM DOWN.

Why the Rest of the Crew Were Not Invited.

They rated and they raved at him; but he was impervious.

His surname does not matter in the least; it had long been forgotten. The coach of the 'varsity crew knew him as Six, and the rest of the crew as Jumbo, though, of course, he may have had another title.

He was as strong as a bull, and they had thought training would do much for him; but—he was so heavy.

"He could spare a stone if he could get it off him," said the president ruefully.

"It's too late to try Turkish baths," said Parsons, late of Trinity, who had been down to see the crew train; "can't you tell him you'll wire for Huggins, of Caius, if he does not look out, and worry him one way or another until he gets excited?"

"Nothing worries him," said the president, mournfully.

"Nothing?"

"Well, nothing that's any use here," said the president. "He confided in me last Easter that he was desperately in love with some one. He had her up during the May week—said she inspired him. I really believe running after her kept his weight down; he used to say she treated him badly, and told me a lot of rot when we were going down to Ely to practice in the autumn."

"What's her name?"

"Dorothy — Dorothy Derrick; you'd know it if you'd heard it as often as I have. All the time the trials were practicing he used to write hexameters on it, and recite them in the shower bath at the boathouse."

"And now he's engaged, I suppose, and happy, so he puts on flesh."

"Not a bit of it; 'it's all off,' he says, and his mind is at rest, confound him! I don't wonder she could not stand his easy-going ways, great lethargic brute."

Mr. Parsons was a grave-looking young man, and he looked portentously solemn as he sat reading a brief in the temple that night. When he had done he went out to supper with some of the cleverest of his friends.

When he came back he turned grave again, and sat down and wrote a long letter about Six and his sins to the president of the C. U. B. C., who read it in solemn silence at breakfast, casting baleful glances at Jumbo; but Jumbo seemed to have nothing more harassing to think of than how to screw enough sustenance out of training diet to make thirteen stone thirteen pounds feel comfortable inside.

Then he went out; there was a garden to the house where they were staying, and he said there was a man opposite who smoked. He could watch him, if he could do no more.

The rest of the crew were talking in the hall when he returned; they grew suddenly silent when he had entered, and they saw his face.

"Good heavens! you chaps," he said, "look here!" He was holding a sheet of paper in his hand.

"What is it?" they all said at once.

"I don't quite know," he said; "a small boy asked me my name and put it into my hand, and made a face and hooked it. I don't understand it, but it reads awful. Her name and mine, and 'Victoria by the grace of'—the devil, there's something on the back!"

If he was white before he was green afterward, as the president looked over his shoulder and read out aloud: "The plaintiff's claim is for damages for breach of promise of marriage."

"It's awful for me, isn't it?" said Six, disconsolately.

"It's worse for the 'varsity," said the secretary, in awestruck tones.

"Let's go out in the garden and talk it over before a rubbing time;" and the president and secretary linked their arms in his and drew him gently, but firmly, through the front door.

"I can't row to-day," said Six, in a hopeless way. "Can you excuse me? Put Simpson in, or some one, just while I go to town and call on Dorothy and put things to rights; she can't really mean to ruin me; she knows I never really said I would, because she never would give me the chance."

"I think the matter had better be put into the solicitor's hands," said the secretary.

"O, if Jumbo's really going to go up to town and be subpœnaed and writted and summoned and caveat-emptored and all that kind of law stuff three times a week, I'll wire to Caius to see if Huggins is still up," said the president.

"Dash it, old chap! don't kick me out for this," said Six, almost tearfully. "I'll do anything, pay anything, not to lose my blue—unless, of course, you think I'm not good enough."

Here the secretary looked puzzled and seemed to have forgotten something. He took off his light-blue cap and scratched his head; and the president, reaching round a sinewy leg behind Jumbo's back, kicked the trusty henchman. The kick had no inspiring effect.

"Can't you suggest anything?" said the president.

"O, yes," said the secretary, with an effort; "who coaches us to-day, Smithson? I wish it was Parsons; he's a barrister, and could tell us what to do."

"Can't we wire?" asked the president, producing the back of a letter. And in response to their message the tall form of Mr. Parsons darkened the doorway before the eight went down to the river to take advantage of the afternoon's tide.

A young solicitor, a friend of Mr. Parsons, was to come next day to take his instructions for entering an appearance and all subsequent matters in the suit, and from that day forward he and Mr. Parsons were to conduct every detail between them at their discretion.

Jumbo was to do nothing but what they told him not even to write or answer a letter or open one till they had seen it, and, above all, not to worry. That was the great point. He was not to worry.

The crew impressed it on him to a man; they inquired after his nerves every time they spoke to him, and put on an air of anxiety and compassion whenever they met him, stopping whenever they would otherwise have passed him to lay a weighty grip upon him and beg him to keep up his spirits.

The effect of the inquiries of Bow, Two, Three, Four and Five on Six, and the fact that Seven and Stroke always insisted on drinking the "reduction of damages" in the measures of port allowed them after dinner, was to distress rather than to relieve his mind.

Mr. Parsons, too, was a young man, and was then a young practitioner; his methods of doing business and advising his client were not consoling. He took a serious view from the first: it was a "question of damages," he said.

"I am afraid," said Mr. Parsons, "that you are being very badly treated; it is her solicitors who are doing it. Regular bloodsuckers. I know them."

"The fiends!" groaned No. 6, writhing; "and I've only twenty-five thousand dollars in all—everything I have for my old age." He was then twenty-two, so his position was a sad one.

"If I went to these solicitors and thrashed them," he said, grinding his teeth.

"They would only sue you for damages," said Mr. Parsons, "and be glad of the chance of doing so."

"I'd break every bone in their confounded bodies!" said No. 6.

Whatever complaints may be made about the law's delays, No. 6 in the Cambridge crew of 18— had none to record. He was startled at its rapidity. A document half a yard long entitled a "Statement of Claim," arrived in Mr. Parsons' pocket the day after the writ had been served. It was answered that day.

"The rules only allow twenty-four hours for the delivery of the defense in cases of breach of promise," said Mr. Parsons. "It's a new enactment to prevent fraud and concealment of assets. They'll get an order for discovery, and, perhaps, a ne exeat regno to-morrow."

And sure enough they did. The order for discovery was the most unkindest cut of all. Her letters were always in his pocket. There were only five, and three were invitations to dinner or lunch; but his answers! Mr. Parsons had inspected them.

Coupled with the documents now produced they clinched the matter, while a hairpin, a bit of ribbon and a broken shoelace (he had broken it in tying it and kept it ever since), all of which he produced from the breast pocket on the left side of his coat, simply piled up the total of his responsibility, and so they plainly told him.

Each blow as it fell produced a visible effect on its recipient, and it did not speak well for the kindness of Mr. Parsons that each bad point in the case, each harsh letter from the solicitor for the plaintiff rejecting terms offered in settlement was communicated to him just as the boat started on its day's row.

"Six's rowlock is strained badly," said Bill Asplen to the president one evening.

"It's those beastly solicitors," said Six, in explanation.

The president nodded.

"You think you're slogging at their heads. You sprung an oar the day before yesterday; don't worry, old chap, for goodness' sake; it's a serious matter, but Parsons and his pal will pull you through."

Just before the day of the race the case was set down for trial.

"O, it's terrible to think of my little Dollie treating me like this!" groaned Six on the eventful morning, as they got ready to walk to the river.

Mr. Parsons was jumping out of a cab and running up the gravel path with horror on his face.

"I say!" he called to the president, who was trying to keep up Six's spirits in his usual kind-hearted way, "what is the earliest moment the tide will serve?"

"Eleven-forty; the time we start at," grunted the president.

"Don't let it be a moment later," cried Mr. Parsons. "Jumbo's case will be called on at 12:30, and if he's not there to give evidence I won't be responsible. You must all row like blazes. There's a train he can catch if you row record-time; if you don't he'll have to drive, and may be late."

It was a grand race and the best crew won; and as the one blue flag was hoisted above the other, Six in the Cambridge boat was seen plunging through the crowd on the shore.

A small boy pursued him and caught him by the arm; he had seen him before and he was an active lad. The note he delivered ran thus:

"Case dismissed with costs, plaintiff not appearing." Then followed the signature of Mr. Parsons' friend, the solicitor.

"How d'ye do, Mr——? How splendidly you rowed!" said a lady's voice. But Six was turning his back on her and trying to walk away.

"How well you are looking. I think you are thinner," said the same young lady. She had a very big light blue hat and eyes to match.

"When are you coming to see us again?" she called out, as he turned involuntarily, trying to struggle through the crowd away from her. The crowd was very thick and Jumbo was very big. He got quite red in his struggles, but they pressed round to stare at one of the heroes of the day.

"You have not been to see us for an age," said the same young lady, as he was brought close to the wheels of her carriage. "Why did you not answer my last note?"

"Miss Derrick," he stammered, "I—I—I—"

"Well," she said, "how hot you look. Come and sit by me and wait till the crowd disperses."

Their explanations are too long to print here.

Neither the rest of the crew nor Mr. Parsons were asked to the wedding, which they thought hard, as they sent very handsome presents; and, by the way, the weight of the Cambridge Six in that race was recorded in the sporting papers (which all praised him highly) as twelve stone eight pounds.—St. James' Gazette.

We Are Showing

Eighteen Different Patterns in Dinner Ware, the Haviland [French], Broomfield's, Allcock's, Meakin's, Ridgeways, and Johnson, [English].

Our Haviland We Buy Direct on import order from Limoges, France, in lots of eight sets, and many of our English Patterns we import direct from Potteries, thus saving jobber's profits.

Our Toilet Sets We import direct or Purchase direct from Potteries as cheap as any Jobber can buy them. We advise the use of American Toilet Ware, for this reason; should you ever break any article in your set, we can replace it for you within a fortnight. In Foreign Toilet Ware should you break an article, it takes an unlimited time and it is doubtful if you ever can replace and keep your set whole. We think every housekeeper will appreciate the force of this argument. We have both American and English wares for sale.

Stories of a Glass Eye and a Mechanical Hand.

Perhaps the talk began with the Sunday papers. Because at breakfast on Sundays the girls of the family were apt to divide the big sheets up and sit reading out scraps to each other, while their coffee grew cold in the cups. It was a bad habit. It made breakfast drag on to an interminable length, causing the maid below stairs to be behind with her work all day and the maidens above stairs to be late to church.

Well, the girls were reading out bits to each other. Mame had just contributed a thrilling one about the last footpad, who choked a woman and ran down the alley with her purse and her rings.

"I wouldn't mind anyone snatching my purse," said Imogene, "because I carry most of my money tucked inside my dress waist, and—"

"And make an embarrassing spectacle of yourself when you have to get it out in a hurry," interrupted Mame, very rudely. Mame had been shopping with Imogene for the trousseau. She said she nearly blushed herself to death. And she said that clerks who couldn't control their risibles ought not to be allowed to wait on ladies.

"Queer things happen in town," murmured Cousin Jane, who was only staying with them over Sunday. "Did I ever tell you of my adventure in the carette? No? Well, that was the queerest thing. My husband and his youngest brother, Fred, and I were going up to Lincoln park in it. They were talking to each other about stocks, and futures, and things, and I wasn't paying much attention to them or anything else when suddenly a man at the other end of the carette began smiling and winking at me in a disgustingly elaborate fashion. Girls, I declare I did not know the man was there. I may have been staring at him absently, but I had done nothing intentionally to attract his attention. He was just the kind of man who might insult a woman alone. Big fellow with a big braided coat, big red tie, tremendous black mustache—the kind of mustache you can see behind a man's back—and a bold, vacant-looking black eye. But I wasn't alone. The carette was full of people and there were those two strapping fellows of my own close at hand. Well, of course I looked away and made as if I hadn't noticed anything. By and by I stole a look at him. I declare, he was doing the same thing! One eye shut, the other open and fixed on me, his mouth, under a horrid dyed mustache, parted in a silly smile. I turned sharply away and looked out of the window for a long, long time. A lot of people got out at Bellevue place and more at Division street. I thought maybe my unwelcome admirer had gone by this time, and I just glanced over at the corner near the horses long enough to catch his impudent stare. I know I blushed scarlet. I hoped Jim and Fred wouldn't see, they are both so quick tempered. Other people began to notice. Several of them glanced from me to the man and smiled and nudged each other. It was odd the way he persisted and yet didn't do anything more than stare. I was beginning to wish he would, so I could rebuff him.

"At Schiller street the only other person in the carette got out. It was a lady with the biggest pair of sleeves I've seen yet.

"'Schiller street already,' remarked my husband. 'Hello! What's that in the corner?'

"The lady with the sleeves caught my eye as she passed and began to laugh most unkindly, I thought. 'Hush, dear,' I said; 'he has been staring at me in that ridiculous way ever since he started.'

"'He has, has he? I'll punch his head,' growled Jim. The man never moved a muscle. Well, I began to laugh. I think I was getting hysterical. And Jim laughed too, rather unwillingly. And Fred joined in. You know Fred will laugh at anything. The conductor on the doorstep seemed to think something was awfully funny and the driver tried to find out the joke through the window. Would you believe it, the man never stirred. We drew up at North avenue with the awful lurch the carette gives when it stops. 'All out! Far as we go!' called the conductor.

"And then, girls—and then—the man in the corner woke up and opened both his eyes! He had just been dozing, with his mouth half open, and he had a glass eye, and when he shut his eyes the lid caught somehow on the false one and stayed up. My dear, we just roared. We couldn't help it. The driver and conductor shouted and yelled. And the poor man was so shame-faced and so angry. I think he would have liked to punch everyone's head."

"Did you ever!" "How perfectly absurd!" and so on.

Presently from Imogene: "What kind of sleeves did she have, Jane—velvet?"

"No, corded silk."

"I ask because I've just had new sleeves put in my black satin dinner gown—the loveliest things, changeable velvet, apple, green and pink. They make me look about three feet across the shoulders. Wix put them in for me, and, do you know, those wretched sleeves cost me twenty-five dollars. Oh, I couldn't dispute his bill. Three and a half yards of velvet at five dollars a yard, and making, and lining and a bit of ermine at the wrists. But I call it sinful—twenty-five dollars for a pair of sleeves!"

"About what a whole gown costs me," said Adele.

"But you make your own, you clever creature. And so shall I when I am married."

"Not while Frank Danton can afford to buy you such diamonds as your engagement ring."

"Isn't it a beauty! Frank likes it, too. He kisses it every time he sees it."

"The diamond or the fingers? You have the prettiest hands I ever saw, Imogene."

"They do look nice, don't they?" said that young woman, conceitedly contemplating ten pink-and-white fingers. "I always have them manicured Saturday afternoons. The very prettiest hand I ever saw was a man's we met last summer at Geneva Lake, Jane's story reminded me of him. The Townsends brought him down for one of the hops at the hotel. He was real nice looking, talked well, and, we were told, danced well. So you may imagine how welcome he was. Men, particularly dancing men, are so scarce in summer hotels. Why, you met him, too, Mame."

"Yes, I met him, and that was about all." Imogene was very busy driving Frank Danton wild with jealousy just then, so she took possession of the newcomer, and no one else had a chance."

"Story-teller!" cried Imogene, making a ball of her paper and flinging it at Mame. "No such thing, Cousin Jane. And, besides, I was well punished for it. And Mame, you ingrate, didn't I give you the first dance with him?"

"Yes, to feel the way and report to you about his hand. Let me tell you, Cousin Jane—"

"No, let me. You see, old Mrs. Townsend presented him to me with such a flourish of wanting me to be cordial that I shook hands with him, which I seldom do on an introduction. He pulled his right-hand glove off to do it—I hate a man who wears gloves in summer, don't you?—and he had the most beautifully-shaped hand I ever saw, as white and soft as my own. He didn't take off the other glove. By and by, when he went into the dining-room, he still had it on, and our table was too far from the Townsends for one to see whether he took it off to eat or not. Well, afterward I dressed for the hop rather early. As I came downstairs I heard the notes of a piano. 'Who's that playing?' I asked little Bella Atkins. That odious child was always hanging about the parlors watching everything that went on and always repeating it to the last one she ought. Why, once she told Frank that I—well, I'll tell you about that some other time. So she said that it was the new man that sat at the Townsends' table. No one was playing when I entered the room. There were several people there. The new man was nearest to the piano, but it seemed to me very strange that he should play it with one hand gloved. However, it would be still queerer if he should play it with one hand artificial."

"I have known of such things. Did you ever see Courtenay Thorpe in 'A Pantomime Rehearsal?'

"Yes; but you don't tell me that he—why, how queer! Well, anyhow, this man asked me if he might not take a little turn on the plazza with me. Frank was there, looking black as a thundercloud, so, of course, I said yes. Well, we walked to and fro, and fro and to. He gave me one arm, of course, and with the other he kept putting aside the vine branches that grow so thick and get in your way. The moonlight came through them, and he talked beautifully, and several times I saw Frank's head at the door looking after me. I was having a lovely time."

"Here's where I come on the scene, Cousin Jane," put in Mame. "Dancing was beginning, and I thought it was time this was stopped. They looked as if they were having a lovely time, and I was rather relieved to hear Imogene say: 'Not the first; I have promised that to Mr. Dalton. But I shall be pleased to introduce you to my sister, and, if I do say it, she is the best dancer in the place.'"

"You see," put in Imogene, "I was uneasy about that hand."

"It was lucky he had no time to reply. I was right there, you know, and she introduced him and he just had to ask me to dance. Cousin Jane, his worst enemies couldn't criticise his dancing.

"He was an inspiration. When we get to Heaven I hope the angels will dance like that—"

"Oh, Mame! Sunday, too."

"Well, I don't care—but, oh, Cousin Jane! His hand! his hand! the one that went round your waist, was all right. But the one that held yours—I could have screamed when I touched it—stiff and cold! Wood, you know, just as we thought, or composition, or whatever they make them of. And he had some fiendish way of working it with a spring. Click! it went, and shut up on you like a trap. Oh, it was awful! I was frightened to death, but I couldn't pull mine out till he chose to open the horrid thing. I didn't like to say anything, so we danced and danced till the music stopped. Then he worked his mechanism to let go of me, and complimented me on my step and asked for another dance. I said I was engaged for all but the nineteenth. So then he went for Imogene. I made up my mind not to warn her."

"But I had been watching them, Cousin Jane, and I guessed something from Mame's face. I said to myself, that is an artificial hand. He can't feel whether he is holding anything or not. So I just put mine down on the back of his, talking all the while. And, you know, he never looked. He just clicked his trap and went sailing about the room with me perfectly satisfied. He was a splendid dancer, but I must say I liked better being with Frank. He can't keep step with anyone, but he does hold your hand nicely."

"You have given him plenty of practice, dear."

"Girls, are any of you ready for church?" some one shouted from the next room. "Here's Dalton come to take Imogene. The chimes are ringing."

"Oh! mercy me—yes, Frank, I—I'm all ready. I have only to change my dress and my shoes and put my things on"—and Imogene's voice died away in the distance.—Chicago Times.

S. P. HOSMER.

Rufus Raymond, of Mason, who was called here last week with his wife, to attend Wm. H. Mather's funeral, returned home yesterday. His wife will prolong her stay for several days yet.

Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Cosier will entertain the three C class of the B. Y. P. U., at their home, Friday evening, Dec. 29th. A brief literary program will be rendered and a good social time enjoyed. All friends of the work are invited.

We hope to see a good response to the call for help for the Northern sufferers. The full proceedings of the relief meeting, held Tuesday evening, will be found elsewhere. Donations of money, provisions and clothing will all be acceptable.

John Usborne, an old resident of this place, died Wednesday morning, aged 78 years. About a week ago he was stricken by apoplexy, from which he never recovered. The funeral will be held at the residence, at 2 o'clock, Friday afternoon.

Marshall Stevens put five festive bums in the cooler, Saturday night. They had been around for two days demanding money and making themselves generally disagreeable. Justice Frazier looked them over and concluded that thirty days apiece would be appropriate. The town has been overrun lately with tramps, the marshall having given lodging to twenty-six this month.

A Happy New Year to all.

Scharwenka Concert, Jan. 2d.

Miss Franc Snell spent Sunday in Toledo.

Burt Tribou, of Detroit, was home to eat Christmas turkey.

Lon Haight was at home to enjoy his Christmas with his old friends.

Arthur Burnett is home from Albion College, for the holiday vacation.

Our sleighing went glimmering during the two days rain of last week.

Remember the date of the Scharwenka piano recital—next Tuesday Jan. 2d.

Ernest Albaugh, of Homer, was at home to partake of Christmas turkey.

A grand New Years' ball will be given at Onsted on Monday evening next, Jan. 1st.

Miss Loana Davidson, of Traverse City, is spending the holiday vacation at her home.

Chas. Blood and Michael Smeltzer are each trying to outdo the other in a tussle with the grip.

Births and rumors of births have been quite numerous during the past week, especially the latter.

The opera house ought to contain a good audience to hear the Scharwenka concert next Tuesday evening.

Fred Shepard was the recipient of a very welcome Christmas gift—an eight pound daughter, that arrived Monday night.

There was a big crowd in town last Saturday. People came in through the mud from all points of the compass, and trade was booming until late at night.

C. M. Burlingame and wife, of Coldwater, spent Christmas with L. L. Bates and family. Charley went back Tuesday morning but his wife will prolong her visit a few days.

The Womans' Christian Temperance Union will meet at the home of Mrs. Dr. Hamilton, on Friday, Dec. 29th, at 2:30 p. m., and on every Friday at the same hour during January at the same place.

A grand New Year's ball be given at Britton on Monday evening next Jan. 1st. The Columbian orchestra of Tecumseh will furnish the music, and the managers expect that it will be the social event of the season.

Our old friend, L. F. Wheeler, has caught the Southern fever, has shaken the mud of Chicago from his feet and set out, with bag and baggage, wife and babies, for San Antonio, Texas. We hope he may strike it rich down there.

Mrs. Frank Johnson, of Chicago, is passing a week or so with Mrs. Abbie Fisher. Mr. Johnson came on Christmas day and stopped off one train but was compelled to leave at once. His wife will remain a few days longer.

Frank and Martha Rising are taking a two week's rest from their labors at the Lilley House, and are entertaining his sister and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Fryor, of Charlotte, at their new home at No. 9, North Pearl street.

The new twice-a-week Free Press is a hummer. It is the best weekly now printed, within our knowledge, for general news. We can furnish the HERALD clubbed with the new edition of the Free Press, both papers, for only $2.00.

Miss Mary Burridge is home from Ann Arbor to spend the holiday vacation. She is a member of the Sophomore class, literary department. She is much pleased with her college experience thus far and will doubtless take a full course.

Our prospectus for the new year, which usually appears early in December has been delayed this month as we have been negotiating for some extra attractive offers for 1894. It appears this week and we commend it to the careful consideration of every subscriber.

The Columbian Orchestra, recently organized here contains seven players, all of whom are good musicians. They will furnish either string or brass music for all occasions, and especially dances. D. D. Hubbard is the leader and manager to whom all business communications should be addressed.

W. H. Southworth, who is now living at Jackson, was at home to spend Christmas. He has had the management, during the past season, of twenty acres of celery, owned by the W. F. C. Land and Garden Co. Their celery farm is located within the city limits. They had a fine crop, all of which was shipped in car load lots direct to New York city.

With the coming of the great pianist, composer, and conductor, Herr Scharwenka, a few words pertinent to the art of music may not be out of place; It would hardly seem necessary to urge amateurs, and pupils of all departments of music to be present at this recital. Every parent will agree upon one point, an education is a good thing to give their children. Music is being recognized more and more as a refining element. As Herbert Spencer has put it: "In its bearing upon human happiness we believe that the emotional language which musical culture develops and refines is only second in importance to the intellect; perhaps not even second to it." Americans are turning their attention to the fine arts. It would seem as if our townspeople were up to the times in appreciation of the best to be had. Tecumseh is small; the would be musicians are in the minority. Is it too much to ask the majority to help them in their attempt to bring such great artists to the place?

Scharwenka Concert, Jan. 2d.

J. H. Aten was an Adrian visitor last Sunday.

James D. Walker, of Brooklyn, was in town yesterday.

John R. Hisley was in Manchester Wednesday, on business.

Joe Everett left for Dayton, Ohio, last Saturday to make a few days visit.

Carrie Smallidge went to Detroit to spend holiday week with friends there.

Mrs. H. S. Cheever, of Ann Arbor, is in town to assist in the care of her mother, Mrs. Tilton.

Wm. H. Waring, of Streator, Ill., is spending holiday week with his Tecumseh relatives and friends.

Miss Loana Stacy returned yesterday from a ten day's visit with friends at Battle Creek and Charlotte.

School Commissioner, C. F. Field, is attending the State Teachers' Convention held this week at Lansing.

Mrs. A. M. Wheeler, who has been spending the summer with her son Laverne at Chicago, has returned home for the winter.

The Ladies' Reading Circle will meet at the home of Mrs. E. B. Wood, Friday afternoon, Jan. 5th. All members are requested to be present.

Capt. Hayden has completed a lease for the New Armory with the State authorities and Co. C. will take formal possession of their new quarters on New Year's day.

Christmas was very generally observed here, most of the stores being closed the entire day. Many family reunions were held in town and the festal day seemed to be enjoyed by all.

Mrs. Electa Burroughs and her children wish to heartily thank Rev. C. M. Brown, the Presbyterian choir, and all other friends who so kindly assisted and comforted them in their recent great bereavement.

Lowell Waring and Miss Jennie McCoy were married Wednesday morning, by Rev. J. P. Varner at the bride's home. After dinner they went to their own home which was already furnished and waiting for them. They have many friends who expect them to do well.

The store of Anderson & Co., was closed at 5:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The firm had an excellent reason however for this unusual "lock out" —to give all the employees a chance to attend the Ellis–Beamish wedding, both of the contracting parties being employees of the firm.

The regular annual meeting of the first Universalist parish of Tecumseh will be held at the church on Saturday January 6th, 1894, at three o'clock p. m. A Board of Trustees will be elected and such other business transacted as may come before the meeting. A full attendance is urgently requested.

The annual congregation meeting of the Presbyterian church will be held Monday, New Years, afternoon at three o'clock, at which time there will be roll call and reports from all the different organizations of the church. Also a banquet to members. All members of the congregation are earnestly requested to be present.

At the home of Mrs. Margaret Beamish, Mr. B. C. Ellis and Miss Margaret E. Beamish were married Wednesday evening, by Rev. J. P. Varner. There was a large company of friends present, and the couple received many valuable presents. Mr. and Mrs. Ellis left on the night train and will be absent for a few weeks. They have the best wishes of a host of friends.

Scove Walker had a sad Christmas this year. A telegram received Saturday announced the death of his sister, Mrs. Dr. Hyndman, of Tompkins, Jackson Co., and he left that night to attend the funeral on Monday forenoon. The deceased was a teacher in our schools several years ago and had many acquaintances here who will sincerely mourn her untimely death.

Beers' Post and the W. R. C. will have a joint installation of officers, Monday evening, Jan. 1st. Officers elect of Beers' Post, whose wives are not members of W. R. C. are requested to invite them to attend the installation. The members of W. R. C. are requested to be at Corps rooms at 7 o'clock sharp, as the meeting will commence at that hour, on account of press of business.

The annual election of Tecumseh Lodge, No. 69, F. and A. M. occurred Friday evening at which the following officers were chosen for the ensuing year:

Worshipful Master—B. J. Garlinghouse.
Senior Warden—J. A. Boyd.
Junior " F. J. Temple.
Senior Deacon—Sam. R. McClure.
Junior " —Jared VanVleet.
Stewards—J. H. Aten, Gurdon Garlinghouse.
Tyler—Wm. Jordan.

A project to erect a Masonic Temple here has, after considerable talk, assumed definite shape. Alf James is to build the foundation and first story on the corner now occupied by Darling and Keller and the Masons will build the two upper stories. Three thousand dollars are needed in addition to funds now on hand to complete the work. John Hicks set out last Saturday armed with a lot of subscription papers and yesterday afternoon he had $1362.50 pledged, nearly one half the required amount. Mr. Hicks never undertook any scheme yet that resulted in a failure, and we would bet our bottom dollar that he will make this new project "go." Success seems already assured.

XAVER SCHARWENKA.

The following interview with the great composer and musician appeared in the Cincinnati Gazette of Dec. 24th. We fancy it will be of decided interest to our readers just at this time, as he will appear here in a piano recital next Tuesday evening:

The mysterious halo or offish air, which is generally found clinging to stars in the professions, arts and sciences, does not intimidate the casual person introduced to Xaver Scharwenka, the composer-pianist, who is now comfortably quartered at the St. Nicholas. He arrived yesterday morning, having travelled from Topeka, Kas., to spend the Christmas holidays in the Queen City, and at the same time to superintend the final preparations for the principal parts of his opera, Matasswintha, by the German Orpheus, at Music Hall, next Thursday evening.

It was quite apparent that Mr. Scharwenka was making a sort of vacation of his present concert tour, as he was in a very friendly mood, and ready to talk on most any subject but himself and music. He likes to hunt and fish, but like all his contemporaries and predecessors in the art, he has a tender place for his best work, which is his opera. He told several stories of how American publishers had robbed him of a $100,000, when urged to do do so by Mr. Guckenberger. He has composed forty-two polish dances. Opus 3, No. 1, was written when he was eighteen years old. This is the most famous of them all, and it is estimated that at least two million copies of it have been sold in this country in the last twenty-five years, from which he has derived no revenue. There was no international copyright to prevent it, and the publishers, the first being the Schirmers, of New York, simply printed and sold it without limit. Mr. Scharwenka does not seem to worry about it, but it must make him decry fortune now and then, when he remembers that he only received twenty marks—five dollars—for the manuscript, and thought himself very lucky at the time.

The Cincinnati Orchestra serenaded the musical magnate. Mr. Scharwenka came down to the stoop in acknowledgment of the compliment. He thanked his serenaders in German, as his English is indifferent, taking opportunity to say that Cincinnati has a reputation all over the world as a fostering musical center. He then became the host of the orchestra and several others who were calling on him when the serenade commenced.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss

At a session of the Probate court for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office, in the City of Adrian, on Saturday, the 2d, day of December, in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three.

Present Richard B. Robbins, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Lewis V. Miller deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Benjamin F. Delcur, administrator upon the estate of said deceased, alleging that the funeral expenses and debts of said deceased and the expenses of Administration thus far incurred, have been fully paid, and that he is now ready to close said estate and to render his final administration account, and praying that said account may be allowed, and that the residue of said estate may be assigned and distributed to the parties entitled and that he may be discharged and his bond canceled, and for such other order and decree as to this Court shall seem proper.

It is Ordered, That Tuesday, the 2d day of January next, at 9 o'clock in the forenoon be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered that said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

JUDGE LONG'S PENSION.

A Vigorous Fight Being Made Against Suspension.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—The first attempt to get a judicial determination of the legal right of the commissioner of pensions to suspend a pensioner from the rolls came up Friday before Justice Bradley, of the supreme court of the District of Columbia. It is brought in the form of an application by Charles D. Long, a justice of the supreme court of Michigan, for a mandamus to compel Commission Lochren to restore him to his full rating at $72 per month. Justice Bradley issued an order on the commissioner to show cause why the mandamus should not issue and, the writ being returnable Friday, the matter was argued by counsel.

Commissioner Lochren and ex-Commissioner Tanner were present, and the legal array included Mr. E. B. Whitney, assistant attorney general, representing the government, and Mr. Thomas S. Hopkins, of Washington, and Mr. F. A. Baker, of Detroit, representing Judge Long.

Mr. Hopkins opened for the petitioner. He spoke of the legal aspects of the case and then vigorously attacked the pension policy of Commissioner Lochren and President Cleveland, declaring that the first administration of President Cleveland was narrow, illiberal and parsimonious to the soldier.

Commissioner Lochren, in defending his action, said that he had suspended pensions only in cases where they were plainly illegal. He referred to the Norfolk case, where the claims were based on fraudulent testimony. As he had the power of suspension his oath of office required him to exercise it when necessary in his judgment. In every case, he concluded, he had given the benefit of the doubt to the soldier. The hearing will be concluded this morning, when Attorney Fred A. Baker, of Detroit, Mich., will make the closing argument for Judge Long.

ASSIGNED.

A Philadelphia Firm Charges Its Troubles to Tariff Legislation.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 22.—The firm of Schwartz & Graff, composed of Charles W. Schwartz and Albert Graff, wholesale dealers in carpets, mattings and oilcloths, this city, have made an assignment. The disaster is ascribed by members of the firm solely to the dullness of trade produced by threatened tariff legislation, as in the spring season of 1893 a very profitable and extensive business was done, which would doubtless have continued but for the causes mentioned. The assets are about $330,000 and the liabilities about $275,000. Total sales of the firm for the spring season were about $750,000, whereas those for the fall declined to $369,000.

STEVENS HITS BACK.

The Hawaiian Ex-Minister on the President's Message.

He Says Mr. Cleveland's Action Was a Usurpation of Power—The Veracity of the President, Gresham and Blount Questioned.

MAKES REPLY.

AUGUSTA, Me., Dec. 21.—Ex-Minister Stevens makes the following reply to President Cleveland's message and his criticisms of Mr. Stevens' official conduct:

"Only once in our political history has a majority of the congress of the United states solemnly resolved in favor of impeaching the occupant of the executive chair. Probably it was well that the effort to remove Andrew Johnson from his office was arrested just on the brink of success. The great reluctance of the conservative men of the country to remove the chief executive for abuse of power seems to have encouraged President Cleveland to resort to the extraordinary measure of overturning the provisional government of Hawaii, while as much as possible concealing his arbitrary design from the American congress and the American people.

Hostile to Liberty.

"Look at the historical facts dispassionately and no one will deny that the lines of usurpation and injustice on which President Cleveland and the secretary of state have acted since the 7th of March last, coupled with the ex parte star chamber course of Commissioner Blount relative to the accepted testimony of Liliuokalani's fallen and corrupt ministers, are more sweeping and more hostile to Anglo-Saxon liberty than the acts of George III. and the Lord North ministry, which drove the American colonies to successful revolt.

Injustice and Tyranny.

"There is nothing in American history more shameful in its scope of injustice and tyranny than the attempt of President Cleveland and Secretary Gresham to crush out liberty and American interests in Hawaii by the threat to restore the extinct Hawaiian monarchy by force of arms or by diplomatic chicanery and pressure, more infamous, if possible, than the use of ball and bayonet. President Cleveland's recent special message in which he so severely criticises the course of the recent American minister at Honolulu is but a feeble repetition of the statement of Secretary Gresham previously published. In my answer to Blount's report, extensively published in the United States, I showed conclusively, as Minister Thurston and other thoroughly responsible witnesses have shown, that the allegations in that report against the official conduct of Capt. Wiltse and myself are grossly untrue, are in manifest antagonism to all the reasonable probabilities and logic of the situation in Honolulu in January last. President Cleveland's grossly untrue and shamefully unjust allegation against myself and the naval commander rests entirely on the statements of the four notoriously corrupt ministers of the fallen queen, of Wilson, queen's favorite and other thoroughly discredited testimony.

Only Did His Duty.

"I repeat here what has been amply verified again and again that neither by force nor by threat of force, nor by any action of mine was the fall of the monarchy precipitated. From the hour on which I entered upon my duties at the head of the United States legation to the termination of my official responsibility, I maintained the determination to call on the naval commander for aid only in the event that American life and property was in danger. If President Cleveland sees fit to make a point against my official conduct, that months before the events of last January I had advocated annexation, he deliberately and purposely conceals that what I said in my dispatch in November, 1892, was a confidential statement to the department of state of the true condition of affairs in Hawaii, a report of facts which by the established rules and practice of diplomacy I was in duty bound to make known to my government.

Placing of the Marines.

"As to the landing of the Boston marines, January 16, I only did what had been done on a previous Hawaiian crisis by Commander Woolward, on the request of Minister Merrill, acting under the Cleveland Bayard order August 1, 1889. The following is the language of Minister Merrill's report to the department of state:

"'As many wild alarms were coming to the legation I at once requested Commander Woodward to send to the legation a body of marines, which request he promptly complied with. The appearance of the marines on the street and at the legation had a favorable effect on the populace.'

"At that time the United States legation was near the royal palace at a less distance than the Arion hall of which Cleveland and Blount speak of as so commanding. Of the hall I had never heard until a lodging place was needed for the marines after they had landed. By an accurate map just received from Honolulu it is obvious that this hall does not command the palace. The president's statement that the three points at which our small naval force was placed was not favorably chosen for the protection of American life and property is radically an error, as all know who are familiar with the map and buildings of Honolulu.

Animus of the President's Action.

"That the Hawaiian monarchy was over thrown by United States force was and is put forth for the sole purpose of bringing discredit on the preceding administration at Washington and on the action of the foreign relations committee of the United States senate in favor of annexation. It remains to be seen if the American congress and American people will approve the conspiracy to make war on the provisional government at Hawaii and use the military force of the United States or the diplomatic pressure of the United States for the restoration of a semi-barbarous queen in wanton defiance of the best American opinions and antecedents and by an excessive use of executive power against an American colony more positive and less excusable than that which George III. and his ministers sought to impose on the American colonies that formed the government of the United States. JOHN L. STEVENS."

Missing Girls.

LYNN, Mass., Dec. 20.—More than sixty girls from 14 to 18 years of age, have disappeared from this city within the last three or four weeks, and it is thought they have been enticed away and hidden in Boston.

The Salt That's All Salt

Is the salt every one should use. The impurities in the other kinds are useless, of course, but dangerous also. The lime, especially, is the cause of much kidney disease.

Diamond Crystal Salt

Is much the purest, and therefore the best salt known. Made from the best brine, by the best process, with the best grain, and sold in the best package—an air-tight and non-absorbent box.

The fact that salt is cheap is no reason why you should not have pure salt. Ask for Diamond Crystal, give it a fair trial. Write us for further particulars.

It May Do As Much for You.

Mr. Fred Miller, of Irving, Ill., writes that he had a severe kidney trouble for many years, with severe pains in his back and also that his bladder was affected. He tried many so called kidney cures, but without any good result. About a year ago he began use of Electric Bitters and found relief at once. Electric Bitters is especially adapted to cure all kidney and liver troubles and often gives almost instant relief. One trial will prove our statement. Price only 50c for large bottle, at John J. Prevention Is Better

Than cure, and those who are subject to rheumatism can prevent attacks by keeping the blood pure and free from the acid which causes the disease. You can rely upon Hood's Sarsaparilla as a remedy for rheumatism and catarrh, also for every form of scrofula, salt rheum, boils and other diseases caused by impure blood. It tones and vitalizes the whole system.

Several of New York's millionaires are thinking of moving West. This ought to give the old town a boom.

I have been bothered with catarrh for about twenty years: I had lost sense of smell entirely, and I had almost lost my hearing. My eyes were getting so dim I had to get some one to thread my needle. Now I have my hearing as well as I ever had, and I can see to thread as fine a needle as ever I did, my sense of smell is partly restored, and it seems to be improving all the time. I think there is nothing like Ely's Cream Balm for catarrh. Mrs. E. E. Grimes, Rendrill, Perry Co., O.

Heart Disease Curable.

The truth of this statement may be doubted by many, but when Dr. Franklin Miles, the eminent Indiana specialist, claims that heart disease is curable and proves it by thousands of testimonials of wonderful cures by his New Heart Cure; it attracts the attention of the millions suffering with short breath palpitation, irregular pulse, wind in stomach, pain in side or shoulder, smothering spells, fainting, Dropsy, etc. A. F. Davis, Silver Creek, Neb., by using four bottles of Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, was completely cured after twelve years suffering from heart disease. This wonderful remedy is sold by Baker & Hall. A VESPER SONNET.

The violet eye is like a waveless stream
Celestial, from the rapt horizon's brink,
Assuaging day with the diviner drink
Of temperate ecstasy and dews and dream.
The wine warm dusks, that brim the valley, gleam
With here and there a lonely casement. Cease
The impetuous purples from the sky of peace,
Like God's mood in tranquility supreme.
The encircling uplands east and west lie clear
In their aerial amber, threaded fine—
Where bushfires knaw the bramble thickets sere—
With furtive scarlet. Through the hush benign
One white throat voices till the stars appear
The benediction of the Thought Divine.
—C. G. D. Roberts.

IN THE ANT CITY.

When I left Maud Davis, my engaged wife, and told her that I would be home again to claim her in less than five years, being young and hopeful I was as positive about being able to do this as I felt about her love and fidelity.

Five years look quite long enough to a young man of 20 to turn himself about in a new country and make a fortune for the girl he loves; quite long enough to ask any girl, no matter how constant she may be by nature, to wait patiently and keep herself select for, while as for wedlock it would just leave us old enough to know our own minds and young enough to begin to enjoy the life before us.

So with these hopes and philosophical reflections I said goodby to pretty and gentle Maud Davis and began my adventures.

Brisbane, Queensland, was the port I set sail for, as it was the newest colony at the time and the most boomed up in the papers, so that I had lots of company to take make the passage cheerful—all fortune hunters and nearly all as hopeful and impecunious as I was myself.

We were not taking much among us to the promised land, but felt a blind confidence that we should get all we required out of it and go home again to enjoy ourselves with the proceeds, which is a very common state of affairs with immigrants to Australia.

Most people know pretty well from books if they have not seen it what Brisbane is like at the present day—as noble and prosperous a city as any one can wish to settle down in. At the time I landed it had the site and makings of the fine city it has become since, with its magnificent winding river and numerous hills, but it had a good deal of building to be done about it and a great amount of capital to be sunk in it before it could be boasted about as a city, while the worst of it was that most of the inhabitants had rushed to it in the same condition that myself and shipmates were in, the natural results of which were that while the laborers were many the masters to employ them were exceedingly limited, in consequence of which I saw more tatterdemalions hanging about the streets hard up and idle on my first day's march than I had seen before in my life.

For a full week I rushed about the different workshops and yards with a crowd of applicants seeking vainly for a days' work. I was modest at the time, and there were more desperate hunters before me, so I found myself ousted on each occasion and at last gave up the attempt of staying in the coming city. So picking up what few articles I considered strictly needful I sold the remainder of my stock at a sacrifice and went on the tramp.

I laid in a pickax and spade, with a good steel hammer and a double barreled gun, and struck toward the north, resolved to exist the best way I could in the bush while I tried my hand at gold digging. I had no experience at the business, but was ready to take advantage of anything that turned up, which is the proper way to tackle the colonies.

For the first year I wandered about by myself, living pretty much like a wild man of the woods, until I was as brown in the face as an Indian and as hard as a backwoodsman, while my clothes were as bepatched as Joseph's coat. I did not discover any gold, but I gained a great deal of experience and bush knowledge which served me afterward.

At the end of the first year I took a situation on a back station as stockman, and here I put in another year, getting fair wages and writing home hopetul letters to Maud, who replied to them affectionately, assuring me of her faith and fidelity, which were great comforts to me in my lonely and hard life.

Then I struck out again gold seeking, this time with three experienced mates, who put me up to many dodges connected with the soil and earth signs, and with whom I wandered far inland prospecting, with indifferent luck. Still we managed to jog along and indulge in an occasional visit to the different townships, where we disposed of our tiny nuggets and laid in provisions for another spell of the bush.

The five years slipped away in this way, and at the end of them I was in about the same condition of worldly position as before. We had not struck upon the lucky claim, although we had often seemed close enough to it to have a week or so of excitement and to keep me hopeful in my home love letters.

But Maud Davis had grown tired of hope so distant and in one of her letters, the last that I received from her, she told me that she had become wearied of wasting her time any longer and was about to be married to the village baker, so that I need not bother writing any more, unless I cared to return her letters.

That kind of settled me so far as any hankering after the old country was concerned, so after reading all her letters over again and I am ashamed to confess wetting a few of them with some womanish tears, I packed them up, and getting the few small nuggets I had left made into a brooch I sent them home to her, with the brooch as a wedding present, and then I turned my back on my chums and civilization and made for the never, never land by myself.

For the next 10 years I had varying fortune. Sometimes I picked up a few nuggets and stored them until I could reach civilization, when I sold them, and banking the money, went off again in search for more, seeking no man or woman's company, yet carrying with me the memory of what might have been if fortune had only smiled upon me.

At the end of my 15 years' sojourn in Australia I had a sum of £600 in the bank and was looking forward to purchasing a section and settling down as a farmer after another year of wandering.

At this time I was making a bigger journey than I had attempted before and found myself hundreds of miles from civilization, in the very heart of a hot and arid district of upper Queensland.

I was 35 now, but looked with my sunbaked face and grizzled beard fully 10 years older and had been tramping half starved and thirsty over a desert without a sign of water or life of any kind for the last two days, when I came about sundown to one of those strange ant cities which are sometimes found in the dry portions of this country.

For miles in front of me stretched long streets and countless huts, reaching from 4 feet to 8 in height, all deserted and silent—clay huts looking in the distance like dry cornstacks and close at hand like human habitations. A weird effect they had upon me, tired out and exhausted as I was from want of food. Fortunately I had a plentiful supply of tobacco, and with my flint and steel I comforted myself with a prolonged smoke before I lay down to sleep under the shelter of one of these huts. There, with the moon rising over the horizon and casting long shadows about me from these cone buildings, I gradually lost consciousness and had the dream which altered all my plans of life.

I dreamed that I saw five men struggling along the moonlit street in which I lay, each with a heavy load on his back—diggers they appeared to be, bringing on their finds. They came on until they reached the mound against which I leaned, into which one of them began to dig, while the others, pitching the bundles down beside the digger, formed themselves into a guard, with their rifles out and facing the north. I soon discovered why they were guarding the digger, for looking past them I saw a large tribe of aborigines dodging among the other huts and preparing to attack the white men, who stood there in a close ring until their mate had hidden the gold they had brought.

A few vigorous digs with the pickax and spade and a portion of the clay hut was laid bare, while the five heavy bags were hastily crammed inside and the outer clay replaced, as the rifles played on the ferocious but timid natives, who seemed afraid to advance, after which the white men began to retreat into the open plain, leaving their swags behind them, while the savages glided past me with their spears in their hands.

I saw the fight begin and end in the open and saw my five countrymen fall, pierced with the shafts, while I still lay unable to move and help them. What happened afterward was too horrible to relate in detail, but can be conjectured by any anthropologist who knows the revolting customs of those ferocious and untamable cannibals of northern Queensland. It is sufficient to tell you that even the bones were utilized, after which the demons returned the way they had come, to the north, taking with them the five swags, but paying no heed to the ant hill which held the treasure.

The morning sun was warming the country when I awoke, and with my dream still vivid in my mind I began with an eager heart to demolish my shelter of the night, and there, as I had seen them laid, I discovered the five bags laden with gold dust and nuggets, enough to make me a wealthy man at last.

I took what I could carry with me and after reaching the nearest township came back with a couple of horses for the remainder, and then, after 15 years of absence, I returned home to my native village a wealthy man, and of course paid a visit to my old sweetheart, Maud Davis, now the wife of the baker.

Fifteen years make a wonderful difference in young lovers. Maud, always of a slender build, had grown shrewish and skinny, without a single trace left of what I had been carrying so long in my memory with tender regret. I had altered from a slim lad with a comely face into a grizzled and heavy old man. We both looked at each other for a moment, and then I laughed as Maud said:

"Lor, what an ugly man you have grown, Frank! I'm glad I didn't wait for you after all, in spite of your money."

So was I, as I carefully wiped that long kept picture from the slate of my memory.—Hume Nisbet in London Sun.

Jackson's Statue on the Constitution.

In 1833 Commodore Elliott ordered a figure of General Jackson to be carved to take the place of a billet head which the United States frigate Constitution had carried through the war of 1812. It was placed on the bow of the frigate in June, 1834, when she left the dry dock in Charlestown navy yard. The excitement among the political enemies of Jackson in Boston was intense. A meeting was called in Faneuil hall—which, however, did not take place—and anonymous letter writers threatened the life of the commodore unless the statue was removed. On the night of the 2d of July, 1834, in the midst of a terrific thunderstorm, Samuel P. Dewey, a young man of 28, rowed out to the vessel and managed to saw off the head of the statue and carry it away. The head was replaced a month later in New York, and the figure remained there until 1874. It now occupies a place in the grounds of the naval school at Annapolis.—Boston Transcript.

MUST STAND TRIAL.

A Man Who Robbed His Sister-in-Law to Be Brought from Guatemala.

JACKSON, Dec. 18.—The fact that the United States government will apply to the Guatemalan government for the extradition of John Hahn brings his strange case into notice again. Hahn is the brother-in-law of Mrs. Susanna Schwartz, of Natchez, a rich woman. He possessed her complete confidence. Mrs. Schwartz had a strong box on deposit with Britton & Koontz, bankers of Natchez. In this box she kept many valuables in the shape of money, bonds, etc. It always contained more than $100,000 of this kind of wealth. About two years ago she gave Hahn an undated order on the bank for the box. When Mrs. Schwartz visited the world's fair Hahn dated the order and got the box. With the bonds, which he converted into cash, and the cash the box contained Hahn fled. He went to Guatemala, whence he wrote to Frank K. Winchester, a lawyer of Natchez, making a clean breast of the robbery and offering to make good the amount stolen if he was not prosecuted. He is under arrest.

WON AFTER A LONG FIGHT.

Suit of Mrs. Dorgan, of Kalamazoo, to Collect Insurance Money Ends.

KALAMAZOO, Dec. 18.—At the time Thomas Dorgan, a prominent business man here, was drowned, May 1, 1891, he held a $5,000 accident policy in the Manufacturers' Accident Indemnity company, of Geneva, N. Y. The company refused payment on the ground that Mr. Dorgan's death was not caused by drowning, but heart disease; that exposure, prohibited by the policy, had brought on a sudden attack of the disease, which precipitated him into the water, and that his head striking a rock he was stunned and drowned. Mrs. Dorgan brought suit in the circuit court here which was transferred to the United States circuit court at Grand Rapids, where in April, 1892, she secured a judgment for the full amount. Soon afterward the case was taken to the United States court of appeals, argued and submitted, and on Saturday a decision was rendered affirming the judgment of the lower court. The company immediately paid judgment in full.

FIRE DESTROYS A HOTEL.

Lake View House at St. Joseph Reduced to Ashes—Guests Narrowly Escape.

ST. JOSEPH, Dec. 18.—Early Sunday morning the Lake View hotel in this city was completely destroyed by fire, entailing a loss of nearly $30,000. The property was insured for $20,000. The fire started in the furnace-room in the basement and when discovered had gained such headway that a number of the seventy-five guests barely escaped alive, and only a few of them saved their belongings. A Mr. Davis, of St. Paul, electrician at the power house here, fell from the third-story balcony to the ground and sustained internal injuries from which he may die. He directed a stream of water on the fire from the balcony until he became so numb that he fell. The hotel was owned and run by Capt. Thomas Walker & Son.

DETROIT THIEF KILLED.

Police Receive a Gang of Robbers with a Volley of Bullets.

DETROIT, Dec. 17.—Four burglars made an attempt at 5 o'clock Saturday morning to rob Tannenholz' saloon. The police had received a tip on the proposed burglary and gave the thieves a warm reception. Many shots were exchanged and Alexander Burdoin, one of the burglars, was shot dead by the officers. The other three thieves escaped, but George L. Laird, a veterinary surgeon, was arrested later on and identified as one of the robbers. The police say they know the other two and will have them under arrest before night. All of the officers escaped unhurt. Burdoin was 39 years old and had served six terms in Jackson prison.

Death of an Aged Minister.

CLINTON, Dec. 15.—Rev. W. P. Wastell, of this place, died Thursday. He was born in London, England, on August 17, 1804. He came to Michigan in 1843 and located at St. Clair. He was there five years and at Port Huron three years. In 1851 he came to Clinton and was pastor of the Congregational church several years. In 1872 he retired from the pulpit, but has ever since been an able worker in the cause of Christianity.

Shuts Out the Franklin Mine.

HOUGHTON, Dec. 14.—Good authority says that the Quincy Mining company has purchased about three quarter sections of land north of the Franklin and North Quincy property from the St. Mary's Mineral Land company for $560,000. This shuts the Franklin out from acquiring new territory adjoining and is a deal of great importance to the Quincy mine.

Two Burglars Captured.

JACKSON, Dec. 16.—Thursday night a house was broken into and ransacked and a horse stolen from the stable. Officer Wilcox discovered a shanty on the bank of Wolf lake, 10 miles from the city, well filled with plunder. The horse stolen was stabled near by. Two men, Joseph and George Sheets, both of whom have served terms in the state prison, were arrested.

Muskegon Bonds Sold.

MUSKEGON Dec. 16.—An issue of $100,000 park bonds of this city to mature in thirty years, bearing 5 per cent. interest, has been sold to Farson, Leach & Co., Chicago, who bid $7,970 premium and accrued interest to the date of delivery. There were twelve bidders.

Unknown Man Frozen to Death.

JACKSON, Dec. 16.—The body of a German, name unknown, who had been looking for work at Munith for the last week, was found frozen stiff in a barn in that town. A pocketknife with the letters "C. R." engraved on the handle was found on the body.

A large manufacturer, whose affairs were very much embarassed, and who was overworked and broken down with nervous exhaustion, went to a celebrated specialist. He was told that the only thing needed was to be relieved of care and worry, and have a change of thought. This doctor was more considerate of his patient's health than of his financial circumstances. A peculiar suit is before Justice Keyser, today. A father forbade the employer of his son, (a minor) to pay the boy his wages, then turned the lad out of doors. The son, by his best friend, now sues his employer for his wages.

David Haggart's wife surprised him last Saturday evening, and it was complete, too. Mrs. Haggart had invited a number of their friends to come and see how Dave looked at home; so at about 7:30 in the evening, forty-two strong, the company in two sections besieged and captured the house. Mr. Haggart submittee, but in order to take revenge he built up a rousing good fire in a vain attempt to cook them out. Failing in this, hostilities were relaxed, and everyone enjoyed a splendid evening.

STAND BY THE POLICY.

Sublime, Patriotic, and National, of America for the Residents of America.

Do not abandon the system which gives the country the best Opportunities for its Farmers, Mechanics, and Young People, they have ever had! No Interference with the Protective Tariff and no repeal!

TRAMPLE UPON

every proposition for Unlimited Free Coinage of Silver Dollars which are worth only 72 cents on the dollar. Make them worth a full Dollar. The $145,000,000 of National Bank notes withdrawn from circulation since 1881 have been replaced by over $325,000,000 of Silver which has been put out. Now make the people's silver money worth its face, for your own benefit!

RESERVE THE PUBLIC LANDS

for actual settlers and save them from monopolies and speculators! Protect and encourage the actual settler!

NO INTERFERENCE

with the progressive policies of the Republican party (repeatedly enacted into law) of building up a New Navy; Protecting the Sea Coasts; Pensioning Union veterans; excluding the Chinese; Regulating State Commerce; defending the Common Schools; Protecting American Citizens abroad; Securing Reciprocity with other American Nations; demanding Free Expression of the Popular Will in Elections, and an Honest Count! Extending American commerce. Reviving American Shipping; Temperance; and Restraining Trusts.

THE SUPURB MARKET REPORTS of The N. Y. Tribune are now positively the best printed by any newspaper in New York City. The Tribune is the only newspaper in New York, which sends men personally into every market in the city every day of the business week to obtain actual prices and the state of trade. Other papers make up quotations largely from circulars. Commercial travelers say unanimously that The Tribune's Market Reports are the best. The Tribune now beats all rivals in the accuracy and wonderful completeness of its quotations. To be successful a practical and level headed man must keep fully informed as to Prices and the State of Trade.

you agree with The N. Y. Tribune or not, in its sentiments, can you afford not to read its Dollar Weekly, regularly while a reactionary party is in power and during

REMEMBER!

The N. Y. Tribune is the cleanest, purest, and safest of newspapers for your family. Does a weekly newspaper which invades the home with immorality, sensation, and falsehood, receive your sanction? The broad columns and large print of the N. Y. Tribune make it the easiest paper to read.

The Tribune has the largest circulation of any weekly in the United States, issued from the office of a Daily. We have challenged the country for a year, with no takers.

NERVOUS PROSTRATION.

A large manufacturer, whose affairs were very much embarassed, and who was overworked and broken down with nervous exhaustion, went to a celebrated specialist. He was told that the only thing needed was to be relieved of care and worry, and have a change of thought. This doctor was more considerate of his patient's health than of his financial circumstances. He ought to have advised him to use Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine, the best remedy for nervous prostration, sleeplessness, dizziness, headache, ill effects of spirits, tobacco, coffee, opium, etc. Thousands testify to cures. A RARE CHANCE FOR SUBSCRIBERS, OLD AND NEW.

156 PAPERS FOR $2.00

Always desirous of promoting the interests and welfare of our readers, we embrace every opportunity to do them a "good turn."

An arrangement just concluded with the Detroit Free Press makes it possible for us to save some money for every reader who takes advantage of this opportunity.

We undertake to furnish

THE TECUMSEH HERALD
AND
THE TWICE-A-WEEK
DETROIT FREE PRESS
EACH ONE YEAR FOR
$2.00.

In this progressive age every intelligent man and woman desires to keep well informed of current happenings, both at home and abroad. The best and cheapest source of information is the newspaper. No other medium covers the ground so completely and comprehensively.

No one can get along without his home paper. All in this section know the merits of THE HERALD. As a local newspaper it covers the whole field and has no superior. But in order to fully keep pace with the times, something more is needed—a paper with enlarged opportunities and unlimited facilities in respect to general news service. Such a paper is the Twice-a-Week Detroit Free Press, the largest and best semi-weekly paper in America. Thoroughly metropolitan, it gives all the news of the world down to the hour of going to press; the latest and most accurate market report; and an unsurpassed array of choice reading matter and literary miscellany. The Woman's Page and "Merry Times" for the children are especially attractive features.

Published every Tuesday and Friday morning in time to catch the early trains out of Detroit. Each issue comprises eight large pages.

The Twice-a-Week Free Press is the best possible substitute for a daily paper.

It is the ideal Family Journal of Michigan. No household can be complete without it.

Less than 4 cents a week will procure both of these most excellent papers and furnish abundant reading matter for every member of the family. You cannot invest $2.00 to better advantage. In no other way can you get as much for so little money.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss

At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, on Thursday, the 21st day of December in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three.

Present, Richard B. Robbins, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Isaac Pennington, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Mary W. Pennington, widow of said deceased, praying for the probate of an instrument now on file in this Court, purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased, and that administration of said estate may be granted to her, petitioner, and Anna M. Pennington, the executrixes named in said instrument.

It is ordered, That Monday, the 22nd day of January, next, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the City of Adrian, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of said Petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said Petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee for three successive weeks, previous to said day of hearing.

Dr. J. Gore Galleher,

EYE SPECIALIST AND ELECTRIONIST will be at LILLEY HOUSE, Tecumseh, Mich.
Thursday and Friday, Jan. 11 and 12.
TWO DAYS ONLY.
CONSULTATION AND EXAMINATIONS FREE.

If you are interested in the condition of your eyes, call on the noted Dr. Galleher He is an expert in his profession. Eyesight is precious—more valuable than any other of the special senses. The Docter has treated in the last 12 months more than 3,500 cases of all forms of eye trouble and errors of refractions, such as Glaucoma, Ulceration of the Cornea, Granulation of the lids, Presbyopia, Paralysis of Accomodation, Spasm of Accomodation, Hypermetrobia, Aphakia, Myopia, Astigmatism, Anisometropia, Strabismus, Diplopia, Asthenopia, etc. Have you ever stopped to think how many people in this world are blind from their own negligence and carelessness in not giving their eyes attention at the proper time? You now have the opportunity of consulting one who gives all his time in treating cronic eye trouble. Thousands of persons in this world that do not use glasses that should, then again there are thousands of persons using gasses they think suited to their eyes, but the truth of the matter is, the glasses do not correct the trouble, but aggravate it and produce headache, spots before the eyes, inflamation, granulation, winking, trembling spells, various nerve and brain affections, catracts, burning and smarting of the eyes, etc.; entailing not only positive injury to the sight, but untold misery and blindness. Dr. Galleher makes examinations that few in this country can make. He has instruments with which he can examine every muscle and fibre in the inside of the eye. He can tell you in an instant after examining your eyes whether he can benefit you or not, and will truthfully say so. It should be understood that Dr. Galleher is well known throughout the Eastern States as a practical and successful electrionist. He invented some of the finest electrical appliances ever imported to this country. Remember that Dr Galleher does not give one drop of medicine. He is the only man in America who has the exclusive sale of Dr. Edgar Scott's Positive Catarrh Cure. An instrument put up of compressed and medicated gasses, which is Dr. S's. own invention. Dr. Galleher also has appliances which will remove a tape worm in from two to four hours or no charges made Testimonials of the best people in this country at his room at the hotel. Call early and secure convenient hours for free consultation and examination.

Chas. Hines is the happy father of a little boy.

The winter term of school commences next Monday.

Mrs. Wm. Osterhout has returned from Hillsdale and Hanover.

Miss L. M. Thorpe, of Toledo, passed Sunday with W. Lenardson and family.

Chas. Bowerman was shaking hands with friends in town Monday and Tuesday.

Geo. Gripton and wife visited relatives at Toledo last week, returning Monday.

Wm. E. Allen had moved into Jos. Thackery's house, formerly the Christian Parsonage.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Rose of Hanover, are passing the holidays with relatives and friends here.

Wm. Osgood and wife spent Christmas and most of the week with his father's family at Morenci.

Remember that Lenardson Bros.' special sale comes every Saturday. Read their ad. on this page.

Silas Spitler and wife were called to Hillsdale Saturday, by the death of Mr. Spitler's brother's wife.

F. M. Link (now spell this with an L) set the table for 25 suppers for the dancers Monday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Brown and children returned from a holiday visit at Muskegon, Monday morning.

Wm. Rinn has bought H. Bachman's share in the brick stop erected by them in partnership some three years ago.

Mrs. Andrew Covell, of Tecumseh, passed the holidays with F. E. Morrell and family, returning home Monday.

Owing to bad roads and the dark night only 45 numbers were sold for the New Year party given by Larrabee and Lee.

Samuel Kniffin and L. A. Brown left for Bay City Monday morning, to look up some property interests there; we understand.

We are grieved to learn of the death of Mrs. Jno. Bachman, Jr., and we extend to the bereaved husband our greatest sympathy.

The regular monthly supper of the Ladies' Home Missionary Society will be given by Mrs. O. B. Lenardson and committee, on Wednesday evening, Jan. 10th., at the church parlors, between the hours of 5 and 7 p. m. All are cordially invited.

Holloway seems to get abused by those "offe" Britton boys quite "offen." Even when our kid nine, ranging from 5 to 19 years old, defeated Holloway's League, they felt themselves much hurt; and now, because one or two of our boys attended their Christmas dance, they accuse them of following in some of their own citizens' footsteps. For where else but Holloway does his honor, "Satanic Majesty" tread?

While watching the imaginary little fishes and viewing his own stupendous likeness in the dark murky waters of his new brick cistern, one of our highly respected and most prominent citizens became somewhat discomfuddled in his upper addition, and with a croak and a plunge like unto that of the mighty frog, dove to the bottom, only to find that the trout were residents of the spirit world. He was only rescued and respiration restored by the prompt and diligent action of his wife and son.

NORTH-EAST FRANKLIN.

Miss Blanche Green is visiting friends in Franklin.

Miss Elvira Taylor started Tuesday for a visit with relatives in St. Louis.

Mrs. Jas. Learnard, of Napoleon, spent a part of this week at L. E. Taylor's.

Mrs. Mary Hampton and daughter, Gertrude, of Ovid, visited in Franklin last week.

Hollis Taylor who spent the holidays at home returned to his studies, in Albion, Tuesday.

The lyceum at G. W. Allen's was well attended. The next one will be at Frank Marshall's, in four weeks.

RIDGEWAY RAMBLES.

The village school began Tuesday morning.

W. L. Jones put in a fall week plowing, last week.

Mattie Rappleye spent Friday in Dundee, with relatives.

Wagner Palmer and wife visited with friends in Dundee last week.

Daniel Allen spent Sunday in Toledo with his son, Dispatcher Allen.

S. P. Smith and son, Glen, were in Detroit Saturday, on business.

Wm. Barrett returned from his visit at North Harvey Monday afternoon.

Fred Sparks, of Lagrange, Ind., visited at the home of C. F. Smith last week.

Jennie Boyd returned Monday from a week's visit at Albion, with relatives.

Mr. C. A. Scott, of Ann Arbor, spent the Sabbath at the home of Miss Anna Bailey.

Edith Montgomery, of Marshall, spent Sunday with her mother, Mrs. C. L. Lowe.

Montie Florence and Emma Miller spent New Years day with friends in Milan.

DeWitt Wilkerson, of Albion college, spent Thursday at the home of E. W. Rappleye.

Edith Chase, of Tecumseh, spent the past week with her aunt, Mrs. Sarah Pocklington.

Minnie Barrett began her winter term of school in district No. 3, on Tuesday morning.

Anna Bailey spent the holidays at home, returning to her school work at St. Johns Monday.

Miss Hattie Montgomery, of Tecumseh, visited her uncle, T. H. Montgomery, over Sunday.

Mrs. Ed. Palmer left Monday for a week's visit at Dimondale, with her parents, Rev. and Mrs. Hoag.

W. F. Clack and wife, of Clinton, were among those present at the class reunion Wednesday evening.

Prof. H. C. Wilson, of Paw Paw, and E. A. Wilson, of Benton Harbor, spent a part of their vacation at the home of their parents.

Marion Beebe, of Connecticut, who is attending school at Oberlin college, spent the holiday vacation with her cousin, Mrs. Hall, at the villa.

On Thursday afternoon occurred the marriage of Jacob Barrett, of this village to Miss Deborah Billing, of Holloway. Congratulations are in order with the Holiday greetings.

Fred Gorton, of Ypsilanti, Will McCrimmon, of Luther, Robert Hicks, of Tecumseh and Fred Cook, of Big Rapids, spent several days of the holiday week with their best lady friends.

A quartette of the choir went to Rea Tuesday afternoon to sing at the funeral of Mrs. John Bachman. She had been sick for several weeks, when on Sunday morning her spirit took its flight.

The annual election of officers for the Sunday school will be held in the lecture room on Saturday evening, when it is hoped all the officers, teachers and members of the Sunday school board will be present.

Class No. 10 of the Sabbath school held their fourth annual reunion at the church on Wednesday evening of last week. After an hour of social converse a short program was presented, after which refreshments were served. The next annual gathering will be held at the home of Chas Foote.

The citizens of our village were thrown into a state of excitement on Sunday morning when it was learned that during the night an elopement had taken place. The romance was indulged in by T. S. VanDuser and Miss Eva Shepard. When Mrs. Shepard had prepared their breakfast Sunday morning she called Eva, and not receiving an answer, went to her room, when to her astonishment she found that Eva had gone, taking a part of her clothing with her. The exit had been made by going from her room to the storeroom over the store and through the store to the street, by way of the front entrance, when they drove away with VanDuser's single horse and buggy. Persons who were returning from an entertainment given at Grange Hall think they met them north of the village, between ten and eleven o'clock, driving north. Miss Shepard is only a little past seventeen and leaves a very pleasant home and kind and indulgent parents who are nearly prostrated with grief over the sad affair. VanDuser is a man of about forty, and leaves an aged mother who needs the support of a son in her declining years, also a daughter of about ten years of age who should receive a father's care and protection while attaining womanhood.

If People Only Knew

That the Mobile & Ohio Railroad runs through the best section of the South, where lands within a mile of the railroad are $3.00 an acre on long time, and improved farms are only $10 to $15 an acre, and that two farm crops or three vegetable crops are grown every year, each of which will net more dollars per acre than the same crop in the North; that the weather in summer is cooler, and in winter warmer, enabling the farmer to work in the field all the year; where one has better health and gets more pleasure in living, makes a living easier and gets rich faster than he can in the north, there would be such a rush for these cheap homes as no other portion of America has ever seen.

The knowledge is spreading and the boom is coming. Prices will double every year. Now is the time to buy. Half fare excursions will leave St. Louis Dec. 19 and 19, and Jan. 9 and 16. Full information sent by H. E. Posey, Gen. Passenger Agt, Mobile and Ohio R. R., Mobile, Ala.

Hood's Pills cure biliousness.

HOLLOWAY HASH.

New Year's day was very quiet in this city.

Miss Fannie Kelly is again able to be out, after her tussle with the grip.

A. H. Lewis is visiting with friends at Shelbyville during the holidays.

Last Thursday the Holloway Public Hall Association held a meeting and chose L. C. Winship as manager and J. Hartman as janitor for the ensuing year.

The Misses Grace and Ora Gillespie were in our berg last Friday. They were selling tickets for the Scharwenka piano recital, at Tecumseh, last Tuesday.

How Jas. Lang got that black eye we have not learned. Suffice it to say the eye is there just the same. Jim is a strictly moral and temperate man or we might possibly deduce a reason of our own.

Mr. John Richards Jr. will govern the pupils of Holloway district school and try to instill into their minds the tests as laid down by the Board of Education. John knows when to chastise or reward and we predict more knowledge in the youngster's "pates" 'gainst plowing time.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Calhoun were made the victims of a New Year's surprise party and general gathering of relatives. We are informed that about 200 had been invited by the young folks of the Calhoun and Kerr families, who had inveigled Mr. and Mrs. Calhoun away on some pretense or other, and then took possession and run things to suit themselves.

To illustrate the rapidity with which the civilized world is progressing, and Michigan in particular, we would cite the following example which reports an event long before it takes place: Mrs. Henry Gamber has for some time been under the doctor's care, but not dangerously ill. Her people live at Alverton, O., and last Saturday morning a gentleman stepped from the morning train here who said that it was reported at Alverton that Mrs. Gamber was dead, and was greatly surprised when he knocked for admittance to the Gamber home, to see that lady open the door and give him a welcome "come in."

Last week Tuesday Bert Carpenter stole a march on us, and, accompanied by Miss Esther Binns, proceeded to Adrian where he secured a licence and was quietly married, very few being the wiser until they were called up to smoke to the health and future prosperity of the new combination, the next day. The bride has been known in Holloway ever since her birth. She is a prominent worker in the Y. P. S. C. E. and a member of the Osgood Hive L. O. T. M. of this place. The groom is well known here, where he is in partnership with his father in the blacksmithing business. We, with their many friends, wish the happy couple a life long honeymoon.

John Moore, who works in L. C. Winship's saw mill, had a narrow escape last week Wednesday while sawing. The saw had passed through the log, the board dropped down and caught on the carriage. When the carriage was reversed the board followed back till the end was caught by the saw and propelled with considerable force to the rear of the mill where it brought up with a thud against the end of the mill. John was standing within three or four feet of the flying board as it passed him. Had he taken another step he would, in all probability, have been a subject for either the doctor or undertaker. "All's well that ends well" and "A miss is as good as a mile," if it does make your hair stand on end.

LAKE RIDGE LACONICS.

Tom Maynard has a ticker on the C. T. line.

It's nip and tuck with taxes and the poor relief.

There was a family reunion at Frank Aten's, Christmas.

J. G. Bailey is convalescing from a tussle with the grip.

A. Easlick and family ate roast turkey in Milan, Christmas.

Joseph Bailey, of Marshall, spent the Holiday week at the old home.

Mrs. F. W. Yates has been quite indisposed for several weeks.

Mrs. M. Pocklington has recovered from her recent affliction so as to assist with the housework.

The seven or eight mile extension is a sure go. The money is nearly all paid in and the poles are being distributed.

Rob Mills takes to deborning cattle like congressmen to drawing extra pay. He deborned Frank Gilmore's herd last week. Many of them resented eating as soon as released.

The young people, together with the home-coming students and teachers, put in a busy holiday week preparing for the cantata which took place at the town hall Saturday night, to a full house.

Query: In view of there being from three to five million starving poor throughout the land, and the general financial depression, who would be harmed if the government would issue about $300,000 000 full legal tender currency, without bonds or redemption, and apportion the same to the several states, to be apportioned to the ward and township boards, and by them distributed among the poor, as necessity demands? This would remove goods and provisions from the store houses, making a demand for more, thereby starting the wheels of industry. Of course, to make it a grand success, saloons should be closed and the liquor traffic abolished. But who would be harmed? We give it up.

Editor Smith, of the Milan Leader, is shaking his own hand and feeling proud of his historic name because there is not a Smith among the saloon keepers of Washtenaw county.

PERSONAL MENTION.

A Happy New Year to all.

Holiday festivities have been observed very generally in spite of the very hard times.

Thomas Mowbray, wife and son Chas. Mowbray, are all victims of the prevailing malady, the Grippe. Both the gentlemen are quite seriously ill.

There is strong talk of organizing a lodge of the I. O. O. F. at the hall here in the near future. The venture seems to be very favorably considered by a majority of those interested.

Many parties these days, are gaily entertaining guests from abroad, but Miss Minnie Vanderpool claims she will not care to see again that ubiquitous Russian traveler, La Grippe, who has kept her a close prisoner to the house for some time past.

Mrs. Smith German received a Christmas gift of a bouquet of beautiful flowers from a friend in Oakland City, California. Think of gathering lovely pinks, roses, lillies, etc., in the month of Dec. It is enough to make envious the dwellers in this frosty clime.

A farmer in this vicinity found recently a pane of glass had been removed from his granary window, probably with a view to pulling out the bolt, and raising the window, but the window was securely nailed down, so the would-be thief fared somewhat like "Mother Hubbard's dog" in the rhyme.

Wm. Cadwalader, whose friends had become alarmed at not hearing from him for a long time, has turned up all right in Chicago, having been off on a pleasure trip, and thinking no one would worry—being a bachelor—he had not thought it necessary to keep any one posted as to his whereabouts.

A series of revival meetings are being held, under the auspices of the M. E. church at Tipton, assisted by an evangelist from abroad, Rev. David Lewis, who conducted meetings of a similar kind at Clinton. The holiday festivities have naturally distracted the attention of the people somewhat.

Last Friday a little daughter of H. Tripp fell, while trying to jump from a farm wagon, in which she had rode home from school, and was run over, by one wheel of the wagon, which contained sixteen persons. She was carried into her home and the doctor called, but, strange to say was able to be about the next day and except a slight abrasion on her back, appears unhurt.

A Ghost Social is announced to take place at Pentecost Hall next Saturday evening, for the benefit of the starving miners. The gentlemen are cordially invided to come and see the ghosts, (feminine ghosts of course,) a goodly number of whom will be in attendance. But we strongly suspect they will be found like the skeleton in the story of Hudibras' naughty student a skeleton indeed, but "well cushioned o'er with flesh."

Said a laboring man in our hearing lately, speaking of the prevailing destitution among the poor, "If men and women would only work whenever able and save as they might, a small part of their earnings, there is no need of their being in such a state of state of despair and suffering, as soon as work stops for a little while; but lavish living seems to be a sin quite common to Americans both rich and poor, and the present hard times will teach us all a needed lesson in economy.

ONSTED ODDS.

We wish all a Happy New Year.

Mr. John Baker and wife visited relatives near Battle Creek, over Christmas.

The ancient Order of the Orient meets on the fourth Tuesday evening of each month.

Rev. Griffin, a missionary from foreign lands, occupied the pulpit here last Saturday.

Bert Onsted returned to Hillsdale college, on Tuesday, after nearly two weeks vacation at home.

Geo. Woodard and family are calling among relatives here, their home being near Battle Creek.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Baker celebrated their silver wedding by having a Christmas tree well loaded with gifts, and with the help of friends a very enjoyable time was had.

Chas. W. Taylor and family, of Cheboygan county, are visiting among relatives and old time friends hereabouts at present, it being nine years since he left this vicinity to make himself and family a home in the newer country.

The F. and A. M. bretheren from this lodge, visited their Brooklyn bretheren, on Wednesday evening of last week and assisted a candidate through mysteries of the third degree of a Master Mason. They were well pleased by the royal way the bretheren of the Brooklyn lodge entertained them, and hope to return the compliment in the near future.

In Olden Times

People overlooked the importance of permanently beneficial effects and were satisfied with transient action; but now that it is generally known that Syrup of Figs will permanently cure habitual constipation, well-informed people will not buy other laxatives, which act for a time, but finally injure the system.

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

EPPS'S COCOA

BREAKFAST SUPPER.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided for our breakfast and supper a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctor's bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss

At a session of the Probate court for the County of Lenawee holden at the Probate office, in the City of Adrian, on Wednesday, the 27th day of December, in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three.

Present Richard B. Robbins, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of William H. Miner, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Hudson Larzelere praying for the probate of an instrument now on file in this Court, purporting to be the last Will and testament of said deceased, and that administration of said estate may be granted to him, petitioner the Executor named in said instrument, or to some other suitable person.

It is Ordered, That Monday, the 22d day of January next, at 9 o'clock in the forenoon be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heir-at law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian and show cause if any there be why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered that said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

MANY MEETINGS.

Michigan Associations Hold Annual Conventions.

Circuit Judges Form a State Organization—School-Teachers, Horticulturists and Commercial Travelers Discuss Many Topics.

JUDGES ORGANIZE.

LANSING, Dec. 29.—An association was formed in this city Thursday which is destined to exercise a strong influence upon the reform of the rules of practice of law and the simplification of the facts. It is known as the Association of Judges of Michigan and its members are the supreme and circuit judges and municipal judges of courts of record. Judge Fred S. Russell, of Hart, was chosen president of the association; Judge S. H. Laboll, of St. Johns, vice president, and Judge J. B. Moore, of Lapeer, secretary and treasurer. Committees on rules and legislation were appointed. The former will prepare a code of uniform rules to govern all the courts of record in the state so far as practicable and the legislative committee will endeavor to secure the passage of laws correcting and removing the ambiguity from existing statutes, the object being to simplify the practice, render laws more easily understood and hasten the trial of cases.

Michigan Teachers.

LANSING, Dec. 29.—The sessions of the forty-third annual meeting of the Michigan State Teachers' association were concluded Thursday afternoon. The meeting was the largest and most successful in the history of the state. The organization arrays itself squarely against the state grange in its indorsement of the system of making the township the unit for the supervision of schools as against the district. Resolutions were adopted indorsing the aggressiveness of the state superintendent of schools in increasing the efficiency of schools; approving the action of the college section in the practical step taken to suppress the objectionable features of intercollegiate sports, especially those of baseball and football; recognizing the need of professional instruction and general culture by the teachers of the state, and recommending that the next legislature establish at least one more state normal school. The following officers were elected: President, C. T. Grawn; vice presidents, A. Lodeman, Ypsilanti, and N. W. Richards, Greenville; secretary, F. R. Hathaway, Hudson; treasurer, F. L. Evans, Jackson.

Horticulturists Meet.

LAWTON, Dec. 30.—The twenty-third annual meeting of the Michigan State Horticultural society commenced a three-days' session Wednesday. Reports from the principal fruit centers of the state showed the past season to have been a favorable one to growers. Addresses were delivered by Charles W. Garfield, of the state society, and A. W. Barnard, of Manteno, Ill., delegate from the Illinois state horticultural board of control.

Thursday's session was principally devoted to the discussion of grape culture. President Lyon made a report upon the season's work with grapes at the state experiment station with an exhibit of grapes therefrom. papers covering the entire field of grape growing were read by T. V. Munson, of Denison, Tex.; Columbus Engle, of Paw Paw, and W. F. Bird, of Ann Arbor.

The meeting closed on Friday with papers on peach culture by J. H. Hawley, of Granger, N. W. Lewis, of Gobleville, and J. N. Stearns, of Kalamazoo. Following are the officers elected for the ensuing year: President, Roland Merril, Benton Harbor; secretary, Edward Y. C. Reid, Allegan; treasurer, Evarts Scott, Ann Arbor.

The Commercial Travelers.

SAGINAW, Dec. 28.—At the annual meeting of the Commercial Travelers of Michigan the following officers were elected: Edward P. Waldron, of St. Johns, president; Lloyd M. Mills, of Grand Rapids, secretary; George A. Reynolds, Saginaw, treasurer. Vice presidents were elected, one from each congressional district in the state. The next session will be held at Grand Rapids.

DETROIT, Dec. 30.—About 100 members of the Michigan Commercial Travelers' association convened in annual meeting at the Hotel Cadillac Friday morning. President McLean called the meeting to order and the various reports were read. The secretary-treasurer's (D. N. Morris') report showed an increase in membership in the last year. The association now has 582 members. The report of the board of trustees shows that the receipts of the year amounted to but $18,370, while the expenditures were $21,758. Resolutions were adopted commending Senator Stockbridge for his efforts in behalf of 5,000 mile railway tickets, interchangeable on all roads. Samuel Rendeskoff, of Detroit, was elected president for the ensuing year and other officers were chosen.

WANT HELP.

Work for 200 Lumber Cutters in the Grand Traverse Region.

TRAVERSE CITY, Dec. 28.—The Grand Traverse region is not suffering from commercial depression. Merchants have done a bigger business than they did last year, while post office receipts show a marked increase. In the lumber woods men are getting from $20 to $26 a month, and there is a brisk demand. It is believed that 200 more men, if competent, could get work there.

Site for a County Seat.

BENTON HARBOR, Dec. 28.—The Benton Harbor and St. Joseph committee appointed to make an effort to get the county seat removed from Berrien Springs to the mouth of the St. Joseph river have accepted the proposition and site offered by St. Joseph for the county seat buildings. The proposition will be submitted by the board of supervisors to the voters of the county in

DOWN ON THE EDITOR.

Galesburg People Want Smiley, of the Enterprise, to Leave Town.

KALAMAZOO, Dec. 30.—Some time ago Olmstead & Storm's bank at Galesburg, this county, closed its doors. It was a bad failure, and caused a loss to a small army of depositors. For months prior to the failure the Enterprise, published there by J. B. Smiley, had kept up a constant and bitter warfare on the bank. On the evening of its failure a large meeting of citizens was held, at which resolutions denouncing Smiley were passed. Later another meeting was held, at which the resolutions were modified but denounced him as responsible for the bank's failure and the loss of their money. It was declared to be the sense of the meeting that Galesburg was not a proper place for Editor Smiley, and all citizens who had the interests of Galesburg at heart were called upon to boycott him and drive him out of town. The situation is exceedingly strained there. Editor Smiley has given notice that he will defend himself, and goes on the streets between his home and office with a revolver fully exposed in his right hand.

LEONARD CASE SETTLED.

Mary Rice and Her Attorneys Compensated and the Marriage Annulled.

GRAND RAPIDS, Dec. 30.—In the circuit court Friday decrees were filed declaring the marriage of Fred H. Leonard and Mary E. Rice void because of his mental incompetency when the marriage was contracted, giving her a life maintenance of $65 a month and her attorneys $1,700 for service. This ends the long litigation, involving the Leonard estate, estimated in value at $225,000. Fred was declared mentally incompetent and afterward married Mrs. Rice and adopted a child. His brothers, Charles and Frank Leonard, have since been contesting the woman's claims. The decree is satisfactory to all concerned.

TWO DROWNED.

A Man and Woman Break Through the Ice and Perish.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Dec. 28.—Mrs. Adrew Trimon and an unknown man were drowned near Detour while crossing on the ice from Drummond island with a dog team. Residents at Detour heard a woman's screams on the river. They could see no one, but went in search in boats. Soon they found a team of dogs and a dog sleigh. On the ice were discovered a man's cap, a woman's muff and other articles. Two holes in the ice showed where the unfortunate persons had broken through.

Found to Have a Fortune.

DECATUR, Dec. 28.—While the officials of the county poorhouse were searching the effects of Mrs. Eliza Searles, a supposed pauper who died at the institution recently, secreted in her clothing was found $750 in money and promissory notes to the amount of $1,400. The old lady had been a county charge for some years previous to her removal to the poorhouse a year ago. The county will collect the notes, and after reimbursing itself for her care will turn the balance over to the woman's relatives.

Shut Down.

SOUTH HAVEN, Dec. 29.—The South Haven Stove works and foundry, which has hitherto enjoyed uninterrupted prosperity and for much of the period of its existence has been unable to fill orders as fast as required, has closed down indefinitely. The proprietor, Mr. William Mackey, states that orders have recently fallen off 80 per cent, due to the prevailing stagnation of business all over the country.

FOULLY SLAIN.

Evidences of a Terrible Crime Unearthed at Sault Ste. Marie.

The Mutilated Body of a Missing Woman Found Buried in a Chicken Coop—Her Husband Accused of Killing Her.

SHE WAS MURDERED.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Dec. 28.—Inspired by the reward of $50 for the body of Mrs. Paccoloni, dead or alive, Tom Fagin and John McCahey, farmers near by, went to the Paccoloni homestead, 15 miles from this city, and discovered it in the chicken coop Wednesday. They found evidences of a crime in the house. Blood was on the floor and was spattered on the door. The sons of the missing woman had found a shovel covered with fresh sand and had also discovered that the feather bed on which Paccoloni and his wife slept was missing. These things convinced the men that the body was not far off and they began a systematic search. After digging down about 2 feet they found the body, but did not take it out, preferring to first notify the coroner. A tribune accompanied the coroner to the homestead. The almost nude body covered with sand, was excavated. The face, head and neck were covered with bruises and the body was a horrible sight. An inquest was at once held and a verdict rendered that death had been caused by some person unknown.

Paccoloni had been married twice before and so had his wife. Neighbors say they fought incessantly and that when one did not start a quarrel the other would. Few believe that the murder was premeditated. The general opinion is that it was the accidental result of one of the usual scrimmages. A few think Paccoloni's son Louis and his son-in-law, named Atkinson, and a man named McCallum are mixed up in the affair. It was on the night of December 5 that Mrs. Paccoloni disappeared. She and her husband were alone in the house that night. The evidence against him is all circumstantial, but the chain seems complete.

LOCAL OPTION.

Allegan County to Vote on the Question February 19.

ALLEGAN, Dec. 30.—A special session of the board of supervisors convened to consider petitions asking for a special election to vote upon the question whether or not the manufacture and sale of liquors and liquor traffic shall be prohibited in the county. The petitions were considered sufficient in every respect though objections were raised by a dozen or more Plainwell men in behalf of the saloon element of the county. The counsel on both sides argued the question before the board after a resolution had been offered to grant the prayer of the petitioners and Friday morning the resolution was adopted by a vote of 18 to 2. Two supervisors were absent. A resolution was then adopted ordering a special election Monday, February 19, 1894. The liquor men have organized to fight the matter.

Death of a Bay City Pioneer.

BAY CITY, Dec. 30.—William R. McCormick, aged 71, a pioneer resident, died Friday evening after an illness of a few weeks of Bright's disease. He came to Saginaw valley in 1837. He was a native of Scotland and a prominent mason. McCormick lodge of Perfection bears his name. The deceased was several years a member of the board of education.

Chief Witness Is Dead.

ADRIAN, Dec. 30.—Some months ago the room of John George Koeget, an old German, was entered and a box with $1,300 carried away while the old man was at supper. John Kubly was arrested and bound over. Koeget died Friday of pneumonia and he being chief witness for the people, Kubly will escape conviction.

Sent to Chicago.

DETROIT, Dec. 29.—Rev. M. P. Dowling, president of the Detroit Jesuit college, has been directed to go to Chicago, where he will become pastor of the Holy Family church. Father Dowling is recognized as one of the best pulpit speakers in Detroit. He will be succeeded here by Rev. Henry A. Schapman, recently president of St. Xavier's college, Cincinnati.

Alleged Forger Bound Over.

KALAMAZOO, Dec. 28.—Louis Paquet, of Chicago, who was arrested at Crawfordsville, Ind., and was brought here to answer to the charge of passing a forged draft for $843 on the Home savings bank, waived examination in the recorder's court and was bound over to the circuit court to appear February 19. His bail was fixed at $2,000.

Stockbridge Sleeper Recovering.

JACKSON, Dec. 29.—May White, the Stockbridge sleeper, is slowly recovering her health. It has been two years since she fell asleep and could not be awakened for several months, and then but for a few minutes at a time. Now she remains awake a number of hours during the day and employs her time in knitting and crocheting.

Good Fruit Prospects.

ALLEGAN, Dec. 28.—Peach trees are heavily budded and in prime condition for this season of the year. Apple trees also bear evidence that after so many failures they will produce a crop next year and again become a staple product of this fruit belt.

Marvin Sued for $25,000.

DETROIT, Dec. 24.—The National Bank of Cooperstown, N. Y., has brought suit in the Wayne circuit against Frederick Marvin, claiming $25,000 damages. The action is brought to recover on notes given by Marvin.

An Old Resident Passes Away.

GRAND HAVEN, Dec. 28.—Mrs. Henry Balgoyer died Wednesday, aged 68 years. She had been a well-known and highly respected resident of this city since 1847

A MILLION FRIENDS.

A friend in need is a friend indeed, and not less than one million people have found just such a friend in Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, coughs and colds. If you have never used this great cough medicine one trial will convince you that it has wonderful curative powers in all diseases of the throat, chest and lungs. Each bottle is guaranteed to do all that is claimed or money will be refunded. Trial bottles free at Orr's drug store. Large bottles 50c and $1.00. 1

Cholles—Ha! ha! ha! ha! I just heard such a good joke. Fwed—What was it? Cholles—Aw—I've forgotten.

With many clergymen, public speakers, singers, and actors, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is the favorite remedy for hoarseness and all affections of the vocal organs, throat, and lungs. Its anodyne and expectorant effects are promptly realized.

Jobbers (unhappily mated)—I wonder if all men who get married lead lives of endless torture? Eupeck (bitterly)—Oh, no. Some of them die.

The makers of Dr. Wheeler's Nerve Vitalizer, the new cure for Nervous Disease, offer special treatment by their Physicians, free of charge, if use of it fails to effect a cure. $1 at J. J. Orr's, Tecumseh.

HOOD'S AND ONLY HOOD'S

Hood's Sarsaparilla is carefully prepared from sarsaparilla, Dandelion, Mandrake, Dock, Pipsissewa, Juniper berries and other well known remedies, by a peculiar combination, proportion and process, giving to Hood's Sarsaparilla curative powers not possessed by other medecines. It effects remarkable cures when other preparations fail.

Hood's Pills cure billiousness.

The thief who stole a trombone was not a high-toned thief.

Mr. Randall Pope, the retired druggist of Madison, Fla., says (Dec. 3, '89) he regards P. P. P. (Prickly Ash, Poke Root and Potassium) as the best alternative on the market, and that he has seen more beneficial results from the use of it than any other blood medecine.

Beside herself with work and worry—a woman without Pearline. She has twice as much work, and gets half as much done. With Pearline, she can keep her house clean without keeping it upset. She can wash the clothes easily, and know that it is done safely. Pearline washes everything. If you try to have comfort, you will have to try it.

SHE COMMITTED SUICIDE.

Mrs. F. C. Cone, at Paris, left this letter: "My husband—Forgive me if I cause you trouble, but I suffer so. You do not know what these long, wakeful, wretched nights are to me, am I am so tired, darling—the pain will never be better. It is not easy to take my own life, but I have been sick so long. Good-bye, my husband, I love you—your wife.' This is but one of thousands that gives up, instead of using Dr. Mile's Restorative Nervine, and being speedily cured of their wretchedness. Go to Baker and Hall's and get an elegant book and trial bottles free. 6

Clinton Column.

CLINTON, MICH., JAN. 4, 1894.

J. B. Wells was a Tecumseh visitor last Saturday.

Geo. Kies is at home for two or three days this week.

H. D. Cutting, of Tecumseh, was in town yesterday.

The winter term of the Clinton schools will begin Monday.

Mrs. Fuller is visiting friends in Saginaw for a few days.

Miss May Morey, of Brooklyn, was in town over Sunday.

Will Burtless and Will Holmes, of Manchester, were in town Tuesday.

James McGuire has sold forty acres of his farm to his son, Jas. F. McGuire.

The Clinton Woolen Mill is now running full time, or sixty hours a week.

The carpenters and masons are at work remodeling Chris. Smitt's building.

Miss May Ellsworth, of Manchester, was the guest of Clinton friends last week.

Mrs. Pomeroy, of Ypsilanti, has been visiting Clinton friends during the past week.

Guy Belding has returned home. He has been clerking for Avery & Co., at Tecumseh.

G. R. Brown, who has been dangerously sick with the grippe, is steadily improving.

Robert Rogers, of Cambridge, was the guest of his brother, W. C. Rogers, on New Year's day.

The Lancaster House is having a big run of custom now, both regular boarders and transients.

Sol Demuth's entire family, from grandmother to babies, are having a tussle with the grip.

Dr. Kotts, of Manchester, was down yesterday. He opens his dental office here every Wednesday.

Bert Tate is clerking in Demuth's store for a few days, during the mump season at Sol's residence.

Elmer Wheaton and a Mr. Terry, of Woodstock, were in town last Friday, looking for a farm to lease.

J. H. Smith and family, of Tecumseh, were the guests of Bert Tate and W. C. Rogers on Sunday and New Year's day.

Miss Laura Clark and several of her musical friends attended the Scharwenka recital at Tecumseh, on Tuesday evening.

W. B. Keyser received a telegram Monday, from Hudson, stating that his aunt's husband, Alva B. Culver, was dead.

Forty-three couple participated in the dance given last Thursday evening. The Jackson orchestra, of Adrian, furnished the music.

Orders for the celebrated Clinton plow are coming in lively and the foundry will be crowded with work for the next three or four months.

S. O. VanDeMark, of Detroit, visited W. D. VanTuyle's family over New Year's. He is still practicing law in that city and doing finely.

Four hundred and thirty incandescent lamps have been registered at the power house as lighted at the same time. There are over 600 lamps connected with the lines altogether.

Geo. A. Kies started out yesterday with a full line of spring samples. He is traveling for the firm of Robert Butler & Co., of Utica, one of the largest wholesale clothing houses in New York.

A donation visit for the benefit of Rev. Ramsdell will be given at the M. E. church on Wednesday evening of next week. The public are invited to remember the date and make their arrangements to attend.

Prof. Daniels, left town at a very early hour Wednesday morning, driving a double rig, accompanied by five or six lady passengers. The supposition is that he may have started for his father's in Cambridge, but grave fears are entertained for his safety.

Improvements are the order of the day at the depot. A new platform has been constructed the entire length of the freight house, on the east side, and a large platform for the reception of local freight, adjoining the passenger house on the north. This latter is a great improvement over the old concern.

A. B. Cotton, of Chicago, was shaking hands with his Clinton friends yesterday. He is still in the employ of the General Electric Co. and has been promoted to the position of Western Agent, with headquarters in the saddle. His territory extends from the lakes to the gulf and from Ohio to Nebraska. He has recently returned from an extended trip through the south.

The fifth annual banquet given by the Clinton Woolen Mill Co. occurred at the Town Hall on Saturday, Dec. 30th. Geo. Belding acted as caterer and the job was well done, of course. Refreshments were served from 5:30 to 8 o'clock. The officers and employees of the mill were present in full force and many invited guests also shared in the provender and pleasure of the occasion. The whole number fed was 208, and it was unanimously voted to have been the most enjoyable banquet yet held by the company.

Dear Sir:—We have used your Fenner's Cough Syrup for six or seven years with the very best of results and will not be without it. I have never known of an instance when one dose would not stop the most severe cough. We have tried many kinds of Cough Syrups, but Fenner's is superior to any we have ever used. Yours truly.

Carl Smith, the Deerfield saloon-keeper charged with doing business on Sunday, has been bound over to the circuit court for trial. He is out on $200 bail.

The millinery firm of Skinner & Knapp, of Adrian, went to the wall last week. Six chattle mortgages were given, amounting in the aggregate to $1,454.66.

Editor Kempton of Addison has sold the Waldron Recorder to W. A. Coad, the local manager of the paper. Bro. Kempton will now give his whole time to tinkering watches and sticking type on the Courier.

John L. Sullivan, pugilist and actor, was in Hudson an hour last Friday, says the Gazette, and did not get drunk did not abuse anybody and did not break any furniture. This is remarkable. But perhaps he was not there long enough.

J. S. Gilman, of Tecumseh, is said to be the oldest harness maker in Lenawee county. He was buckled into the business when young and, unchecked by age, is still tugging away on the old, familiar lines, with unbridled license. —Adrian Press.

The Morenci creamery, financially busted, is paying its patrons fifty cents on the dollar. The one-half off plan is not very funny for those who must accept the reduction, and who find it difficult to realize the cream of the joke. Hudson Past.

There is said to be one case in Hudson where Santa Claus was surprised. A young lady had forgotten to take off her stockings before retiring, and in consequence the jolly old saint found them filled with a nicer present than he had in his pack.—Hudson Post.

The school ardor of Miss Hattie Sutton, of Fruit Ridge, was considerably dampened Monday morning of last week. She was thrown from a buggy into a ditch full of water. Misfortune stands ever ready to wrap our fondest expectations in a wet blanket.—Adrian Press.

A bundle of flannels, sent north, by Mrs. Anna Richards, of Hudson, by a singular coincidence fell into the hands of Mrs. Anna Richards, a miner's wife. A note pinned to the package requested that the receiver write to the sender, and this was done by the duplicate Mrs. Richards.

Rev. J. C. Smith, a young Presbyterian clergyman at Reading, has been suddenly made rich, a lady member of his congregation having died and left him about $8,000. He announces his intention of giving the greater part of the property to friends of deceased. —Hudson Post.

Mrs. Alonzo Clark writes from San Diego, Cal., that Mr. Clark's health is much improved. The letter also states that they are enjoying blackberries, tomatoes, etc. We are pleased to hear they are pleasantly situated and feeling so well. They expect to remain there until next May. Mr. Clark says aside from the climate, Lenawee county is the best place yet.—Clinton Local.

It is said that a law squabble over the Deerfield ditch tax may furnish fees for lawyers and fun for onlookers. Some of the taxpayers are kicking like a "Black Crook" skirt dancer. It had been the rule to figure the ditch tax in with the other tax; but this year the assessment being larger, the tax was spread by itself and it shows up like a sheepskin on the gable end of a barn. Like the tariff, it is a tax; and like the tariff, it was there before, but the tax payers didn't see it.—Adrian Press.

The barns of Edward Reed, a farmer living a mile east of Cadmus, were burned last Friday evening. Although Mr. Reed and his neighbors strained every nerve to save the stock, six cows and two calves were cremated. All the horses were taken out, however. The contents destroyed were 100 bushels of wheat, 200 bushels of oats, ten tons of hay, wagons, harnesses, and other things. Mr. Reed's loss is estimated at $1,600. He is insured in the Farmers' Mutual for $1,620.

The picture enlarging fiend was around again Monday, soliciting orders for enlarging pictures at fifty cents each, and he found victims, too, as a matter of course. Peter Quick hunted the fellow up in the evening, and demanded the photograph his wife had given him. He said first he had sent it away, but upon being promised the finest licking he had ever had, the picture was promptly produced. No legitimate dealer will enlarge photographs for fifty cents, and it seems strange people will be taken in on such a game.—Blissfield Advance.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss

At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, on Thursday, the 21st day of December in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three.

Present, Richard B. Robbins, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Isaac Pennington, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Mary W. Pennington, widow of said deceased, praying for the probate of an instrument now on file in this Court, purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased, and that administration of said estate may be granted to her, petitioner, and Anna M. Pennington, the executrixes named in said instrument.

It is ordered That Monday, the 22nd day of January, next, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court, then to be holden at the Probate office, in the City of Adrian, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of said Petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said Petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Tecumseh Herald, a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee for three successive weeks, previous to said day of hearing.

TWICE-A-WEEK

A REVOLUTION IN NEWSPAPERDOM.

"Twice-a-Week" is the new name given to the Semi-Weekly Detroit Free Press. The "Twice-a-Week" has taken the place of the old Weekly edition which, after an existence of 62 years, was discontinued Nov. 30th, 1893. A weekly paper is no longer fully adequate to the requirements of this progressive age. The Free Press, first in everything, is the first to provide for its great host of readers a "Twice-a-Week," —complete in every detail of the modern newspaper,—at a price ($1.00 a year) hitherto unheard of for an 8page semi-weekly family journal. This is indeed a newspaper revolution—a revolution the benefits of which accrue wholly to the reader. The spirit of Free Press enterprise is ever alert to promote the interests and welfare of patrons.

SOMETHING TO REMEMBER:

1st.—The Twice-a-Week Free Press comprises 8 or more pages and is published every Tuesday and Friday morning in time for early outgoing trains.

2nd.—It is the largest and best Twice-a-Week in America and contains all the News, Markets, Literary Miscellany, etc., brought down to the hour of going to press.

3rd.—The Twice-a-Week Free Press will cost only ONE DOLLAR a year—104 newspapers for $1.00. Did you ever hear of so liberal a proposition?

4th.—Take your local paper for local news and The Twice-a-Week for general news. No other papers in the world will give you so much for so little money.

Wm. Osgood's feed mill is laid up for a few days from the springing of several of the boiler flues.

Tony Brunk is at work on a model of a patent block system device for railroads. He thinks that four weeks more will see it completed.

The saw mill, now owned exclusively by A. Gogolin, after a run of three or four days is laid up for repairs, but will resume in a few days.

The Ladies' Aid society of the Reformed church will meet at the residence of Lewis Miller, Wednesday, Jan. 17 at 2 p. m. All are invited.

Messrs. Chauncey and Herman Andrews, of Lyons, O.; Miss Carrie Holden, of Hillsdale, Mich. and Mrs. Wm. McWilliams, of Rome, N. Y. were visitors at C. A. Linn's last week.

We see that Mrs. W. J. Helm swings out a dressmaking sign at her home on North street, proclaiming that her prices are very reasonable and inviting a call from her many friends.

John Winsley was taken suddenly sick Sunday night, being seized with fainting spells. Dr. Hendershot was called at 10 o'clock remaining constantly with him till 8 a. m. At present he is convalescing and with continued improvement he will soon be out again.

Whether or not the ice crop is to be a failure one of our enterprising restauranters is gathering a goodly supply from our neighboring lake on the Wabash right of way. The huge cakes reached the mammoth size of 2 x 8 x 10 feet—or inches. Any how they were good sized cakes.

It is very evident that when an improvement begins to pull on our weazle skin, such as the talked of fire system was sure to do, that three-fourths of our citizens are quite ready to crawl out. This fact was made evident last Wednesday evening, the time set for an adjourned meeting, when not a citizen appeared. All I can say is, people do not wait till the milk is spilled and then cry about it. ONE OF THEM.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to express our sincere thanks for the kind assistance of our neighbors and friends in our recent affliction.

JOHN & JANE BEASLEY.

FRANKLIN FACTS.

Chastina Allen is on the sick list.

Frank Marshall has a severe attack of grip.

Eva Camburn is attending school at Tecumseh since New Year's.

Irene Allen and Carl Wisner have returned to their duties at the Normal.

The dancing club gave a masquerade ball at Hampton's hall last Friday night.

Oliver Muhl has bought of A. Aten the 20 acres of land which he formerly owned.

The orchestra boys received many compliments on their playing at their ball, Dec 29.

Word comes to us that Reuben Langdon, now residing near Adrian, is very sick of blood poison caused by the use of Jaxon soap. There is very little hope of his recovery.

The question: Resolved that the salaries of the State officials should be reduced one-half, will be discussed at the lyceum at Frank Marshall's. Leading Disputants: J. S. and G. W. Allen.

On New Year's day Anna Allen was united in marriage to Elmer Skeese. They are now in Ohio, near Evansport, where Mr. Skeese's parents reside. May their wedded life be as fair and sweet as the bonny bride.

A letter from Mrs. David Burroughs announces the marriage, on Nov. 15, at their home near Athens, Calhoun Co., of their daughter, Eula, to Frank J. Eckler, of Battle Creek. The happy couple are now settled in a cozy home in Battle Creek. May joy and peace dwell with them.

Sad news as well as glad news the letter brings, for it tells of the death of a brother, Alpheus Wisner, who died Dec. 29, at his home near Mendon, St. Joseph Co., of grip and pneumonia. The deceased was 68 years and 10 months old, having been for many years a minister in the Baptist church. His widow, seven children and several grand children survive him.

MACON MUSIC.

Mrs. Lillian Mix is a guest at Edwin Howell's.

Will Harring has engaged to clerk for H. S. Scudder another year.

Mrs. Sam Nesmith arrived Thursday and is visiting her father, Mr. Berger.

Mr. Irving Wilkins, of Ithica, Gratiot Co., visited his brother, Charles, last week.

Union prayer service is being held this week in the M. E. and Reformed churches, alternately.

Miss Sarah L. Harriott was suddenly called from Detroit by the death of her brother, Wm. Harriott.

The telegraph line from Lake Ridge is surely coming. Part of the poles have been distributed.

Mrs. Milan Sage has been quite sick with neuralgia, also Mrs. Mary Pennington and several others have the grip.

Wolfenbarger and Huckins, the celebrated temperance orators, have been engaged for the 25th. of January. You will regret it if you fail to hear them.

Our community was very much shocked last Tuesday evening on hearing of the death of Wm. Harriott. He was taken sick on Sunday after returning from church and his death occurred Tuesday. He was one of the old pioneers of this township having recently passed his 76th. birthday. He leaves a widow and four children to mourn his loss, also one brother, two sisters and a large circle of friends. The funeral services were held Thursday afternoon at the reformed church, conducted by Rev. J. I. Gulick.

HOLLOWAY HASH.

The ditch running east from Holloway is at last in a fair way to be completed.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Sovernes, of Alverton, were visiting with friends here Saturday and Sunday.

Harvey Hartman has been suffering somewhat from inflamatory rheumatism since the first of the year. It came to him as a New Year's present.

The Osgood Hive L. O. T. M. and the K. O. T. M. held their installation of officers at the Holloway Public Hall, in joint session, last Thursday evening. After the services an oyster supper was served in their own hall which all did justice to. All report a very fine time.

In last week's issue of the HERALD, Britton tries to "score one" on Holloway. Had they stuck to facts instead of wandering, temporarily, in their head and not got mixed up in their mathematics as to be unable to tell 5 years from 15 years, perhaps they might have seen their error, knew that they were fanned out, and kept still; but no, they dash blindly on and cap the climax by exposing either their hypocricy or ignorance by asking: "For where else but Holloway does his honor, Satanic Majesty, tread?" Where else? Indeed! Are they so ignorant of their own surroundings? Have they thoroughly sized up their own town yet? It cannot be, else such questions were superfluous. The temporary wandering in the head, mentioned above, was probably caused by some of the same kind of whis—we mean spirits (Satanic Majesty) that graced the coat pockets of some of those "offle" Britton boys that disturbed this town on Christmas night. Investigation might probably show it a native raised plant, one of Britton's productions.

PENTECOST POINTERS.

Willard Merrill has returned from his trip to Ypsilanti, where he spent the holidays.

Stuart K. French, of Brooklyn, who has been visiting friends here, returned home Monday.

G. W. Fuller received a new carriage from Toledo, or from Santa Claus perhaps, as it came about Christmas time.

There seems to be quite an epidemic of grip; as a gentleman remarked a few days ago, "its on the free list" and everybody can have it now.

A dinner party at Albert Camburn's last week was a very pleasant affair. One of the guests wielded the birch in the "old red school house," some twenty years ago.

Pentecost's Ghost Social, for charitable purposes proved a grand success, in spite of the bad roads and weather. It was gotten up by the teacher, Miss Bertha Fisk, and scholars of the district school.

The Adrian Times "caterpillar weather prophesy," which created so much fun and good natured criticism, seems likely to be fulfilled after all. We only hope that "soft spot in the middle" may monopolize the length of the winter as well as the caterpillar.

Now is the time for Lyceums, socials, reading clubs, farmers clubs, etc. Bring selections from your best books, magazines, and news papers, as well as your own best thoughts, and if you happen to be a musician bring your violin, and make yourself wiser and better and your neighbors happier by a little social pleasure.

There was a most eloquent and powerful sermon on temperance, given at Cambridge Junction, during the holidays. It might perhaps be more correctly called a tableau, and consisted of a poor old horse hitched to a tumble down wagon, standing by the roadside in the cold misty dawn, while beside it lay the stiffened corpse of a man, whose more than three score and ten years had brought with it the hoary head, but not, we fear, the wisdom and honor, that ought to crown old age, for beside him lay the tell tale bottle half filled with whiskey, which had proved so treacherous a companion of his last sad journey.

TECUMSEH, MICH., JAN. 4, 1894.

Who are the calamity howlers now? The Republican papers are having their innings at present in this very agreeable business.

Keep your feet warm, your head cool, and don't worry, if you would avoid the grippe. This is good medical advice at any time, but especially so in this changable winter.

Chauncey Depew says that "Ninety-four will be a better year for all concerned than ninety three ever dreamed of being." Good for Chauncey. We hope he may prove to be a true prophet.

The repeal of the Sherman Act is not producing the wonderful revival of business which the friends of repeal claimed it would. The silver question is not yet settled and never will be, until it is settled right.

New taxes are very unpopular with the persons upon whom the tax is laid. The income tax may not be relished by the men who will have to pay it, but the masses of the people will favor it every time.

The "Grange Visitor" of Lansing, Mich., recently issued a special woman's edition, all the articles in it being by women. The first page contained a three-column article by Genevieve M. Sharpe, lucidly expounding the single-tax.

Two thousand fraudulent pension cases have been unearthed in the city of Baltimore. Every honest, deserving veteran should receive a pension, but that the present list needs vigorous trimming is evident to every man who is posted on the subject.

The legacy tax, in force in several states, is nothing more nor less than an income tax. It was adopted in New York in 1885, and since then ten other states have copied it from the New York law. It will doubtless be incorporated into the tax system of every state of the Union within five years.

There is one thing admirable in the Republican party, says the New York World. When it has the power it employs it to carry out its policy. No division weakens it, no hesitation hinders it, no cowardice causes it to waver. In this respect the Democrats in Congress may well learn from their adversaries.

The income tax is coming, and when it comes it will stay. It is equitable, for it treats all large incomes alike; it is not oppressive, for it simply takes a small percentage of the rich man's surplus; it is no more inquisitorial than the tax on personal property now levied in most of the states. The income tax is coming.

The Eastern papers are indulging in a good deal of parrot talk about the monarchical character of the income tax, because England raises a large revenue by that means. Very well, then we should abolish the taxes on whiskey and tobacco, school taxes, road taxes, and dog taxes. The income tax is coming, nevertheless.

It is said that President Cleveland and his Cabinet are opposed to an individual income tax. This assertion can be taken with several grains of allowance. But whether it be true o not, the people believe in reducing the tariff taxes, and in supplying at least a portion of the deficiency by a tax on incomes. The income tax is coming.

Tariff taxes fall wholly upon the consumer. Under this system the poor man with a large family frequently pays more than the rich man. The income tax will simply compel the rich to pay their fair portion of federal taxation. It discriminates against no one. It relieves the poor man of a portion of his burden and makes the rich man pay his own share. The income tax is coming.

Speaker Crisp is credited with having been instrumental in causing the decision by the majority of the Ways and Means Committee in favor of the individual income tax. Five of the eleven democratic members of that committee were in favor of it and five opposed to it. The vote of Representative Turner, of Georgia, the eleventh man, was in doubt up to the last minute, and it was the personal influence of Speaker Crisp that decided his vote which was cast for the tax. The Speaker's head is level on the income tax, that is sure.

One of the best features about the proposed income tax is, that like the single tax, it cannot be shifted to other shoulders. It is not like taxes on mortgages and other personal property, which are generally shifted from landlord to tenant and from creditor to debtor. The tax on incomes will stay where it is put, and it is coming to stay, too.

It is said that the proposition to levy an income tax cannot get through the Senate. Perhaps not. But that does not relieve the House members from performing their duty. The House should by all means incorporate this tax in the tariff bill. If wealth is to be exempted from paying its fair share of federal taxation, let the Senate take the responsibility. The income tax is coming.

Tax corporations; they enjoy special privileges and franchises and they can afford to pay a small stipend for this governmental favor. Tax inheritances; they are a gratuity to the receiver, costing him neither time, labor nor money. Tax big incomes; it will deprive no man of either necessity or luxury, it will not even tax his real or personal estate, but will only take a small percentage from his yearly surplus.

During the last thirty years the Republicans have amended the tariff twenty-six times, and in nearly every case the effect has been to increase tariff taxes. But when the effort is made in the Wilson bill to reduce tariff taxation they call it "tinkering with the tariff." The people elected the present Congress to do some 'tinkering' of that kind and the sooner the members get down to business the better.

James R. Sovereign, the new general master workman of the Knights of Labor, in an interview recently, said: "I am a free trader, and believe that the right to buy and sell when and where we please is as inherent as the right to breathe. I have not had time to read the new tariff bill, but believe that a degree of prosperity will follow any policy of permitting raw materials to enter this country free from duty, as it will cheapen products made from these raw materials, increase their consumption and manufacture, and therefore employ more workers in these branches of industry."

The populists in Congress are pleased with the decision of the democrats of the Ways and Means committee to attach an amendment to the tariff bill providing for a two per cent tax on all incomes of $4,000 or more, and it is now probable that they may decide to support the bill. The proposed increase of the tax on cigarettes and whiskey will not have much opposition to contend with; nor will the tax of two cents a pack on playing cards. These internal revenue items will not be reported in a separate bill, but will be tacked on to the tariff bill as amendments.

The New York World of Jan. 3d. publishes a lengthy table by Mr. J. Schoenhof, a tariff expert, giving a detailed comparison of rates between the McKinley and Wilson bills, and also a comparison of both with the tariff of 1883, the last enactment prior to the McKinley law. A careful study of this table will disclose the virtues of the Wilson bill at a glance. The only real objection to the Wilson bill is that it does'nt go far enough in cutting tariff rates. Compared with the McKinley act it is a very radical measure, that is true. Compared with the tariff of 1883, it is a conservative measure. Compared with the revenue tariffs of ante-war times it is a very high protective measure. But it is probably the best bill we can get now and it should be passed speedily.

Here is a very peculiar statement, copied verbatim from the minority report on the Wilson tariff bill: "Our goods are now met by foreign goods on our own shores at a price made up of raw materials, plus labor and plus the present rate of tariff on very nearly equal terms." This it good Democrat doctrine, but it sounds strangely enough when coming from Reed and Burroughs. The present McKinley tariff is nearly 50 per cent on the cost of dutiable goods which Thos. B. Reed the author of the minority report says, is added to the price a domestic goods for consumers to pay. He says the price of goods is made up of raw materials plus labor, plus the tariff. Yes, gentlemen, the tariff is a tax. Read and Burroughs are slow scholars, but they are learning.

The Democrat members of the present House were sent to Congress to transact the public business and not to obstruct it. Filibustering from the Republican side is to be expected, and Speaker Crisp and the committee on Rules are prepared to meet it. But the action of a small squad of Democrats last week in refusing to respond to their names and thus breaking a quorum is disgraceful. Three days were wasted last week, which should have been devoted to debate on the tariff, and the responsibility for this delay rested with a few recalcitrant democrats, who generously aided the Republicans in their filibustering tactics. The sooner Congress shall adopt the rule: "No attendance, no pay," the sooner necessary legislation will be perfected, and the public business be honestly transacted.

HEALTH BETTER THAN WEALTH.

And You Can't Retain the Former and Give Exercise the Go By.

Dr. A. Symons Eccles has struck the keynote of radical improvement in the general health of city communities when he says that the most potent factor of present day ailments is the abeyance into which the muscular system is allowed to fall by dwellers in cities, who are daily becoming more and more dependent on artificial means of locomotion and labor saving apparatus, until disorders of digestion and nervous maladies are now as common among the comparatively poor as they are among the wealthy. The rich man endeavors to overcome the mischief wrought by his sedentary life by horseback exercise or golf, but the poorer man, who is unable to afford these recreations, neglects his muscular development and invariably tumbles into his train or mounts his street car rather than waste the time necessary for a brisk walk or a half hour in the gymnasium.

The popularity of the bicycle has tended to counteract the disuse of muscles engendered in a large proportion of town residents, but there are still numbers of persons of both sexes who require vigorous muscular exercise in order to maintain health. Women are the victims of modern, social and commercial changes almost if not quite as much as men. The centralization of many domestic industries may have improved the character of the products thus manufactured or of the work performed, but when bread was made and washing was done at home the female members of many families fairly well off, but not too richly endowed with this world's goods, were profitably employed in kneading the dough and ironing the linen. One of the results of this general disinclination to take the amount of exercise essential to health is the revival of a practice which is recorded in the earliest medical papyrus in the British museum.

The introduction of massage may be regarded as specific evidence of the tendency in these latter days to the neglect of muscular exercise, and Dr. Eccles holds that if it be true that the abeyance of function in certain glands is productive of diseases which can be cured by the injection of organic liquids derived from a similar source—and modern research has established this belief—much more is it evidently true that the failure to employ the great bulk of muscular tissue, which is so large a portion of the human frame, will, and invariably does, give rise to disordered function and altered structure in the other organs and tissues of the body, which are interdependent on the activity of the muscles and each other. Mental and nervous overstrain is rarely disassociated from muscular disuse and flaccidity. The burden of Dr. Eccles' exhortation is: "Even if you make a little less money, take more exercise. You will save the difference in doctor's bills and bring more happiness not only into your own life, but into other people's."—Pittsburg Dispatch.

The Walls of Jerusalem.

The lofty wall of Jerusalem and the massive towers of the citadel are immediately before us. We are on the outer slope of Mount Zion, the sanctuary and the abode of David. The ponderous blocks which form the lower strata of the wall might have been shaped and put in place by some prehistoric race of giants. More than almost anything else to be found around Jerusalem, or within, this wall bears an appearance of great antiquity. We can easily believe that its foundations were laid in the time of David, though its upper portions are unquestionably modern.

The books vary. One says it was the work of Sultan Suleiman in the sixteenth century, another that it was erected much earlier, and my guide, a most intelligent and well informed Jew of Hungarian origin, told me that it was built by the crusaders after they had got possession, for the purpose of protecting the inhabitants against the rascally Arabs, who would ride up in small parties, rob some rich family and be off with their plunder before anything could be done to stop them. But, however this may be, the wall, from 16 to 20 feet in height, fully incloses the town, and although it could soon be knocked to pieces by a 10-pounder cannon it stands in good order, solid enough for all peaceful purposes, and perfectly separates the city from the country about it.—Charles A. Dana in McClure's Magazine.

Egypt's Monuments.

Recent discoveries in Egypt and Chaldea indicate that, although the monuments there carry us back about 5,000 years before the Christian era, they do not constitute the limit of our sources of history. They indicate the origin of these people to have been in western Persia. Kurdistan and Luristan show more ancient remains than have been studied in any part of the world. The old Babylonian civilization and Chinese civilization both come probably from this region, and it may yet yield us knowledge of times far earlier than any that we know of.—Chicago Tribune.

Sure Preventive of Disease.

The Duchess of Edinburgh is the happy possessor—from the Russian and superstitious point of view—of two genuine bezoar stones, one of which was left to her by her imperial father and the other by her aunt. The bezoar stone is cut from a very rare animal and is regarded as a sure preserver of health and happiness.—Exchange.

The Flower Language.

Mrs. Murray Hill—There was a time when you called me a daisy, a sweet violet and a lily of the valley.

Mr. Murray Hill—Yes, that was before you began jawing me every night. Now, the only flower I wish you were is a "four o'clock." That shuts up sometimes.—Texas Siftings.

THE BIRDS OF NORTH AMERICA.

In connection with the foregoing report of our Ornithological Chapter, it is only right to call the attention of all lovers of birds to the magnificent work now being issued by the Natural Science Association of America, and entitled "The Birds of North America." Edition limited to 1,000. It is emphatically an original work, original in design and execution, and whether in letter press, illustrations or price, it is unapproached by anything of the kind in existance. It is recommended by the highest scientific, ecclesiastic and educational authority as being the most attractive, meritorious, pure and ennobling exporition of our ornithology yet given to the public. Dr. Elliott Coues, author of "Birds of the North-West," says: "It is a really notable work." Prof. C. J. Maynard, author of the "Birds of Eastern North America," says: "It contains the best pictures of the species which I have ever seen." Thos. G. Gentry, author of "Life Histories of Birds," and "Nests and Eggs of Birds of the United States," says: "It is the cheapest and best publication on ornithology in this country. The drawings are of a very high order, and rivals in beauty of design and finish the more costly works published abroad or in this country. It should be found in our homes and in libraries generally." And, according to Dr. Theodore Gill, a member of the National Academy of Sciences, "It is not only a meritorious volume, but is altogether so handsome as to make it a very appropriate presentation book or ornament for the family table." It is an imperial quarto volume of engraved figures of all our species, artistically reproduced, true in all hues of color to their natural plumage and botanical surroundings. It also includes a copious text description of their habits and characteristics, and embracing in general the observations made by the most eminent writers on ornithology, and a systematic table, arranged according to the classification adopted by the American Ornithologists' Union. Includes all the additions and corrections of our North American species which have been made to date, with an index to page, plate and figure of each species according to the A. O. U. number. It is illustrated with one hundred and nineteen full page colored plates, each representing from one to thirty or more species. It is the finest book on American birds issued since Audubon, and is pronounced by some authorities surperior to that now rare and costly work. It is issued in half and full bindings, Russia, seal, or morocco, at the net price of $40 and $45 respectively; but in response to a special letter, the association authorized me to say that a substantial discount will be made to such of our A. A. members and others as are working naturalists. We commend this work especially to members of the Wilson Ornithological Chapter. It is also a very useful and appropriate addition to the home and reference library, and for presentation purposes generally. Address regarding it, the Natural Science Association, 114 Fifth Avenue, New York, N. Y. Sample of plates and text can be had by sending twenty-five cents in postage stamps.

THE PUZZLE SOLVED.

Perhaps no local disease has puzzled and baffled the medical profession more than nasal catarrh. While not immediately fatal it is among the most nauseous and disgusting ills the flesh is heir to, and the records show very few or no cases of radical cure of chronic catarrh by any of the many modes of treatment until the introduction of Ely's Cream Balm a few years ago. The success of this preparation has been most gratifying and surprising. No druggist is without it.

The Tammany tiger, in his big cage in Fourteenth street, was heard to say with a soft purr at five minutes to 12 o'clock last night: "I will devour no more innocent lambs this year.

P. P. P. stimulates the appetite and aids the process of assimilation, cures nervous troubles, and invigorates and strengthens every organ of the body. Nervous prostration is also cured by the great and powerful P. P. P. Its effects are permanent and lasting.

If you feel weak and badly, take P. P. P., and you will regain your flesh and strength.

For rheumatism, malaria and syphilis, P. P. P. (Prickly Ash, Poke Root and Potassium) is the best known remedy.

For females in delicate health for indigestion and Dyspepsia, take only P. P. P. It is the best Spring medicine in the world.

W. H. Wilder, Mayor of Albany, Ga., says he has suffered with rheumatism for fifteen years, and, in that time he tried all the so-called specifics, but to no purpose. His grandson, who was on the B. & W. Railroad, finally got him a bottle of P. P. P. The first bottle of P. P. P. showed its remarkable effects, and after using a short time the rhumatism disappeared, and he writes he feels like a new man, and takes pleasure in recommending it to rheumatic sufferers.

Cures Others

Will cure You, is a true statement of the action of AYER'S Sarsaparilla, when taken for diseases originating in impure blood; but, while this assertion is true of AYER'S Sarsaparilla, as thousands can attest, it cannot be truthfully applied to other preparations, which unprincipled dealers will recommend, and try to impose upon you, as "just as good as Ayer's." Take Ayer's Sarsaparilla and Ayer's only, if you need a blood-purifier and would be benefited permanently. This medicine, for nearly fifty years, has enjoyed a reputation, and made a record for cures, that has never been equaled by other preparations. AYER'S Sarsaparilla eradicates the taint of hereditary scrofula and other blood diseases from the system, and it has, deservedly, the confidence of the people.

AYER'S Sarsaparilla

"I cannot forbear to express my joy at the relief I have obtained from the use of AYER'S Sarsaparilla. I was afflicted with kidney troubles for about six months, suffering greatly with pains in the small of my back. In addition to this, my body was covered with pimply eruptions. The remedies prescribed failed to help me. I then began to take AYER'S Sarsaparilla, and, in a short time, the pains ceased and the pimples disappeared. I advise every young man or woman, in case of sickness resulting from impure blood, no matter how long standing the case may be, to take AYER'S Sarsaparilla."—H. L. Jarmann, 33 William st., New York City.

HE CHANGED HIS MIND

THE TARIFF SEEMS TO BE "A LOCAL QUESTION," AFTER ALL.

Senator Morgan Is Confronted With an Old Speech—Another Ox Is Gored—Income Tax to Congressmen's Salaries—Gossip at the Capital.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 10.—[Special.]—During the general row that seems to be in progress about the new tariff bill and other matters in congress a good joke on Senator Morgan of Alabama is being much enjoyed at both ends of the capitol. A few years ago, while the Mills tariff bill was under discussion, Mr. Morgan made one of his greatest speeches. Mr. Morgan is always at his best in matters of principle, where facts and figures do not bother or make afraid. In this case he was in clover, for his topic was the tariff for protection as an ethical question. Few who heard that speech will ever forget the dramatic effect with which Mr. Morgan turned to the senators from Pennsylvania, from West Virginia and other states which are usually foremost in the advocacy of protection and hissed out at them:

"What right have you, sirs, to make laws that take money out of the pockets of my constituents and put it into the pockets of your constituents? Where in the constitution of the United States do you find the warrant for such proceedings as enable you to carry on your high handed business and escape arrest for grand larceny?"

Senator Morgan's Change of Heart.

In this strain Mr. Morgan went on as only Mr. Morgan can go on. There is no other man in the United States senate who uses the English language with such deadly effect as he when he is roused. The most bitter phrases, the most eloquent, roll from his lips like ripe apples from a tree when the autumn winds blow. It was one of the greatest speeches Mr. Morgan ever delivered. Thousands upon thousands of copies of it were distributed throughout the south, and it was everywhere read with great interest. Mr. Morgan received hundreds of letters of praise from his constituents for the scoring which he had given the "robber tariff."

That was before Alabama's coal and iron interests had been developed into an important industry. That was before the hills of that state had been opened up by the hand of man and made to yield their riches. That was before thriving cities had been built up at the mouths of coal and iron mines. Now Mr. Morgan is in a different position. Now he is among those Democrats who wail because the new tariff bill puts coal on the free list and affects the iron schedule in a way which the producers of ore do not like. Now Mr. Morgan is among the Democrats who talk of bolting their party bill and raising no end of trouble unless the schedules are fixed to suit them and the people of their states. No longer does he ask men from protection states if they have any right to immunity from arrest for grand larceny because they so legislate as to take money from the pockets of consumers and put it into those of producers.

A few days ago, while Senator Morgan was airing his views on this subject in the cloakroom and showing up in his lurid way the evils of a too rapid striking down of the protective duties, some one pulled out of his pocket a copy of the Alabama senator's famous speech and passed it over to Mr. Morgan to read. The senator glanced at it and was about to run away when his tormentor stood in the doorway, laughingly barring the exit, and proceeded to read the most significant passages of that great address. In a few minutes the joke was all over the senate chamber, and a number of senators looked up the old speech of the Alabama statesman and read it, with smiles and winks.

A Local Question.

This incident serves to show the changes that are taking place in congress on the tariff question. Sections of the country that were for protection years ago are now for low tariffs, while states that denounced protection as robbery are now preaching protection and plenty of it. As the fields of commerce and production shift about, so does public opinion, and it is noticeable that with every change of public opinion the opinions of senators and representatives in congress change also. A great deal of the trouble which the Democrats are now in over their new tariff measure comes from men representing such states as Alabama, which, until recently, were never known to object to any reduction of the tariff rates. A dozen times a day one may hear Democrats, members of one or the other legislative branch, declare that the Wilson bill shall never pass unless it is radically amended. In every such case some special interest of their constituents is threatened with loss. A dozen times a day one may hear the expression about the corridors of the capitol: "Well, General Hancock was right, after all, when he said the tariff was a local question. This session of congress is proving that he was right, notwithstanding the ridicule that was heaped upon him."

Readers of these dispatches will remember that in this column most people in the country saw the first statement to the effect that the Democrats of the ways and means committee were about to report an income feature to their new tariff bill. This prediction was made in these dispatches several months ago and has been fulfilled to the letter. Whether or not the income feature will remain in the bill no one can say. It has met with such fierce opposition that it is feared by those friendly to it that it will have to go by the board or suffer so much amendment as to defeat the object in view. Where the committee made its mistake, in the opinion of most people, was in applying the income tax to such small incomes as $4,000. This cuts too low to suit most men, who think that if their income does not exceed $100 a week it should go untouched of the taxgatherer.

The Income Tax.

It is a bit of inside gossip that the committee was induced to apply the tax at such low limits because of the fear that if it were placed higher people would say: "Well, congress is willing enough to tax the other fellow's income, but we notice it was careful not to apply the 2 per cent to its own salaries." By putting the minimum taxable income down to $4,000 congress escapes this criticism, but incurs the enmity of a host of men who are able to make $5,000 or $8,000 a year, and who live in dread of having to pay over a small sum in the way of a direct tax or escaping it by indulgence in some artful misrepresentation when the taxgatherer comes round.

Easy Enough.

Bingo—Did you have any trouble in cashing that check I gave you?
Mrs. Bingo—No, indeed. I took it right to my milliner.
Bingo—What did she do? Give you gold?
Mrs. Bingo—Gracious, no! She gave me the loveliest bonnet you ever saw.—Puck.

A PENALTY OF FAME.

GREATNESS MUST SUFFER FROM SLANDEROUS TONGUES.

How Wall Street Is Inclined to Trade Upon Washington Falsehoods—Egregious Lies About President Cleveland—His Physical Condition—Indifference For Walking.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 11.—[Special.]—Wall street has some peculiar connections with Washington. From what sources "the street" derives its information as to what is going on in the capital no one knows, but it gets some strange and wonderful tips from these parts. A few days ago, while President Cleveland, Secretaries Gresham and Carlisle and "Fighting Bob" Evans were down the river on a shooting trip, Wall street became very much excited. It had heard—Heaven only knows how—that President Cleveland was losing his mind; that he had completely broken down; that he was in such a sad condition that his friends of the cabinet were considering the advisability of taking him away for a long rest.

Wall street heard these things in some unaccountable manner and evidently placed more or less faith in them, because it fired a score of telegrams into Washington that day asking for the facts about the president's condition. The bigger the lie the more quietly Wall street swallows it, hook, line, pole and sinker. Of course the rumors were absurd. While it is true that the president has some bad teeth in his head, and while it is true also that he is to some extent showing the effects of the long strain to which he has been subjected, there is no man in this country in less danger of losing his mental faculties than Grover Cleveland.

His Mind All Right.

The senators, representatives and office seekers who call on him occasionally about appointments could not be made to believe that Mr. Cleveland is in any danger of losing his mind. The sharp memory which enables him to call up almost every detail of a case—the characteristics of aspirants, their faults and weaknesses, the nature of their indorsements, the objections made to them—gives no indication of waning mental powers. Mind specialists say the memory is usually the first thing to suffer when any derangement of the cerebral organs appears, and by that test, if no other, Mr. Cleveland's mind is as clear as the tones of a silver bell.

The men who call on the president find him sharp, alert, keen in his analysis of character and conditions and fully able to cope with the bright men who do business with him. Stories are told every day of the president's remarkable power of carrying small details in his mind. If any change whatever is noticeable in his manner, it is an increasing impatience, lack of tolerance, eagerness to get business off his mind not by decision, but by procrastination.

A Silly Charge Refuted.

Of course these stories concerning Mr. Cleveland's mental condition have been in circulation in Washington. But here, where the facts are known, scarcely a second thought is given to them. When the president's special message on Hawaii made its appearance a few weeks ago, some people thought they could see in it evidences of the hand of Secretary Gresham. Feeding their imagination with trifles, these extra wise persons declared the whole message had been written by Gresham, and that all the president had done was to sign his name. In the same way some smart persons thought they could see evidences of the hand of Dan Lamont in the preparation of the president's annual message.

During Mr. Cleveland's first term a great many people could never be induced to believe anything else than that the president's private secretary prepared all of the messages to congress, state papers and speeches. Of course the facts are, as we all know—all who take the trouble to ascertain facts—that the president writes his own messages and state papers. He has always done so. The peculiar English of those documents is the president's own.

The Hawaiian message was more characteristic of Mr. Cleveland than anything he has written for years. It is absolutely unmistakable. And how any intelligent man could honestly suspect it to be Gresham's work—to whose style it bears no resemblance whatever—is beyond fathoming. Whatever may be the strong or the weak points of Grover Cleveland as a public man, inability to prepare the state papers which bear his signature cannot be charged against him.

About the White House.

One of the penalties of fame is to be lied about. President Cleveland is no exception to the rule. Not long ago the newspapers were filled with stories to the effect that the president was a physical coward—that he lived in daily fear of assassination. The tales had an increased force of watchmen on the White House grounds; they told of the president's sudden desertion of his country house for the executive mansion; they recited the fact that he had employed a mounted policeman to accompany him on his drives to and from Woodley; they laid great stress upon the failure of the president ever to take walks in the streets or about the White House grounds.

There is just this much truth in these tales: The president left Woodley sooner than he had expected to do because he found too much time was taken from his work in passing to and fro, and because the approach of winter made the country seat less comfortable than the executive mansion. He did have a mounted policeman detailed to ride ahead of him along the lonely roads, but in doing so followed more the advice of Mrs. Cleveland and members of his cabinet, who urged him to prudence, than any promptings of his own fears. It was a wise and proper thing to do. In no other country in the world would a national ruler go about in lonely country roads, day or night, without attendance. There has been an increase of the watch force about the executive mansion, but the increase consists of the addition of a single man.

Mr. Cleveland does not take walks in the streets or about the grounds, as Harrison, Hayes, Grant and other presidents did, for the reason that he does not like walking, claims not to need the exercise, and in fact does appear to get along very well without it. On his vacations, whether in Delaware, at Saranac lake or down the Potomac, Mr. Cleveland goes about as fearlessly and unpretentiously as any private citizen. The charge of physical cowardice will not die against him, all newspaper stories to the contrary notwithstanding.

A Lemon Pudding.

Squeeze the juice of 4 large lemons into a coffeecupful and a half of sugar. Beat them thoroughly together, stir in the whites of 8 eggs which have been beaten to a stiff froth and bake the mixture in a pudding dish in a moderate oven. (The secret of success lies in keeping the heat moderate.) When the top begins to stiffen stir it into the pudding, and repeat this several times during the process of baking. Serve with cream.

The Forum

"The Greatest of all our Periodicals."

The foremost men of the world write the literature of contemporaneous activity for THE FORUM.

Every great subject is taken up by The Forum when it naturally comes into public attention and is treated by the best authorities, without regard to parties or creeds. It will keep any thoughtful reader informed on the tasks and problems of the time, as no other periodical does.

To many thoughtful people, the price of The For... has hitherto been prohibitory; indeed all the great Reviews have been too ...price for the masses of intelligent readers. But now the number of reade... thoughtful literature—men and women who wish really to know what is going on in the world outside the narrow limits of particular sects and parties—is great enough in the United States to warrant so revolutionary a reduction in price. The Forum discusses important subjects, but it is not dull. The literature of contemporaneous activity is, in fact, the most interesting of all literature. American citizenship implies that a man shall know the opinions of the foremost men and the latest great achievements in every direction of activity.

DR. TRASK'S MAGNETIC OINTMENT.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.
The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

All Sores, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Burns, Sore Throat, Lameness, Rheumatism, Piles, Inflammation of Lungs and Bowels, Bronchitis, Croup, Salt Rheum, Chilblains, Affection of the Spine, Erysipelas, Nervous Irritation, and all disorders attendant with Inflammation.
It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years.

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that, as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should be perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.
Prices 25 and 40 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

The Tecumseh Herald.

BY SCOVEL C. STACY.

Issued Every Thursday Morning.

FROM THE LAND OF FLOWERS.

GLENWOOD, FLA., JAN. 6, '94

I wish some of the Tecumseh friends who read this could have been with me as I was taken through an orange grove this morning by its proprietor. The trees some of them were so laden that they needed props to support them. One heavy branch had been split from the tree by its load. One beautiful young tree was full of immense specimens of Pomelo or Grape fruit. Another produced Mandarines and Tangerines, on different budded branches. The size of the grove was eight and one-half acres. Last year it produced 2000 boxes, and it promises a yield of not less than that this year. Very many of the trees will fill five or six boxes; some of them more than that. The largest crop I have heard of from any single tree, anywhere, is 30 boxes. Orange culture is still comparatively in its infancy. There are many things to be learned, even by the most experienced growers, before it will reach the perfection that older industries in the way of fruit growing have attained. The gulf between a wild orange and some of the best varieties now cultivated is constantly widening. The well cared for groves are showing the benefit of their care. But there are still almost as many different theories as to the best treatment of the soil and the trees as there are systems of theology in the religious world. My belief is, however, that the orange tree responds more readily and generously to the efforts made to have it produce good fruit, than the average man does to the pains taken to have him bring forth good fruit in his life. A grove is an expensive piece of property to its owners till it reaches the full fruit-bearing age, which is in about six or seven years from its first planting. It must be tenderly cared for, must be well fertilized, must be kept free from the different dangers to which it is liable. Heavy frosts will sometimes nip the outer branches of a tree and cause some of their leaves to fall, but it requires a regular northern freeze, like the one of 1886, to produce any fatal effect. I am surprised to learn that an ordinary light frost is looked upon as desirable, because it seems to help ripen and sweeten the oranges instead of being an injury. The medium sized orange is the one that is most marketable and pays best, yet the tendency of proper cultivation is to produce large fruit and at the same time more luscious. Late fruit is the finest as those will discover who purchase oranges for their tables in March or later.

In March the fragrant blossoms preparatory to a new crop will begin to show themselves and then, of course, any fruit that still clings to the tree should be removed. Brights, or bright colored oranges, bring the best prices but Russets are esteemed equally good, if not better, by the growers. The dark hue and dry feeling of the skin of the Russets are caused by a microscopic insect whose work can be checked by spraying. But a Russet will retain its favor and sweetness better and longer than a Bright. Still, however, the normal bright condition of the fruit is doubtless, in the long run, the best, and trees and fruit both might suffer if these bacteria, or whatever they are, were left entirely unchecked. At the same time care must be taken lest the spraying liquid injure, and the remedy prove worse than the disease. I hear rumors of other troubles that have to be guarded against, so that the care of a grove is no sinecure. Besides, there are the expenses of marketing to bring down the high spirits of the orange grower. Sixty cents a box for freight to New York, Chicago, Cincinnati or Detroit must afford enormous profits to the railroad and steamship companies. With 300 boxes for a single car load, the railroads would get $180 for a through car. Then the commission dealer claims his 10 per cent. for selling, and producers complain that some of these dealers send back false reports in regard to the condition in which the fruit consigned to them arrives and thus make dishonest reductions and lessen still more the margin of profit, so that now and then very little is left to pay for the labor and expense of giving us at the north the nice Florida oranges that we so prize and for which the actual consumer generally pays a liberal price.

In spite of all drawbacks, however, the owner of a good healthy orange grove which is 8 or 10 years old, is to be congratulated, if he owns it free of incumbrance.

Oranges have been hurried off to market in such quantities this year that the price has been low. The hard times, too, have no doubt had their effect in keeping down the price. Any one can easily figure what the profit from a five acre grove would be, provided it yielded 1200 boxes, which it might be depended upon in an ordinary year to do and provided each box netted to the owner $1.00. Would it be easy to get an income of $1,200 from any five acres in Michigan, free of all outlays?

Then there is the beautiful climate of Florida to attract residents. Think of a winter spent where the thermometer rarely gets lower than 32 and where every kind of outdoor work and exercise can go on with comfort the whole winter through. An invalid can come here, purchase his orange grove, if he has the money, and get well taking care of it.

The sandy soil we see around us here can be made to produce well other fruits besides oranges. Early vegetables, too, can be profitably cultivated if a good market is opened for them. The same expense that is put on homes around our northern cities will make equally beautiful if not superior ones, here. And the opening of the 20th. century will probably show that the advantages which this yet undeveloped state has to present are beginning to be widely appreciated.

This pleasant little hamlet of Glenwood where I am sojourning will perhaps by that time have put on a far more comely appearance than it wears to-day. It will have a large society of cultivated people similar in kind to the little nucleus of such people it has at this time, and hundreds will be seeking it as a winter resort, where scores do at present.

Joint Teachers' Meeting

The Teachers' Associations of Lenawee and Monroe counties will hold a joint meeting at Deerfield, on Saturday, Jan. 13th, 1894, beginning at 10 o'clock a. m.

The program will be furnished equally by the two associations, each county presenting three topics. So far as decided upon at this date, the program will contain the following features:

"Botany in Primary Grades," Supt. L. M. Kellogg, Tecumseh; "Use of the Dictionary in School Work," Mr. V. K. VanDeVenter, Dundee; "Drawing," Miss Ella Irish, Adrian City Schools; "Primary Reading," Miss Kittie Lamb, Blissfield, East Side; "Personality of the Teacher," Prof. O. McLaughlin, Dundee.

One or two other topics are yet to be provided for.

Music will be furnished by the Deerfield High School choir. Arrangements are being made by the citizens of Deerfield for the entertainment of teachers.

Teachers of Lenawee, let us turn out in force and get acquainted with our fellow-workers of Monroe county.

C. F. FIELD,
Pres. Lenawee Teachers' Association.

The Outlook.

The Outlook (New York City,) will have for the coming year many new features and fresh attractions. Since its change of name—it is a new series of The Christian Union—it has gained perceptibly in popular favor, and in 1894 it will be stronger and better than ever. Its "Holiday Book Number" Dec. 3, 1893, contained 84 pages, being one of the largest issues of a weekly paper ever printed. Other special numbers of each year are the Midwinter and Midsummer Outing Numbers, those for Thanksgiving and Christmas, the educational Number and others as special occasions arise. Illustrations are frequently used. The Outlook's series of "cover portraits" of distinguished men, drawn by Mr. V. Gribayedoff, will be continued. Special articles, fiction, sketches, poems, news—political economic, social and religious—sermons, papers on domestic problems, entertaining talks and stories for children, high class personal gossip, talks about new books and their authors—these and many other features help to make The Outlook an interesting and almost necessary family paper.

FARMERS' SOCIAL CLUB.

The next meeting of the Farmers' Social Club will be held at Mr. Will Schreder's, Jan. 16, with the following program:

Singing by club
Select Reading—J. T. Boyce
Dialogue—Andrew Kehoe and others
Violin Solo—Will Schreder
Recitation—Mary Murphy
Dec.—Philip Hendershot
Singing by the school children
Charade—Edna Hendershot
Rec.—Jennie Gillespie
History Lesson—Cause and Effects of the Revolutionary War

Each one to hand in some question to be answered by the club.

The Michigan Southern division of the Lake Shore road closed up its bridge work for the season Saturday and fifty men, some thirty of whom live in the city, will be laid off. The largest highway bridge on the road has just been finished at Toledo, where Broadway is carried over the tracks. It is 160 feet span, 60 feet wide, and cost about $6,000. —Adrian Times.

ANNOUNCEMENT FOR 1894.

Again the "Old Reliable" greets its patrons, extends its thanks for past favors, and lays before them its program for 1894. The HERALD passed through the panic of 1893 much better than we anticipated, and is prepared to face the future with confidence. We have several attractive offers to present, some of which we believe will merit the approval of every subscriber. With the attractions herein offered we hope to retain all our old friends and make many new acquaintances during the coming three months.

Realizing the fact that every dollar counts in these hard times, we have concluded to make our rates for the coming year on a "hard times" basis. One dollar will pay for the paper for one year, when sent to any post office in Lenawee County. Beyond Lenawee County $1.25. In making this concession however we shall be compelled to adopt the strict advance rule. We cannot afford to accept these rates and wait several months for our pay. Sixty days grace will be allowed for payment of subscriptions which is ample time for all who desire to keep the paper, and all papers not renewed within that time will be stopped. People expect to pay for their outside papers strictly in advance. Why should they not be willing to treat their home paper with the same courtesy?

We have a few combination offers, which we believe will prove especially attractive.

FIRST.

The Detroit Weekly Free Press has been changed to a semi-weekly, and is now a "twice a week" paper, each edition containing at least eight pages. These two papers with the HERALD—three papers in all—will be furnished for $2.00.

SECOND.

The American Farmer and the Farmer's Guide are both first-class farm papers, well edited and finely printed. The subscription price of each is fifty cents. Either of these papers will be furnished in connection with the HERALD for $1.25.

THIRD.

The Cosmopolitan Magazine is now acknowledged to be one of the very best monthlies published. It ranks with Harper's, Scribner's and the Century. Its December edition was unprecedented, being over 400,000 copies. The Cosmopolitan will be sent in connection with the HERALD, both journals, for only $2.25.

FOURTH.

We have closed a contract with the Globe Bible Publishing Co. by which we can furnish our patrons with the entire series of "Shepp's World's Fair Photographed." The work is issued in thirty-two parts, regular price twenty-five cents each, each part containing eight pages of descriptive matter and eight full page half tone photographs. One coupon cut from the HERALD, accompanied by ten cents in coin will entitle the subscriber to one of these parts. The distribution will begin about the middle of January and continue weekly until the entire series shall be taken. Every HERALD subscriber will be able to obtain this magnificent series of World's Fair views at exactly wholesale cost price. This offer is more fully described in detail elsewhere.

Herbert A. Sprague, a young man who has achieved distinction as a character impersonator, delighted an audience of five hundred persons at the Congregational church last night. He impersonated Uriah Heep and Wilkins Micawber from "David Copperfield" inimitably. He has a finely modulated voice, easy and graceful action, and great skill in facial expression.—Detroit Journal.

The funeral of Mrs. John Orr was attended at the family residence last Sunday afternoon. The deceased was 60 years of age and had lived in Tecumseh 40 years. She was known and beloved by a large circle of acquaintances, who turned out in numbers beyond the capacity of the house, to pay their tribute of respect to the dead. A fitting memorial notice will appear hereafter.

The reduction in the price of The Forum (from $5 a year to $3; from 50cts. a copy to 25cts.) which took place with the December number, instantly caused so great an increase in the demand that within a fortnight a fifth edition was called for. The publishers of The Forum made a correct analysis when they assumed that the class of readers of the most instructive literature is many times larger than the number of persons who can afford to pay the prohibitory price of 50 cts. a copy or $5 a year. But the rapidity of the increase has outrun all expectations; and The Forum now has the largest circulation ever reached by a periodical of its class.

Mrs. Lydia Smith, one of the very old settlers of Franklin, died in Dundee yesterday, aged 80. She will be buried in Tipton to-morrow, from the noon train of the C. J. & M. The funeral will be held in Dundee to-morrow at 10:30 a. m.

The funeral of Mrs. Sarah Riggs, mother of Lucius Lilley, Esq., was held at Mr. Lilley's residence last Friday afternoon. She was a woman of remarkable energy, both physical and mental, having lived to the age of 92. The services were well attended by friends and acquaintances of the family. Further obituary mention will appear hereafter.

The home of Mrs. E. J. Morrison on Adrian street, was the scene of a somewhat novel entertainment last Monday evening. About 50 young friends met by invitation, the occasion being Miss Minnie Morrison's birthday. After receiving her guests the fair young hostess excused herself from the company, but only to return in a few minutes clad in a creamy bridal dress, leaning on the arm of Mr. A. A. Orndorf, of Chicago, and accompanied by Miss. Mae Sharpsteen and Mr. W. Ketchum of Jackson, and the Rev. F. Fistler of Tecumseh. The latter gentleman at once proceeded to read the marriage service, at the conclusion introduced Mr. and Mr. Orndorf to the astonished company. To say they were surprised is putting it mildly. Everyone was actually dumbfounded, but quickly recovered and the congratulations were none the less warm for being extemporanious. The bride is one of Tecumseh's most esteemable young ladies. The groom is a comparative stranger here, but the good sense he has shown in the selection of a life companion warrants us in forming a favorable opinion of him. The bridal couple left Tuesday for their home in Chicago.

In the Circuit Court last Saturday, several matters were taken up that Tecumseh parties are interested in. In case Blanch Hayden vs. Township Clerk and Commissioner of Highways of the township of Macon, the writ of Certiorari was dismissed with costs to the defendants. This case has been pending in the different courts for the past three years, having once been to the Supreme Court. It originated over the opening of a private road of Mrs. Hayden, in the township of Macon, by Mrs. Catherine Osborn, by condemnation proceedings, and the road was declared a necessity by a jury. W. C. Burridge appeared for the petitioner and J. W. Wightman for the defendants. In the case of Johnson vs. Cheever, a motion was made by the defendant to set aside the judgment for costs, as not authorized by law; the question arose over the construction of a provision of the Civil Damage Liquor Law and had not been directly passed on by any court. Judge Lane held that Mrs. Johnson was entitled to her full costs and also the costs of opposing the motion. W. J. Ingersoll appeared for Mrs. Johnson and Seth Bean for Mr. Cheever. In the case of Anderson vs. Broderick the decision of Justice Davidson was overruled and the defendant ordered to file his plea and proceed to trial.

OUR ART OFFER.

SHEPP'S WORLD'S FAIR PHOTOGRAPHED FOR THE HERALD READERS.

A Magnificent Art Series Within Reach of All and a Most Beautiful Souvenir.

With a desire to again promote the interests of its readers, the HERALD has closed a contract with the famous Globe Bible Publishing Company., of Philadelphia by which the magnificent series of Photographs, with descriptive matter, known as "Shepp's World's Fair Photographed," will be brought within the marvelously-low purchasing price of TEN CENTS in cash for each part when accompanied by one HERALD coupon.

It should not be forgotten that Messrs. Shepp's famous series of photographs were OFFICIALLY INDORSED by the Columbian Exposition, and the Globe Bible Publishing Co. was given exclusive rights to publish and sell these photographs. They are an immensely valuable and important souvenir of the greatest Exposition ever held, and at the price offered to readers of the HERALD every subscriber will want the series, not only for themselves, but also for their friends.

The well-deserved reputation of the Shepp Brothers, whose firm is known all over the United States and in Europe, is a guarantee that "Shepp's World's Fair Photographed" will be issued in their usual first class style, and that neither pains nor expense will be spared to make it worthy of the great event which it so graphically, thoroughly and ably portrays.

The first coupon in the series will be printed about the middle of January, 1894, and the succeeding coupons will appear each week until the series is completed. This is the chance of a lifetime to get a souvenir of the Exposition, and no one should neglect to take advantage of the opportunity.

Remember you must have one coupon cut from the HERALD and ten cents in coin to obtain each part of the series. There are thirty-two parts in all, thus requiring a total outlay of only $3.20 for the finest publication of the kind extant, the retail price of which is $8.00. An abundant supply will be kept on hand, so that subscribers can have their books, upon the presentation of their coupon and ten cents at this office. Part first has already been issued, samples of which can now be examined at our counting room.

Yesterday afternoon Jamie Moir had a narrow escape from drowning on the Globe Pond. A large crowd were enjoying themselves skating, when suddenly a cry of "help" was heard, and at the mouth of the race a boy was seen struggling in the water. Oscar Hall, a son of D. T. Hall, took in the situation at a glance, threw off his outer clothing, and with a nerve that astonished the on-lookers skated fearlessly to the hole in the ice. After breaking the ice to reach the boy, he grasped him by the hair and held his head above the surface, until fence boards were brought, with which both boys were drawn upon the solid ice. It was a most heroic act on the part of Oscar Hall; but for his prompt action Jamie would probably have been drowned.

The North American Review, the leader among the solid monthlies, will be furnished in connection with the HERALD at the price of the Review alone, just $5.00. Take this magazine and you will get the Herald free.

Card of Thanks.

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss.

At a session of the Probate court for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office, in the City of Adrian, on Wednesday, the 27th day of December, in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three.

Present Richard B. Robbins, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of William H. Mather, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Hudson Larzelere praying for the probate of an instrument now on file in this Court, purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased, and that administration of said estate may be granted to him, petitioner the executor named in said instrument, or to some other suitable person.

It is Ordered, That Monday, the 22d day of January next, at 9 o'clock in the forenoon be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, that said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

Fire Destroys a Big Establishment in Detroit.

Hinchman's Wholesale Drug House Burned—Several Other Firms Also Suffer from the Flames—The Loss Estimated at $250,000.

BIG FIRE IN DETROIT.

DETROIT, Jan. 4.—Fire started from some unknown cause in the third story of T. H. Hinchman & Son's wholesale drug house about 5:30 o'clock Wednesday evening. The building was shortly beyond saving and the firemen directed their efforts to saving adjoining buildings. The Hinchman building was four stories high and extended through the block from Jefferson avenue to Woodbridge street, with an addition on the Woodbridge street end. Adjoining the latter is Standart Bros.' wholesale hardware house, which also suffered heavily from fire and water. W. H. Edgar & Co., wholesale sugar dealers, sustained a loss of several hundred dollars from fire, water and smoke. Another building, occupied by Louis Blitz & Co., fancy glass manufacturers, was somewhat damaged with small loss on stock. The Hinchman house was one of the oldest and largest in the state. Their loss on building and stock will probably reach $165,000; insurance, $115,000. The Standart stock and building were valued at $115,000, nearly covered by insurance. Their actual loss cannot now be estimated, but it is believed the entire loss will be about $250,000.

SLAIN FOR HIS GOLD.

Leroy Rogers Killed in His Lonely House Near Irving.

GRAND RAPIDS, Jan. 8.—Leroy R. Rogers, 63 years old, living alone in a small house 2 miles from Irving, Barry county, and reputed to be wealthy, was murdered Saturday night or early Sunday morning. Neighbors not seeing him in the yard and noticing the door open called at the house about 11 o'clock and found Rogers partially dressed on the floor, with his head split open, and a hatchet covered with blood was found in a corner of the room where it had been thrown. Robbery was apparently the purpose of the murderer. The house was in confusion, showing how the murderer had searched for booty, but as far as found a silver watch was all that was taken. Early Sunday morning a young man, short in stature, with dark overcoat, light trousers and plush cap, was seen hurrying toward Irving by the neighbors, and this is the only clew. Rogers was a pioneer of Barry county, and was once engaged in business at Irving.

LIVED MORE THAN A CENTURY.

Mrs. Sophia Goucher, of Monterey, the Oldest Woman in Southern Michigan.

JACKSON, Jan. 6.—Sophia Goucher, of Monterey, is believed to be the oldest person in southern Michigan. Mrs. Goucher has nearly attained the age of 105 years, having been born in lower Canada in 1789. She first married Harvey Town at the age of 17 and afterward wedded Mr. Goucher when 73. This wonderfully preserved old lady is as straight as an arrow and attributes her longevity to hard work out of doors. She has logged, plowed, mowed and performed all the work on a farm during a large portion of her life, and she says she is "worn out, not rusted out." Mrs. Goucher enjoys better health than the average octogenarian and announces that she intends to witness the birth of the twentieth century.

MURDERED.

A Man Killed in a Row Which Began at a Dance.

MANISTEE, Jan. 4.—Peter Cordus, a Polander, aged 18, was shot through the right temple and killed early Wednesday morning by one of his countrymen. He and a large number of Polanders had been to a dance and during the evening two fellows had some trouble over a girl. On the way home the two became enraged and one shot at the other man and killed Peter Cordus. Several persons have been arrested, but the one who did the shooting has not been captured.

KILLED BY A TRAIN.

Two Michigan Men Meet an Awful Fate While Trying to Cross the Track.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Jan. 7.—Arthur Powell and Herbert Hierons, residents of Edwardsburg, Mich., were killed Saturday night near that place by passenger train No. 7 on the Chicago & Grand Trunk, bound for Chicago. They and one other man were in a road cart crossing the track in front of an engine. The other man is unknown. He fell out of the back of the cart and saved himself.

Aid Unevenly Distributed.

LANSING, Jan. 5.—The secretary of the relief committee for Gogebic county, in the upper peninsula mining district, reports that enough in sight to take the county through January and February. Other sections are not so well supplied, however. Gov. Rich is in receipt of an urgent appeal for aid from Dickinson county, there being a lack of both food and clothing, and county funds are wholly exhausted.

Seized on an Execution.

KALAMAZOO, Jan. 6.—Leroy Cahill's fine city residence, worth $30,000, and valuable farming lands in Portage township, this county, were seized on an execution to satisfy a judgment in favor of Mrs. Frances Hull against the City Electric Light company for $10,535. Mr. Cahill is president of the company, and the wealthiest man in Kalamazoo.

Alger for the Senate.

DETROIT, Jan. 8.—The Detroit Tribune, the leading republican newspaper of Michigan, publishes a column double-leaded editorial advocating the election of a legislature this year favorable to the choice of Gen. Russell A. Alger for United States senator to succeed Senator McMillan.

A UNION OF UNIONS.

Ancient Order of Loyal Americans Has Ambitious Aims.

LANSING, Jan. 5.—A meeting of a majority of the national committee of the Ancient Order of Loyal Americans was held here Thursday. It is claimed that the new organization was born at the Palmer house, Chicago, last week by representatives of thirty-seven states. The national officers are: Grand commander, D. A. Reynolds, Michigan; grand adjutant, C. Vincent, Indiana; grand quartermaster, J. J. England, Michigan; grand chaplain, Rev. Myron Reid, Colorado; grand ensign, S. P. Piersol, West Virginia; grand sentinel, W. C. Bateman, Maine. The organization will be semi-military, non-partisan and non-sectarian, with all loyal American citizens above 16 years eligible to membership. Its purpose is a union of all the industrial organizations of the country, and will be aggressive instead of defensive. The work of organization will commence in all states at noon January 15.

TO CHANGE A COUNTY SEAT.

St. Joseph Offered the Berrien Buildings for $10,000 and a Site.

ST. JOSEPH, Jan. 6.—The fight waged for the last two decades over the removal of the county seat of Berrien county from Berrien Springs to some more accessible point in the county is on again this time in a shape that promises to succeed. The contest for the honors seems to be solely between Niles, the metropolis of the county, and St. Joseph. Niles started in with an offer of $50,000 and a site for the county buildings, while St. Joseph, feeling herself secure because of her proximity to a majority of the voters of the county, made no pledges. Friday at Berrien Springs the board of supervisors, after considering the claims of the rival cities, voted, 18 to 8, to submit a proposition to remove the county seat from Berrien Springs to St. Joseph to a vote of the people at the spring election in April, conditional that St. Joseph give $10,000 and a site.

LYMAN D. NORRIS.

Death at Grand Rapids of a Prominent Lawyer and Politician.

GRAND RAPIDS, Jan. 7.—Lyman D. Norris, one of the most prominent lawyers and politicians of Michigan, died Saturday morning. He was born in Covington, N. Y., his father subsequently moving to Ypsilanti. Lyman entered the University of Michigan in 1841. He completed his education at Yale, then studied law in Detroit. For a time he was political editor and part proprietor of the St. Louis Times. Mr. Norris moved to Grand Rapids in 1875, and for several years he was in partnership with Edwin F. Uhl. He has served in the state senate, was a member of the constitutional convention in 1865, and in 1883 was appointed regent of the State university. He was one of the best known members of the Michigan bar.

Kalamazoo College Prosperous.

KALAMAZOO, Jan. 5.—The winter term of the Kalamazoo college opens with 155 students. Prof. Perry F. Trowbridge, formerly assistant in chemistry at the University of Michigan, succeeds Prof. Wilson in the chair of mathematics, the latter having resigned to accept the position of principal of the Marinette (Wis.) high school. The finances of the college are reported in excellent condition.

Jessieville Suffers by Fire.

IRONWOOD, Jan. 8.—Fire broke out in the business portion of Jessieville Sunday morning, destroying the store buildings occupied by Joseph Borgo, a saloon keeper, William Muck, grocer, and D. A. Kennedy, contractor. Borgo owned the three burned buildings, and his loss will be heavy, as he carried little insurance. Muck's store was insured for $1,500.

Eight Years for Manslaughter.

FLINT, Jan. 5.—Judge Wisner sentenced Robert Nixon to the state house of correction and reformatory at Ionia for eight years. Nixon pleaded guilty to a charge of manslaughter. He was implicated with John Elder in the saloon row which caused the death of Charles London. It was the first sentence passed by the new judge.

To Build a New Courthouse.

JACKSON, Jan. 8.—At a meeting of the board of supervisors a proposition was introduced to bond the county for $75,000 to be expended in building a new courthouse building, to be located on the site of the present building, and in remodeling the building now occupied by the county offices.

BURNED TO DEATH.

Three Helpless Beings Meet a Shocking Fate.

An Old Lady and Her Daughter Cremated in Their Beds at New Richmond—A Paralytic in Kalamazoo Fatally Burned.

VICTIMS OF FIRE.

SAUGATUCK, Jan. 8.—Mrs. Rouse, an old lady feeble in mind and body, and her demented daughter, aged 21 years, were burned to death in their beds at New Richmond, 8 miles from here. They were alone in a small, one-story building, and it is supposed they were suffocated before they could make their escape amid the flames. When the fire was discovered by neighbors it was too late to render assistance, although the struggling form of the girl could be seen on the bed.

KALAMAZOO, Jan. 8.—Mrs. Morris Hadden, aged 55 years, while alone was stricken with paralysis and knocked the lamp off the table, breaking it and setting fire to her clothing, which was entirely burned from her body. She lived until Thursday morning in terrible agony.

JUDGE LONG'S PENSION.

Commissioner Lochren Decides That He Cannot Withhold It Longer.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 6.—The commissioner of pensions has decided, in view of the passage of the act of December 21, 1898, declaring pensions a vested right, that he no longer has the right to withhold the pension of Judge Long, of Michigan, and has accordingly ordered that the suspension of his pension be removed.

The commissioner has sent Judge Long notice informing him that it appears from medical evidence on file that he is not disabled from the effects of loss of his left arm above the elbow and gunshot wound of his left hip to such a degree as to require the regular and constant personal aid and attendance of another person so as to entitle him to $72 per month, the rate of pension which he is now receiving, and stating that the pension will be reduced to $50 per month unless satisfactory evidence within thirty days shall be furnished to show that he is so disabled from the pensioned causes alone as to require the regular and constant personal aid and attendance of another person.

AN HONOR TO THE STATE.

Dedication of the Woman's Annex to the Michigan Soldiers' Home.

GRAND RAPIDS, Jan. 4.—The woman's annex to the Soldiers' home was dedicated Wednesday. The building was accepted by Gov. Rich, and Col. John Atkinson, of Detroit, delivered the address of the day. Many prominent citizens witnessed the exercises, among them ex-Govs. Winans, Begole, Jerome and Felch; Mrs. A. T. Bliss, president of the Woman's Relief Corps; Gen. Kidd, commander of the Michigan grand army; Past Commander Dean and Louis Kaintz, of Michigan. At night the citizens gave the visitors a banquet, at which Thomas D. Gilbert acted as toastmaster. Mayor Stewart gave the address of welcome, Gov. Rich responded, and the ex-governors and others responded to toasts. The new building is of red brick, and cost $13,000. It is designed as a home for the widows, wives, mothers and minor children of veterans, and is near the Soldiers' home.

EVERYTHING MORTGAGED.

Owners of the Defunct Galesburg Bank May Be Prosecuted.

KALAMAZOO, Jan 5.—There is strong talk of criminal proceedings against Olmsted & Storms, the owners of the broken Galesburg bank. Several New York drafts have been returned dishonored. They were issued after the bankers must have known themselves insolvent. John Schroder, a merchant, had deposited $200 borrowed money in the bank just before the crash, and lost it all. Storms is village treasurer, and village orders are dishonored. He resigned, but his resignation was not accepted, and an accounting is demanded. As the school funds were also in the bank, a severe stringency is imposed on the village. The failure is complete. Even the bank safe is heavily mortgaged.

Explosion at Flint.

FLINT, Jan. 8.—At about 3 o'clock Sunday morning an explosion occurred in Wilson's hardware store, which was the first that has ever taken place in this city. The cause is not known, but it is supposed that fire started in the cellar, causing a large amount of dynamite and turpentine to explode. It wrecked the whole building with its entire stock. The total loss will be about $15,000.

Iron Ore Mines Idle.

NEGAUNEE, Jan. 5.—The fires have been drawn from the boilers of the Davis mine engines in this city, and now the property is entirely idle. Work has also been suspended at that portion of the Lake Superior hematite mines in Ishpeming which produces non-Bessemer ore, and as a consequence about fifty men are thrown out of employment.

Flames Destroy a Hotel.

TAWAS CITY, Jan. 5.—The Strong house at East Tawas, with fixtures, was burned Thursday morning. The building was rebuilt last spring, and was owned by A. G. Van Wey of this village and occupied by P. Bouyette. It was valued at about $4,000, and insured for $2,000. Mr. Bouyette had $2,000 insurance on the furniture, which was about half its value.

Bought a Furniture Factory.

GRAND RAPIDS, Jan. 6.—The extensive furniture plant of Nelson Matter & Co., which was bid in by the local banks at the receiver's sale, has been purchased for $140,000 above the mortgages, or about half the actual value of the property. It is the intention to start the factory as soon as the United States court shall ratify the sale.

GUARANTEED CURE.

We authorize our advertised druggist to sell Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, upon this condition: If you are afflicted with a Cough, Cold, or any Lung, Throat or Chest trouble, and will use this remedy as directed, giving it a fair trial, and experience no benefit, you may return the bottle and have your money refunded. We could not make this offer did we not know that Dr. King's New Discovery could be relied on. It never disappoints. Trial bottles free at J. J. Orr's Drug Store. Large size 50c and $1.00 2

Why should Chicago policemen fear a smallpox sufferer? They can't catch anything.

With many clergymen, public speakers, singers, and actors, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is the favorite remedy for hoarseness and all affections of the vocal organs, throat, and lungs. Its anodyne and expectorant effects are promptly realized.

Boss McKane might engage Dr. Parkhurst to run his Sunday school when he goes to keep that engagement with a Long Island turnkey.

Mrs. Lease knows now how a "statesman out of a job" feels. She should compare notes with John James Ingalls.

HOOD'S AND ONLY HOOD'S

Hood's Sarsaparilla is carefully prepared from sarsaparilla, Dandelion, Mandrake, Dock, Pipelssewa, Juniper berries and other well known remedies, by a peculiar combination, proportion and process, giving to Hood's Sarsaparilla curative powers not possessed by other medecines. It effects remarkable cures when other preparations fail.

Many women, who were terrible sufferers from periodical headaches or other nervous troubles peculiar to women, have found relief in Dr. Wheeler's Nerve Vitalizer. The Doctor will gladly give advice free of charge. Sold by J. J. Orr, Tecumseh.

FAIL TO DO THEIR DUTY.

Everybody has at times failed to do their duty toward themselves. Hundreds of lady readers suffer from sick headache, nervousness, sleeplessness and female troubles. Let them follow the example of Mrs. H. Herbechter, Stevens Point, Wis., who for five years suffered greatly from Nervous Prostration and sleeplessness, tried physicians and different medicines without success But one bottle of Dr. Miles' Nervine caused sound sleep every night and she is feeling like a new person. Mrs. Elizabeth Wheeler, Laramie City, Wyoming, who tried all other remedies, declares that after three week's use of Nerrine for headache, nervous prostration, etc., she was entirely relieved. Sold by Baker & Hall, Druggists. Trial bottle free. 1

CLINTON, MICH., JAN. 11, 1894.

S. C. Stacy was here yesterday.

The winter term of school began last Monday.

C. F. Field, of Tecumseh, was in town yesterday.

Ora VanGelson is very sick with a relapse of mumps.

Frank Thompson was a Tecumseh visitor yesterday.

Mrs. Bert Tate spent yesterday with Tecumseh friends.

John Jacobs, of Cal., is visiting Clinton friends this week.

John Wallace has bargained for the farm of Mrs. C. L. Draper.

Chas. Thompson is numbered among the mump victims this week.

J. M. Jones, Tecumseh's merchant tailor, was in town yesterday.

Mrs. C. C. Rowland has been seriously ill with the grip, but is improving.

M. Merriman, of Manchester, visited Mrs. E. P. Felton, last week Friday.

Rev. Geo. P. Wright, of Denver, Col., is visiting in Clinton and Bridgewater.

Mr. and Mrs. Burt Kempton, of North Adams, were the guests of W. B. Keyser over Sunday.

Miss Lizzie Kirk, who has been in Detroit for several weeks, returned last week.

Kirk Logan has rented Chas. Bostedor's farm and will move thereon in the spring.

Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Kimball and daughter spent Saturday and Sunday at Milburn Keyser's.

D. H. Davis returned to Chicago Monday to finish his studies. When he returns it will be as a full fledged D. D. S.

The Sunday School of St. John's Church, sent last week a box of groceries and clothing to a parish at Iron Mountain, Mich.

Master Ned Whittelsey is to accompany his uncle, Mr. Fred Whittelsey, of Toledo, on a visit to W. S. Whittelsey, at Eddy, New Mexico.

Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Smith entertained about twenty friends at dinner last Thursday. Mrs. Smith gave a 1 o'clock lunch the following Saturday.

The regular meeting of the Golden Rod Chaper, No. 85, occurs on Wednesday evening, January 17th. Members are requested to meet a 7 p. m. sharp.

Mr. Theike, who rents Ed Williamson's farm, on the town line west of the village, has a nephew from Ohio, visiting him, who is looking for a farm to locate on.

Ed L. Clapp, who is spending the winter in Florida, writes that he is living on oranges, bananas and tomatoes, and is raising celery. His health is much improved.

A piano has been sent here from Ollie Hunt's music rooms for the use of St. Ambrose Society. It will be used in the eight hand selections to be given at the public musicale early in February.

The prevailing hard times have not effected Clinton very severely. Only three persons are receiving aid from the poormaster, out of a population of nearly 1,500 people in the village and township.

C. S. Burroughs is still locating town sites in Oklahoma, but gives no intimation as to when he will return. He is getting tired of Indian fare, sand storms and Winchesters, and writes: "Old Lenawee is good enough for me."

The first number of the Clinton Christain Endeavor, made its appearance last Saturday. It is a neat little monthly, published in the interest of the Congregational church and the Y. P. S. C. E. We hope it may be a fixture here.

Mr. Clark, a senior at the State University, has a thesis to write on electric lighting. He wants the Council to grant him permission to make a practical and critical test of our plant, in order to test its efficiency and obtain statistics therefrom. The Council will probably grant his request.

A shaft broke in the Woolen Mill yesterday morning which will necessitate the suspension of work in four rooms for several days until a new shaft can be put in. The mill is receiving a good run of orders now, and have plenty of work on hand, hence the repairs will be made as speedily as possible.

Alfred Kelly died suddenly Tuesday, morning of hemorraghe of the lungs. He lived only twenty minutes after the bleeding began. He leaves a wife and one child to mourn his sudden death. The employees of the Woolen Mill raised a purse, aggregating over seventy dollars, for the benefit of the family.

The Congregational society will give a World's Fair entertainment at the Town Hall next Wednesday evening. The program will consist of patriotic music and contributions from various Fair visitors, both original and otherwise. It will be a novel and undoubtedly a delightful entertainment and should be well patronized.

The Clinton Plow Co. is shut down this week, occasioned by a break in the boiler. It has been decided to repair the present boiler and thus save considerable time. Orders are coming in freely for the spring trade and hence every day's lost time counts. The firm expect to resume operations with their full force next week. The foundry is turning out about fifty plows at present each week.

Lieut. L. H. Salsbury walked into his office the other morning and found an elegant new-fangled, double-back action office chair placed in front of his desk. There is no clue to the identity of the donor, but Mr. Salsbury strongly suspects County Clerk Ira Waterman of the job, for the reason that that sarcastic individual had previously made so much fun of the creaking wreck which had for so long afforded uncomfortable accommodation to the attorney's frame.

State of Michigan, County of Lenawee, ss.

At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Lenawee, holden at the probate Office, in the City of Adrian, on Monday the eighth day of January, in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety four.

Present—RICHARD B. ROBBINS, Judge of Probate

In the matter of the Estate of Cornelius Hoagland deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Charles Burridge, executor of the last will and testament and upon the estate of said deceased, alleging that the funeral expenses and debts of said deceased and the expenses of Administration thus far incurred, have been fully paid, and that he is now ready to render first annual account, and praying that said account may be allowed, and for such other order and decree as to this Court shall seem proper,

It is Ordered, That Monday the Fifth day of February next, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court, then to be holden at the Probate Office in the City of Adrian, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is Further Ordered, That said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate, of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in The Tecumseh Herald, a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee; for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

State of Michigan, County of Lenawee, ss.

At a session of the Probate Court for the county of Lenawee, holden at the Probate Office in the City of Adrian, on Tuesday, the 9th day of January, in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-four.

Present, Richard B. Robbins, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Ebenezer Harmon, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of James Harmon, a son of said deceased, praying for the probate of an instrument now on file in this Court, purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased, and that administration of said estate may be granted to petitioner and Anson Harmon, the executors in said instrument named, or to some other suitable person.

It is ordered, that Monday, the 5th day of February next, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court, then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Tecumseh Herald, a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

BRITTON BUDGET.

Mrs. S. C. Spitler, after a ten day's illness, is convalescing.

Read Lenardson Bros.' new ad. in the lower corner of this page.

Mr. Lewis Martin, of Mason, visited at Asel Russell's last Tuesday.

Chas. Hoagland and family visited O. B. Lenardson and family Sunday.

At present writing, the 17th., John Zeluff is under the doctor's care with the grip.

N. H. Ackley is making an addition to his residence by a large, commodious summer kitchen.

Uncle Billy Cornell returned from his visit with his son, Manuel, at Grand Crossing, Ill., last Monday evening.

Mrs. W. J. Helm and children left Saturday for a visit with her parents, at Franklin, returning Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Pocklington, of Ridgeway, visited their daughter, Mrs. A. Russell, and family the fore part of the week.

Milo Osterhout and wife, after a few days' visit with friends and relatives in Hillsdale county, returned home Tuesday evening.

Wonder where that college student was last week Tuesday evening that he missed the midnight train for Adrian: also that Jr. sorgum manufacturer.

A good crowd attended the supper at the church parlors last week Wednesday. Notwithstanding the low price the receipts were something over $5.00.

The infant son of M. L. Gillen, born last Thursday evening is quite low at present with inflamation of the eyes and fears are entertained for its recovery.

After a thorough papering and painting and a neat job by the carpenter, Link's restaurant is again in an apple-pie order of neatness; ready as ever to accommodate the hungry public.

The lecture, Holland and Her People, by Rev. S. Rederus, which was recently postponed will be held in the De Spelder Reformed church, followed by a social, Tuesday, Jan. 23, at 7 p. m.

They say that one of our citizens was almost sick last Thursday night, supposed to be the effect of the reported Smith failure. It wasn't the lost Charlie Ross who was lost this time either.

We understand that Geo. Clark has a new, double action, self cocker which he keeps handy by at night and we respectfully warn the would be road agents to be wary when he attempts to get George's cash.

We understand that L. A. Brown's term with Lee Bros. has expired. Just what business Mr. Brown will enter into here we are not able to say, but trust we may still be permitted to behold his beaming countenance and hear his hearty laugh among us.

W. J. Helm posts a placard informing the public that he will sell his entire stock of whips at one-fourth off for the balance of the month. Now bad boys and girls at school, look out, for while whips are cheap you can expect a new one every day.

All officers of Hendershot Tent No. 467, K. O. T. M., with the exception of finance keeper, were duly installed at their tent last Tuesday evening. All Sir Knights with their families were present and enjoyed the evening as duly becomes a Maccabee.

The installation of the officers of Eaton Post, G. A. R., No. 222 took place at their headquarters last Saturday night. All veterans with their families were present to partake of the bountiful repast following the installation, after which the orchestra struck up and the younger ones present enjoyed a short and lively dance.

MACON MUSIC.

Vern Sage was an Ypsilanti visitor last week.

Charles Morgan returned from Ann Arbor last Friday, where he has been on jury.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bangs, of Tecumseh, spent Sunday with J. Harring and family.

Mrs. Enoch Carter has been very sick with the grip. She is a little better at the present writing.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Avery are rejoicing over a pair of twin boys that came to their home last week.

Mr. Berger, living east of the village, died Monday morning. He had been a great sufferer from Bright's disease.

Remember that Wolfenbarger and Huckins will be at the Grange Hall Jan 25th. They should be greeted with a full house so let everybody go.

The victims of grip at present writing are as follows: Mrs. H. M. Pennington, Mr. and Mrs. Will Chambers, Ezra Betzer and wife, Mrs. Merritt, Frank Morgan and Parker Allen.

Rev. J. I. Gulick accepts a joke as good-naturedly as any of us but he objected to having his horse and carriage wired in the church sheds and his blankets and robes hid, so he tied his horse quite a distance out of town and walked in during the week of prayer service. It speaks well for some of the young men in our village.

The prohibition club of Macon have engaged the celebrated orator, Mr. A. G. Wolfenbarger, and the equally famous singer, Prof. Huckins, to come to Grange Hall on Thursday, Jan. 25th. These men have just returned from the red hot campaign in Canada, and the mighty temperance victories over there were due, in part at least, to their efforts.

The thief who stole a trombone was not a high-toned thief.

RIDGEWAY RAMBLES.

Druggist Temple went to Detroit on business Friday.

Alfred James, of Tecumseh, was in the village Saturday.

Miss Tillie McCutcheon, of Britton, visited Clara Shaler, over Sunday.

Carrie Holloway, of Rome Center, visited her grandparents, the first of the week.

Mrs. Ed Freer, of Mason, is visiting with her sister, Mrs. F. E. Pocklington, this week.

Almerion Curry is visiting relatives and friends at Milan and Ann Arbor this week.

Mr. W. B. Smith and wife, of St. Johns, are visiting relatives and old neighbors in the village.

Maud Sutton, of Rea, was the guest of Elmer Linn, at the home of his parents, from Saturday until Tuesday.

Grace and Blanch Harrington, of Blissfield, spent Saturday and Sunday with their brother and friends.

The closing of the elevator here is causing quite a commotion among some of our farmers, who had grain there and not received all their pay.

Sam Foote, who has been spending several months visiting with relatives near Lodi, N. Y., returned home Wednesday of last week, accompanied by his uncle, J. W. Foote, who is visiting his brother Charles, at present.

A purely home made conundrum has been orginated by a young lady of this city. Why is Adrian like heaven? Because here as in heaven, we are not given in marriage.—Michigan Messenger. There are several young ladies in our village who have been waiting for the bridegroom, lo these many years.

On next Thursday evening Hon. A. G. Wolfenbarger, the great national temperance orator, and Prof. A. B. Huckins, the celebrated temperance vocal solist, will be at the Macon Grange Hall. Admission, free, and it is hoped that a large attendance will greet these gentlemen in their first appearance here.

MANCHESTER MATTERS.

Whooping cough prevails at Iron Creek.

Miss Ida Silkworth is quite sick with erysipelas.

Rev. H. A. Miller and wife are attending school at Hillsdale.

A Bay View reading circle has been organized in this village.

Cass Alvord, of Liberty, is the guest of his brother, D. M. Alvord, this week.

Spencer Carr and family visited in Ann Arbor last Thursday, returning Friday.

Miss Grace Smith entertained her friend, Miss Mills, of Saline, Saturday and Sunday.

The Epworth League held a social on Wednesday evening at the residence of C. L. Torrey.

Miss Matie Smith, who has been in Tecumseh for some time, is visiting at her grandfather's J. R. Holmes.

School Boards and Tardy Rules.

Among the rules adopted by one of the school boards at Blissfield were the following:

Rule 16. Pupils are expected to present excuses for absence or tardiness at the first session which they attend after such absence or tardiness, and neglecting to do so, may be sent for such excuse, except when the weather is such that it would occasion an exposure of the pupils' health.

Rule 17 No mere statement that the parent or guardian has kept the pupil at home shall be accepted by the teacher as an excuse for tardiness or absence; unless it shall appear that sickness or some other urgent reason, rendering attendance impossible or extremely inconvenient, has detained the pupil, the excuse shall not be deemed satisfactory.

The Advance says some of the parents questioned the right of the board to enforce these rules, and refused to comply with the same. A copy of the rules was submitted to Attorney General Ellis, calling attention to the rules in question, and he gave it as his opinion that the school board have the legal right to enforce the same, and cited a number of cases that had been tried and the school boards were sustained.

BEWARE OINTMENTS FOR CATARRH THAT CONTAIN MERCURY,

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co., Testimonials free.

School Notes.

German II have started to study Wilhelm Tell.

German II are having grammer lessons at present.

There are 51 foreign pupils in attendance this term.

Eva Camburn, of Franklin, started in the C room Jan. 2.

The professor from Blissfield visited the high school Tuesday.

Henry Luce and Zena Bailey, of Franklin, have left school.

Edward Corey returned to school Tuesday after a week's illness.

Mrs. Welling and Mrs. Montgomery called on the high school one day last week.

Arthur Strong, Andrew Kehoe, Glenn Jackson and Herbert Munger entered school Jan. 2.

The lyceum was held last Friday. It did not take place on Dec. 21 on account of the sickness of the officers.

The class in general history had an examination in ancient history last Friday. They are now studying mediaeval history.

Four tables in the different high school rooms and an extra seat in the office accommodate those who cannot be provided with regular seats.

Misses Hartbeck and Grant went Monday in the Detroit High School. Miss Ingersoll at Dundee and Prof. Kellogg at Adrian, looking over high school work.

The fifty-seventh anniversary of Michigan's admission to statehood will be observed by the high school on the 25th. inst., the regular day, the 26th., being examination day.

A New Year's Magazine.

Frank R. Stockton, in his own delightfull humorous way continues to make the irrepressible "Pomona" interesting in the second installment of her correspondence with her old "Rudder Grange" mistress. These letters, under the title of "Pomona's Travels," can only be found in the January Ladies' Home Journal. Mrs. Burton Kingsland strikes the key-note of the times by giving some very practical suggestions for a new form of entertainment under the title of "Fifty-Cent Luncheon Clubs." "How I Became an Actress" is the theme of a most valuable bit of autobiography from the pen of Adelaide Ristori de Grillo. A sketch, with portraits, of Mrs. Donelson Wilcox, who was born in the White House during the administration of Andrew Jackson, and whom he affectionately termed "The Sunshine of the White House," furnishes the biography. The second installment of Mr. William Dean Howell's "My Literary Passions" is as full of interest as the first and as well worth reading. The editor discusses with much earnestness the vexed question of the education of our American girls. Miss Julia Magruder's delightful serial, "A Beautiful Alien," which grows in charm and interest as it proceeds, furnishes the fiction. The four prize hymns to which were awarded the prizes in "The Journal's Musical Series" of last year, are given in their entirety.

Table Talk.

Table Talk announces in its prospectus for the coming year that additional advantages and redoubled effort will achieve for it a higher standard than ever before: its aim and its motto are still, "The best among household magazines." It will present, in the culinary department, every novelty, all new dishes both Foreign and American, together with practical menus for each month and the "Inquiry Department" will as heretofore, be open Free to all subscribers, and questions answered, receipts given, in the well-known, practical way so helpful to housekeepers. "The New Bill of Fare" will be replete with the latest styles of table decorations and service, decorative meals and many points pleasant to know culled from the social side of woman's life, old English plate (the present popular fancy) and its "hall marks," as well as American potteries will be treated. The fashion articles and general reading never fail to interest, instruct and enable many busy women to keep up with the times as well as lighten household duties. Published by Table Talk Publishing Co., Philadelphia Pa. at $1.00 per year. Sample copy free.

"How About the Weather?"

The Weekly Courier-Journal, published at Louisville, Ky., delights in keeping its subscribers guessing. In addition to being the greatest Democratic newspaper published, it has been a pioneer in enterprises that require thought and figuring on the part of its subscribers. The Weekly's estimating contest on the election in 1892, by which $14,400 in gold coin were distributed among 45 guessers, is a sample of this. The latest guessing offer of this paper is on the weather—that one subject on which we all consider ourselves prophets. The Weekly Courier-Journal proposes to give $1,000 in cash to its subscribers who can name the coldest day in the month of February, 1894, at Louisville, Ky., and guess closest to the lowest temperature on this day. The contest closes January 31, 1894. Every new subscriber who sends $1 can make one guess; and every old subscriber who renews, sending $1, can guess. Send for a sample copy of the paper for full particulars. Write at once, as the time is short.

COUNTY FARMERS' INSTITUTE.

President Horton and Secretary Allis have prepared the following questions to be treated at the coming Farmer's Institute, Jan. 24, 25 and 26. It is hoped each one will closely scan the topics presented, and be prepared to assist in the discussions. Please remember also that all will be so interspersed as to make it of equal interest from beginning to end. It is hoped by your assistance to make this the best institute ever held in Adrian and that you may so arrange as not to miss a session.

The Housewife.

We take pleasure in noting that The Housewife, the Ladies' Home Monthly published at 81 Warren street, New York City, has been greatly improved by its new owners and is the best 2 cent monthly that comes to our exchange table. It contains trustworthy advice on the vital interests of home, on health, housekeeping, education and things which make life pleasant. Readers will find no better work, no better writers in their special departments anywhere that those appearing in the Housewife monthly. Subscription price for this magazine is but 50 cents a year. Agents and subscribers receive acceptable premiums. Christmas is coming and many of our lady acquaintances will have a good chance of procuring some valuable presents with very little work. We are sure the publishers, The Housewife Corporation, will be pleased to send sample copies to any one asking for them. Send them a postal card.

TECUMSEH, MICH., JAN. 18, 1894.

Read our announcement for 1894, select the papers you want and then order them at the HERALD office.

Gov. Waite, of Colorado, says: "We stand on the brink." The governor has been standing there for some time, and the wonder is that he has'nt dropped off into the drink long ago.

Chicago never does anything by halves. The big ton fire on the shore of Lake Michigan shows what Chicago can do to furnish fun for the boys, when you give her a chance.

The New York Sun does not like the Wilson tariff bill. The sun has never supported a bill for revenue reform. It claims to be a democrat paper, but it is always found working for the tariff barons.

When a member of Congress elected as a democrat will join the "filibusters" in an effort to retain some of the most obnoxious features of the McKinley tariff, it affords pretty strong proof of the correctness of Gen. Hancock's theory, that the tariff is a local question.

It must be pretty close times down in Georgia. Here is an advertisement that recently appeared in a Macon, Ga., paper: "For sale—One monument situated in Riverside cemetery, Bibb county, Georgia, with granite base and figure on top."

Our combination offer with The Voice is a very attractive one. We furnish the HERALD, the Voice and Martyn's Life of Wendell Phillips—full value $3.00—for only $2.00 cash in advance. Our prohibition friends should take advantage of this.

The big tariff debate is now fairly on in the House, and the country will be treated to the pro and con of the tariff question for the balance of January. Let the orators on both sides call in. No one objects to full and free debate, but the people are in no mood to stand any filibustering or delay.

Americans may differ and dispute about what should be done with Hawaii, but if any foreign government should attempt to put its fingers into this pie, the people would cease quarreling very quickly and raise a unanimous shout of "hands off." No foreign nation can control Hawaii that is certain.

Harper's Weekly calls it the "odious income tax." We notice that the Eastern papers are very generally opposed to paying their share of federal taxation. Any new tax is odious to the persons who are called upon to pay it. But is there any good reason why Eastern capitalists should not pay their fair proportion of the taxes? The income tax is coming.

We make two additions to our combination offers this week. One is the Voice offer by which our subscribers get the HERALD, the Voice and a life of Wendell Phillips, the three for $2.00. The other is a combination with "Coin" a new and very able monthly published by the Bimetallic League, at fifty cents a year. The Herald and Coin will be sent for $1.25, both papers.

Henry Watterson is responsible for this advice to Congressmen: "The Democrats have a majority in the House of Representatives so large that any delay of the public business for want of a quorum will be laid at their doors. The Tariff bill must be passed promptly, and in order to pass it promply the Democrats will have to stick to their posts. The Congressman, who idles away the nation's time at such a crisis, assumes a grave responsibility for himself and his party.

The Philadelphia Times says: Congress must stop fooling on the tariff unless the Democratic leaders want to bring the Democracy into irretrievable contempt. The record of last week is not only disgraceful to the party; it is disgraceful to the nation, and greatly depressing to all business interests. The business of the country is waiting on Congress: it cannot be quickened or confidence in any degree restored until the tariff policy of the government shall have been determined. The people are prepared for tariff reform, but they want it at once, so that there can be prompt adjustment to the new conditions and a prompt adjustment of our industries.

We invite the attention of our readers to our great "Art Portfolio" offer, which will be given to all HERALD patrons at a mere nominal cost. As new names are coming in quite freely during January, we have concluded to postpone the printing of the coupons for two weeks. The first coupon will appear on Thursday, Feb. 1st., and we shall have a supply of part first on hand at that time.

Political wonders will never cease. Andrew Carnegie has written a letter to the New York Tribune, in which he takes the position that the Wilson bill ought to pass. His letter concludes as follows: "What seems most desirable to the interests of manufacturers of the United States is that a tariff bill should be passed by the Democratic party, and, thereby, that the suspicion that even one 'robber tariff baron' exists in the broad domain of the Republic cannot remain in the mind of the most ignorant citizen. I for one am quite ready to accept greatly reduced duties—judiciously framed—to accomplish this result.

There seems to be more probability of a genuine fist-fight in the House than one at Jacksonville. Newspaper readers know that the sobriquet "cuckoo" has been applied to what are known as the thick and thin administration men in both House and Senate. Well, one of them—Representative Tracy, of New York—has tired of the fun and publicly announced his intention to slap the face of the next man who refers to him, in his hearing, as a "cuckoo," and he is just the sort of fellow who always lives up to his announcements. If some belligerent anti-administration man in the House wants to engage in a scrapping match all he has to do is to knock this "cuckoo" chip off Mr. Tracy's shoulder.

The man who attempted to make up his mind on the tariff from the debate in the house this week, if there be any such individual, must find himself "between the devil and the deep sea." The administration democrats declare the Wilson bill to be the one thing needed to give the country back prosperity; the republicans that it is bound to make the hard times worse; the democrats who believe in protection for their own districts but not for the other fellows say it will be all right if the particular amendments they advocate are added before it becomes a law, and Tom Johnson, of Ohio, says: "The voice is Jacob's voice, but the hands are the hands of Esau," and that the bill is "an evasion of promise and a political blunder of the gravest kind, a confession that the democratic party lacks courage and honesty. Mr. Johnson advocates the abolishment of every custom house. In view of these varied statements it would seem that it was just as well that the general debate in the House was limited to one week.

In commenting on the new tariff bill, Harper's Weekly says: The tariff bill reported by the Committee on Ways and Means is in one sense a moderate measure, in another sense, a radical measure. Compared with the tariffs under which we lived and prospered for many years before the civil war, it leaves us still with a very high degree of protection. Compared with the tariffs of countries like France and Germany, in which there has been of late years so distinct a revival of protection, it is also a strongly protectionist measure. Compared with the completely non-protective tariff of England, its duties are immoderately high. But compared with the McKinley tariff act, it is, in one respect at least, a radical measure. It drops the policy of indiscriminate protection. It rests on the principle that, after all, there are some things which the country is capable of producing, but which it will nevertheless permit to be freely imported. So far as the great mass of manufactured commodities is concerned the changes in duty are not incisive; but the free admission of some important raw materials makes a radical change in policy.

The new tariff bill presented to the House of Representatives, is accompanied with an address in which the premises upon which it has been based are most luminously stated in the following paragraph: "The American people, after the fullest and most thorough debate ever given by any people to their fiscal policy, have deliberately and rightly decided that the existing tariff is wrong in principle and grievously unjust in operation. They have decided, as freemen must always decide, that the power of taxation has no lawful or constitutional exercise except for providing revenue for the support of government. Every departure from this principle is a departure from the fundamental principles of popular institutions and inevitably works out a gross inequality in the citizenship of a country. For more than thirty years we have levied the largest part of our federal taxes in violation of this vital truth until we have reached in the existing tariff an extreme and voluminous system of class taxation to which history may be challenged to furnish any parallel. So many private enterprises have been taken into partnership with the Government; so many private interests now share in the prerogative of taxing 70,000,000 of people, that any attempt to dissolve this illegal union is necessarily encountered by an opposition that rallies behind it the intolerance of monopoly, the power of concentrated wealth, the inertia of fixed habits, and the honest errors of a generation of false teaching.

FROM BAD TO WORSE.

PAT DONAN'S PESSIMISTIC VIEW OF THE COUNTRY'S FUTURE.

He Tells a Hard Luck Story—The Graveyard of Hope—A Brighter Outlook. Opinion of Conservative Men—Feeling That the Worst Has Passed.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 18.—[Special.]—Among the interesting characters now in Washington is Colonel Pat Donan. Just where Colonel Donan hails from or what he does for a living no one seems to know, but every one does know that he is one of the brightest and best informed men in the country, with characteristics all his own. Colonel Donan, usually an optimist, is now in the slough of despond. He says the country is going to the demonition bowwows, whatever they are. He was at the capitol today telling members of congress and senators that, if they only knew the truth, the country was starving while they were leisurely spending their days in vain efforts to legislate for the country's good. "Why, sir," exclaimed Colonel Donan, "the people of this country are getting down to the level of the souphouse brigade. We are becoming a nation of paupers. If matters keep on going from bad to worse, and I fear they will, we shall soon have to send our paupers to the old world in order to have them taken care of."

A Sorry Occupation.

It must be admitted that Colonel Donan is rather extreme in the views which he takes. But the point with him is that he predicted the hard times which have come upon the country, and he is now in the position of the woman who never missed an opportunity to say, "I told you so." One of the hard luck stories which the colonel has to tell, as he only can tell them, is of a letter which he recently received from the general passenger agent of one of the great transcontinental lines, with headquarters at San Francisco. "I have nothing to do from morning till night," wrote this general passenger agent, "but sit in my office and listen to the appeals of people who are starving to death in the west, and who want to get back east to sponge off relatives or friends who are nearly as bad off as they are. If we were to furnish transportation for all the people who ask us for free rides to the east, we should be sending a dozen special trains across the country every day."

Colonel Donan adds to this a sentiment which does credit to his heart, even if he is somewhat too doleful in his general views of the prosperity and future of the country. He says these are times in which no man has a right to save money, in which every surplus dollar should be given to the help of men who are less fortunate, and who are suffering for the necessities of life. "The west, from the Missouri river to the Pacific," says Colonel Donan, "is a graveyard of fortunes, of expectations, almost of hope. I fear that it will be 20 years before we rally from this paralysis."

Signs of Improvement.

This extreme view as to the future of the country is not indorsed by many of the well informed public men to be found here. Irrespective of what congress does with the tariff or with the merits of that much discussed question, they say we have reached the darkest hour of the industrial night. Already there are signs of improvement. There is no real good reason for a prolonged period of industrial stagnation. It was a wave of lack of confidence which swept over the country last summer, and from which we have not recovered. Manufacturing has been suspended on account of the lack of confidence in a market and by reduced earnings has led to smaller consumption. But the period of enforced idleness must soon come to an end.

The amount of reduction in the consumption of various manufactured articles and products cannot be very great compared to the whole output, and the time will soon be here when consumption will have overtaken production. Then the mills will have to start in order to catch up. Moreover, the tariff question will be, at least temporarily settled one way or the other, and that will give a feeling of relief and of greater confidence. These are the views one hears expressed by a large number of the more conservative men—men who are, through their correspondence and acquaintance, in close touch with the people of the country.

A Clearing House of Feeling.

Perhaps there is no better place in the United States to catch the temper of the people of this entire country than the house of representatives. There are 350 men who by tradition and actually represent the people. They are in close touch with the people. They get every day thousands of letters from men in all conditions of life and from every part of the country. They hear from the capitalists, the men of large interests, as well as from the merchants, the mechanics, the editors, the laboring men. They are able to form a pretty good idea of the temper and feeling of the people. Again, these representatives talk with one another about their information, exchange ideas and impressions, and thus form on the floor of the house a sort of clearing house concerning the feeling of the masses of this great country such as can be found nowhere else.

Your correspondent is within the limits of truth when he says that while these congressmen do receive any number of gloomy letters concerning the situation the general tone is rather hopeful. It seems to be the widespread conviction that the worst has passed, and that with the coming of the next summer there will be a decided improvement in industrial circles, with more consumption and more employment. Bright and keen as Colonel Pat Donan is, it will be a genuine satisfaction in this instance to prove him a false prophet. Probably he would himself be glad to know that his predictions concerning the gloominess and hopelessness of the future were to turn out ill founded.

He Thought Grant Was Lazy.

H. H. Kohlsaat tells his story of his only meeting with General U. S. Grant: One day when he was 7 years old he rode into Galena with his father on a load of garden produce. They drove to the market square. "My father had received from Mr. Grant an order for a basket of vegetables," said Mr. Kohlsaat. "He told me to take the basket over to Grant's hide store. I went over there, and I remember distinctly that the hide and rolls of leather made a very bad smell. When I walked into the store, I saw a man tipped back in a chair with his feet on a stack of hides. He was smoking a cigar and reading a newspaper. I went up to him and asked him if he was Mr. Grant. He looked around and nodded his head. Then he told me to put the basket over by the counter.

"When I was going home with my father, I told him that Mr. Grant must be a lazy man. The one impression I received was that he must be a poor business man, so indolent and indifferent did he seem as he sat tipped back there smoking his cigar."—Chicago Record.

THE BIRDS OF NORTH AMERICA.

In connection with the foregoing report of our Ornithological Chapter, it is only right to call the attention of all lovers of birds to the magnificent work now being issued by the Natural Science Association of America, and entitled "The Birds of North America." Edition limited to 1,000. It is emphatically an original work, original in design and execution, and whether in letter press, illustrations or price, it is unapproached by anything of the kind in existance. It is recommended by the highest scientific, ecclesiastic and educational authority as being the most attractive, meritorious, pure and ennobling exporition of our ornithology yet given to the public. Dr. Elliott Coues, author of "Birds of the North-West," says: "It is a really notable work." Prof. C. J. Maynard, author of the "Birds of Eastern North America," says: "It contains the best pictures of the species which I have ever seen." Thos. G. Gentry, author of "Life Histories of Birds," and "Nests and Eggs of Birds of the United States," says: "It is the cheapest and best publication on ornithology in this country. The drawings are of a very high order, and rivals in beauty of design and finish the more costly works published abroad or in this country. It should be found in our homes and in libraries generally." And, according to Dr. Theodore Gill, a member of the National Academy of Sciences, "It is not only a meritorious volume, but is altogether so handsome as to make it a very appropriate presentation book or ornament for the family table." It is an imperial quarto volume of engraved figures of all our species, artistically reproduced, true in all hues of color to their natural plumage and botanical surroundings. It also includes a copious text description of their habits and characteristics, and embracing in general the observations made by the most eminent writers on ornithology, and a systematic table, arranged according to the classification adopted by the American Ornithologists' Union, includes all the additions and corrections of our North American species which have been made to date, with an index to page, plate and figure of each species according to the A. O. U. number. It is illustrated with one hundred and nineteen full page colored plates, each representing from one to thirty or more species. It is the finest book on American birds issued since Audubon, and is pronounced by some authorities superior to that now rare and costly work. It is issued in half and full bindings, Russia, seal, or morocco, at the net price of $40 and $45 respectively; but in response to a special letter, the association authorized me to say that a substantial discount will be made to such of our A. A. members and others as are working naturalists. We commend this work especially to members of the Wilson Ornithological Chapter. It is also a very useful and appropriate addition to the home and reference library, and for presentation purposes generally. Address regarding it, the Natural Science Association, 114 Fifth Avenue, New York, N. Y. Sample of plates and text can be had by sending twenty-five cents in postage stamps.

WHAT WILL DO IT?

Medical writers claim that the successful remedy for nasal catarrh must be non-irritating, easy of application, and one that will reach the remote sores and ulcerated surfaces. The history of the efforts to treat catarrh is proof positive that only one remedy has completely meet these conditions, and that is Ely's Cream Balm. The safe and pleasant remedy has mastered catarrh as nothing else has ever done, and both physicians and patients freely concede this fact. Our druggists keep it.

The Democrats have began work on the tariff bill at last, and show about as much enthusiasm over it as the small boy evinces toward the maternal slipper.

SHORTHAND WRITERS

THOUSANDS TAUGHT STENOGRAPHY EACH YEAR IN AMERICA.

A Few Experts Receive High Salaries. The Art Not a New One, as It Dates Back to Cicero, Who Used More Than 7,000 Characters—New York's Veteran.

There are more stenographers in New York and its vicinity than there are lawyers or doctors. But not all of them are competent. A first class shorthand writer is very difficult to find, and if he is a fast writer he is sure of a good salary.

Shorthand writing as a means of earning a livelihood is not as lucrative as many other callings, but it affords a young man, if he is quick witted, a fine chance to watch the internal workings of a business house, and thereby helps him toward a business education such as he could get in no other way.

The only field that is highly remunerative is law reporting, but to become competent for this work requires years of assiduous practice, and the field of employment is limited. The highest salary paid to a court stenographer in New York is in the surrogate's court. Mr. Edward F. Underhill, probably the oldest practicing stenographer in America, holds this position and receives a salary of $3,000 per year. He has been in the service since 1849.

The municipal departments and courts in New York city pay annually in salaries for stenographic services $154,000. This salary list includes 90 stenographers, 27 of whom are court reporters, each receiving $2,500, and 19 $2,000 annually as salary. In addition to this, however, all court stenographers are allowed by the code 10 cents per folio of 100 words, for furnishing copies of transcripts to the parties interested in any case when desired.

Up town at 333 West Twenty-third street the stenographers of New York have a club, where they meet each other socially. In connection with the club is a "classroom," where the members may practice the art of shorthand writing. Here nearly every evening are gathered scores of ambitious young shorthanders industriously driving their pens for love of perfection in their craft, while some one of experience reads or dictates. The classroom is provided with all the different styles of typewriting machines for the use of members when there is no dictation. The club also maintains an employment bureau. The club is open to either sex. In fact, it is the large membership of young ladies that gives zest to the social side of the club, which is one of its important features. In the winter the club gives receptions, entertainments, occasionally a dinner and once every year a ball.

In many of the public schools of the country stenography is a part of the training. An evidence of its recent remarkable growth is shown by a circular issued by the bureau of education at Washington.

Here it is shown that from July 1, 1889, to June 30, 1890, 57,375 persons received instruction in the art of shorthand in schools and colleges in the United States. Five thousand five hundred and fifty of these were in New York and Brooklyn. A similar circular was issued by the bureau in 1884, in which it was shown that during the year 1882 the number of pupils receiving such instruction was 12,470. It is therefore quite safe to say that the number for 1893 exceeded 75,000.

But this number does not take into consideration an army probably equally large who receive instruction from some other source or from professional stenographers.

Out of this vast army, however, but a very small minority are either physically or mentally qualified to become court reporters or even office amanuenses.

Cicero is said to have been the inventor of shorthand writing, and the freedman, Marcus Tullius Tiro, his friend, the first stenographer, and he undoubtedly did use a method of shorthand writing as early as 60 B. C.

The first English treatise was by Timothe Bright, entitled "An Arte of Shorte Swifte and Secrete Writing by Charactures, Inuented by Timothe Bright, Doctor of Phisike. Imprinted at London by I. Windet, the Assignee of Tim Bright, 1588. Cum priuilegio Regiae Maiestatis. Forbidding all others to print the same."

Dr. Bright in this work says: "Cicero did account it worthie his labour, and no less profitable to the Roman common weale (Most Gracious Soueraigne), to inuent a speedie kinde of wryting by character, as Plutarch reporteth in the life of Cato the younger. This invention was increased afterward by Seneca: that the number of characters grue to 7,000. Whether through inure of time, or that the men gaue it over for tediousness of learning, nothing remaineth extant of Cicero's inuention at this day."

Every stenographer who recalls the efforts required to properly master the few characters used in the art today will not wonder that of Cicero's system, with its 7,000 characters, nothing remains at this day.

It was not until 1642 that the art became of any practical use, and it was first used in the house of lords in 1699 in taking testimony in a divorce suit. Stenographers were not regularly employed in parliament, however, until 1802.—New York World.

Undaunted by Defeat.

While female suffrage has carried the day in New Zealand, it has experienced defeat in South Australia, where the adult suffrage bill, which embodied the principle, was rejected in the popular house on the third reading, but only by a narrow majority. The friends of the cause, however, are not at all discouraged and will return to the battle with undaunted spirits till victory crowns their efforts.—Melbourne Letter.

IT MIGHT HAVE BEEN.

BUT MR. CLEVELAND DID NOT CONSULT OTHERS.

A Hypothetical Hawaiian Case—A Democratic Senator Gives His Views of the President—His Strength, Wisdom, Courage and Weakness.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—It was a Democratic senator known far and wide for his shrewdness, both as a politician and money maker, who today commented on the Hawaiian policy of the administration in the following language:
"President Cleveland made a tremendous mistake in his method of applying the restorative policy even if we grant that that policy was wisely chosen. Had he decided to take counsel in a quarter that counsel was worth having, there would be a different situation today in the senate. Suppose the president, having virtually decided on the restorative business, had called Senator Morgan to the White House, showed him the Blount report and the Gresham letter and said to him:
"'Morgan, tell me what you think of it.'
"In all probability Morgan would have fenced a little till he could ascertain what the president's views were. As soon as he had found out that the president was in favor of the queen's restoration, doubtless he would have indorsed that view. Then he would have returned to the senate an advocate of the president's policy instead of being inimical or at least indifferent thereto.

He Might, but He Didn't.

"This might have made all the difference in the world. Mr. Morgan would at once have begun to talk to the rest of us, in a guarded way, of course. He would have taken senator after senator down to lunch with him, and without giving the president's intentions away at all would have prepared the ground for a favorable reception of the news. As able and careful a man as Mr. Morgan would have had great influence upon the whole senate. By causing man after man to look at the matter from a little different point of view the whole temper of the senate could have been gradually brought into more or less sympathy with the president's view.
"This is the way in which a really astute president would have prepared the ground in the senate. He would have done the same thing in the house too. Through senators and representatives, who are in daily contact with more than a hundred newspaper correspondents, the country would have been reached, I don't mean with arguments or open announcement of the policy or anything of that sort, but with the little things—fragmentary interviews, the ability to see both sides of the case—which are contagious among any body of men and with the public.

He Took the Responsibility.

"But Mr. Cleveland did not do this. He did not take the chairman of the senate foreign relations committee into his confidence, nor the chairman of the house foreign affairs committee.
"He might safely and with great advantage have done so in both instances. The only member of either committee who was confided in was Senator Gray, and he was not consulted early. Besides it is unwise to pass by the chairman of a committee and confide in a mere member. It always breeds bad feeling. It is a poor policy. Instead of consulting with men who could have helped him, Mr. Cleveland preferred to spring his Hawaiian policy as a complete surprise upon the senate, the house and the country.
"This brings me to a little analysis of Mr. Cleveland's character. I trust myself to do it, because I am his friend and admirer and always have been. I eulogize his strong qualities, but I also perceive his weaknesses. One of these latter is his absolute inability to advise with any one. There is no such thing on the part of a senator at least as consultation with the president. He is a man who always is willing to have his views indorsed, but never to have them opposed.
"I remember one of my own experiences. I was asked to the White House by the president. He said he wanted to consult me about a certain matter. He gave his views, and then I gave mine. They did not coincide. The president thereupon complained quite bitterly because I was against him. 'Great God, Mr. President,' I exclaimed, 'if you do not want me to tell you what I think, what was the use of asking me to come here?'

Cleveland and Harrison.

"I will tell you what Mr. Cleveland reminds me of," concluded this senator, "and I say it with perfect respect. He is like a lump of rubber. If you press him, you get nothing out of him but resistance. Indent him, and he always flies back to the same form, the same position. You may strike him, but you get nothing in return. It is dead, irresponsive. There is no resonance in him. You cannot discuss anything with a man who has this quality. All the senators with whom I talk have had the same experience. Even the members of the cabinet, with perhaps two exceptions, meet with the same difficulty when they go to the White House. With all his commanding strength as a public leader, his great wisdom and courage, Mr. Cleveland is remarkably weak in that he fails to get help out of men who are able and willing to help him."
This acute analysis of the president by a Democratic senator reminds one of a similar analysis of General Harrison made by a Republican senator while Mr. Harrison was in the White House. "Harrison," said he, "is hard, sharp, flinty. If you are not careful, you will strike fire in him. If you do not handle him carefully, you will cut yourself on him. Harrison is as full of sentiment as a flower in dealing with masses of people or with thoughts. In his contact with men and their desires he is a stone."

Wholly a Matter of Feeling.

I think it was up in Alameda county one night at a Prohibition rally that Pixley of the San Francisco Argonaut was given a seat on the platform. A Colonel Babcock was the orator of the occasion. He was a middle aged man, and he delivered an address relative to the evils of intemperance which was really touching. Certainly he spoke with an earnestness and eloquence that showed his sincerity.
Pixley was called upon for a speech after the colonel. He arose hesitatingly, walked slowly to the center of the platform and gazing at the audience for a few moments said:
"I am a strict temperance man in the sense of being a Prohibitionist, but if I feel tomorrow as I do at this present moment I promise you that I will never take another drink of intoxicating liquor as long as I live."
A slight cheer went up from the audience at this announcement, and when it had subsided Pixley remarked dryly:
"Tomorrow I think I will feel differently."—Tacoma News.

"The Greatest of all our Periodicals."

The foremost men of the world write the literature of contemporaneous activity for THE FORUM.

Every great subject is taken up by The Forum when it naturally comes into public attention and is treated by the best authorities, without regard to parties or creeds. It will keep any thoughtful reader informed on the tasks and problems of the time, as no other periodical does.

To many thoughtful people, the price of The For as hitherto been prohibitory; indeed all the great Reviews have been too price for the masses of intelligent readers. But now the number of reade thoughtful literature —men and women who wish really to know what is going on in the world outside the narrow limits of particular sects and parties—is great enough in the United States to warrant so revolutionary a reduction in price. The Forum discusses important subjects, but it is not dull. The literature of contemporaneous activity is, in fact, the most interesting of all literature. American citizenship implies that a man shall know the opinions of the foremost men and the latest great achievements in every direction of activity.

DR. TRASK'S MAGNETIC OINTMENT.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.
The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

All Sores, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Burns, Sore Throat, Lameness, Rheumatism, Piles, Inflammation of Lungs and Bowels, Bronchitis, Croup, Salt Rheum, Chilblains, Affection of the Spine, Erysipelas, Nervous Irritation, and all disorders attendant with Inflammation.
It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years,

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should be perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.
Prices 25 and 40 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

Important Intelligence From All Parts.

CONGRESSIONAL.
Regular Session.

IN the senate on the 8th the Hawaiian question was discussed and Senator Frye (Me.) made an attempt to secure a vote on his resolution declaring against American interference at Hawaii, but it was objected to.... In the house a quorum was secured and after adopting a rule fixing January 25 for a vote on the Wilson bill the tariff debate was opened and Mr. Wilson (Va.) spoke in support of the measure.

ON the 9th the house bill for the repeal of the federal elections law was brought up in the senate, but action was postponed till Monday next.... In the house Mr. Wilson (Va.) finished his speech in favor of the tariff bill and Mr. Burrows (Mich.) spoke against the measure. In the house a favorable report was made on the resolution offered by Mr. Boutelle (Me.) calling upon the secretary of the navy to inform the house by what authority instructions were issued placing the naval forces under the orders of Minister Blount, and to furnish copies of all orders or suggestions issued by himself or any officer of the navy since March 4, 1893, concerning the naval forces at the Hawaiian islands.

THE time in the senate on the 10th was occupied in discussing the resolution declaring against any moral or physical interference in Hawaii pending the conclusion of the senatorial investigation, but no action was taken.... In the house the tariff bill was further discussed and Mr. Johnson (dem., O.) attacked the democrats for the timid manner in which they had handled the tariff question and charged them with cowardice all along the line. Mr. Dalzell (dem., Pa.) made a speech in defense of the tariff.

THE senate further discussed the Hawaiian matter on the 11th and the minority report of the committee on privileges and elections on the bill to repeal the federal election laws was presented.... In the house the time was occupied in discussing the tariff bill. Speeches were limited to one hour and many members took part in the debate.

THE session of the senate on the 12th was devoted to executive business. The nomination of Mr. Preston to be director of the mint was confirmed. Adjourned to the 15th.... In the house a resolution calling upon the president for all information in his possession touching recent reported events in the Hawaiian islands was reported favorably and temporarily laid on the table. The tariff bill was further discussed.

CHILLS AND FEVER.

A Case of Long Standing Finds a Cure.

Several years ago a man forty-five years of age, from a malarious district, came a long distance to consult me for a chronic malarious affection for which he had doctored without intermission for over ten years. The treatment which had been mainly relied on by the various doctors he had consulted was quinine and other derivative of chinchona bark. Of these preparations he had taken many pounds, and during several intervals he had taken a great many chill cures, but nothing seemed to have any permanent effect.

His complexion was of that dirty yellow so characteristic of ague patients, and his sunken, lusterless eyes, surrounded by dark circles, indicated how completely his health had been undermined. The tongue was heavily fured with a thick brown coating, breath very offensive, and he complained of a constant, dull headache. A poor appetite, indigestion, biliousness and constipation completed a tale of woe so commonly heard in a malarious locality. The chills came on at irregular intervals. Sometimes he would not have one a month; then again every day for a while.

For this man I prescribed Pe-ru-na and Man-a-lin as directed on the bottles, the Man-a-lin to be used until the bowels became regular and digestion good. A few weeks after I received a very enthusiastic letter from him, in which he declared himself nearly well, and better than he had been in ten years, and had taken no quinine since beginning my treatment. I instructed him to gradually leave off the Man-a-lin, which he did, but continued the Pe-ru-na a few months longer, and made a complete recovery, continuing to enjoy the best of health.

His case is one of which there are thousands in every malarious district who have been many years and still are searching for something to bring relief to their miserable condition. I am positive that Pe-ru-na and Man-a-lin would cure every one of these, for I have watched its effect a good many years, and I do not know a single failure.

1000 Meals for Five Cents

Each person eats on the average over 1,000 meals per year. To properly flavor these would require say 17 cents worth of Diamond Crystal Salt. This is a trifle greater outlay than if the other kinds were used, but 5 cents would more than cover the difference, and pay for the luxury of having

Diamond Crystal Salt

instead of the other kinds. But the important thing about it is the finer flavor your food will have and the greater protection your health will receive when you use the salt that's all salt. Ask your Grocer for DIAMOND CRYSTAL. If he has not got it, write to us. If you make butter, investigate our Dairy Salt, there's money in it. Address

ROBBED BY A BOY.

The Post Office at Traverse City Suffers from Theft.

Mode of Operation of a 13-Year-Old Boy by Which He Has Secured Over $1,500—How the Young Rascal Was Caught.

BOUND OVER.

TRAVERSE CITY, Jan. 15.—Lindell Stewart, aged 13, has been bound over to the federal court on a charge of robbing the post office of this place. He had operated systematically for over a year. He would go to the box window and ask for a certain man's mail. The next day he would ask for still another person's mail. Finally the citizens complained that they were not getting their letters. Last week Stewart got a letter containing a pension check. He read the name and boldly asked a banker to cash the check. The check had not been indorsed, so the teller asked the boy who had sent him. The name was coolly given, but the teller insisted that the man himself would have to indorse it. The boy walked out and did not return. This little episode led to his arrest. The boy's peculations amount to over $1,500.

FINE POINT OF LAW INVOLVED.

Heirs of John Pryor, of Clarendon, at War with Each Other.

BATTLE CREEK, Jan. 14.—A hotly-contested case is on trial in the probate court in this county. It appears that John Pryor, of Clarendon, who died last fall, deeded about $7,000 worth of farm property to his son and put the deeds away in a safe. After his death his son had the deeds recorded and the two daughters of the deceased made application to the probate court for the appointment of a special administrator, and filed a bill in chancery to have the deeds set aside. Monday the hearing for a regular administrator of the estate occurred. The daughters wanted S. A. Flint retained as administrator, and the widow, who is incompetent to act for herself, asked that Mr. Arey be appointed. The statutes are silent on the subject as to whether a widow who is incompetent to act for herself has power to nominate an administrator, and Judge Ingersoll has a fine point in law to decide.

VICTORY FOR JUDGE LONG.

Justice Bradley Decides That His Pension Cannot Be Suspended.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 14.—Judge Bradley, of circuit court No. 1, handed down a decision Friday on the application of Judge Long, of Michigan, for a mandamus to restrain the commissioner of pensions from carrying into effect his order suspending the payment of the applicant's pension. The judge decides in favor of the applicant on the ground that one commissioner has no right under the law to reopen a pension case that has once been legally adjudicated by his predecessor, except in cases where fraud is charged.

THEY MUST PAY.

Sureties of a Would-Be Assassin Held for $3,500.

BENTON HARBOR, Jan. 11.—The case of Berrien county against Ed Brant, John Thomas and William Robb, sureties for Lewis Robb, to enforce the collection of the amount of the bond of $3,500 was decided in favor of the county in the supreme court. Robb was one of the conspirators who sought the life of Fred A. Hobbs while he was mayor and who shot at him through the window of his home. On the arrest of Robb the bondsmen above named became his sureties. On the conviction of a co-conspirator named Vance, Robb fled and has not been seen since.

MAY NOT ACCEPT.

A Hitch in the Negotiations for a Michigan Asylum Site.

LANSING, Jan. 11.—Attorney General Ellis has advised the state board of charities not to accept the deed offered covering the site at Newberry for the projected asylum for the insane in the upper peninsula. The statute requires that the state be given an absolute title, while the deed contains reservations of timber and land for highways and provides for the property reverting to the grantors in case it ever ceases to be used for asylum purposes.

To Abolish Immigrant Inspection.

LANSING, Jan. 14.—The state board of health has resolved, in view of the decision recently by Circuit Judge Steere, of Sault Ste. Marie, declaring the penalty provisions of the Michigan quarantine law unconstitutional, that the immigrant inspection at the Michigan border be suspended. This action does not involve the abandonment on the part of the board of the Sault Ste. Marie case. On the contrary, Attorney Gen. Ellis has already taken steps to appeal the case, so the questions involved may be finally passed on by the court of last resort.

Discharged and Rearrested.

DETROIT, Jan 13.—H. D. Smith, the ticket broker who was charged with forging and selling counterfeit coupon tickets alleged to have been issued by the Maine Central railroad, had his case dismissed in the police court Friday morning on a technicality and was immediately rearrested on a charge of having previous knowledge that the tickets which he sold were forged. The sale of the tickets was admitted. Smith refused to plead and was bound over under $1,000 bonds.

New Secret Society.

LANSING, Jan. 12. — A new order known as the Ancient Order of Loyal Americans was formed here. The members are required to labor against any foreign influence in the affairs of the nation, either political or religious, to break down trusts and to promote liberty. None but native-born Americans can join. January 22 is set as the day on which the order is to be instituted in all the various states of the union.

STATE BANKS.

Annual Report of State Commissioner Sherwood Filed.

LANSING, Jan. 11.—Bank Commissioner Sherwood's fifth annual report says that but two banks succumbed to the financial crisis out of 162 state banks. He commends the newspapers for their efforts to allay excitement in financial circles. There were eighteen new state banks with $956,000 capital incorporated last year. Nine private banks closed during the year. These are exempt from supervision. Two state and two national banks have gone into receivers' hands during the year. One state bank, the Ingham county savings of Lansing, and one national bank, the First national of Sturgis, were closed for a short time during the panic, but were reopened.

"EDITOR OF THE TRIBUNE: I appreciate very highly the compliment paid me by the Tribune in its issue of the 8th inst., suggesting my name for the office of United States senator.

"Since that date I have given the matter careful consideration and have decided to decline to be a candidate. I do this in the interest of party harmony in our state, which is of greater importance to the republicans of Michigan than is the candidacy of any man.

"Will the Tribune accept my grateful acknowledgments for its courtesy and permit me through its columns to thank the many friends who by telegraph, letter and in person, have offered to aid me in the canvass.

"R. A. ALGER."

SENSATIONAL SCENE IN COURT.

A Witness in a Murder Trial at Detroit Weeps and Prays.

DETROIT, Jan. 13.—The examination of Mrs. Ruth Saunders, accused of causing the death of Viola Stevens by an operation, began Friday morning. All the testimony at the coroner's inquest was read. Ira Wright, the man who took the girl to Mrs. Saunders' house, cared for her, and was present at her death in the interest of a friend, was brought into the courtroom. All at once he fell upon his knees and began to pray fervently, lifting his hands in supplication while his eyes streamed with tears. Afterward, while his testimony was being read Wright broke into tears.

Its Territory Extended.

LANSING, Jan. 11. — The Michigan Mutual Fire Insurance company held its annual meeting here. The by-laws were amended so as to extend the territory to be covered to the entire state. Secretary Garner made a report showing that the company has a membership of 464, a gain of 119 during the year, and is carrying $362,985 in risks, an increase of $77,000. The resources are $8,598.94, with no liabilities. Eight losses, aggregating $689.62, were paid during 1893.

Plaster Trust to Be Reorganized.

GRAND RAPIDS, Jan. 13.—The old plaster and alabastine trust, which fell to pieces two years ago on account of several members secretly selling under trust prices, is to be reorganized. Meetings of the quarry-owners and millmen have been held and the arrangements are practically completed. The combine will limit the output and raise the prices. Iowa firms will be excluded.

Charged with Arson.

BATTLE CREEK, Jan. 13.—The case against Andres Grobe and Gus Hulsey, of Eckford, for burning the home of the former to get the insurance was dismissed by Judge Smith, as it was proved they misrepresented the value of the buildings when the insurance was secured. They were rearrested upon a charge of arson. They were unable to secure bail, and are in jail.

Joy at Dowagiac.

DOWAGIAC, Jan. 12.—The long-continued legal contest in which the Dowagiac Manufacturing company has been involved was satisfactorily adjusted. Henry Kimmerie having sold all his stock to the Lyle brothers, who already had a controlling interest in the company. The shops will be started up in a few days with a large force of men.

Want to Move Back.

LEWISTON, Jan. 11.—The board of supervisors has passed a resolution to submit to the people at the spring election the question of moving the Montmorency county seat from Atlanta to Lewiston. The strange part of it is that the people, only a short time ago, removed the seat from Hillman to Atlanta by several hundred majority.

Sat for an Obscene Photograph.

LANSING, Jan. 14. — Catherine J. Ketchum was convicted in the circuit court Saturday of sitting for an obscene photograph. The defendant attained some prominence as a worker in the W. C. T. U. Great interest was centered upon the case and the trial, which lasted three days, was attended by large crowds.

A Student Killed.

BATTLE CREEK, Jan. 13. — Wesley Brown, aged 16, of Springport and a student at Albion college, was instantly killed at the electric light works Thursday morning. When found his body was crushed between the belt and the hole in the floor. It is supposed that he got too near the belt and was caught.

Sanitarium for South Africans.

BATTLE CREEK, Jan. 14.—Dr. J. H. Kellogg, the medical superintendent of the sanitarium here, is to build a sanitarium in this city which, after its completion, will be taken apart and shipped in sections to Claremont, South Africa. The building will cost $75,000 when completed.

Barn and Horses Burned.

DECATUR, Jan. 11.—Alexander Dobson's farm barn in Hamilton township was destroyed by incendiary fire. Three horses were cremated, and twenty tons of hay, together with a quantity of wheat and agricultural implements, were burned. Tramps are supposed to have caused the fire.

Confirmed.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—The senate in executive session confirmed the following nominations: John M. B. Sill, of Michigan, minister resident and consul general of the United States to Corea; John B. Maloney, collector of customs at Detroit; Simon C. Karer, appraiser of merchandise at Detroit.

A Skater Drowned.

CASSOPOLIS, Jan. 11.—Walter Pangborn, a boy 14 years old, broke through the ice and was drowned in Stone lake. About two years ago an older brother was killed in the woods by a falling limb.

THE DANGER OF NEGLECT.

IN CASES OF PILES AND OTHER RECTAL DISEASES.

There is no class of diseases so difficult to permanently cure when once firmly established as affections of the rectum and lower bowels. The tendency to chronic disease is very marked and although the first symptoms are unmistakable, yet they are in most cases neglected until deep seated disease is the result. In nearly every case of rectal disease, fistula, ulcers in rectum, fissure and similar troubles the first symptoms are heat itching about the affected part finally developing into an ordinary case of Piles.

It may be itching bleeding or protruding Piles it matters not, the end will be the same if neglected, and right here is the point to take time by the forelock and cure the piles, and effectually ward off any further danger. The surest and safest way to remove any form of Piles is to use the Pyramid Pile Cure, a remedy which has been fairly tested by thousands of sufferers and physicians, and it cures every form of Piles rapidly and without pain or inconvenience.

It is not to be confounded with the ordinary ointments, suppositories, pills and salves, so extensively sold and advertised as sure cures for Piles.

The Pyramid Pile Cure differs from all these in that it contains no poison, no opiates, and more over gives results on the first application.

Your druggist will tell you that no pile cure gives such universal satisfaction. A Treatise on Piles, invaluable to every sufferer, is enclosed in each package.

From what is now known, it must appear that the administration must be about as tired of its own Hawaiian policy as everybody else is.

With many clergymen, public speakers, singers, and actors, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is the favorite remedy for hoarseness and all affections of the vocal organs, throat, and lungs. Its anodyne and expectorant effects are promptly realized.

We didn't know bakers ever struck. The tradition is that it's the cooks who get the boarding house beefsteak ready. They pound.

Scrofula eradicated and all kindred diseases cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla, which by its vitalizing and alterative effects, makes pure blood.

Husband your strength in housework. Pearline will save half the labor of it. It will wash your clothes in peace, without washing them to pieces; it will clean your house or your laces without hurting them. Pearline has more than soap's merits—none of soap's defects. You can do anything with it; you can do nothing without it. Never peddled. 299 JAMES PYLE, N.Y.

Clinton Column.

CLINTON, MICH., JAN. 18, 1894.

Wm. C. Jordan, of Tecumseh, was in town last Friday,

Chas. Thompson is again at his post in F. D. Lancaster's.

Ed. Baumgartner, of Toledo, Ohio, was in town Tuesday.

Leslie Leek and sister, Ella, spent Sunday at Edwin Glimpse's

Myron Conklin and E. F. Kirchgessner were in town last Tuesday.

Mrs. Rose Billings, of Michigan City, Ind., is visiting at B. O. Randall's.

This soft weather in January makes trade dull and people disgusted.

Mrs. Newman and Miss Carrie Payne, of Adrian, spent last Sunday with Eliza Gunn.

David Woodward left home Monday for Saginaw and other points in northern Michigan.

David Woodward is shipping tile to his county farm by the car load. What is going to happen?

Abner Ward intends to remove his old dwelling and replace it with a new house in the spring.

Dr. C. M. Reeves has purchased the Stewart property on Jackson street, and will move thereon soon.

Mrs. Minnie Hard entertained her cousin, Mrs. Rose Billington, of Michigan City, Ind., the past week.

John Hause visited his father, near Jackson, last Friday. Mr. Hause, Sr. is in very poor health this winter.

Chris Schmitt has been to Chicago where he purchased an elegant new bar and fixtures for his billiard hall.

Marshal Muir gave four gentlemanly tramps, who solicited free lodging, a berth in the cooler one night last week.

A Clinton young man and two sprigs from Tecumseh were taken in hand on Monday, by the deputy sheriff, for fast driving.

Dr. White says that the grip is not very prevalent now in Clinton, but they are having a big run of the mumps at present.

Madison Lane, Elmer Fuller, Laverne Sutfin, Jennie Palmer and Mrs. W. S. Kimball are the latest victims of the mumps.

The Episcopal social at A. B. VanDeMark's last week Thursday was very largely attended and very enjoyable. It netted $9.00.

Mrs. Fred Davis went to Jackson last Saturday to visit friends. Mr. Davis went up Monday and returned with his wife the next day.

E. R. Smith has purchased the Sylvanus Howell property on Church street. It will be occupied by L. W. Kimball as a residence, in the spring.

S. Love, the Franklin township treasurer, was in Clinton last week looking after taxes from people who hold mortgages on Franklin property.

Justice W. B. Keyser has added real-estate to his other business. Persons wishing to buy or sell either farms or village property should give him a call.

Dog Palmer, formerly station agent here, was shaking hands with his old Clinton friends last week. He has concluded to try his luck at celery raising next summer, near Norvell.

Last Thursday night during the high wind, a chimney on John Palmer's house burned out. It seemed for a time as though the house was doomed but plenty of work stopped the spread of the fire and no damage resulted.

The pound social at the residence of Chas. Ward, Monday evening, for the benefit of Ed. Martin and family was pleasant and a success. 250 pounds of flour, a full supply of groceries and about $15.00 in cash was realized.

From E. W. Freese we learn that Leander Fisk, a former resident of Clinton, now of Oakland, Cal., when returning home one evening recently, was held up by footpads and was quite seriously injured, having several ribs broken.

The Portland cement sidewalk, which was put down last summer as an experiment, is standing heavy loads and winter weather admirably. This crosswalk is a good test for it and shows it to be first class material for any sidewalk.

School District No. 5 has purchased a block of land to enlarge the school grounds and began the erection of their new school edifice last Monday. It is a very neat and convenient country school house. The old brick structure will be torn down.

Parties from Adrian were in town the last of the week repairing the boiler of the Clinton Plow Co. Some of the flues were mended and a few new ones put in. The shop is now running again, full blast, turning out more plows than ever.

The M. E. church donation for the benefit of Rev. Ramsdell, held last week, was a pronounced success. A large crowd gathered, a very enjoyable evening was spent and the financial results added over $75.00 to the minister's pocket book. If Mr. Ramsdell does not feel rich now, it will prove him to be a man of wonderful modesty.

Edwin R. Smith is always making improvements of some kind. Last summer he spent several thousand dollars remodeling his residence. He has a scheme in view for '94 which may be quite a business help to Clinton. The old tannery on the flat west of the race which has been an eye sore for many years, will be overhauled and converted into a creamery and cold storage warehouse. As Ed possesses both the means and the disposition, the scheme will undoubtedly be pushed through.

The wise thing for Texas to do in the matter of choosing her next Governor is to see that he is as much unlike her present one as possible.

Don't Tobacco Spit or Smoke your Life Away

is the truthful, startling title of a little book that tells all about No-to-bac, the wonderful, harmless, guaranteed tobacco habit cure. The cost is trifling and the man who wants to quit and can't runs no physical or financial risk in using "No-to-bac." Sold by Baker & Hall, Tecumseh, Mich. Book at Drug Stores or by mail free. SCISSORS AND PASTE POT.

Clippings and Condensations from Our Neighborhood Exchanges.

A deerfield man got so mad at a cow that he filled her hide full of buckshot.

Mrs. F. C. Beaman, of Adrian, widow of the late Judge Beaman, is quite seriously ill.

All the big European nations say they want peace, but accuse each other of wanting pieces.

Postmaster Hoch, of Adrian read a paper on the single tax before the Morenci Farmers' Institute last week.

If you are unable to skate you are in the swim no longer. If you can skate you are doubly in the swim when you strike an air hole.

A purely home made conundrum has been originated by a young lady of this city. Why is Adrian like Heaven? Because here, as in heaven, we are not married or given in marriage.

The Board of Supervisors have appointed Benjamin E. Westfall, Hudson city; Calvin C. Colwell, Hudson township, and R. P. Butrick, Franklin, to take charge of the burial of deceased indigent soldiers in their districts.

A Maccabee of the Blissfield tent, refers through the Advance, to the installation supper says: "after the installation supper was served, of which all present partook their share, except Dr. Stafford, who took about four shares." Why, doctor!

Louis Post, the single tax lecturer, will lecture at Croswell's opera house, on January 26th. This will be a free lecture and as the speaker illustrates his doctrines from charts, it will be a good opportunity to investigate the new theory of taxation.

Prof. A. H. Lowrie, of the Elgin, Ill., News, appointed to a U. S. consulship in Germany by President Harrison, was expected to reach New York city, on his return home last Saturday. Mrs. Lowrie will remain to spend the winter in Paris.—Adrian Times.

The board of supervisors issued an order at their session last week that they have not been obliged to do for years. It was for $8, payable to Frank Nickloy, for killing a wolf. The state pays half of it, and the county the balance.—Evening Telegram.

Hosea Corbus, the genial Lake Shore trackmaster, appeared at his office this morning, and his first statement was to the effect that he saw a robin in his back yard this morning. And now his friends look at him in astonishment, and pass him by at a long distance.—Evening Telegram.

A good story, says the Hudson Post, is told on a lady who lives in Wright, and who told her husband when coming to Hudson to bring home a pair of hose, as she wished to make a Christmas present. She was very angry when her husband returned and brought into the house a pair of hoes, handles and all.

The Wolf Creek Creamery Co. elected officers for the ensuing year on Friday, as follows: T. L. Burr, president and manager; Moses Brazee, vice president; Lyman Baker, secretary; John Driscoll, treasurer. The creamery is now in good shape, paying expenses, and the outlook for the coming year is good.

Fred Bower of Tecumseh is now about ready to play progressive euchre. He is king o'er his own household and his wife is queen, and lately presented him with twins. This makes the two Bowers and as the doctor got only the ten, Fred is in position to play a lone hand or else count two every time.—Adrian Press.

Charlotte pastors have concluded that they will not hereafter announce from their pulpits any entertainment but those which are of their own churches and have passed a resolution to that effect. If entertainments need advertising they are to be referred to the city papers, as productive of better results. A very wise notion.

Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Brown tendered a reception to the students of Brown's Business University, last evening at their home, on South Main street. About 80 students were present, and the evening was spent most pleasantly. Light refreshments were served. Old ties were renewed, and new friendships formed. It was a gala night for the students.—Evening Telegram.

New methods of getting money seem to be discovered every day, but the Toledo woman's plan, who, under advice of a medium, is paying premiums on life insurance policies of relatives and acquaintances, is unique in its conception. Judgement was shown in taking policies on foot ball players. Raymond Carew who was killed at the game in Adrian was on the list.—Jackson Patriot.

Two tramps who stole a couple of overcoats from the express office at Onsted, on the night of Dec. 12, were located at Detroit by Under Sheriff Ferguson, who went there Saturday to bag his game. There was a strong case there against them, however, and one was sent up for four years and the other for one year. They told Officer Ferguson that they had hidden the coats under a lumber pile behind the barn of Harmon Russ, at the corner of Railroad and Scott streets. Mr. Ferguson went there yesterday, and sure enough he found the plunder.—Adrian Times.

The editors of the Hudson post are entirely too modest for this mundane sphere. Under the head of "Please Excuse Us," they tightly draw a black veil over their faces to hide their blushes while they remark: "Our correspondents will pardon us for cutting out all reference to our holiday edition of last week. We appreciate the many kind words which were said for the paper. We did not care to herald it in advance by telling about it in preceding numbers, and we now prefer to be excused from printing anything concerning it. If it pleased our readers we are content.—Evening Telegram.

A facetious exchange in this manner solicits news: "If your wife whips you, let us know, and we will let her lick us, too, and set you right before the public. If you have company, tell us, if you are not ashamed of your visitors. If a youngster arrives at your house and demands food and raiment, but a quarter's worth of cigars and come around, and if you are a cash subscriber we will furnish a name for him or her as the circumstances warrant; if twins, donate us one. If you have a social gathering of a few friends, bring around a big cake, six or seven pies and a ham—not necessarily to eat but as a guarantee of good faith. We mention these things because we want the news."

Dr. O. E. MILLER.

Inventor and patentee of the Miller Hernia (rupture) Treatment has had a remarkably successful career. Nine years ago he began the practice of his specialty at Denver, Col., and so popular has his treatment for rupture become that separate and independent companies have been organized in 17 different states. The establishment of various offices was necessary to save the residents of other states the time and expense attending a trip to Denver. The Michigan company, with headquarters at Detroit, is one of the most prosperous and successful. It is incorporated and has a paid up capital of $60,000. Mr. E. Jay Carrington, an old and respected resident of Detroit, and one of the Vice Presidents of the Detroit Board of Trade, is President and Business Manager. Dr. H. W. Marsh, a physician of over 20 years experience, is Chief of Staff and Secretary. Besides Dr. Marsh, three physicians are required to look after the interests of Detroit and Michigan patients. One of the staff, Dr. Wm. W. Kergan, who has charge of the treatment department, will be at the Lilley House from Tuesday, Jan. 30, to Saturday noon, Feb. 3rd., to give free consultation, examination and trial to all persons suffering from rupture. Dr. Kergan has visited Adrian three times and treated most of the Lenawee county patients and his ability is highly praised by all. Names of Tecumseh and other patients may be secured on application.

THE North American Review

Every subject of importance in dealt with in its pages—impartially, on both sides—at the very time when the course of events brings it to the front, and by the very men or women whose opinions are most valued. The Review does not hesitate at the most liberal expenditure in order to secure articles from the highest authorities. Its list of contributors forms a role of the representative men and women of the age.

THE NORTH-AMERICAN REVIEW is the most widely read magazine of its class in the world, being neither scholastic nor technical, but popular and practical in its treatment of all topics.

THE NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW is the only periodical of its kind which has a recognized place as

A FAMILY MAGAZIME.

This is because it devotes much attention to subjects that are of particular interest to women.

No other periodical in the world can point to such a succession of distinguished writers as have contributed to the Review during the past four years. The list embraces American and British Cabinet Ministers; United States Senators and Representatives; Governors of States; American Ministers abroad; Foreign Ministers to the United States; Judges of the Supreme Court; Ecclesiastical dignitaries and eminent theologians of every denomination; officers of the Army and Navy; famous physicians and scientists; and in general men and women whose names are household words throughout the English-speaking world.

BRITTON BUDGET.

Oh where! O where have they gone?—our firemen.

Attorney Lon O'Mealy, of Adrian, was in town Tuesday.

Lenardson Bros. recently received a car load of 120 barrels of dairy and stock salt.

Born, to Rev. and Mrs. Rederus, on Sunday, Jan. 14th., a daughter. All doing well.

Wm. Osgood, after a short but severe tussle with the grip, is again attending to his mill business.

That caterpillar must have been white at both ends; hence the snow on both ends of the winter.

Geo. C. Hawkes, after several days tussel with the everlasting grip, is again able to be at work.

We wish to correct the item of last week announcing the arrival of a son at M. L. Gillen's. It was a daughter.

We understand the Exchange Bank is buying wheat, having entered in this since the Smith assignment occurred.

What a whopper Tommy must have been to have licked 60 men and then jumped 70 feet for a means of recreation.

The funeral of Mrs. Peter Miller, who died at the home of her son-in-law, Gayus Squires, was held at the house Wednesday afternoon.

John Zeluff, reported quite ill with the grip last week, is slowly improving at the present writing. Monday. Mrs. Zeluff is also quite sick.

My feed mill runs every day. I can grind as fine feed as any one, having replaced my steel mill with a run of stone.
W. R. OSGOOD.

Those citizens guilty of petit larceny at the Wabash freight house will sometime be asked to go to all. Better return them for you are liable to an exposure.

The high wind Saturday night quite annihilated sections of our local telegraph line about the village, blowing over several poles and tangling the wires.

Dr. Hal. C. Wyman, of Detroit, assisted by Dr. P. B. Hardy, performed an operation in the case of Mrs. Francis Yates who has been very ill for several days.

The Knight Templars of Adrian Commandery passed the evening of the 23d. at a banquet given by Sam'l Underwood, at his residence. A good number were present and presented Mr. Underwood with a fine leather upholstered chair.

Mrs. Thos Bush, son Ernest and daughter, Augusta, of Lunenburg, Canada, are visiting their niece and cousin, Mrs. Wm. Osgood; also Mr. Robert Werely, a brother of Mrs. Osgood, arrived from Milwaukee, Wis. Tuesday night for a short visit.

We learn that Wm. Rinn is the patentee of a patent saw set which he is now placing on the market. He is thinking of putting in the necessary machinery in his building, now occupied as a blacksmith shop, and thereby give to Britton an industry requiring an estimated force of men reaching up into the 40s.

Unacquainted with city life the team of John Robertson, hitched in front of Babcock's pharmacy on Main street, Monday forenoon, became frightened at a passing dray, broke their fastenings and started for the C. J. & M. road crossing at Fred Rupp's, arriving there when a passing freight turned them east. As they made the turn the wagon caught on one of Rupp's young shade trees, which stopped the team. No damage was done more than the breaking of the tree and the breaking of the king bolt.

Fred Morrell, so long the holder of the Lenawee County Liars' Association belt, won by him in a contest at Deerfield about a year and a half ago, from ex-champion F. R. Timmons, of that place, was completely bested last Saturday evening by his old neighbor, Ed., to whom he immediately delivered the trophy with a grace only becoming his generous nature. Seemingly Ed. was not aware of the value of this galvanized belt, else he would not have spurned it with his foot and made a vain endeavor to abuse the spectators' powers of belief.

What might have been a very serious accident occurred last Wednesday forenoon, when the C. J. & M. local freight switching here pushed several cars on the short Y just as passenger 51, on the Wabash came along. The freight cars, running wild, run out at the east end of the Y, catching the forward end of the rear coach nearly tipping it off the rails, wrecking the step and jaming the corner of the coach quite badly. Conductor Frank Hart, of the passenger, seeing the coming danger, called to the passengers to jump, who were just on the rise when the shock came and the conglomeration following was amusing. Samuel Kniffin and Mell. Barnes who were standing on the front platform heard the warning and jumped, striking on the ties, receiving such severe injuries as to be quite unable to walk. The Wabash, prompt to their duty, sent their adjuster of claims who settled with Mr. Kniffin to his satisfaction. The blame, we understand, lies with the C. J. & M. men who threw the cars in on the Y without a brakeman with them.

The humming of long unused mill wheels is certainly heard again here and there.

FRANKLIN FACTS.

Mrs. Wright Doty is on the sick list.

Chastina Allen is still on the sick list.

Mrs. Bert Billington does not improve.

Mr. E. Rundel has sold his farm to Mr. Wells.

Arthur Bradley has returned from his visit at the Normal.

James Eddy is assisting Oliver Muhl to brush up his new farm.

Hudson Davenport spent the latter part of last week at home.

Come out to the lyceum at Frank Marshall's Saturday night.

Sam Tripp has bought out Frank Bradley's interest in their hay baler.

Frank Bradley has purchased of Sam Tripp his choice lot of white woods.

Charlie Doty, of Ypsilanti, visited his aunt, Mrs. Edward Wisner, Friday.

Wm. Marshall has had two or three severe attacks of bleeding at the nose.

The dance at Hampton's hall Friday night was pronounced a decided success.

Miss Grace Wisner and Mrs. Manley Calhoun started for their home in Nebraska last week Tuesday.

Miss Alma Whelan is at Wm. Witherell's this week. Mrs. Witherell met with an accident Saturday which lays her up for the present.

Ezra Simmons has sent from the far southern land where he now sojourns, to Seth and Edie a box of oranges. That they are delicious we can testify, as can the many others who have sampled them.

The orchestra serenaded the bride and groom at Fred Davenport's Saturday night. They were soon invited in and after the feast of music refreshments for the inner man were served and hugely enjoyed by all present.

Seth Simmons recently shot a large owl with a steel trap attached to one of his toes. The trap belonged to Earl Allen and had been set expressly for this same owl which had destroyed a pair of guinea fowls and ended by stealing the trap.

Miss Abbie Davenport became Mrs. John Fisher Jan. 15. Although a stranger here Mr. Fisher is winning the esteem of all; he is undoubtedly worthy of her and no higher praise could be given him. Long may they live and happy may they be.

MACON MUSIC.

Miss Lamb, of Blissfield has been the guest of her uncle, M. V. Sickly, for a few days.

M. and Mrs. Ed Morgan, of Mason, are visiting relatives and friends in this vicinity.

We are sorry to say that Chas. Wilkins is failing quite rapidly at the present time.

Misses Nettie Crittenden and Leanna Morgan went to Ypsilanti last Friday, returning Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Camburn are happy over the arrival of a little daughter at their home.

Mrs. Wm. Randall has been very sick with hemorrhage of the lungs, and is not improving very rapidly.

The Aid Society of the Reformed church, will meet at the residence of Mrs. Hattie Sage, on Wednesday, Jan. 31st. Dinner will be served at 2 o'clock.

Quarterly meeting will be held in the Baptist church, beginning Friday evening, Feb. 2nd, also the following Saturday evening, and Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock.

A meeting was held at the school house last Friday evening for the purpose of organizing a literary society. They will hold their next meeting one week from next Friday night, Feb. 2nd., at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Granville Mills.

Raisin Valley Seminary.

Willis Elwood spent Sunday with his aunt, at Adrian.

Miss Edwards was the guest of Miss Cornelius over Sunday.

The next entertainment of the lecture course will take place Thursday evening, Jan. 25.

Miss Cinnie Ostrander is back at school again, having recovered from the mumps.

Mabel Graves is absent from school this week. She is filling her brother's place as teacher in the Underwood district.

While drawing wood last Saturday Chauncey Graves was thrown from the wagon in such a manner that one wheel passed over his body, inflicting serious injuries.

Chicago has a "Jack the Snipper," who steals the hair of blonde girls only. That is to say, he snips the light fantastic tow.

BEWARE OF OINTMENTS FOR CATARRH THAT CONTAIN MERCURY,

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physcians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Sold by Druggists, price 75c per bottle.

PENTECOST POINTERS.

Mrs. J. Cherry is very low and her death is expected to take place at any time.

Miss Fannie Osborn, of Adrian, has been making an extended visit among friends at Pentecost.

Mrs. Rufus Fisk is quite sick with the grip, a disease which prevails to an alarming extent this winter.

Mrs. R. W. French and son, Stuart, of Brooklyn, Jackson Co., were calling on friends in Franklin last week.

Mr. Thomas Hendryx is on the gain, although his extreme age made his severe illness very alarming to his friends at one time.

J. S. Pentecost and wife and Mrs. Jason Merrill, of Norvell, are enjoying a trip to the western part of the state at this writing.

Alba J. Case, who has been very ill with the grip, complicated with other diseases, is, we are glad to hear, somewhat better, though still quite sick.

The pop corn social at the hall here Monday night was well attended. Miss Fisk and her school, who got up the entertainment, found after paying all expenses, a nice little sum to their credit.

A report having gone abroad that the Pentecost correspondent for the HERALD was also correspondent for the Adrian Press, we take this opportunity to say that it is all a mistake as the HERALD correspondent has never written a line for publication in the Adrian Press.

A terrible blow has fallen upon the Rev. John Patchin and his estimable wife, in their loss by the accidental death of their son, one who was to have been the stay of their old age. Mr. and Mrs. Patchin have become greatly endeared to the people of Franklin during his long pastorate here and all hearts will go out in earnest sympathy with the bereaved parents, and also with the stricken wife and little ones of the deceased son.

RIDGEWAY RAMBLES.

Lafe. Rappleye lost a valuable cow Saturday.

Look out for the Library box social in the near future.

Mrs. Milburn Keyser and Miss Nellie Heesen, of Tecumseh, visited with Clara Temple a portion of last week.

L. Lowe and Foster Blackmar left for Missouri last Friday. Their families will leave for their new home in a few days.

Owing to the fact that so much is clipped from the HERALD for preservation we would suggest that the foreman place no valuable matter on the back of the portfolio coupons.

Mrs. Peter Miller, who has been in poor health for several months, passed away Monday afternoon. The funeral services were held at her late home, on Wednesday afternoon, Rev. H. Cansfield officiating.

The L. C. S. will hold their first social for this year at the home of Mrs. M. A. Wilson on Friday evening of next week. Refreshments will be served and all are invited to be present and help make it an enjoyable occasion.

A very pleasant afternoon was spent at the home of E. W. Rappleye, Saturday, in honor of Grandma Rappleye's 83d. birthday. The gathering of a few of the old neighbors was a surprise to her but she enjoyed it just as well as if she had known all about it. The combined ages of those present was 740 years.

The tariff question—Shall ninety-nine consumers be taxed for the benefit of one producer.

IN OLDEN TIMES

People overlooked the importance of permanently beneficial effects and were satisfied with transient action; but now that it is generally known that Syrup of Figs will permanently cure habitual constipation, well-informed people will not buy other laxatives which act for a time, but finally injure the system.

OUR ART OFFER.

SHEPP'S WORLD'S FAIR PHOTOGRAPHED FOR THE HERALD READERS.

A Magnificent Art Series Within Reach of All and a Most Beautiful Souvenir.

With a desire to again promote the interests of its readers, the HERALD has closed a contract with the famous Globe Bible Publishing Company., of Philadelphia by which the magnificent series of Photographs, with descriptive matter, known as "Shepp's World's Fair Photographed," will be brought within the marvelously low purchasing price of TEN CENTS in cash for each part when accompanied by one HERALD coupon.

It should not be forgotten that Messrs. Shepp's famous series of photographs were OFFICIALLY INDORSED by the Columbian Exposition, and the Globe Bible Publishing Co. was given exclusive rights to publish and sell these photographs. They are an immensely valuable and important souvenir of the greatest Exposition ever held, and at the price offered to readers of the HERALD every subscriber will want the series, not only for themselves, but also for their friends.

The well-deserved reputation of the Shepp Brothers, whose firm is known all over the United States and in Europe, is a guarantee that "Shepp's World's Fair Photographed" will be issued in their usual first class style, and that neither pains nor expense will be spared to make it worthy of the great event which it so graphically, thoroughly and ably portrays.

The first coupon in the series will be printed on Thursday, February 1st, 1894, and the succeeding coupons will appear each week until the series is completed. This is the chance of a lifetime to get a souvenir of the Exposition, and no one should neglect to take advantage of the opportunity.

Remember you must have one coupon cut from the HERALD and ten cents in coin to obtain each part of the series. There are thirty-two parts in all, thus requiring a total outlay of only $3.20 for the finest publication of the kind extant, the retail price of which is $8.00. An abundant supply will be kept on hand, so that subscribers can have their books, upon the presentation of their coupon and ten cents at this office. Part first has already been issued, samples of which can now be examined at our counting room.

Lenawee County Grange.

Lenawee County Grange will meet at Grange Hall, Macon, on Thursday, Feb. 1st, at 10 o'clock a. m., at which time the officers elect for County Grange will be installed. The officers of Macon Grange will be installed at the same time.

The Master of Michigan State Grange is to be present to render the installation service. Now let the members of Macon Grange be ready to give the members of Pomona a hearty greeting. As this is to be an open meeting, Macon Grange cordially invites all farmers and their families in this vicinity, to be present on this occasion, and to come in time to witness the double installation. The Lecturer of the State Grange is expected to be present and give an address in connection with the program.

Meeting at 10 o'clock; Installation at 11 o'clock; Business and Literary program at 1:30. Picnic dinner at noon. Macon Grange will furnish tea, coffee and sugar, and we hope all members and friends will turn out and make this meeting an interesting and profitable one.

T. & F. FARMERS' CLUB.

According to the adjournment, the Club will meet at the home of Thomas Langton's, Friday evening, Feb. 2nd. Programme for the evening:

Rec.—Hattie Hurry.
Parody—Mrs. B. Hurry.
Charade—Mrs. H. A. Hoag.
Chip-basket—Mrs. A. Hair.
Dec.—Eddie Hoag.
Song—Earnest, Bertha and Addie Lamkins.
Dialogue—Mr. Ager and Wm. Waldron.
Music.
Question: Which is the most profitable for the farmer; to hire help, and sell his produce at present prices, or let his land out to other parties. Opened by B. Hurry, followed by A. K. Waldron and others.

150 Deaths from Rupture.

The records show that over 150 persons in Michigan died of "Strangulated Hernia" during 1893. This number would be largely increased if the trouble was not so frequently mistaken for "Inflammation of the bowels." A small rupture is more dangerous than a large one. Avoid sickness and death by securing proper treatment. The Miller Co. of Detroit treat nothing else. Consultation free at Lilley House, Jan 30 to Feb. 3rd.

Florida is worse torn up over a prize fight than Brazil is over a revolution.

Before another Independence arrives four new States are likely to be added to the flag.

Trade is gradually reviving. The process will necessarially be slow but it will be sure.

The fifty million bond issue is the principle topic of conversation in Washington just now. Political opinion is much divided on the subject.

Less profits and more hustle is the free trader's motto. Give the wage earners all the work they can do, and the question of wages will take care of itself.

The millionaires of the East still regard the income tax as an "odious and inquisitorial" affair. Would any method of taxation, which would compel them to pay their share of the taxes, be satisfactory to them?

The occupation of the calamity howler will soon be gone. Business is reviving all over the land, factories that have been shut down, are resuming work and all indications point to a fairly prosperous year for 1894.

It is rumored that the anti-option bill will soon be re-introduced into the house, as a revenue, not a prohibitory measure. That looks more like business. Tax the sale of grain options and raise a revenue from it. Why not?

The oyster congress held in Richmond Va., last week was addressed by scientists, satesmen and fishermen. The object of the convention was to disseminate information bearing upon the oyster question and insure legislation stimulative of the oyster industry.

Governor McKinley's address on his second inauguration did not read much like a Presidential proclamation. One reason for this is that it was not a Presidential proclamation. Another reason is that the man who wrote it will never write a Presidential proclamation.

Providence has looked mercifully upon the poor and has tempered the weather. But there is lack of food yet for the weak and of medicine for the sick. Keep sending contributions to the charitable organizations. There are cold and dismal days yet for the unfortunate.

George Stephenson's famous remark that if a railway train were to strike a cow "it would be bad for the cow" has become historic. But it did not express the whole truth. In Cuba recently a train ran into a cow on the track, and as a result one car was turned into splinters and sixteen persons were killed.

The great hue and cry of a few party organs over the Hawaiian matter is a veritable tempest in a teapot. Hawaii is at peace and it is likely to remain so, the world revolves on its axis every twenty-four hours, the great tariff debate is progressing in the house, and the outlook for a business revival is improving.

The rejection of Mr. Hornblower for Justice of the U. S. Supreme Court is another illustration of the demoralizing tendency of the present spoils system. The Senators from New York were not consulted and so they defeated the nomination. The Senate is becoming a close communion cabal that is a menace to the liberties of the people.

Last week was given to general debate on the tariff bill and this week is devoted to five minute speeches on amendments. The Democratic majority in the House is settling down to business at last and when the final roll call shall be taken on Monday next, the Wilson bill will be passed substantially as reported by the Ways and Means committee.

Representative Holman, the ex-watchdog of the treasury, has opened his batteries against any further appropriations for increasing the navy, which he declares to be already too large for safety. Brother Holman is aparently wasting his amunition, as the condition of Uncle Sam's cash box is an unanswerable argument against all appropriations that are not absolutely necessary, and Congress has yet to legislate to provide the money necessary to meet them.

protection might be removed entirely without compelling them, or perhaps without allowing them, to reduce wages. Whether the condition of the labor market will enable the refiners to reduce wages remains to be seen; it depends upon many things besides the duties on raw and refined sugars.

"When the Wilson bill was promulgated it was promptly announced that a reduction of the present duty would be disastrous to the refining industry, because that was now paying only 7 per cent. on its preferred and 12 per cent. on its common stock. Most of the productive interests of this country would regard themselves as in a thoroughly vigorous condition if they could pay 7 per cent. on the preferred stock and have enough profit left to divide 12 per cent. on the common stock, even supposing that the preferred and common stock represented the actual investment of capital in the business. But we apprehend that no one will seriously deny that the sugar refineries are capitalized at three times the value of their plants. They may reckon their good will and various other intangible assets as worth millions of dollars, and there may be some dispute about the propriety of capitalizing these so-called properties; but probably no one will pretend that the visible investments of the sugar trust are worth more than one-third the sum at which the trust is capitalized. On the actual investment, then, the trust may be deemed to be earning 21 per cent. on its preferred and 36 per cent. on its common stock, and these profits might be very much reduced without tempting any of the sugar refiners to withdraw their capital and put it into any other industry.

"As the government needs additional revenue, we should have been glad to see a duty of say 25 per cent. ad valorem, or, as now proposed by Mr. Harter, one cent per pound levied on all sugars, raw and refined. The refiners would then have had an amount of protection measured by the extent to which refining abroad adds to the value of the sugar. But the dividends paid on an extremely inflated stock prove that on the score of profits the trust has no claim upon the consideration of congress. Certainly from no other point of view has it any claim upon the sympathies of congress or the people even, if sympathies were a proper foundation for a tax law. Neither capital nor labor has ever received the slightest consideration from the trust, and we see no reason why the trust should be treated with a mercy it has known nothing of when dealing with others. It is willing now to shield itself behind its employes, as to whose constant employment at remunerative wages it seems solicitous. But no humane considerations have deterred the trust from shutting down refineries in the interest of its absolute control of the market. It has always been perfectly willing to render capital profitless and labor unemployed if necessary to tighten its grip upon the market, and enable it to earn such profits as only lottery managers are familiar with. It has crushed the capitalists whom it could not force into alliance with itself, and its solicitude for the welfare of the American workingman has been limited strictly to political emergencies.

"A significant response to the complaint that the reduction of the duty on refined sugar would ruin the refining industry, is the fact that within a short period a new refining company with a capital of a million dollars and a refinery in Yonkers will put a thousand barrels of sugar a day on the market. It is seldom that capitalists put a million dollars into an enterprise just as it is about to be ruined by adverse legislation."

THE DIFFERENCE.

Ad Valorem and Specific Duties Defined.

Under an ad valorem tariff our customs officials must watch for undervaluation frauds. Under specific duties the people cannot escape being robbed whether they watch or not.

Specific duties group a number of articles together and charge as much upon the cheaper as upon the more costly. The poor family gets the worst of the deal right along.

When a tariff of specific duties is framed the lobbyist is on hand to have classifications arranged so that his protected infant shall have prohibitive rates under cover of apparently low rates on articles which are little used or which need no protection. While the lobbyist is at work the foreign manufacturer and the importer are not asleep. They modify their goods a little, change the style of packing and employ various arts to slip into the most advantageous classifications. Sometimes they succeed, often they fail. But when they do succeed they make fortunes.

While the ad valorem system may permit John Wanamaker to import undervalued ribbons and trimmings, the specific system is a born fraud. In the one there is some risk of fraud increasing rapidly as the rate is made higher and decreasing rapidly as the rate is reformed, while in the other is a certain fraud, constantly acting.

Chairman Wilson's preference for ad valorem duties is democratic. The party always preferred them and its great reform achievement of 1846 was founded upon that principle.—St. Louis Republic.

Tariff Bill Prospects.

There seems to be no room for doubt that the business men of the country, irrespective of party, are anxious to have the bill passed and put in operation as soon as may be consistent with proper deliberation and attention to harmony of detail. If the republicans as politicians really think that the bill will be injurious to the country, they must think that it will be injurious to the party responsible for it. Therefore they ought to be entirely willing to see it put in operation as soon as possible, so that its effects might be seen before the congressional elections next November. Hence there is ground for the hope that they will not lend their aid to any faction of the majority which may attempt to emasculate the bill.—Chicago Herald.

AWAY WITH THEM.

Levy No More Indirect Taxes—Necessities Not Luxuries.

Queer reports have gone out from Washington lately. Democrats sent there to lift the heavy tax burden off the shoulders of the masses are said to be seriously considering the placing of new duties that will rest almost entirely upon the shoulders of farmers, laborers and mechanics. It is estimated that a tax of 10 cents per pack on playing cards will yield a revenue of $1,500,000; that a tax of one cent on each package of proprietary medicine will produce $4,500,000; that an increase of the tax on cigarettes from 50 cents to $1 per 1,000 will add $1,500,000. Estimates have also been made of the revenue that would come from increasing the tax on whisky and from placing a tax upon leaf tobacco.

Nine-tenths of all such taxes are paid by people who work for a living and whose incomes are less than $4 a day. It is not to the point to say that these articles are luxuries or are even unnecessary and harmful. The fact is that the workingman now uses them and would continue to use them to about the same extent even if the proposed taxes be imposed. He considers it his privilege to dosp up with proprietary medicines, to play cards, to chew and smoke tobacco and to drink whisky. These are a part of his personal liberties. It is to maintain them intact that he votes the democratic ticket. He did not vote for the sub-committee on internal revenue to act as a monitor over his affairs. Nor, in fact, does this committee intend these taxes for disciplinary purposes. Why, then, levy any more taxes upon consumption—taxes which always bear heavily upon the comparatively poor and compel individuals to pay, not in proportion to their ability, but to their needs.

It is scarcely possible to lay an indirect tax that will not be paid by the already over-taxed poor consumer. It is entirely possible to lay a direct tax that will not touch the ordinary wage earner, but will compel the now exempted millionaire to contribute a moiety of his immense income to the support of the government that protects his possessions. A tax on legacies; a tax on the incomes of corporations that partake of the nature of monopolies, or even the inquisitorial tax on individual incomes are preferable by far to any indirect tax. Any or all of these can be levied and made to yield an immense income without taxing over and over again the same persons who are now taxed almost out of house and home.

But aside from this double taxation of the masses and the practical exemption of the rich under indirect taxation, there are other important reasons why we should change to direct taxation as rapidly as possible. All of the revenue from a direct tax goes to the support of the government. An indirect tax usually puts more in the pockets of private individuals and corporations than into the government vaults. Thus the import duty of one-half cent per pound on refined sugar has taxed the American people to the extent of $20,000,000 a year. The duty of $15.44 per ton on steel rails has drained about $60,000,000 from the people during the last three years. In neither case has the government received any benefit from these indirect taxes. When a person pays a direct tax he realizes that he is paying a tax and he keeps his eye on the goverament to see if it needs all of the revenue collected and does not waste any of it. Indirect taxes are not seen or felt when paid and the payer of them does not concern himself about the use to which they are put. They thus drain away his substance and weaken and deaden his feeling of responsibility as a citizen.

It is no part of the business of democrats to levy new indirect taxes, or even to spend time discussing taxes that are better adapted for instruments of extortion in the hands of monarchs than as revenue measures in a republic, where every voter should be made to feel in part responsible for every act of government. BYRON W. HOLT.

THE MERCILESS SUGAR TRUST.

Chairman Wilson Should Have Left No Bonus at All for It.

The ways and means committee proposes to reduce the duty on refined sugar from ½ to ¼ cent per pound. This practically says to the trust: "Hereafter you will be permitted to take only $10,000,000 instead of $20,000,000 per annum from the pockets of the people." If any duty is to be left on sugar it should be levied equally on raw and refined. This would turn the revenue collected into the United States treasury and not into the bulging pockets of the trust. In discussing the "prospects of the sugar trust," the Journal of Commerce and the Commercial Bulletin, the greatest commercial daily in this country, said on December 9th:

"Gentlemen interested in the refining of sugar have made through newspaper interviews two predictions of the course they and their associates would take if the sugar duty were reduced as the Wilson bill proposes. One gentleman predicts the closing of the refineries; the other, without going into details of explanation, announces that no foreign sugar is to be admitted; the refiners will make prices that will prevent this.

"We have no doubt that the latter statement is much nearer the truth than the former. There is already considerable capital invested in refineries, and we have no idea that this will be abandoned. The profits of the refiners are such that they can reduce prices a good deal without reducing their profits below figures with which most business men would be satisfied. Of course, they will endeavor to reduce prices without reducing their profits, and, like many other manufacturers, they are announcing that if they continue in business they will make heavy reductions in wages. The truth is that, as business men, they will get their labor as cheap as they can whatever the duty on sugar may be; they will pay the wages that the condition of the labor market compels them to pay, and if their protection were increased four-fold they would not on that account raise wages; and their

THE BIRDS OF NORTH AMERICA.

In connection with the foregoing report of our Ornithological Chapter, it is only right to call the attention of all lovers of birds to the magnificent work now being issued by the Natural Science Association of America, and entitled "The Birds of North America." Edition limited to 1,000. It is emphatically an original work, original in design and execution, and whether in letter press, illustrations or price, it is unapproached by anything of the kind in existance. It is recommended by the highest scientific, ecclesiastic and educational authority as being the most attractive, meritorious, pure and ennobling exporition of our ornithology yet given to the public. Dr. Elliott Coues, author of "Birds of the North-West," says: "It is a really notable work." Prof. C. J. Maynard, author of the "Birds of Eastern North America," says: "It contains the best pictures of the species which I have ever seen." Thos. G. Gentry, author of "Life Histories of Birds," and "Nests and Eggs of Birds of the United States," says: "It is the cheapest and best publication on ornithology in this country. The drawings are of a very high order, and rivals in beauty of design and finish the more costly works published abroad or in this country. It should be found in our homes and in libraries generally." And, according to Dr. Theodore Gill, a member of the National Academy of Sciences, "It is not only a meritorious volume, but is altogether so handsome as to make it a very appropriate presentation book or ornament for the family table." It is an imperial quarto volume of engraved figures of all our species, artistically reproduced, true in all hues of color to their natural plumage and botanical surroundings. It also includes a copious text description of their habits and characteristics, and embracing in general the observations made by the most eminent writers on ornithology, and a systematic table, arranged according to the classification adopted by the American Ornithologists' Union, includes all the additions and corrections of our North American species which have been made to date, with an index to page, plate and figure of each species according to the A. O. U. number. It is illustrated with one hundred and nineteen full page colored plates, each representing from one to thirty or more species. It is the finest book on American birds issued since Audubon, and is pronounced by some authorities surperior to that now rare and costly work. It is issued in half and full bindings, Russia, seal, or morocco, at the net price of $40 and $45 respectively; but in response to a special letter, the association authorized me to say that a substantial discount will be made to such of our A. A. members and others as are working naturalists. We commend this work especially to members of the Wilson Ornithological Chapter. It is also a very useful and appropriate addition to the home and reference library, and for presentation purposes generally. Address regarding it, the Natural Science Association, 114 Fifth Avenue, New York, N. Y. Sample of plates and text can be had by sending twenty-five cents in postage stamps.

In all diseases of the nasal mucous membrane the remedy used must be non-irritating. Nothing satisfactory can be accomplished with douches, snuffs, powders or astringents, because they are irritating, do not thoroughly reach the affected surfaces and should be abandoned as worse than failures. CRITICISING A YOUNG LADY.

"She would be a pretty girl but for one thing."

"What's that?" asked Charley.

George—"Her face is always covered with purple and red blotches."

Charley—"Oh, that's easily enough disposed of. Used to be the same way myself, put I caught on to the troubles one day and got rid of it in no time."

George—"What was it?"

Charley—"Simply blood eruptions. Took a short course of P. P. P. I tell you, its the boss blood corrector. The governor had rhumatism so bad that you could hear him holler clear across the country every time he moved. He tried it, and you know what an athletic old gent he is now. taken for consumption, in its early stages, checks further progress of the disease, and even in the later stages, it eases the distressing cough and promotes refreshing sleep. It is agreeable to the taste, needs but small doses, and does not interfere with digestion or any of the regular organic functions. As an emergency medicine, every household should be provided with Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

"Having used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in my family for many years, I can confidently recommend it for all the complaints it is claimed to cure. Its sale is increasing yearly with me, and my customers think this preparation has no equal as a cough-cure."

THE FENCING BELLES OF BOSTON.

The Boston girl more graceful grows,
Her blood in healthier heart beats flows,
Because the arts of foil she knows.

Dressed in becoming fencing clothes,
Her broadsword ready for her foes,
With the new exercise she glows.

Far from the envious eyes of beaux,
A mask upon her pretty nose,
She blushes like a sweet June rose.

THAT PICTURE.

During five or six years Marcel had worked at that famous painting which he affirmed should represent the crossing of the Red sea; and for five or six years this masterpiece of color had been obstinately refused by the jury at the annual salon.

So, from force of habit in going and coming so often from the studio to the musee and from the musee to the studio, the picture knew the road so well that, if one had set it on wheels, it would have been able to go all alone to the Louvre.

Marcel, who had ten times repainted and rearranged this canvas from top to bottom, attributed to a personal hostility of the members of the jury against himself the ostracism which rejected it annually from the Square salon, and in his idle moments he had composed in honor of the Cerberuses of the institute a little dictionary of curses with some illustrations of a savage ferocity. This collection, which had become celebrated, had obtained in the studios and at the School of the Fine Arts the popular success which is attached to the immortal complaint of Jean Belin, painter in ordinary to the grand sultan of Turkey. All the daubers of Paris had a copy of it in their memory.

For a long time Marcel was not discouraged by the determined rejections which he received at each annual exhibition. He was comfortably settled in the opinion that his picture was, in its least proportions, the long sought for pendant to the "Marriage Feast at Cana," that gigantic masterpiece whose brilliant splendor the dust of three centuries has not been able to tarnish. So, every year at the epoch of the salon, Marcel sent his picture to be examined by the jury. Only—in order to throw [illegible] and to try to [illegible] their preconceived determination to exclude it, which prejudice they seemed to have against the "Crossing of the Red Sea"—without changing anything in the general composition of the painting, he modified certain details and changed the title of his picture. Thus, one year it came before the jury under the name of "The Crossing of the Rubicon." But Pharaoh, badly disguised under Cæsar's mantle, was instantly recognized and rejected with all the honors due him.

The following year Marcel threw upon [illegible] as a layer of white paint to represent snow, planted a tree in one corner, and dressing up an Egyptian in the uniform of the imperial guard of France he baptized his picture "The Crossing of the Beresina." The jury, which had rubbed up its spectacles that day upon the tails of its green palmed coats—on official occasions the members of the institute wear dress coats having green palms embroidered on the lapels and collars—was not duped by this new ruse. It recognized perfectly the obstinate canvas, especially by a big devil of a many colored horse that pranced about on top of a wave of the Red sea. The dressing of this horse served Marcel for all his experiments in coloring, and in his everyday speech he called it "a synoptical tableau of fine tones," because it reproduced all the most varied combinations of color with their plays of light and shade. But once more, unmoved by this fine detail, the jury had not black balls enough to fully express their feelings in rejecting "The Crossing of the Beresina."

"Very well," said Marcel, "I'll wait! Next year I shall send it again under the title of the 'Passage des Panoramas.'"

A few days later, and when Marcel had already forgotten terrible threats of vengeance he had uttered against his persecutors, he received a visit from Father Medicis. Thus the bohemians had nicknamed a Jew named Solomon, who at that epoch was well known to all members of artistic and literary Bohemia, with whom he was in perpetual relations. Pere Medicis did business in all sorts of bric-a-brac. He sold complete sets of furniture at from 12 francs up to 3,000. He bought everything and knew how to sell it again at a profit.

The exchange bank of M. Proudhon was a very little affair compared to the system applied by Medicis, who possessed the genius of traffic to a degree never before attained by even the most able of his fellow believers. His shop which was situated in the Place du Carrousel, was a fairyland where one found everything to be desired. All the products of nature, all the creations of art, all that comes forth from the bowels of the earth and of genius. Medicis made of it an object of negotiation.

His business touched everything, absolutely everything that exists: he dealt even in the ideal. Medicis bought ideas in order to exploit them himself or to sell them again. Known to all the litterateurs and all the artists, an intimate of the palette and a familiar friend of the writing desk, he was the Asmodeus of the art. He would sell you some cigars for the plot of a novel, some slippers for a sonnet, some fresh fish for paradoxes; he chatted "by the hour" with writers whose business it was to relate in the newspapers the scandal of society; he would procure you places in the galleries of the house of parliament and invitations to private soirees; he lodged by the night, the week or the month the wandering daubers who paid him in copies of the works of Flavius Josephus.

On entering the home of the bohemians, with that intelligent air which distinguished him, the Jew divined that he had arrived at a propitious moment. In fact, the four friends found themselves at that moment met in council and under the presidency of a ferocious appetite they were discussing the grave question of bread and meat. It was on a Sunday, and the end of the month! Fatal day and sinister date! The entrance of Medicis was therefore greeted with a joyous chorus, for they knew that the Jew was too miserly of his time to spend it in visits of mere politeness. Therefore his presence always announced an affair of business.

"M. Marcel," said Medicis, "I have come here solely to make your fortune. That is to say, I've come to offer you a superb chance to enter the artistic world. Art, as you well know, M. Marcel, is an arid road of which glory is the oasis."

"Pere Medicis," said Marcel, on the hot coals of impatience, "in the name of 50 per cent, you venerated patron saint, be brief!"

"This is the affair," said Medicis. "A wealthy lover of paintings who is making a collection of pictures destined to make the tour of Europe has ordered me to procure for him a series of remarkable works. I have come to offer you an entrance into that gallery of art. In a word, I have come to buy your 'Crossing of the Red Sea.'"

"Cash?" said Marcel.

"Cash," responded the Jew, making the orchestra in his breeches pocket play a lively tune.

"Go on, Medicis," said Marcel, displaying his painting. "I wish to leave to yourself the honor of fixing the price of this work, which is beyond all price."

The Jew placed on the table 50 crowns in beautiful new silver pieces.

"Go on," said Marcel; "that is only the advance guard."

"M. Marcel," said Medicis, "you well know I shall add nothing. Reflect! Fifty crowns. That makes 150 francs. That's a sum, that is!"

"A feeble sum," replied the artist. "Why, know that my first word is always my last, merely in the robe of my Pharaoh there are 50 crowns' worth of cobalt. Pay me at least the material. Equalize those piles, round up the figures, and I will call you Leo X."

"Here's my last word," said the Jew. "I'll not add a son more, but I offer a dinner to all of you, various wines at your own discretion, and at the dessert I'll pay in gold."

"Does any gentleman wish to make any further bid?" yelled Collins, rapping three times with his fist on the table. "Going, going, gone!"

"Agreed," said Marcel.

"I will send for the picture tomorrow," said the Jew. "Now let us start, gentlemen; the table is laid."

The four friends descended the stairs, singing the chorus from "Les Huguenots," "A table, a table!"

Eight days after that feast Marcel learned in what gallery his picture had taken its place. While walking through the Faubourg Saint Honore he stopped in the midst of a group that was gazing with curiosity at the hanging of a sign over a shop. That sign was none other than Marcel's famous picture, sold by Medicis to a dealer in provisions. Only, the "Crossing of the Red Sea" had once more suffered a modification and bore a new title. Some one had added to it a steamboat and had called it, "At the Port of Marseilles." A flattering ovation arose among the loungers when they discovered the painting. So Marcel turned away, delighted by this triumph, and murmured, "The voice of the people is the voice of God!"—Boston Transcript.

Politeness Pays.

"I have often heard my uncle," said the nephew of a noted lawyer who died lately, "dwell, upon the fact that he owed much of his success in life to a habit of invariable politeness, without any element of todyism, which had been instilled into his nature by the teachings of a wise mother. His first start in his profession came through an old scrubwoman who was employed about the house where he boarded when a young man. One morning he passed out as she was scrubbing the front steps, and he saluted her politely, as usual. She stopped him. 'They tell me ye are a lawyer,' she said. 'Yes.' 'Well, I know a poor widdy woman that wants a lawyer, and if you will give me your address I'll tell her.' The 'poor widdy' proved to be the chief heir to a large estate in Delaware county. My uncle became her attorney and trustee of her children, recovered her interest in the estate and derived a good income from its management for many years."—Philadelphia Record.

Roaming Chinese Tribes.

In the plains on the western borders of the Chinese empire, in the very heart of Asia, there live roaming tribes who seldom visit towns, except it may be in the way of trade. They dwell in tents which they pitch wherever they may happen for the moment to be wandering or working. The tent used by some of the roving Mongolian folk is made of felt and is usually low, small and pointed toward the top. The wooden door frame is no higher than half a window frame in our houses, but the tent, although not equal to the wants of a large family, is snug and comfortable enough in summer, but cold in winter. —Western Mail.

Sells Worthless Securities.

There is an individual in New York who makes a good living by dealing in securities which have a purely speculative value, and which, in many cases, are known to be worthless. He buys these cheaper cash and sells them to men who go into fraudulent bankruptcies and want to make a showing of assets to their creditors. He has been making money in it for years and has had a share in filling out the schedules of a great many bankrupts who have taken advantage of his sagacity in supplying them with collateral.—New York Letter.

The Forum

"The Greatest of all our Periodicals."

The foremost men of the world write the literature of contemporaneous activity for THE FORUM.

Every great subject is taken up by The Forum when it naturally comes into public attention and is treated by the best authorities, without regard to parties or creeds. It will keep any thoughtful reader informed on the tasks and problems of the time, as no other periodical does.

To many thoughtful people, the price of The Forum has hitherto been prohibitory; indeed all the great Reviews have been too high price for the masses of intelligent readers. But now the number of readers of thoughtful literature—men and women who wish really to know what is going on in the world outside the narrow limits of particular sects and parties—is great enough in the United States to warrant so revolutionary a reduction in price. The Forum discusses important subjects, but it is not dull. The literature of contemporaneous activity is, in fact, the most interesting of all literature. American citizenship implies that a man shall know the opinions of the foremost men and the latest great achievements in every direction of activity.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

All Sores, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Burns, Sore Throat, Lameness, Rheumatism, Piles, Inflammation of Lungs and Bowels, Bronchitis, Croup, Salt Rheum, Chilblains, Affection of the Spine, Erysipelas, Nervous Irritation, and all disorders attendant with Inflammation.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years,

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should be perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Price 25 and 40 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

NOTES FROM ALBION COLLEGE.

The winter term opens auspiciously for Albion College. With increased attendance and increased facilities for study the outlook is bright indeed.

There is a boom even in athletics. Albion's defeats on the foot ball field last season seemto have been a blessing in disguise; all were becoming discouraged and it seemed as if the interest in athletics was destined to die out.

A few of the more hopeful ones have been at work with remarkable energy, and a plan is now in operation which promises to place Albion at the head of the Michigan inter-collegiate athletics next season. A foot ball training class has been organized and while, therefore, the winter term has been quiet as far as field sports have been concerned, this term promises enough sport to keep even the most enthusiastic interested. The class meets every evening in the gymnasium and the members are put through an hour or more of hard, sweating work. They are taught also the science of the game. The class numbers about forty, and gives promise of developing some excellent players.

The Freshmen have adopted a radical change in the matter of class banquets. In all previous cases the classes have endeavored to keep the date of their banquet a profound secret: still, a "spread" has never yet been held without the knowledge of the other class men. In the instance of the Senior banquet which occurred some time ago, it was supposed that only Seniors knew of it, but when the appointed time came four of the Seniors did not put in an appearance and, when two of the four did materialize, some three hours later, they accounted for their absence by relating how they had been met by a number of Freshmen, and these Freshmen had persuaded them to go with them. The other two Seniors had such pressing engagements with some other class men that they could not attend the banquet at all. The Freshmen have advertised the date of their banquet in the college Pleiad, and they will make such arrangements that all Freshmen will be in attendance. They rely upon their superior numbers to insure that none but Freshmen shall enter the banqueting hall, and that none but Freshmen shall enjoy the refreshments.

A sad accident occurred at the electric works plant in this city on Wednesday evening, Jan 10th. Wesley Brown, a newly enrolled student in the preparatory school connected with the college, had entered the building to inspect the works. In some way he was caught in the belt and was instantly carried to the wheel and crushed, his body being mangled almost beyond recognition. He had two sisters in the college, and his home was at Springport. W. E. B.

A Neat Testimonial.

Chas. A. Slayton has served the Presbyterian Sunday School, as superintendent, for the past fourteen years, but positively declined a re-election. A committee appointed for that purpose, presented to him a set of resolutions, expressing the sentiments of the school for his long and faithful service, and they have been beautifully engrossed and framed to present to Mr. Slayton. The engrossing was done by R. J. Hicks, and is an elegant job, all done with a pen. The card is about one and one-half by two feet in size and contains the following words. We give them verbatim. It is a testimonial that Mr. Slayton will highly esteem:

Resolutions adopted by the committee representing the Sunday School of the First Presbyterian Church, Tecumseh, Mich. Jan. 14, 1894. Whereas: Charles A. Slayton, has for the past fourteen years faithfully performed the duties of Superintendent of the Sunday School of the First Presbyterian Church, of Tecumseh, Michigan, and as his business affairs occupy so much of his time that he cannot serve in this capacity longer, it is therefore,

Resolved, That the warmest thanks of the session of the church, of the officers, teachers and scholars of the school, are due and are hereby tendered to him for the faithful and successful manner in which he has conducted the affairs of the school for so long a period. We wish to assure him that our prayers and best wishes will follow him. We sincerely pray that health and long life may be granted unto him; that he may labor for the Master in whatever field of usefullness the Lord may open.

Committee: H. C. Conklin, Charles M. Brown, Mrs. W. A. Frost.

ANNOUNCEMENT FOR 1894.

Again the "Old Reliable" greets its patrons, extends its thanks for past favors, and lays before them its program for 1894. The HERALD passed through the panic of 1893 much better than we anticipated, and is prepared to face the future with confidence. We have several attractive offers to present, some of which we believe will merit the approval of every subscriber. With the attractions herein offered we hope to retain all our old friends and make many new acquaintances during the coming three months.

Realizing the fact that every dollar counts in these hard times, we have concluded to make our rates for the coming year on a "hard times" basis. One dollar will pay for the paper for one year, when sent to any post office in Lenawee County. Beyond Lenawee County $1.25. In making this concession however we shall be compelled to adopt the strict advance rule. We cannot afford to accept these rates and wait several months for our pay. Sixty days grace will be allowed for payment of subscriptions which is ample time for all who desire to keep the paper, and all papers not renewed within that time will be stopped. People expect to pay for their outside papers strictly in advance. Why should they not be willing to treat their home paper with the same courtesy?

We have a few combination offers, which we believe will prove especially attractive.

FIRST.

The Detroit Weekly Free Press has been changed to a semi-weekly, and is now a "twice a week" paper, each edition containing at least eight pages. These two papers with the HERALD—three papers in all—will be furnished for $2.00.

SECOND.

The American Farmer and the Farmer's Guide are both first-class farm papers, well edited and finely printed. The subscription price of each is fifty cents. Either of these papers will be furnished in connection with the HERALD for $1.25.

THIRD.

The Cosmopolitan Magazine is now acknowledged to be one of the very best monthlies published. It ranks with Harper's, Scribner's and the Century. Its December edition was unprecedented, being over 400,000 copies. The Cosmopolitan will be sent in connection with the HERALD, both journals, for only $2.25.

FOURTH.

We have closed a contract with the Globe Bible Publishing Co. by which we can furnish our patrons with the entire series of "Shepp's World's Fair Photographed." The work is issued in thirty-two parts, regular price twenty-five cents each, each part containing eight pages of descriptive matter and eight full page half tone photographs. One coupon cut from the HERALD, accompanied by ten cents in coin will entitle the subscriber to one of these parts. The distribution will begin on Thursday, February 1st, and continue weekly until the entire series shall be taken. Every HERALD subscriber will be able to obtain this magnificent series of World's Fair views at exactly wholesale cost price. This offer is more fully described in detail elsewhere.

FIFTH.

The N. Voice is the best and ablest prohibition paper published. We can furnish the HERALD in connection with The Voice, the latter accompanied with a premium book, "Martyn's Life of Wendell Phillips"—the three, for only $2.00.

SIXTH.

"Coin" is the title of a new publication issued by the Bimetallic League. It is a monthly, ably edited and a first class paper, the yearly rate being fifty cents. The silver issue is not yet settled. Every Democrat, Republican and Prohibitionist ought to post himself on this subject. The joint rate for the two papers—HERALD and Coin will be only $1.25.

We print a big batch of council proceedings this week.

Mrs. E. S. Tate, of Clinton, visited friends in town last Friday.

Mrs. J. S. Kies, of Clinton, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. C. F. Field.

Mrs. W. T. Thorp, of Adrian, is spending a few days with Tecumseh friends.

George R. Service is spending a few weeks with relatives at Groveland, N. Y.

Mrs. A. P. Coddington is on the sick list, having an attack of grip and neuralgia.

The snow storm of yesterday indicates that we may have some winter yet this winter.

Roy DeWolf came home Saturday night expecting to spend about two weeks here.

D. T. Hall, having recovered from his recent illness, is again at his old place in the store.

Alva Spayde's big slaughter sale will continue through this month, or until February 1st.

The day opened rather unpropitious for the County farmers institute yesterday morning.

Remember the Wolfenbarger and Hickins meeting at the Macon Grange hall this evening.

Mrs. E. Hause has gone to Kansas City, Mo., to spend a few weeks with her daughter, Mrs. Satterlee.

Oliver Sanford has gone to Morley, Michigan., to visit friends there and try to get well. Success to him.

Henry Bice left Tuesday for Owosso and Grand Ledge to spend a couple of weeks with his sons, who live in those places.

Mrs. Thomas Boyd, of Geneseo, N. Y., is visiting her son, Mathew Boyd. She visited with her nephew, Wm. B. Melvin and family, Sunday.

The Hillsdale-Lenawee Teachers' Association will hold an all day session at Adrian next Saturday, Feb. 3d. '94. A good program will be presented.

The meetings at the Baptist church are in progress again this week, each evening. Seven candidates received the right of baptism last Sabbath evening.

It pays to advertise. If you don't believe it, ask the clothing merchants of this town, who have had such a rush of trade during January as they never had before.

Mrs. W. H. Babbitt had proposed joining her husband in Florida this month, but the sudden death of a friend New Year's morning, changed her plans and she left for Cleveland, Ohio.

John J. Orr, Tecumseh druggist, was in town looking over D. G. Wilson's model store, getting pointers for the fitting up of his new store in place of the one lately destroyed by fire.—Dundee Reporter.

Macon Grange will meet in regular session on Saturday evening, Jan. 27th, at 7 o'clock p. m. This will be the last meeting before the meeting of the County Grange which will be on Feb. 1st. All members should be present at this meeting to assist in making the necessary arrangements.

The vested choir of twenty-five boys and men of Christ church, Adrian, will render the musical portion of the service in St. Peter's church next Friday evening. There will be an offertory taken to defray the expenses of the choir's visit. The Rev. C. H. I. Chandler will be the preacher.

Frank Wilson was tearing around Deerfield the other night, and threatening to blow up the town. Officer Lennon captured him, and finding a revolver in his boot, yanked him up for carrying concealed weapons. Justice Joseph Robertson sentenced him to 20 days in jail, and he was brought here to-day.—Evening Telegram.

Chet Bronson went to Adrian Tuesday.

John J. Orr was an Adrian visitor Tuesday.

Ray M. Griswold, of Marshall, was in town yesterday.

Mrs. George Griswold is visiting friends in Hillsdale.

Editor Field was visiting the Adrian schools last Tuesday.

Joe Everett returned from his visit to Coldwater, Tuesday night.

R. J. Hicks did himself proud on the Slayton testimonial. Have you seen it?

Frank Benedict and family were here over Sunday. They returned to Detroit on Tuesday.

Earle Slayton is working up quite a trade as agent of the Troy Steam Laundry, of Fremont, Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Whitenack were Adrian visitors last Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Whitenack will remain a few days.

Alfred Heesen is at home for a few days. He goes to Peoria, Ill., the last of the week, having secured a position there.

The Farmers' Institute is progressing yesterday and to-day at Adrian. The attendance yesterday was rather slim owing to the storm, but it is doubtless improved to-day.

Can it be possible, says the Hudson Post, that mashes are so well developed at the skating rink that engagements are broken and rings returned through the mails?

Hon. Wm. L. Seaton, who has served Jackson in the capacity of postmaster for twenty-two years and eight months, has retired and the new postmaster, Edward C. Morrissey, has assumed his duties.

The first coupon for our Art Portfolio distribution will be printed in the next issue, on Thursday, Feb. 1st. We shall have an ample supply of part first on hand by that time to accommodate every one.

The Friends and the Methodists have been holding Union revival meetings for the past two weeks at the church of the latter. The meetings are continued this week, attended with much interest and good results.

Geo. S. Tiffany has invented a new style of table for receiving tile as they come from the machine, which he claims to be a great improvement over any table now in use. He has applied for letters patent upon it.

We call attention to the card in another column of H. M. Heal, the Clinton druggist, setting forth the merits of his English Lavender Jelly. We have tried it for chapped hands and find it to be a superior remedy.

The annual meeting of the Commercial Telegraph line will be held in G. A. R. hall on Monday, Feb. 5, 1894, at 1:30 p. m. A board of officers will be chosen and such other business transacted as may come before the meeting.

We publish this week an installment on tax reform. The matter is prepared by B. W. Holt, who is an expert on the subject of taxation. Articles from his pen will appear at intervals during the year and we believe they will be found interesting.

Louis Post, of New York, will deliver a free lecture at Adrian, Friday evening, giving an illustration, with all the charts he has made, of the single tax system. Mr. Post is one of the brightest men of this country, and we trust he will have a large audience.

Some of the original patents covering the Bell telephone will expire Jan. 30. With the expiration of the patents it is stated that new machines will be placed on the market at a much less price and that will give better satisfaction than the present system of phoning.

The February Forum will contain an impartial review of the whole Hawaiian controversy by the eminent historian, Mr. James Schouler of Boston, who as a student of international law has gone over the whole matter especially for The Forum—to make it plain, without any partisan purpose to serve.

The Hudson Electric Light Co. has reduced its meter rates on incandescent lights from one cent to three-fourths of a cent per hour, providing the monthly total is 100 hours or more. It has also just effected a new three years contract with the city council, charging $110 per month for 22 are lights instead of $120 as heretofore, also furnishing free ten incandescent lights for the city hall.

The Morenci creamery, now operated by Bert Bowman, receives about 2,200 pounds of milk every other day. The returns for December milk give the patrons $1.15 8-10 per 100 lbs., with the sweet milk back, which is equivalent to 10c a hundred additional. Checks were issued Wednesday. The patrons are to have a meeting next Tuesday afternoon to consider the matter of operating the creamery after April 1st.—Morenci Observer.

The new Armory is now so nearly completed that the ladies of St. Peter's church propose to open it with a five o'clock dinner Saturday evening, Feb. 3d., which will be served in superb style. Waiters from abroad have been engaged; the head-waiter in particular, goes far ahead of any ever introduced to the Tecumseh public. The menu will consist of soup, chicken pie, vegetables, cakes, and all the accompaniments necessary to make a bon vivant's heart rejoice. It is to be hoped that a large attendance will reward the ladies' efforts. Dinner will be served from 5:00 to 7:00 p. m. Tickets 25 cents.

Rev. H. A. Smith was in Adrian Wednesday morning.

Aggie Stewart is going to work for Mrs. Van Antwerp.

H. S. Lee and wife went to Elkhart Wednesday morning.

R. W. Bell, of Chicago, spent Sunday with Tecumseh friends.

C. F. Clark, of New York, spent Monday and Tuesday in town.

Riley Miller was up town Tuesday for the first time in several weeks.

This was the coldest morning of the season. The thermometer went below zero.

A number of farmers in this section are attending the institute at Adrian to-day.

The loss on the Gould & Waldo store has been settled, the amount paid being $619.00.

E. F. Kirchgessner is in Chicago, attending lectures given by the King Optical Institute.

The Juniors of the high school will give the court scene from Merchant of Venice, at the next Lyceum.

The district convention of the W. C. T. U. will convene in Tecumseh early in April. Mrs. Marian Baxter or Miss Anna Shaw will lecture.

The Womans' Christian Temperance Union will continue to meet at the house of Mrs. Dr. Hamilton, every Friday at 2:30 p. m., during Jan. and Feb.

The ladies of the Baptist church will hold their regular monthly social at the church chapel Thursday, Feb. 1st. Supper will be served as usual. All are invited to come.

John Mills, of Toledo, spent Sunday at the home of P. C. Snell. His many friends will be glad to know that he has a good position as gas inspector in the Union Depot yards.

The "Miller Treatment" cures all kinds of Rupture of both sexes regardless of age or length of time ruptured. Consult free, Miller Company Physicians at the Lilley House between Tuesday Jan. 30 and Saturday, Feb. 3rd.

The Masonic Temple project is moving right along. Only $600 now remain to be raised and that amount will doubtless be forthcoming very soon. The entire bonus will be in hand as soon as work can be commenced in the spring.

William F. Kennedy died Tuesday forenoon, after a brief illness. His health has been feeble all winter, but he has been about until recently. He was 76 years old. The funeral services will be held at his residence this afternoon.

Below are the officers elect of the Presbyterian Sunday School for the coming year:

Supt.—H. H. McClure.
1st. Ass't.—Mrs. W. A. Frost.
2d. Assist.—Lillian Waring.
Treas.—Samuel Helm.
Secy.—W. R. Caldwell.

Miss Mary M. Monaghan arrived in town yesterday, from Charlotte, where she has been making her sister, Mrs. Sherwood, a lengthy visit. She will likely remain in Tecumseh a month or so, as she has a long list of old friends here to call upon.

The National Stockman, as a farmer's paper, stands without a peer. The first of January it started a Chicago edition, which will be especially valuable to the farmer's of the great west. The full rate is $1.50 per year, but we can take the Stockman and HERALD together for $2.00. Sample copies at this office.

At a recent meeting of the W. C. T. U. sorrow was expressed for the loss to the society by the death of Mrs. Alzina Blood, who was a dear personal friend to many of the members as well as an earnest fellow worker, in the temperance cause. She was one of the old Crusaders and the Union will miss her prayers and generous financial aid.

The ladies of Tecumseh are sustaining several clubs devoted to social enjoyment and improvement in art and literature. The members of the Friday Reading Club have been very agreeably entertained at their last two meetings by Mrs. Powell, of Oswego, N. Y., with incidents of travel, graphic descriptions and photos of places in Italy. Mrs. Powell has, at their earnest request, consented to present the same subject at their next meeting.

At the close of the meeting at the M. E. church last Tuesday evening, Rev. Varner said: "Be kind to us and we will be kind to you. A member of the church board will occupy the rear of the church and take the names of those who disturb the meetings and prosecute them according to the law." We hope the churches are in earnest. Five rowdy boys and girls will drive fifty good, sincere people from a church that will tolerate it for one moment. The M. E. say they will not.

The Tecumseh Relief Committee, having gathered in all their contributions, shipped the following supplies to Iron Mountain, yesterday: 1 car of provisions and clothing, consisting of 21 barrels of flour, 875 lbs. corn meal, 325 lbs. pork, 19 bu. beans, 9 lbs. tea and one box of clothing. This was contributed by citizens of Tecumseh and the several school districts in the township. Money contributed was used by the committee here in buying provisions. Among the contributions were: $15.00 from Tecumseh Lodge, No. 69, F. & A. M., and $10.00 from Co. C., M. N. G. The car also contained in addition to the above, 18 barrels flour and 3 boxes of clothing sent by the citizens of East Raisin.

THE FIRST PORTFOLIO COUPON.

It will be Published on Thursday, Feb. 1, and the Distribution will then Begin.

Our first portfolio coupon will be published in the next issue of the HERALD, and one coupon will appear each week thereafter until the entire series shall be completed. It is impossible to tell beforehand how many copies will be called for, but we shall be prepared to accommodate all who come, whether the number be 50 or 500. We have a few suggestions to make, however, to people who expect to take the parts, which will facilitate the work and avoid mistakes. It is desired that all who intend to avail themselves of this offer should apply for the first part promptly as soon as the first part coupon appears. This will enable us to order the exact number each week necessary to supply all applicants, and save much confusion and trouble. Every person's name will be registered in a book kept for that purpose, and the names on this list will be numbered consecutively. Every person calling or sending for a part should give his name and consecutive number; the clerk can then turn to the list and check off the part delivered. By observing this rule strictly, people will save themselves trouble and reduce the work of distribution materially. To give our patrons, who do not get their mail at Tecumseh, a chance to examine the work, we shall send sample copies of the first part to the following postoffices, where they can be examined: Clinton, Macon, Lake Ridge, Britton, Ridgeway, Holloway, Raisin Center, Sutton, Pentecost, Onsted, Tipton, Springville and Cambridge.

Part first will contain the preface and table of contents for the entire book and also the following views, with a page of descriptive matter to each view:

1 Dedication Day, Oct 22, '92.
2 Opening Day, May 1, '93.
3 Court of Honor, looking west.
4 Statue of the Republic.
5 Peristyle.
6 Columbus Quadriga.
7 Columbian Fountain.
8 Administration Building.

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

EPPS'S COCOA
BREAKFAST—SUPPER.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided for our breakfast and supper a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctor's bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.

Important Intelligence From All Parts.

CONGRESSIONAL.
Regular Session.

ON the 15th the senate by a vote of 30 to 24 rejected the nomination of William B. Hornblower, of New York, to be an associate justice of the United States supreme court to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Samuel Blatchford.... In the house the consideration of the tariff bill under the five-minute rule was begun and the debate concluded with a tilt between Mr. Cockran and Mr. Reed.

IN the senate the federal election bill and the tariff measure were discussed on the 16th.... In the house several amendments to the tariff bill were offered and adopted and others were introduced but not acted upon.

THE senate on the 17th after discussion of civil service reform until the close of the morning hour resumed as "the unfinished business" the house bill to repeal the federal election laws, and the debate continued until the close of the legislative day.... In the house Mr. Wilson's amendment to the tariff bill fixing the date on which free wool should go into effect as August 1 was defeated, and the substitute making it go into effect immediately on the passage of the bill was adopted. The rest of the day was spent discussing the amendment of Mr. Burrows to substitute the print wool schedule for that proposed by the Wilson bill.

IN the senate on the 18th Senators Peffer and Allen (populists) and Senators Morgan and Daniel (democrats) condemned the bond policy of the administration. The announcement was made of the resignation of Senator Walthall, of Mississippi. Adjourned to the 22d.... Almost the entire day in the house was spent in the continuation of the debate on Mr. Burrow's amendment to restore the existing duties on wool, with the result of its defeat by a strict party vote.

THE senate was not in session on the 19th.... In the house the time was occupied in discussing the tariff bill and the proposed amendment to put steel rails on the free list was lost by a vote of 100 to 79.

CHILLS AND FEVER.

A Case of Long Standing Finds a Cure.

Several years ago a man forty-five years of age, from a malarious district came a long distance to consult me for a chronic malarious affection for which he had doctored without intermission for over ten years. The treatment which had been mainly relied on by the various doctors he had consulted was quinine and other derivative of chinchona bark. Of these preparations he had taken many pounds, and during several intervals he had taken a great many chill cures, but nothing seemed to have any permanent effect.

His complexion was of that dirty yellow so characteristic of ague patients and his sunken, lusterless eyes, surrounded by dark circles, indicated how completely his health had been undermined. The tongue was heavily fissured with a thick brown coating, breath very offensive, and he complained of a constant, dull headache. A poor appetite, indigestion, biliousness and constipation completed a tale of woe so commonly heard in a malarious locality. The chills came on at irregular intervals. Sometimes he would not have one a month; then again every day for a while.

For this man I prescribed Peru-na and Man-a-lin as directed on the bottles, the Man-a-lin to be used until the bowels became regular and digestion good. A few weeks after I received a very enthusiastic letter from him in which he declared himself nearly well and better than he had been in ten years, and had taken no quinine since beginning my treatment. I instructed him to gradually leave off the Man-a-lin which he did, but continued the Pe-ru-na a few months longer, and made a complete recovery, continuing to enjoy the best of health.

His case is one of which there are thousands in every malarious district who have been many years and still are searching for something to bring relief to their miserable condition. I am positive that Pe-ru-na and Man-a-lin would cure every one of these, for I have watched its effect a good many years and I do not know a single failure.

FAILED TO CARRY.

It Is Discovered That the Salaries Amendment Was Defeated.

Gov. Rich Makes Important Discoveries—Evidence That the Returns Were Doctored—Sensational Developments Looked For.

SIGNS OF A PLOT.

LANSING, Jan. 20.—Gov. Rich has discovered by calculations that have been verified by four others that the amendment to section 1 of article 9 of the constitution of Michigan, increasing the salaries of certain state officials, which had been declared carried by the board of state canvassers, and so certified to by the members of the board, was in fact defeated by a very decisive majority.

The state officials whose salaries were affected by the amendment are the lieutenant governor, secretary of state, commissioner of the land office, superintendent of public instruction, state treasurer and attorney general. The latter two are not mentioned in the amendment, thus leaving their salaries to be fixed by the legislature, which was done, the treasurer's salary being increased from $1,000 to $2,000 and the attorney general's from $2,500, as fixed by the constitutional amendment of 1889, to $3,000. By the amendment voted on last spring it was proposed to increase the salary of the superintendent of public instruction from $1,000 to $2,000, that of the secretary of state from $800 to $2,000, and that of the lieutenant governor from three dollars per day during the sessions of the legislature to $1,200 per annum.

There is no way of intelligently explaining the difference between the official canvass made last spring and the canvass made last week. The latter shows an adverse majority of 12,000 and the former a majority of 1,800 for the amendment. The transaction bears every evidence of fraud and Gov. Rich proposes to find out who the guilty persons are, if there be any.

The recanvass of the vote very clearly shows that the returns were tampered with after reaching the office of the secretary of state. The discrepancy can be accounted for only by some altered county returns being substituted until copied in the record, tabulations made, and then destroyed, the originals being returned to their place. But the question arises: "Who is the guilty party?" The corrected canvass involves a return of $5,700 to the state treasury.

TOOK HIS OWN LIFE.

Suicide of Jesse Hart, a Pioneer of Michigan.

CHARLOTTE, Jan. 22.—Jesse Hart, one of the earliest settlers and pioneers of Eaton county, committed suicide at his home in this city Sunday morning by hanging. He left no message for his family assigning a reason for the deed. He had been in poor health for several years. Mr. Hart was born in Portage county, O., April 27, 1814. Up to a few years ago, when the greater portion of his property was divided among his children, he was regarded as one of the wealthiest men in Eaton county.

Big Damages from a Railroad.

CHICAGO, Ill., Jan. 22.—Wilbur F. Davidson, of Port Huron, Mich., was given a verdict of $43,000 damages against the Illinois Central Railroad company by a jury in Judge Grosscup's court Saturday morning. Mr. Davidson is general agent for the state of Michigan of the General Electric company. February 27 last, while the Illinois Central tracks were being elevated, he alighted from a suburban train at Fifty-third street and was caught between trains. He was badly hurt about the back and hips. He has never fully recovered from these injuries. Mr. Davidson's suit was for $100,000.

Suicide at Port Huron.

PORT HURON, Jan. 19.—Sunday morning a stranger put up at the Huron house in this city, registering as H. B. F. Odell, of Chicago. Wednesday night he attended a concert, and when he returned to the hotel he left orders to be called at 7 o'clock in the morning. When the clerk called him there was no answer, and the clerk entering the room found Odell lying on a lounge dead. It was a clear case of suicide. Temporary insanity caused by ill-health led to the deed.

Newberry Gets It.

LANSING, Jan. 20.—Corrected deeds of the site selected at Newberry for the projected Upper Peninsula asylum for the insane, from which reversion and other objectional clauses of the deed rejected last week had been eliminated, have been approved by the attorney general and deposited with Auditor General Turner. This settles the controversy over the location of the asylum.

Missing Goods Recovered.

BATTLE CREEK, Jan. 21.—A trunk containing goods secured by fraud by Morse Rosen, the Grand Ledge clothier, was found near here Saturday night. It was hidden in an old farmhouse, it is said, by J. M. Jacobs, a clothier here. This implicates Jacobs, and officers claim to have enough evidence to convict him. He is under arrest.

Fire at Ionia.

IONIA, Jan. 21.—Ionia was visited by a fire Saturday night. N. Kenyon's hardware store being destroyed. It is thought the fire originated from a gasoline explosion. The store was filled with ammunition, powder, oils, etc., and several explosions occurred, making it a difficult fire to fight. Kenyon's loss on stock and building will probably reach $25,000.

DEED OF FIENDS.

Burglars Murder an Aged Lady in South Grand Rapids.

Smothered to Death in Her Own Home—The House Robbed of About $700—No Clew to the Perpetrators of the Crime.

A CRUEL FATE.

GRAND RAPIDS, Jan. 18.—Mrs. Miles McKendrick was brutally murdered at her home in South Grand Rapids Wednesday morning and the motive of the crime was robbery. She was 65 years old and lived in a cottage with her husband, a mechanic employed in the car shops. The husband left for his work early in the morning, leaving his wife alone in the house as usual. About 8 o'clock John Quartel, delivering groceries, called, and, entering the unlocked door, found Mrs. McKendrick on the floor and called for help. She was bound hand and foot and a large and strong piece of flannel cloth was bound tightly around her mouth and chin and around that was wound a strong packing twine, which was drawn so taut that it was nearly buried in her cheeks. Her lower limbs were tied at the ankles so tightly that the thongs cut into her flesh and her hands were tied at the wrists in front of her by so strong a hand that the thongs were drawn to their utmost tension. The dead woman's dress had been ripped open in front from the neck to the waist and her false teeth were lying beside her on the floor. Her face was a purplish black and the wide, staring eyes were bulging from their sockets and told plainer than words the agony of her awful death. The only bruises found were on her knees, indicating that she had made a struggle for her life. Death was caused by suffocation.

Miles McKendrick, the husband, when he returned home was much affected. He knew that his wife had $700 or $800 in the house, the proceeds from the sale of some property, but did not know where she kept it. The house had been ransacked by the murderers in search of the money, and the woman's clothing was cut open in various places. The police thus far have no clew to the murderers.

Two suspicious-looking men were seen near the house, but could not be found later. The theory is that the murderers knew of the money and as soon as Mr. McKendrick left the house they gained admission, overpowered the woman and sought for the money. The board of Kent county supervisors offers a reward of $500 for the arrest of the murderer or murderers of Mrs. McKendrick.

THE END OF THE WORLD.

Adventists Think a General Change Spiritual and Physical, Is at Hand.

BATTLE CREEK, Jan. 20.—Elder Uriah Smith, the editor-in-chief of all the papers and books turned out by the Adventists here, makes the following statement in regard to the near approach of the end of the world:

"By the phrase, 'the end of the world,' we mean a change of dispensation. We believe it is near at hand. The gospel was to do a specific work in the world, to gather out a people for the Lord, as stated in Acts xv., 14. We believe the gospel has nearly accomplished its work in the world and that a change of dispensation is at hand. We believe a change is also awaiting the physical world and that that change is described in II. Peter iii., 7. We understand that this physical globe is to be renewed and will be the everlasting abode of the redeemed 'under the title of a new heaven and new earth,' Rev. xxi., 1. Then will be fulfilled Christ's words in Matthew v., 5."

In Poverty's Last Stages.

KALAMAZOO, Jan. 20.—Mrs. Belle Hull, who is a first cousin of Vice President Adlai E. Stevenson, and in her early days was well acquainted with Abraham Lincoln and Stephen A. Douglas, is to be taken to the Allegan county poorhouse. She has been supported for the last year by a sister in Chicago. The latter is an invalid and unable to further contribute to her support. Mrs. Hull was born in Kentucky in 1828. Her mother was a sister of the vice president's father.

Robbed in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Ill., Jan. 22.—J. V. Campbell, a prominent business man of Detroit, staying at the Richelieu hotel, was robbed Sunday night of his watch and chain and overcoat. About 8 o'clock he was walking on Twentieth street, between Michigan and Wabash avenues, when two men sprang out of an alley and seized him. They dragged him into the alley and after beating him over the head with a sandbag took his valuables.

Arrested for Passing Counterfeits.

KALAMAZOO, Jan. 20.—W. H. Culp, the Michigan balloonist, is under arrest here for passing counterfeit silver dollars. He had several in his possession. The city has been flooded with them recently and officers consider the arrest of great importance, but they believe there are others in the gang.

Fell Dead.

PETOSKEY, Jan. 18.—Philip Meyers, a well-known and respected citizen, a joiner by trade, fell dead in his shop from heart disease. He left a widow. The family has been peculiarly unfortunate, the only children having met sudden deaths a few years ago, one by scalding and another by drowning.

Fatal Runaway.

HOLLAND, Jan. 18.—Berend Aldering, while riding on a load of hay at Borculo, 12 miles from here, was instantly killed by the team running away, throwing him with his breast on a stump. He was 45 years old and unmarried.

THE DANGER OF NEGLECT.

IN CASES OF PILES AND OTHER RECTAL DISEASES.

There is no class of diseases so difficult to permanently cure when once firmly established as affections of the rectum and lower bowels. The tendency to chronic disease is very marked and although the first symptoms are unmistakable, yet they are in most cases neglected until deep seated disease is the result. In nearly every case of rectal disease, fistula, ulcers in rectum, fissure and similar troubles the first symptoms are heat itching about the affected part finally developing into an ordinary case of Piles.

It may be itching bleeding or protruding Piles it matters not, the end will be the same if neglected, and right here is the point to take time by the forelock and cure the piles, and effectually ward off any further danger. The surest and safest way to remove any form of Piles is to use the Pyramid Pile Cure, a remedy which has been fairly tested by thousands of sufferers and physicians, and it cures every form of Piles rapidly and without pain or inconvenience.

It is not to be confounded with the ordinary ointments, suppositories, pills and salves, so extensively sold and advertised as sure cures for Piles.

The Pyramid Pile Cure differs from all these in that it contains no poison, no opiates, and more over gives results on the first application.

Your druggist will tell you that no pile cure gives such universal satisfaction. A Treatise on Piles, invaluable to every sufferer, is enclosed in each package.

It's a bitter pill to swallow, but we'll admit Carnegie to the Democratic fold if his conversion to tariff reform proves to be sincere.

Look out for counterfeits! See that you get the genuine Salvation Oil! Do not let the dealer sell you something "just as good," but insist upon getting the genuine with the Bull's Head trade mark on the wrapper.

If all the oratory was as good as Bourke Cockran's the tariff debate would be more tolerable.

No hands are hurt when you wash with Pearline; no harm happens to the finest fabric. The hands that are delicate have much less work; the things that are tender have much less wear. It takes away the dirt, and brings ease in doing it. Pearline for washing leaves nothing to wish for; Pearline in washing leaves nothing to be done. Beware of imitations. 290 JAMES PYLE, N.Y.

Miss Louise VanDeMark left home Saturday morning for a brief visit with relatives in Cleveland, Ohio.

Leonard Wood, of Peoria, N. Y., is visiting his sister, Mrs. Demuth, and other relatives in this vicinity.

The St. Ambrose society are preparing a fine program for the concert to be given Saturday evening, Feb. 3d.

Mr. Wood, of Wyoming Co., N. Y., is visiting his nephew, S. W. Demuth, and incidentally looking for clover seed.

Will Blakeslee and bride, nee Kittie Shurtz, of Toledo, have been visiting her uncles, Henry and David Lancaster, the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Eccles, Mrs. Sarah Stevens and daughter, Grace, give a pedro party at the Eccles residence this evening.

Geo. Sherwood has received his machine for clipping horses. It works well and George is doing some very artistic work with it.

E. W. Freese & Son, always alive to improvements, will put a plate glass front into their store this spring. Who says times are hard?

Eggs are sixteen cents a dozen in Clinton now. That is why we permit our neighbors to feast on ham and eggs and why we have quit.

Wyman Wells has bought the Electus Rundell farm in Franklin, the consideration being $50 an acre. That farm is a bargain at that price.

W. O. Silver's herd of eighteen Jerseys made 7 pounds of butter to each 100 pounds of milk during the month of December. Who can beat this record?

Harmon Lutkins, of Ottawa Co., is spending a few weeks at Solomon Tate's. He was called here by the sickness of Mr. Tate's father-in-law, who is very low.

A series of Union revival meetings began last Sunday evening, which will be continued for some time. They are to be held every evening in the three churches, alternately.

St. John's Episcopal Sunday school expect to attend service at Tecumseh to-morrow, Friday, evening. The vested choir from Christ's church, Adrian, are expected to be present.

We understand that C. S. Burroughs offers his residence on Franklin street for sale. He has finally decided to locate in Oklahoma, if he can dispose of his property here to advantage.

Dr. Kirkpatrick, one of the County Board of Examiners, came over here last Thursday to examine Wm. Ellis, who has applied for an increase of pension for injuries received in the Mexican war.

The boiler at the Clinton plow factory works like a charm since the repairs, and the shop is booming right along with a full force of hands. A new screen has been placed on top of the cupola chimney.

Manchester people enjoyed the Clinton dance lately given so much that they decided to give a return party, which will come off to-morrow evening. A good crowd will attend from here and a jolly time is anticipated.

Tate, VanTuyle & Co., our new purchasing firm, are working up a nice business in buying grain, live stock, seeds etc. Clinton has long needed an enterprising firm of this character, and we wish them success. Their office room is with Justice W. B. Keyser, over Brown's hardware store.

The next entertainment of the course will be a lecture by Geo. R. Wendling, on Saturday evening next, Jan. 27th. His subject will be "The Man of Galilee." Mr. Wendling needs no introduction to a Clinton audience. He is one of the most eloquent orators now on the platform and the Town Hall will doubtless be filled to listen. The lecture he will deliver that evening is considered by many people as the best one in his repertoire.

The council have offered the U. of M. Students $15.00 to test the efficiency of the electric light plant. It will be tested some time next month, but the exact date has not yet been fixed upon. When the test occurs the plant will be run all night. The sentiment here is evidently growing in favor of running the works all night regularly instead of shutting down at midnight and starting up again at 5 o'clock as at present.

Ira Waterman, our county clerk, is now a full fledged farmer. He knows it, and there is no question about it. He owns a farm up in Hudson township on which he intends to raise corn next season. To be sure a good tall man might step across it, either way, but it's a farm just the same, and Ira is entitled to remarks in the farmer's institute which meets here this week.—Evening Telegram.

Michigan's supreme court has recently decided that, where a tenant has paid no rent, and voluntarily surrendered possession of land one or two months before the year expired, the landlord had a right to take possession and harvest the crop; and a purchaser of such crop from the tenant while it was growing, cannot maintain an action of trover against the landlord for its conversion to his own use.

A farmer in Eastern Hillsdale went out one evening last week, because his dog barked, and found that said dog had caused a tramp to take up his quarters on top of a zig-zag fence, from whence he was striking at the dog with a club. Calling off the attacking force, the tramp was asked how he was getting along, and promptly answered that he was traveling by rail.—Hudson Post.

Our accomplished sister journalist, Mrs. T. S. Applegate, of the Adrian Times, was chosen secretary of the Woman's State Press Club at Grand Rapids last week. This is the second time Mrs. Applegate has had this honor bestowed upon her by this association, and the able manner in which she has carried on the Times since the death of her distinguished husband, proves that she is deserving of a repeated compliment.—Hudson Gazette.

The Smith failure of last week has caused a great amount of excitement hereabouts. There are but few particulars known of the extent of the liabilities, but they are reported large. It is reported that friends of Mr. Smith in Ohio, among whom he has always stood high in financial matters signify intention of assisting him and that matters will not be as bad as at first supposed. Farmers hereabouts who had grain in the elevator unsold have consented to its disposal and receive their share of the proceeds therefrom, and the grain is being shipped this week. The coal business here has resumed and is in charge of W. A. Kent. It is hoped order may soon come out of the chaos, and that the business be resumed in a substantial manner.—Dundee Reporter.

The editor of the Croswell Democrat has invented a new-fangled stove for subscription wood. It is large enough to take four foot sticks, and is divided into a drying and consuming department. The wood is first placed in the drying department, and a series of troughs carry off the water, as it comes from the sizzing wood to a wash basin in the next room, furnishing good soft water for the employes. The lower portion of the stove is like any other stove. When the sizzing ceases and the editor has reason to believe that the wood in the drying apartment has been "dewaterized" he touches a spring under his desk, and the wood is dumped into the fire beneath. Macklem is keeping warm and getting lots of glory out of this device.—Hillsdale Leader.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss.

At a session of the Probate Court for the county of Lenawee, holden at the Probate Office in the City of Adrian, on Tuesday, the 9th day of January, in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-four.

Present, Richard B. Robbins, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Ebenezer Harmon, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of James Harmon, a son of said deceased, praying for the probate of an instrument now on file in this Court, purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased, and that administration of said estate may be granted to petitioner and Anson Harmon, the executors in said instrument named, or to some other suitable person.

It is ordered, that Monday, the 5th day of February next, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court, then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

If you are interested in the condition of your eyes, call on the noted Dr. Galleher. He is an expert in his profession. Eyesight is precious—more valuable than any other of the special senses. The Doctor has treated in the last 12 months more than 3,500 cases of all forms of eye trouble and errors of refraction, such as Glaucoma, Ulceration of the Cornea, Granulation of the lids, Presbyopia, Paralysis of Accomodation, Spasm of Accomodation, Hypermetrobia, Aphakia, Myopia, Astigmatism, Anisometropia, Strabismus, Diplopia, Asthenopia, etc. Have you ever stopped to think how many people in this world are blind from their own negligence and carelessness? Do not giving their eyes attention at the proper time? You may have the opportunity of consulting one who gives all his time in treating cronic eye trouble. Thousands of persons in the world that do not use glasses that should, then again there are thousands of persons using gasses they think suited to their eyes, but the truth of the matter is, the glasses do not correct the trouble, but aggravate it and produce headache, spots before the eyes, inflamation, granulation, winking, twisting spells, various nerve and brain affections, catracts, burning and smarting of the eyes, etc.; entailing not only positive injury to the sight, but untold misery and blindness. Dr. Galleher makes examinations in a few in this country can make. He has instruments with which he can examine every muscle and fibre in the inside of the eye. He can tell you in an instant after examining your eyes whether he can benefit you or not, and will truthfully say so. It should be understood that Dr. Galleher is well known throughout the Eastern States as a practical and successful electrician. He invented some of the finest electrical appliances ever imported to this country. Remember that Dr Galleher does not give one drop of medicine. He is the only man in America who has the exclusive sale of Dr. Edgar Scott's Positive Catarrh Cure. An instrument put up of compressed and medicated gasses, which is Dr. S's. own invention. Dr. Galleher also has appliances which will remove a tape worm in from two to four hours or no charges made. Testimonials of the best people in this country at his room at the hotel. Call early and secure convenient hours for free consultation and examination.

Mrs. Addie Babcock and committee, of the Home Missionary Society, will give their monthly 5 o'clock dinner at the church parlors next Wednesday afternoon, Feb. 7. Refreshments from 5 to 7 o'clock.

The Gymnasium is breeding a good many scabs on the boys' noses. So much for following in the footsteps of Corbett. We also hear that Kilrain and Slavin were in attendance a few nights since. Whether two bottles settled it or not, we can't say.

Dr. Hardy's pony, while standing in front of his residence, started for the barn and when entering there overturned the cutter. This frightening the horse it whirled about, breaking the shafts from the cutter and running east on Chicago street to Lenardson Bros.' where it was stopped by citizens, without further damage.

Revival meetings, conducted by the pastor, have been in progress at the Christian church for several weeks. Quite a number have given themselves to a christian life. The meetings will continue this week and probably next. Evangelist Rev. C. E. Bullock, of Saline, will assist Rev. Mudge.

Sena O. Yates, wife of Francis W. Yates, died at her home, two miles north of Britton, on Thursday, Jan. 25. The deceased was the daughter of Wm. Pilbeam, of Tecumseh, and was born Sept. 2, 1858, being 35 years, 4 months and 23 days old when she died. She always resided in the township of Macon. She was married to Francis W. Yates on March 28th., 1877 and always enjoyed good health until about two years ago, when she began to complain. She performed her household duties most of the time until about Christmas, when she took to her bed, continuing to grow worse until death relieved her of pain. She made a public profession of religion about ten years ago, uniting with the Christian Union church. When she saw that she must die she called her family to her bedside and gave them good advice, commending them to the care of God. She did not fear death, and met the change with Christian composure. She leaves a husband, five children, an aged father, nine brothers, three sisters and a host of friends to mourn her untimely departure. Her funeral was held at the family residence, last Saturday, being attended by a large concourse of relatives and sympathizing friends; Rev. E. Mudge officiating. The family hereby desire to express thanks to all who aided them during her long illness and who manifested such deep sympathy in their affliction, especially to those who furnished flowers and singing.

Quite a large number of our citizens went to the Grange Hall, in Macon, on Thursday evening to hear Wolfenbarger and Huckins, the celebrated temperance advocates.

James Campbell and wife, of Essex, who were called to Holloway last week to attend the funeral of his father, spent a few days with her brother, R. S. Houseman, and sister, Mrs. D. W. Loree, of our village.

Remember the L. C. S. will be held at the home of Mrs. Wm. R. Wilson, on Friday evening of this week. Refreshments will be served and a cordial invitation is extended to all as a good time is sure to follow.

Rumor informs us that orange blossoms will be seen in the near future and as there are several groves in which a bud may burst forth with the coming of spring, you will be at a loss to locate the one especially mentioned.

M. M. Florence had the small bone of the left ankle broken and the joint of the large bone thrown out of place with a small log he was at work with, Saturday morning. The fractured limb was attended to by Dr Nixon, of Holloway, and the patient is doing nicely.

Keep your eyes open for the annual box social to be held at the Library, on Wednesday evening. Each lady is asked to furnish a box with a lunch for two, which will be sold at auction. The young men having passed through the trying hour know what their duty is, and will see that neither the president or the auctioneer gets their best girl's box. A cordial invitation is extended to everyone to be present and help make it a pleasant and profitable affair.

PENTECOST POINTERS.

R. H. Nogar, of Dundee, was in town last week, looking up his timber interests in this vicinity.

The farmers are trying to utilize the little snow that has fallen to move wood, saw logs etc., but find it decidedly hard sledding.

A neighboring farmer has a corn crib that has suffered quite a depletion in the past few weeks, and as the owner has taken no corn from the crib he is at a loss to account for it: but from the fact that "old Budd," the faithful watch dog, has given no warning, it looks as though the thief was pretty well acquainted about the premises and had at least a speaking acquaintance with Budd.

Ex-postmaster Buck, of this place, who lost the use of one hand and both legs, some time ago, finds it pretty tedious sitting helpless in his chair, day after day; so with a view to cheering him up, his friends from all parts of the town came down, some fifty strong, last Tuesday, with lunch baskets well filled with good things of all sorts, and with many sleighs and wagons filled with wood. While the men split and piled the wood the ladies loaded the tables with edibles, and a general good time was enjoyed by all present. It is such kind deeds as this that prove to the pessimistic grumbler that there is much good in the world yet. Mr. Buck desires to heartily and sincerely thank all his friends, and promises to welcome, with a good warm fire, all who call on him at the store.

FARMERS' SOCIAL CLUB.

This club will hold its next meeting at Mr. R. B. Gillespie's, on Tuesday evening, Feb. 13th, with the following program:

Inst. Solo—Ellen Fisher.
Dec.—Charlie Schreder.

The Pyramid Pile Cure.

One of the best features of the Pyramid Pile Cure is the fact that it cures every form of piles without one particle of pain. This desirable point is not obtained by the use of injurious opiates which simply deaden and paralyze the nerves of the parts and make matters worse in the long run. But it is done solely by its remarkable healing and soothing effects. And while it thus gives immediate relief, at the same time the disease is not merely checked, but a radical cure is rapidly accomplished. And the point we want to make clear is that, all this is done without a particle of pain.

This fact is one reason for the great popularity of the Pyramid Pile Cure and constitutes one very great difference between it and almost any other kind of treatment for piles. Every kind of surgical operation for piles is excruciatingly painful besides endangering the life of the patient and in most cases is not to be compared with the Pyramid Cure, neither in making successful cures without pain nor in cheapness and safety.

The Pyramid Pile Cure has been before the public too long and its merits recognized by too many people to allow it to be classed with the many salves, suppositories, pills etc., and you run no risk in trying it, as is often the case with new and untried preparations. If you are ever troubled with any form of piles or rectal disease do not forget the Pyramid Pile Cure.

MUCH MADE.

Money stringency is not the only cause of hard times and it takes very little money to make a good deal of happiness, as the following shows: Mr. R. H. Kyle, Tower Hill, Appomattox Co., Va., writes that he was afflicted with rheumatism for several years, and physicians gave him no relief. Finally he was rubbed all over with St. Jacob's Oil and it cured. During his illness he had spasms and was not expected to live. This points a way to many who think times hard, but who can find an easy way out of their troubles.

OUR ART OFFER.

SHEPP'S WORLD'S FAIR PHOTOGRAPHED FOR THE HERALD READERS.

A Magnificent Art Series Within Reach of All and a Most Beautiful Souvenir.

With a desire to again promote the interests of its readers, the HERALD has closed a contract with the famous Globe Bible Publishing Company., of Philadelphia by which the magnificent series of Photographs, with descriptive matter, known as "Shepp's World's Fair Photographed," will be brought within the marvelously-low purchasing price of TEN CENTS in cash for each part when accompanied by one HERALD coupon.

It should not be forgotten that Messrs. Shepp's famous series of photographs were OFFICIALLY INDORSED by the Columbian Exposition, and the Globe Bible Publishing Co. was given exclusive rights to publish and sell these photographs. They are an immensely valuable and important souvenir of the greatest Exposition ever held, and at the price offered to readers of the HERALD every subscriber will want the series, not only for themselves, but also for their friends.

The well-deserved reputation of the Shepp Brothers, whose firm is known all over the United States and in Europe, is a guarantee that "Shepp's World's Fair Photographed" will be issued in their usual first class style, and that neither pains nor expense will be spared to make it worthy of the great event which it so graphically, thoroughly and ably portrays.

The first coupon in the series will be printed on Thursday, February 1st, 1894, and the succeeding coupons will appear each week until the series is completed. This is the chance of a lifetime to get a souvenir of the Exposition, and no one should neglect to take advantage of the opportunity.

Remember you must have one coupon cut from the HERALD and ten cents in coin to obtain each part of the series. There are thirty-two parts in all, thus requiring a total outlay of only $3.20 for the finest publication of the kind extant, the retail price of which is $8.00. An abundant supply will be kept on hand, so that subscribers can have their books, upon the presentation of their coupon and ten cents at this office. Part first has already been issued, samples of which can now be examined at our counting room.

The Tribune Almanac.

Among the annual Almanacs which are put into print at this season of the year, The New York Tribune Almanac must be rated as easily the first. The New York Sun (Dem.) praises it as an exceedingly valuable and accurate book of reference, and, on the other hand, calls its principal rival a book of popular mis-information. Although emanating from the office of the most aggressive Republican newspaper of the United States, The Tribune Almanac is absolutely devoid of partisanship. The Tribune's "arithmetic man" who figures up majorities the night after election, lays aside his political affiliations when he comes to work upon the Almanac. Accuracy, fairness and completeness are the watchwords then, and the result is seen in the wide distribution of The Tribune Almanac all over the United States, and its use by Democrats, Populists and Republicans alike. The number for 1894, which has just come to us, has brought its election returns, statistics and general information up to date, and is the largest and most complete number ever issued. The price is only 25 cents a copy, although now a volume of 360 pages. It was 25 cents a copy, even in the early Forties, when it began its career as a little document of 60 pages.

TECUMSEH, MICH., FEB. 1, 1894.

Write to Hon. Tom. L. Johnson for a copy of his speech on the Wilson bill. It will be good reading, no matter whether you agree with all he says or not.

The nomination of Wheeler H. Peckham for the office of Supreme Court Justice indicates that Grover does'nt intend to be bluffed by the Senatorial cabal.

It is now claimed that the income tax has more friends in the Senate than had been supposed. Its friends claim that the Senate is certain to pass the measure.

The Louisville Courier-Journal says: This is pretty weather, but fruit-tree blooms and McKinley booms should remember the fate of the man in the moon who came down too soon.

The Democracy can run no risk in adopting the income tax as a party policy. They may lose a few Eastern voters but they will gain ten votes in the West to offset each vote lost.

Gov. Jackson, the new governor of Iowa advocates "Consumption of American products by Americans." All right. Let him begin by having a law enacted to compel the people of Iowa to consume all the corn raised in that State.

Unless there be some hitch in the program the final vote on the Wilson bill will be taken in the House to-day. All signs now indicate the passage of the bill substantially as reported from the committee.

The Eastern papers still regard the income tax as an "odious measure." Keep cool, gentlemen. There will be neither brag nor bluster about it, but the present congress will give Eastern millionaires a chance to pay their share of federal taxation. The income tax is coming.

Senator Teller does not take a cheerful view of the outlook. He says of it: "Just now the amount of ignorance on financial questions among those in authority is something startling, and the country will have to pay dear for it. Times will be much worse before they are better."

The present income tax law of England has been in existence for fifty years, and it would be impossible to abolish it now. It is the best and easiest method (unless it be the single tax) for compelling the very wealthy classes to pay their fair proportion of federal taxation. The income tax is coming.

Henry George occupied a seat in the gallery of the House when the votes were taken in favor of free sugar (the bounty had been abolished the day before) and of free coal and iron ore. As Mr. George is a pronounced free trader it may be surmised that he was not displeased with the votes, although some other people were, and all of them did not belong to one party, either.

The New York World truthfully says: "The Wilson tariff act is a higher tariff than Henry Clay thought necessary for the protection of infant industries fifty years ago. It is higher than the Morrill tariff of 1862. It is nearly as high as the tariff of 1883." Compared with the McKinley act, it is a very drastic reform measure, but is a very moderate tariff nevertheless.

Here is the situation, as the St. Louis Republic paints it: "Tom Johnson admits that he is a monopolist and ought to be curbed. Andrew Carnegie regards the Wilson bill as a conservative measure. We are shipping 1000 agricultural machines to Argentina. We make electrical supplies for Belgium. Our cottons are sent to Arabia and Asia Minor. The free trade days are only a few congresses distant.

A leading clergyman, having made the remark, "I was surprised to hear that a prominent and wealthy Chicago man had declared himself a pessimist," the New York Sun aptly says: It is impossible that a wealthy Chicago man should be a pessimist, as long as he is able to take the train for New York. The prominent and wealthy Chicagoan must have meant that he was a prohibitionist or a vivisectionist or a vaccinationist or a purist or a quietist or an antimonopolist. Nothing ailed him, and he didn't know what it was.

FREE COAL AND IRON.

A Reform That Will Benefit the Laborer and Not the Monopolist.

If some genius had discovered a means by which the hidden wealth of the coal and iron mines of the country might be more cheaply brought to the surface and made ready for the hand of labor, only the most hardened McKinleyite would have withheld from him the award of grateful praise. He would by so much have increased the power of labor over the forces of nature. By so much would he have increased the potency of every hand engaged in the manufacture of iron and steel goods. He would have been scouted as a fool who proclaimed that this new invention threatened the iron and steel industry or was intended to benefit foreign competitors. He would have been laughed at who claimed that this invention must destroy the value of the coal and iron mines.
